PREFACE.

In submitting to their numerous subscribers, and the public generally, a popular History and complete Topography of Derbyshire, with a comprehensive Directory of its principal Inhabitants, the Authors have to tender their grateful acknowledgements to the various literary, scientific, and official Gentlemen of the County, for the valuable and interesting information with which they have furnished them, in answer to their numerous inquiries, and also to an unprecedented List of Subscribers who have so liberally supported them in their arduous undertaking. This prompt and munificent patronage shews clearly, that Works of this description, (when faithfully compiled) are highly interesting and useful both in the Office and Library,—not only to the man of business, but also to the Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy; especially in such extensive and important Mineral Districts as Derbyshire, where they are found invaluable as books of local and commercial reference. Authenticity being the great desideratum of Topography, the publishers attention has been unremittingly directed to the attainment of that object, in the present work,—every town, parish, township, hamlet, and almost every house in the County has been visited, and the information either obtained or verified on the spot. And though it would be presumptuous to expect that a volume containing such a large amount of information, and such a great variety of subjects, could be entirely free from errors, yet it is hoped, that any which may occur in the following pages, will not deteriorate from its general utility.

The Plan of the Work embraces a General History and Description of Derbyshire, shewing its Extent, Population, Agriculture, Manufactures, Mineral Productions, Springs, Baths, Roads, Rivers, Canals, Railways, Abbeys, Castles, Civil and Ecclesiastical Divisions, Antiquities, and Historical Events, Seats of Nobility and Gentry, Magistrates, and Public Officers; together with separate Histories and Directories of all the Towns, Parishes, Townships, Villages, and Hamlets, in the six Hundreds of High Peak, Scarsdale, and part of Wirksworth, in the Northern Division of the County; and Appletree, Morleston and Litchurch, Repton and Gresley, and part of Wirksworth, in the Southern Division, arranged under the heads of their respective Parishes, in each Hundred, and preceded by a general description and statistical summary of every Hundred, shewing its Parishes, Townships, &c., and the Divisions and Unions to which they belong, subjoined to which is a copious Index of Places and Subjects, which gives to the volume all the advantages of an Alphabetical Gazetteer. The Parish Histories shew the situation, extent, and population of each Borough, Town, Township, Village, Hamlet, and extra parochial liberty—the owners of the soil, and lords of the manors; the value of the Church Livings, with their Patrons and Incumbents, the Churches, Chapels, Charities, and Public Institutions, Trade, Commerce, objects of interest, curiosity, &c., &c.,—comprising the substance of all that has been written on the various subjects, by ancient and modern authors; the whole followed by a Directory of each place, presenting in an easy classification for reference the addresses and occupations of the principal inhabitants, the post office regulations, and the departure of railway trains, coaches, omnibuses, and carriers. To which is added a Directory of the Borough of Sheffield.

HISTORY AND DESCRIPTION

DERBYSHIRE.

In the time of the Britons Derbyshire is found included in the number of counties that made up the kingdom of the Coratini. During the government of the Romans, it formed part of Britannia Prima, and when England became divided under the Saxon monarchs into seven kingdoms, called the heptarchy, Derbyshire constituted part of Mercia, and Repton, then called Repandune, appears to have been a residence of the Mercian kings. It is a midland and almost central county, being situated nearly at an equal distance from the German ocean on the E. as from St. George's channel on the west. It is bounded on the N. and north-west by Yorkshire and Cheshire, on the south and south-east by Leicestershire, on the east by Nottinghamshire, and on the west by Staffordshire. It lies between 52 deg. 40 min. and 53 deg. 29 min. north latitude, and 1 deg. 12 min. and 2 deg. 3 min. west longitude from the meridian of Greenwich. The form of the county is extremely irregular, especially on its western side, and there is a small isolated part of it in Leicestershire. Its greatest length from north north-west to south south-east is 56 miles, and its breadth from east to west is about 33 miles. It has an area of 1029 square miles, comprising 658,803 acres, which 510,000 are arable, pasture, and meadow lands. At the census in 1851 it contained a population of 313,641 inhabitants, of whom 156,360 were males, 157,281 were females. The number of occupied dwelling houses were 56,745, at the same time 2,686 were uninhabited, and 458 were building. In 1801 the population was 161,567, and the annual value of the land and buildings, as assessed to the county rate in 1815, was £887,659. The annual value of real property assessed to the property and income tax for the year ending Lady-day 1851, was £1,999,550, and of property assessed to the relief of the poor for the year ending 25th March, 1850, was £1,058,351. The average value of land per acre for the whole county is 18s. 10d., and the ANNUAL VALUE of every parish or township may be seen by referring to the work. The COUNTY, before the passing of the Reform Bill, sent only four members to parliament, but now sends six, viz., four for the county at large, and two for the borough of Derby. The six hundreds of which it is composed form the north and south divisions of the county, each of which sends two members. The Northern division comprises the hundreds of Scarsdale, High Peak, and part of Wirksworth; and the Southern division, the hundreds of Appletree, Morleston and Litchurch, Repton and Gresley, and part of Wirksworth. For the North division, the polling places are at Bakewell, Chesterfield, Chapel-en-le-Frith, Alfreton, and Glossop, the place of election being at Bakewell. Those for the South division are Derby, Ashbourn, Melbourne, Wirksworth, and Belper, the place of election being at Derby. The chief market towns are Alfreton, Ashbourn, Bakewell, Belper, Chapel-en-le-Frith, Chesterfield, Derby, Glossop, Riddings, Tideswell, Winster, and Wirksworth. Derbyshire is included in the diocese of Lichfield, and province of Canterbury, in which it forms an archdeaconry, comprising the deaneries of Ashbourn, Castillar, High Peak, Chesterfield, Derby, and Repington, which contain 58 rectories, 52 vicarages, 116 perpetual curacies, 6 donatives, and 1 peculiar. There are also in the county 396 dissenting places of worship, of which 45 belong to the Independents; 34 the Baptists, 289 the (different branches of) Methodists, 10 the Unitarians, 5 the Friends, 2 the Swedenborgians, 1 the Latter Day Saints, 1 the Free Gospellers, and 8 the Roman Catholics. The Barmote courts for the regulation of mineral concerns, and determining all disputes relating to the working of the mines, are held at Monyash, Ashford, Eyam, Stoney Middleton, Crich, and Wirksworth. The assizes are held at Derby, as are the quarter sessions, except the Easter, which are held at Chesterfield. Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire formed but one shrievalty, until the year 1569, and the assizes for both counties were held at Nottingham till the reign of Henry III. They were then held alternately in each county, till 1569, since which time they have been uniformly held at Derby. Judge Blackstone says, England was first divided into counties, hundreds, and tithings, by Alfred the Great, for the protection of property and the execution of justice. Tithings were so called because ten freeholders with their families formed one; ten of these tithings were supposed to form a hundred. Wapentake, from an ancient ceremony, in which the governor of a hundred met all the aldermen of his district, and holding up his spear they all touched it with theirs, in token of subjection and union to one common interest. An indifferent number of these wapentakes or hundreds form a county or shire, for the civil government of which a shire-reeve or sheriff is elected annually. The kingdom was divided into parishes soon after the introduction of Christianity, by Honorius, Archbishop of Canterbury, in the year 636, and the boundaries of them, as marked in Domesday book, agree very nearly with the present division. The custom which still continues of making the hundreds responsible for the excesses of a lawless mob, is an appendage to the Saxon system of tithing.

Historians all agree that the aborigines of Britain were a tribe of Gauls who emigrated from the continent, probably a thousand years before the Christian era. Previous to the Roman conquest, the ancient Britons inhabiting the southern portion of the island had made some little progress towards civilization, but those on the north were wild and uncultivated, and subsisted chiefly by hunting, and the spontaneous productions of the earth, wearing for their clothing the skins of animals killed in the chase, and dwelling in habitations formed by the interwoven branches of the forest. Their religion was Druidical, but its origin is not known; some assert that the Druids accompanied the Gauls in early ages, and others, that Druidism was first introduced into England by the Phœnicians, who were the first merchants who traded to this island, and for a considerable time monopolized a profitable trade in tin and other useful metals. Their government, according to Diodorus Siculus, the ancient historian, though monarchial, was free, and their religion, which formed one part of their government, was Druidical. Justice was dispensed, not under any written code of laws, but on equitable principles, and on difference of opinion in the asssembled congress, appeal was made to the Arch Druid, whose decision was final. Their religious ceremonies were performed on high places, and in deep groves, and consisted in worshipping the God of nature, and rendering him praise on the yearly accession of the seasons. The means by which religion was supported was by volnntary tithes and offerings, and in this respect we trace a similarity with all the nations of antiquity. Despite of the corruptions and philosophical atheism in which the Druidical religion became involved, candour demands of us that the Druids were in possession of learning as extensive and more useful than some of their Christian posterity, who from the eighth century to the reformation, were almost wholly employed in scholastic divinity, metaphysical or chronological disputes legends, miracles, and martyrologies; and Dr. Kennedy informs us that in St. Patrick's time, no fewer than 300 volumes of their books were burnt, and no doubt the same was practised so long as a volume could be found. By this destruction a wide chasm has been made in the historical details of this country. Julius Cæsar, in his "Commentarii de Bello Gallico," informs us that the Druids inculcated the doctrine of the immortality and transmigration of the soul, and discoursed "with the youth about the heavenly bodies, their motion, the size of the heaven and the earth, the nature of things, and the influence and power of the immortal Gods." The misletoe was their chief specific in medicine, and nothing was held so sacred as the misletoe of the oak, which being scarce, was gathered with great ceremony on a certain day appointed for their general festival. In the civil government of this ancient people, capital offenders were sentenced to death, and sacrificed in the most solemn manner, on the altars of their temples, while those convicted of minor crimes were excommunicated from all civil and religious liberty. At the time of the Roman invasion, the British Druids exerted their utmost zeal in opposing the usurpation of that foreign power. The invaders, on the other hand, fired with equal resentment, endeavoured to establish their security by the extermination of the Druidic order, and its priests were sacrificed to this barbarous policy; many fled to the Isle of Anglesey, and afterwards perished in the flames, by the orders of Suetonius, and great numbers of them were cut off in an unsuccessful revolt of the Britons, under Queen Boadicea, after which the power and splendour of the Druids rapidly declined.

Julius Cæsar invaded Britain 55 years before the birth of Christ, and after a protracted struggle, succeeded in establishing a Roman government, but being distracted by domestic wars, which ended in the establishment of an absolute monarchy at Rome, the conquerers had little force to spare for the preservation of distant conquests, the Britons were therefore soon left to themselves, and for nearly a century after the invasion of Cæsar, enjoyed unmolested their own civil and religious institutions. In the interval between the first and second invasion of Britain by the Romans, the founder of the Christian religion had accomplished his divine mission, in a province of the Roman empire, but almost without observation at Rome: and A.D. 43, Claudius sent over an army to this country, under the command of Plautius, who was afterwards succeeded by Suetonius Paulinius; this general succeeded, after many sanguinary struggles, in completing the conquest, and caused great numbers of the Druids to be burnt in the fires they had prepared for their captive enemies; he also destroyed all their consecrated groves and altars, and abolished their rites and ceremonies. But the dominion of the Romans was not finally established till A.D. 80, when they were placed under the command of Julius Agricola. The first care of the conquerors was to introduce civilization and law, and by multiplying the wants of the people, to incline them to habits of industry, and finally to incorporate them with the Roman empire. Agricola endeavoured to secure his conquest by erecting a chain of forts across the isthmus between the Frith of Forth and Clyde, and in the year 84 he extended a chain of Stations from Solway Frith to Tynemouth, which was afterwards connected by an earthern rampart raised by the Emperor Adrian, as an obstruction to the Caledonians, who frequently descended and committed the most dreadful ravages in the Roman territories. In A.D. 208, this earthern barrier was strengthened by the great wall, 12 feet high and 8 feet thick, built by the Emperor Severus, across the island from Solway Frith to the river Tyne, stretching a distance of 80 miles. From this time York was made the capital of Maxima Cæsariensis, the great Roman province in which Derbyshire was comprised. The Emperor Constantine, son of Constantius was born at York, of a British Princess, in the year 312, and was the first imperial convert to the Christian faith. During the residence of the Romans in this island, comprehending a period of 400 years, many great public works were accomplished, and they left behind many monuments of their skill and industry. The conquered country was divided into six provinces, each of them governed by a prætor, and quæstor, the former charged with the general administration of the government, and the latter with the management of the finances.

ROMAN ANTIQUITIES.—The great Camo on Holy Hill, near Arnold, is supposed to have been the central station of the Roman forces in this district. The Roman Station, Derventio, at Little Chester, near Derby, is on the great Roman road Ilkenild street, which was examined by Mr. Pegge, about seventy years ago, with so much attention, as to leave us but little to add to his observations. It enters Derbyshire at Monks' bridge, about two miles to the north-east of Burton-upon-Trent, and extends in a direct line over Egginton Heath to Little Over. From this village it ran in a north-east direction to the town of Derby, where it was carried across Nun's Green, to the station at Little Chester. It is generally allowed there was once a bridge over the Derwent, at this place, in the same line with the street; from this place the road is very evident in dry seasons, in the pastures on the north side of the village. It passes to the east of Breadsall Priory, across Morley moor, and appears very conspicious a little east of Brackley gate, after which it is visible in Horsley Park; it afterwards crosses the road leading from Nottingham, near Horsley Woodhouse, to Wirksworth. After crossing Bootle Brook, it goes by Smithy-houses, and may be seen in Street-lane, from whence it may be traced through the fields to the road which lies between Heage and Ripley, and passes on to the east side of the camp on Pentrich common, and extends towards Okerthorpe, through the Day Carrs, at Shirland Hall, for Higham, from which it keeps the turnpike road to Clay Cross, and thence to Chesterfield, where it is supposed there was a Station; from this place no marks of the road are visible, but it is suppposed to have extended on the east side of the Rother to the west of Killamarsh Church, and through the parish of Beighton into Yorkshire. Another Roman road, called Bathom gate, or Bath gate, was clearly traced from Brough to Buxton, both by Mr. Pegge and Mr. Whitaker: on leaving the station at Brough, it is discoverable bearing to the south west, and enters the lane leading to Smalldale, where the right hand edge stands upon it. It was also visible on Tideswell moor, retaining its original breadth of 18 or 20 feet, sweeping in a long streak of vivid green over the purple surface of the heath, till it reached Fairfield common, from which place it was found to have kept the same line to the hill above Buxton.

The Saxon Antiquities of this county are numerous and exceedingly interesting. They consist of tumuli, encampments, vestiges of castles, and religious houses, as will be seen in the various histories of Derby, Duffield, Gresley, &c.

Though we meet with few records or monuments to illustrate the history of Britain previous to the appearance of the Romans; however, Pilkington in his "View of Derbyshire," published in 1789, says, "That from an attentive survey, we shall find that at this distant period the state of the county is not involved entirely in darkness. One of the most striking monuments of antiquity in Derbyshire, is situated in the parish of Youlgreave, and in the hamlet or township of Middleton, is the famous temple of Arbor Lowe, or Arbe Lowe, as it is generally called by the country-people; it is a circle of large unhewn limestones, surrounded by a deep ditch, outside of which rises a large and high vallum. The area encompassed by the ditch is about fifty yards in diameter, and of a circular form. The stones which compose the circle are rough, unhewn, masses of limestone, apparently thirty in number, but this cannot be determined with certainty, as several of them are broken, most of them are from six to eight feet in length, and three or four broad in the widest part; their thickness is more variable, and their respective shapes are different and indescribable. They all lie upon the ground, many in an oblique position, but the opinion that has prevailed of the narrowest end of each being pointed towards the centre, in order to represent the rays of the sun, and prove that luminary to have been the object of worship, must have arisen from inaccurate observation, for they almost as frequently point towards the ditch as otherwise. Within the circle are some smaller stones scattered irregularly, and near the centre are three larger ones, by some supposed to have formed a cromlech or altar, but there are no perceptible grounds for such an opinion. The width of the ditch which immediately surrounds the area on which the stones are placed is about six yards; the height of the bank or vallum, on the inside (though much reduced by the unsparing hand of time), is still from six to eight yards; but this varies throughout the whole circumference, which on the top is about two hundred and seventy yards. To the enclosed area are two entrances, each of the width of ten or twelve yards, and opening towards the north and south. On the east side of the southern entrance is a large barrow, standing in the same line of circumference as the vallum, but wholly detached except at the base." This barrow has been several times unsuccessfully examined, and remained an antiquarian problem, until the summer of the year 1845, when it was again opened by Thomas Bateman, Esq., of Youlgreave, a gentleman well known for his scientific and persevering researches into British antiquities, and from whose valuable work on the "Vestiges of the Antiquities of Derbyshire," we have in this instance availed ourselves of:—

"On the 23rd of May, 1845, operations were commenced by cutting across the barrow, from the south side towards the centre. A shoulder blade and an antler of the large red deer, were found in this excavation, which also produced an average quantity of rat's bones. On reaching the highest part of the tumulus, which, owing to the soil and stones removed in the former excavations, is not in the centre, but more to the south, and is elevated about four yards above the natural soil, a large, flat stone was discovered, about five feet in length by three feet in width, lying in a horizontal position, about eighteen inches higher than the natural flour. This stone being cleared and carefully removed, exposed to view a small six-sided cist, constructed by ten limestones, placed on one end, and having a floor of three similar ones neatly jointed. It was quite free from soil, the cover having most effectually protected the contents, which were a quantity of calcined human bones, strewed about the floor of the cist, all which were carefully picked up, and amongst them were found a rude kidney-shaped instrument of flint, a pin, made from the leg-bone of a small deer, and a piece of spherical iron pyrites. At the west end of the cist were two urns of coarse clay, each of which was ornamented in a peculiar and widely dissimilar manner. The larger one had fallen to pieces from the effects of time and damp, but has since been restored, and is a very elegant vase; the smaller one was taken out quite perfect, and is of much ruder design and workmanship. In addition to these urns, one piece of the ornamented upper edge of another, quite distinct from either of them, was found: The floor of the cist was laid upon the natural soil, and the cist was strewed with rat's bones, both within and without."

The following observations on the general character of deposits, serve to shew in a great measure, the dates of the interments in these Lows. If, for example, bones are found, especially burnt bones, unaccompanied by any, even the rudest instruments, we may safely affirm that these belonged to the aborigines, and are of the remotest antiquity. The discovery of flint and bone pins, of barbarous workmanship, with occasional rude earthern vessels, with the human remains, may be called the second era in the funeral history of the early Britons, whilst the third epoch is clearly defined by the brass dagger or celt of elegant proportions, and probably of Phœnician origin, which are found near the head of the principal interment, and sometimes accompanied by a stone hammer or celt. The iron knife and spear head, with shield of the same metal, are certain proofs of a Saxon barrow; whilst Roman tumuli are remarkable for the beauty of the pottery, and the coins universally found therein, and it is by no means unusual to find the primeval interment of burnt bones beneath a secondary one, when the bronze instrument of the Briton, or iron spear, or knife, or shield, of the Saxon denote a much later era.

The Early Commerce of the ancient Britons was carried on by barter without the aid of money, but about the commencement of the Christian era, a mint master was invited over into Britain from the continent. A mint was erected at Colchester, and money of gold, silver, and copper, was coined in that city, about forty different specimens having reached our time. Mines both of silver and gold were worked in the island during the reigns of Augustus and Trajan. Cambden asserts, a gold mine was discoved in Bedford, a few years before his time. The Romans drew their revenues from various sources, commerce, mines, legacies, houses, and heads, all contributed to supply their exactions, and as they had suggested to the natives the mode of making money, they did not fail to supply the exhausted treasury at Rome, from the industry of Britain. A succession of ages had almost identified the Britons with their Roman conquerers, and when the emperors pressed by difficulties at home and weakened by their possessions abroad, began to withdraw their legions from this island, the inhabitants importuned them to remain, to protect them from the incursions of the Picts and Scots; the wall of Severus was no longer a barrier to these semi-barbarians. In A.D. 450, two years after the last Roman legion had quitted England, Hengist and Horsea, two brothers, the descendants in the fourth generation from Woden, one of the principal gods of the Saxons, embarked their army to the number of 1600, on board three vessels, and landing in the isle of Thanet, immediately marched to the defence of the Britons, who had invited them over to protect them against their northern invaders. Having expelled the enemy, the fertility and richness of the country presented a temptation too strong to be resisted by the ambition of these newly acquired friends who soon began to aspire to the possession of the island. Roused by this display of treachery, the native inhabitants flew to arms, and for near a century maintained a conquest of dubious success.

Foremost among their defenders was the renowned King Arthur, who was crowned at the early age of fifteen. In his person was united a love of country and a love of military fame. He was soon in arms against the common foe over whom he gained twelve pitched battles; his chief opponent being Cedric, the great Saxon captain, whose invading forces he had nearly succeeded in expelling, when his death took place after a glorious reign of thirty-four years, which gave new hopes to the Saxons, who renewed their efforts, and at length succeeded in firmly consolidating their power.

Of the Saxon system of goverment it may be observed, that it had in it the germ of freedom, if it did not always exhibit the fruit. In religion they were idolaters, and their idols, altars, and temples, soon overspread the country; they had a god for every day in the week. Thor, the god of thunder, represented Thursday; Woden, the god of battle, represented Wednesday; Friga, the god of love, presided over Friday; Seater, over Saturday, and had influence on the fruits of the earth; Tuyse, the tutelar god of the Dutch, conferred his name on Tuesday: they also worshipped the sun and moon, each conferring a name on one of the days of the week,—Sunnam, on Sunday, and Monan, on Monday. The merit of eradicating this baneful superstition, by the introduction of Christianity, was reserved for a Roman Pontiff, Gregory, surnamed the Great, who in the year 597, sent Augustine, a monk, into the south, and Paulinus to the north of England, by whose preaching the Christian religion made such rapid progress that it soon became the prevailing faith, and Augustine was elevated to the rank of Archbishop of Canterbury, and Paulinus, Archbishop of York, who was the first to preach Christianity in Mercia, where he followed the victorious arms of Edwin, king of Northumbria. The Danes being dissatisfied with the Saxons having possession of the largest and richest island in Europe, made various incursions, and fitted out a large fleet, and entered the Humber in 867. After frequently penetrating into the interior of the country, they took possession of the kingdom of Mercia, and made Repandune (Repton) their head quarters. These pagan marauders burnt and destroyed villages and monasteries, and spared neither age nor sex, which caused the Anglo Saxon monarchs to confederate for their mutual defence, and the invaders were at length subdued. At this time the sovereignty of Mercia fell into the hands of Alfred the Great. All the kingdoms of the heptarchy became united in one great state in 823, near four hundred years after the arrival of the Saxons in Britain, and the crown was placed upon the head of Egbert. Union in the government gave the people hopes of settled tranquillity, but these fair expectations were speedily blasted by the re-appearance of the Danes, who for some ages had kept the Anglo Saxons in a state of perpetual alarm. For upwards of forty years, and through five successive reigns, the Danish invaders continued the struggle, and at the death of Etheldred, his brother Alfred, the successor to the throne, was obliged to abandon the field, and seek an asylum in the cottage of a swineherd. Emerging afterwards from his retreat, he expelled the invaders, and contributed essentially to lay the foundation of those institutions, on which the glorious superstructure of English liberty was finally erected. Alfred soon perceived that an island without a maritime force must ever be at the mercy of every piratical plunderer; he therefore determined to store his ports with shipping, and vessels larger than those in use in the surrounding nations were built, many of which carried sixty oars. The unremitting attention of this illustrious prince to the navy, contributed to increase the blessings of his reign, and has obtained for him the title of the Father of the British Navy. William of Malmesbury, speaking of the English at this remarkable period, says,—"They wore clothes that did not reach beyond the middle of the knee, their heads were shorn, and their beards shaven, only that upon the upper lip was always let grow to its full length."

In 1013, Sweyn, king of Denmark, landed with an army in this country, to revenge a cruel massacre of the Danes, which had taken place a short time before, having brought his fleet up the Trent to Gainsborough, and landed his forces, it created such terror that the whole kingdom was soon brought under his yoke. He, however, did not long enjoy his success, for he died the following year, and was succeeded by his son, Canute, between whom and Edmund the Saxon, several sanguinary engagements took place, and the kingdom was for a short time divided. In 1041, Edward the Confessor was, by the unanimous voice of the people, raised to the throne: having reigned twenty-five years he died, and with him ended both the Saxon and Danish rule in this kingdom. Harold, the son of Godwin, was the next to take possession of the throne, but he was opposed by his brother Tosti, who entered into confederacy with Harfragor, king of Norway; he having entered the Humber with a considerable force, landed his troops in Yorkshire, where in a deadly conflict they were completely overthrown by Harold, who left his brother and Harfragor amongst the slain. Harold having retired to York to rejoice over his victory, received information that William, Duke of Normandy had landed with a numerous and warlike army, at Pevensey in Sussex. To meet this unexpected foe, Harold immediately marched his forces to Hastings, where, in an unsuccessful battle he lost his life. William the Conqueror had no sooner taken possession of the throne than he set up various claims to his new possessions, but his principal right was that of conquest, and if his sword had not been stronger than his titles, so many English estates would not have been placed at his disposal. William brought in his train a large body of Norman adventurers, and the Roll of Battle Abbey given by Ralph Hollinshead, contains the names of 629 Normans, who all became claimants upon the fair territory of Britain, and the Saxon lords were forced to resign their possessions. The Conqueror, in parcelling out the lands of the kingdom amongst his followers, gave all the lands and tenements upon them in Derbyshire, to seventeen distinct proprietors. King William, the Bishop of Chester, the Abbey of Burton, Hugh the Earl, Roger of Poicton, Henry de Ferriers, William Peverel, Walter de Aincourt, Geoffrey Alselin, Ralph the son of Hubert, Ralph de Burun, Hascuit Musard, Gilbert de Gand, Nigel de Stafford, Robert the son of William, Roger de Busli, Thanes of the King. The tenants who occupied land under these different proprietors are also sometimes noticed, and in the course of the work some of the most curious and remarkable of the tenures will be given.

After so mighty an agitation as that produced by the conquest, some years were necessary to restore a calm; a violent struggle was made to expel the Normans, and York was the rallying point of the patriot army. To suppress this formidable insurrection, William repaired in person into the north, at the head of a powerful army, swearing by the "splendour of God," which was his usual oath, that not a soul of his enemies should be left alive. According to William of Malmsbury, confirmed by others, the whole country was laid waste from the Humber to the Tees, and for nine years neither the spade nor the plough was put into the ground, which is the reason why vasta so often occurs in Doomsday book, in Yorkshire. Knowing the detestation in which he was held, the Norman bastard, as historians designate him, entertained a constant jealousy of the English, and he obliged them every night at the hour of eight o'clock, to extinguish their fires and candles, at the toll of a bell, which obtained the name of the "curfew." Having by these sanguinary atrocities reduced the country to repose, the Conqueror in 1080 caused a survey to be undertaken of all the lands in the kingdom, on the model of the book of Winchester, compiled by order of the Great Alfred. This survey was registered in a national record called Doomsday Book, in which the extent of land in each district, the state it was in, whether meadow, pasture, wood, or arable; the name of the proprietor, the tenure by which it was held, and the value at which it was estimated, were all duly entered. In order to make this document complete, and its authority perpetual, commissioners were appointed to superintend the survey, and the returns were made under the sanction of juries of all orders of freemen in each district. After a labour of six years, the business was accomplished, and this important document, the best memorial of the Conqueror, written in Roman with a mixture of Saxon is still preserved in the Chapter-House at Westminster. For many centuries Doomsday Book remained unprinted, but in the 40th year of the reign of George III., his majesty, by the recommendation of parliament, and with a proper regard to the public interest, directed that it should be printed for the use of the members of both Houses of Parliament and the public libraries of the kingdom, which order has been duly obeyed. The counties of Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmorland and Durham, are not described in Doomsday Book,—probably owing to the desolation in which they were at that time involved. Through all ages this "Book of Judicial Verdict," will be held in estimation, not only for its antiquity, but also for its intrinsic value. At the time when it was completed, it afforded the king an exact knowledge of his own land and revenue, while the rights of his subjects in all disputed cases were settled by it; and to the present day it serves to show what manor is, and what is not ancient demense. The parish histories in this work will contain much information from this ancient document of all that is important relative to the manors and estates of Derbyshire. It may be necessary to explain the land measures and other obsolete feudal terms used at the time to which it refers. A perch, five yards and a half; an acre, 160 square perches; an oxgang or bovate, as much as an ox can till, or twenty-eight acres; a virgate or yard of land, forty acres; a carucate, carve, or plough land, generally eight oxgangs; an hide, as much as one plough would cultivate in a year; a knight's fee, five hides or 200 acres of land; berewicks are manors within manors; merchet or maiden's rent, a fine anciently paid by inferior tenants for liberty to dispose of their danghters in marriage; heriot, a fine paid to the lord at the death of a landholder; tol, a tribute for liberty, to buy and sell; theam, a liberty to a lord of a manor for judging bondmen and villains in his court; infangtheof, a privilege of certain lords of manors to pass judgment of theft committed by their servants within their districts; thelonia, a writ lying for one who has the king's demense in fee farm, to recover reasonable toll; sockmen, tenants who are held by servile tenure; borders, cottagers; villain, a member belonging to a manor. After the conquest, much of the land in Derbyshire passed to the church and the religious fraternities; but at the Reformation most of it reverted to the crown, and was subsequently granted to such persons as were then in royal favour.

Climate.—The climate is much colder in the northern and western parts, which terminate the principal middle chain of hills from the north, than in the southern, lower, and more sheltered regions. Dr. Aikin, in his "Description of the Country round Manchester," observes, that the mountainous parts of this county is distinguished from the rest by the greater quantity of rain which falls in it. At Chatsworth, which is by no means the highest tract, about 33 in. of rain have been found to fall annually at a medium. The High Peak is peculiarly liable to very violent storms, in which the rain descends in torrents, so as frequently to cause great ravages in the lands; it is also subject to very high winds. These causes, together with the elevation of the country, render it cold, so that vegetation is backward and unkindly. Some kinds of grain will not grow at all in the Peak, and others seldom ripen till very late in the year. The atmosphere is, however, pure and healthful, and the higher situations are generally free from epidemic diseases; though agues and fevers sometimes have prevailed in the valleys. One disease, however, is endemic in these parts, and even as far south as Derby; this is the bronchocele, or Derby neck.

Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire had but one high sheriff till the tenth of Elizabeth; and they appear to have been divided into eighteen hundreds; for in Domesday Book we find that if the king's peace, given with his hand or seal, was broken in Derbyscyre or Snottinghamscyre, it was to be amended by the eighteen hundreds, each hundred paying eight pounds; of this amends the king hath two parts and the earl one. In the same document it is also written, "If any man according to law shall be banished for any guilt, none but the king can restore peace to him. A thane having more than six manors, doth not give relief of his land, except to the king only eight pounds. If he have six or less, he giveth relief three marks of silver; wheresoever he remaineth in a borough or out. If a thane having soc and sac forfeit his land between the king and the earl, they have the moiety of his land and money: and his lawful wife, with his legitimate heirs, if there be any, have the other half." The earl here referred to was the Conqueror's legitimate son, William Peverel, who was the governor of Nottingham Castle, and lord of the extensive honour of Peverel, which extended largely into both counties.

The Monastic Institutions in this county were, including all kinds, fourteen, and at the general dissolution, were calculated to be of the value of £728 15s. 5d. At Derby an abbey and canons, not of long continuance, being afterwards transferred to Derley Abbey; a priory of Benedictine nuns, a priory of Preaching or Dominican friars, and an hospital (if not two) for leprous persons. At Gresley, a small priory of canons; at Calke, a convent of regular canons, of the order of St. Austin; at Repton, a monastry of religious men and women, which afterwards was a priory of Black canons; at Lockhay, or Locko, a preceptory of the order of St. Lazarus; at Dale, Dale Abbey, of the Premonstratentian order; at Yeavely, an hermitage or preceptory; at Beauchief, a monastery of Premonstratentians, or White canons; between the villages of Hope and Castleton, an hospital; at Birchover, an hermitage. The particulars of each, and the grants of the lands of these houses at the dissolution of the monasteries, will be recorded in each parish where they were situated. These institutions were mostly founded during the two centuries immediately following the Norman conquest; afterwards the people seem to have lost their taste for such institutions. The total revenue of all the religious houses in England, at their dissolution, has by some been estimated at £140,000; whilst others have thought it not less than £200,000 per annum.

Eminent Men. — Mr. Flamstead, one of the most eminent astronomers whom England or any other country ever produced, was born at Derby, in 1646, and received the first part of his education at the free school, in that town, but was interrupted by a bad state of health in his preparation for the university. During his sickness, having met with an astronomical work, he received much entertainment from the perusal of it, and formed a taste for those studies, from the successful prosecution of which he afterwards acquired the most distinguished reputation. His first attempts in astronomy were calculations of the places of the planets, and of an eclipse of the sun by the Caroline tables. By means of the latter of these observations, he became acquainted with Mr. Imanuel Halton, a mathematician of some eminence, who resided at Wingfield manor, and supplied him with the best astronomical works then extant. From this time Mr. Flamstead prosecuted his favourite study with great success. In the year 1669, he calculated some remarkable eclipses of the fixed stars with great precision. This display procured him the thanks of the Royal Society, and the correspondence of some of its most learned members. In the year 1674, passing through London on his way to the University, he was informed by Sir Jonas Moore, that a true account of the tides would be highly acceptable to His Majesty; and he embraced the opportunity of recommending himself to the favour of the king by gratifying his wishes. He also constructed two barometers, at the request of Sir Jonas Moore, who showed them as great curiosities to the king and the Duke of York, and accompanied them with Mr Flamstead's directions, for judging of the weather by these instruments. This great patron and friend, Sir Jonas, the following year, brought Mr. Flamstead a warrant to be astronomer to the king, with a salary of £100 a year, payable out of the ordnance. This appointment did not lessen his inclination to go to the church, and a few months afterwards he was ordained by the Bishop of Ely. He resided at Greenwich in the year 1675, whilst the Royal Observatory was built, and began his observations in the character of astronomer to His Majesty. In the year 1684 he was presented to the living of Burstow, in Surrey; but his attention was still principally directed to that science which had been the means of raising him to the honourable situation in which he was then placed. After having made many important discoveries and improvements in astronomy, as may be seen from perusing the Philosophical Transactions, published at this time, he died on the last day of December, 1719. About six years after his decease, his great work, "Historia Cœlestis Britannica," was published and dedicated to the king. It had been prepared and part printed before his death, and will be a lasting and noble monument to his memory. He composed the "British Catalogue of Fixed Stars, containing about three thousand, which is twice the number of those contained in the catalogue of Hevelius. To each of these stars he has annexed its longitude, latitude, right ascension, and distance from the pole-star; together with the variation of right ascension, and declination, while the longitude increases a degree. The great accuracy and extent of Mr. Flamstead's observations are deserving of admiration, nor has any age or country produced a more eminent astronomer, if we except the late Dr. Herschel, whose discoveries have raised the astonishment of all Europe.

James Brindley, the celebrated engineer, was entirely self-taught. He was born at Tunstead, near Wormhill, in 1716, and from the time he was able to do anything, was employed in the ordinary descriptions of country labour. From the extreme poverty of his father, this great genius received little or no education, and to the end of his life he was barely able to read, and his knowledge of the art of writing hardly extended farther than the accomplishment of signing his name. At the age of seventeen, he bound himself apprentice to Mr. Bennett, millwright, of Macclesfield. Being frequently left to himself for whole weeks together, to execute works concerning which his master had given him no previous instructions, Mr. Bennett was frequently astonished at the improvements introduced into the wheelwright business. After remaining with his master some years, he set up in business for himself; his connections became gradually more and more extended, and at length he began to undertake engineering in all its branches. In 1755, it was determined to erect a new silk mill, at Congleton, and another person being appointed to preside over the execution of the work, and arrange the more intricate combinations, and Brindley was engaged to fabricate the larger wheels, and coarser parts of the apparatus. It soon became manifest, however, that the superintendent was unfit for office, Brindley being obliged to remedy several blunders into which he had fallen, at length the entire work was confided to him, which was completed in a very superior manner. His ever active genius was constantly displaying itself by the invention of the most beautiful simplifications, one of these was a method for cutting all his tooth and pinion wheels by machinery, which till then had been done by hand. But he had not yet found an adequate field for the display of his vast ideas and almost inexhaustible powers of execution. Happily, however, this was at last afforded by a series of undertakings which were destined, within no long period, to change the whole aspect of the internal commerce of the land. The Duke of Bridgewater having an estate extremely rich in coal mines, which had hitherto been unproductive, owing to the want of sufficiently economical means of transport; the object of supplying this defect had for some time engaged the attention of the young Duke, as it had indeed done that of his father, who, in 1732, obtained an act to enable him to cut a canal to Manchester, but had been deterred by the immense outlay, and the formidable natural difficulties. When the idea was now revived, Brindley was applied to, to survey the ground. Confident of his own powers, he expressed his conviction that the ground presented no difficulties which might not be surmounted. On receiving this assurance, the Duke at once commenced the undertaking. The canal was of uniform level throughout, and consequently had to be carried across the Irwell, in order to bring it to Manchester. Thinking it due to his noble employer to give him the most satisfying evidence of its practicability, he requested that another engineer might be called in. This person Brindley accompanied to the place where he proposed to rear his aqueduct, and explained to him how he intended to carry on his works; but the man only shook his head and remarked that "he had often heard of castles being built in the air, but never before was shewn where any of them were to be erected." The Duke, nevertheless, retained his confidence in his own engineer, and the work was begun in September, 1760, and finished in July following. This was the first of a succession of works of the same description, in which the great engineer displayed the originality and fertility of his genius, and from this may be dated the commencement of that extended canal navigation which has formed so important a part of our means of internal communication. The vigour of his conception in regard to machinery was so great that however complicated the machine, having once fixed its different parts in his mind, he would construct it without any difficulty. When much perplexed with any problem he had to solve, his practice was to take to bed, where he would sometimes remain for two or three days thus fixed to his pillow. The case affords us a striking example of what the force of natural talent will sometimes, do, where not only all education is wanting, but all access to books. Brindley's multiplied labours and intense application rapidly wasted his strength and shortened his life. He died at Turnhurst, in Staffordshire, in 1772, in the 56th year of his age.

The birth-place of two eminent literary characters, who are known to have been natives of Derbyshire, are not known; Dr. William Outram, the learned divine of the 17th century, who wrote upon sacrifices, and Samuel Richardson, author of Sir Charles Grandison, and other novels, which acquired so much celebrity in the reign of George II.

Amongst the distinguished characters of the 12th and 13th centuries, who flourished in this part, was Robin Hood, the famous archer and freebooter, of Sherwood Forest, Nottinghamshire, who was born at Chellaston Manor House, in this county, but whose excursions often extended into the High Peak, where several places bear his name, particularly a high ridge of rocks about two miles from Hathersage, a short distance from the Sheffield road; the recess, two yards deep and one wide, formed in the rock, is called Robin Hood's chair, and according to tradition Little John, Robin Hood's companion, lies buried in Hathersage church yard.

Longevity.—Amongst the numerous instances of longevity, in Derbyshire, we will notice the following: in the reign of Edward II., Sir Ralph Vernon, styled the long liver of Sudbury, aged 150 years; 1640, William Cooke, of Barlborough, aged 100; 1657, Adam Woolley, of Allen Hill, near Matlock, aged 100; 1669, Grace Woolley, wife of the aforesaid, aged 110; 1718, November 19th, in Taddington churchyard, William Heward, aged 118; 1789, Cornelius Crich, of Ashover, aged 101; 1792, Mary Bate, of Beighton, aged 105; 1795. Mary Gratton, of Taddington, aged 105; 1820, Sarah Hollins, of Sommercotes, aged 102; 1821 Alice Buckley, of Taddington, aged 106; 1827, Thomas Withers, of Heath, near Chesterfield, aged 102; 1827, December 4th, Mrs. Turner, of Morewood Moor, aged 103. The Derbyshire Chronicle, of June 13th, 1845, notices fifteen persons living at Blackwell, whose united ages amounted to 1249 years, averaging 83 years each; and in the village of Eyam, three persons whose united ages amount to 264 years. At the census of 1831, the county of Derby contained 189 persons who were 90 years old, and 28 persons who were 100 years old and upwards. There is now, 1857, living at Morewood Moor, South Wingfield, a woman, in the possession of all her faculties, named Rhoda Flint, in her 100th year. There is also a man residing at the same place who was at the Battle of Trafalgar, October 21st, 1805, and served on board the "Victory"—the vessel on which Lord Nelson was killed.

SURFACE, MOUNTAINS, DALES, CAVES, &c.—There are few counties in England, the general surface of which exhibits so irregular an appearance as that of Derby. Indeed the southern and northern parts of it are a striking contrast to each other. The former is not remarkable for hills and dales; whereas the latter is distinguished in an eminent degree by a long and continued succession of hills, romantic dales, and beautiful valleys. In this part of the kingdom, the country begins gently to rise into hills, which in their progress to the north, swell gradually into mountains. These extend in one great chain, usually termed the backbone of England, to the southern extremity of Scotland. They first divide Yorkshire and Lancashire then, entering Westmoreland, they spread over the whole face of that county, and a part of Cumberland and Northumberland; after this they contract again in a ridge or chain, and form the limits between Cumberland and Northumberland. Continuing their direction northward, they enter Scotland. These mountains in their course are distinguished by many different names, and vary considerably from each other in their respective elevations and circumference. Ingleborough, in Yorkshire, has been estimated at 20 miles in circumference at its base, and 600 yards in height above the neighbouring valley, but 787 above the level of the sea. Whernside and Pennigant, the former 2,384 feet, and the latter 2,270 feet above the level of the sea. These are the most lofty heights at the north-western extremity of the West Riding of Yorkshire. Scaw Fell, Helvellyn, and Skiddaw, in Cumberland, rear their heads 3,000 feet high. Snowden, in Wales, is 3,600, and Ben Nevis, in Scotland, 4,000 feet above the level of the ocean. In respect to that part of Derbyshire where these high lands begin, though the mountains are not equal in height and extent to those mentioned, yet they approach nearer to them than may at first sight be imagined. The ground in the southern extremity of the Peak rising gradually into hills, and these lying one behind another in a continued series, a common observer can scarcely form an accurate idea of their elevation above the surrounding country. However, of this he becomes fully sensible, when he begins to descend, in the neighbouring western counties. In some particular situations, the prospects into Cheshire and Lancashire are remarkably distinct and extensive. The two highest mountains in the north-west part of Derbyshire are Axe Edge and Kinderscout. The former, about three miles south-west from Buxton, is about 2,100 feet higher than the town of Derby, 1,000 feet above the valley in which Buxton Old Hall stands, and 1751 feet above the level of the sea. Holme Moss, the most conspicuous point of Kinderscout, is 1859 feet high. These separate the basins of the Humber and the Mersey. Mam Tor, or the Mother or Shivering mountain, near Castleton, and other ridges, branch off in various directions, across the High Peak, and the Eastern Moor, until they are lost in the fruitful plains that embank the Trent. From near Axe Edge, a tract of high land runs south-east, separating the basins of the Derwent and the Dove. Another east of the Derwent, and running south-east, separates its basin from that of the Rother and the Sheaf. The Low Peak, of Wirksworth Hundred, though hilly, is not so elevated. Of the dales or valleys, Dove Dale is undoubtedly the most celebrated. It extends nearly north-west, from Thorpe, between Derbyshire and Staffordshire, about five miles along the course of the Dove. There are high and elevated rocks in this picturesque dale, called Dovedale Church, Thorpe Cloud, Lover's Leap, &c. The valley in the High Peak, perhaps the most interesting, is that in which the town of Castleton stands. It is at least 800 feet deep, and in many parts nearly two miles wide; extending a distance of five or six miles. The view from the east, as you stand on the Sheffield road, a little above Hathersage, is exceedingly interesting. Surrounded by the bleak and barren moors, scattered over with gigantic rocks, thrown by some terrible commotion in the wildest confusion, the valley suddenly opens to view in all its loveliness and beauty. The steep sides of the vale are seen dotted over by a series of well-cultivated enclosures; and the village of Hope, with its heaven-pointed spire, standing in the distance; while the Derwent is seen winding its silent course, here and there darting its silvery rays through the thickly interwoven foliage, and giving to the whole a charm of the most exquisite beauty. Another pleasing and romantic view is seen as you enter the valley from the hills above Castleton. Directing your eye on the north side of the valley, you see the country boldly swelling into hills, and at length terminating in several high points, at a considerable distance. At the bottom is seen the town of Castleton, and to the south of it, the ruins of an ancient castle, standing on a bold and abrupt eminence. Descending from this elevated position, fresh objects no less striking present themselves. Mam Tor raises his lofty head, and seems with an awful majesty to overlook this scene of beauty and grandeur. The valley does not extend westward beyond the town of Castleton, but here forms a most noble and magnificent amphitheatre; its back rising in many parts 1000 feet, and the diameter of its front measuring nearly two miles. If the valley be pursued down the vale of the Derwent, it is of great length, extending to the distance of forty miles, even below the town of Derby. In the course of the valley the views are extremely diversified, and the most beautiful and romantic scenery continually presents itself in the most delightful succession.

The course of the Derwent from Hathersage, by Chatsworth, Darley, Matlock, and Duffield, as far as the town of Derby, will be fully illustrated in the course of the present work; as well as Bonsal Dale, Matlock Dale, Monsal Dale, Middleton Dale, Cave Dale, and Lathkill Dale, &c.

The Mountain Limestone Rock, on the north-west, is noted for the striking appearance it presents, and the singular caverns which often engulf the streams, traversing them in subterraneous courses several miles in length, constitute the most peculiar features of Derbyshire. These caverns, the more important of which are at Castleton, Matlock, and Buxton, are entered by natural arches or fissures at different elevations of the sides of the hills in which they are situated, and lead to alternate passages and chambers, being in one or two instances of palatial size, and of noble height and proportions; in some cases roofed with a flat surface of rock, in others with arches of different forms and sizes. In the great Peak Cavern, at Castleton, these arches, from their height, span, proportions, and harmony, as to character and extent with the chambers, their canopy fill the mind with a sense of grandeur and beauty, scarcely inferior to that produced by the interiors of the large cathedrals. In some instances, the constant dripping of water from the roofs of these caverns, charged with calcareous matter,—in others, the constant oozing and welling of such water over large faces of the rocky sides of the caverns, have, in process of time formed stalactites of great size and curious variety, or produced surfaces of crystalline character. In a cavern in Chelmorton Dale, a miner found a ring, though he could discover no entrance except the one he had made. Similar instances are noticed by other miners of human skeletons having been found at various depths of the earth, particularly in the neighbourhood of Monyash and Sheldon. There are several openings of the ground on the north-west side of Peak Forest, called "swallows," by the country people; they derive this name from the total disappearance of small streams of water which fall into them.

Soil and Produce.—The soil consists chiefly of clay, loam, sand, and peat, very irregularly intermixed: the southern part, which is the most fertile, consists principally of a red loam on various under-soils. The sub-strata of which, comprised within a line drawn east and west from Sandiacre to Ashbourne, consists of gravel, intermixed with large portions of red marl of very irregular forms, in several parts of which are beds of gypsum of considerable extent. The sub-strata of the other parts of Derbyshire, are limestone of various kinds, with toadstone, gritstone, with shale, and coal, with indurated clay, all of which appear in the surface in certain parts, owing to their dipping in various directions. The soil on the banks of the rivers is partly alluvial. The southern and eastern parts are employed both for pasture and tillage. Most kinds of grain are there cultivated, and produce a fair return. Dairy farms are numerous in the southern and northern parts; and the annual produce is said to be about 10,000 tons of cheese, which is sent to all parts of the kingdom. In 1846, the quantity of cheese made was about 8,000 tons, and forty years ago it did not exceed 2,000 tons. Barley is cultivated to some extent in the southern division of the county, and more particularly so in the Repton and Gresley Hundred, where it finds a ready market at Burton-upon-Trent, a town long celebrated for the excellency of its ale. The quantity of barley converted into malt annually in the town of Derby, is about 14,000 quarters; in the whole county, about 40,000 qrs., and in the town of Burton alone, 88,000. In the northern parts, the land is mostly used as pasture for sheep and cattle, and though the climate is raw, yet much of the land is excellent for feeding, the cattle becoming fat in a short time. The sheep on the High Peak are smaller than those on the Leicester border. They weigh only from 14 to 17lbs. per quarter; those on the gritstone lands being about 3lbs. lighter than others of the same breed fattened on the limestone soil. The fleeces of the former are much lighter and thinner than the others. Merino sheep were introduced in the beginning of this century; and George III. honoured the patriotic endeavours of Mr. W. B. Thomas, of Chesterfield, the introducer, by presenting him with two Merino ewes. The horses in the northern are of a different breed from those of the southern parts; the latter being strong and heavy, while the former are light and active, and are much employed in the Peak for carrying limestone and lead ore. Oats are grown on the high lands in the northern parts, and the natural grass is mostly very rich, which, though occasionally ploughed, and sown with oats, two or three years in succession, soon recovers its rich herbage, and is much improved by the moss to which it is subject being destroyed. Great quantities of camomile, besides valerian and elecampane root, were formerly raised in the county, which though it has never ranked decidedly high for its agriculture, it has been considered to be on an equality with the most favoured district, more especially in respect to the dairy produce—cheese, which is sought after in other counties.

Agricultural Improvements.—During last century the improvements by enclosure, drainage, and superior management, have been wonderful; but when, with Mr. J. L. Mechi, of Triptree Hall, Essex, we consider that we have a superfluous capital, with a super abundant unemployed population, threatening in its continuance ultimate destruction to the nation, and that to ship off our labourers and our money is nothing less than suicide;—he says, the denser our population, the greater our power and our trade, provided we keep our capital at home and at work amongst ourselves. To accomplish which he points to his own operations at Triptree Hall, and says,—If every capitalist expends forty-six pounds sterling money in improving each acre of poor and indifferent land, the sum total would be many hundred millions. The magical effects of this expenditure on our trade, commerce, and manufactures, scarcely need pointing out. Mr. Mechi's letters and improvements are worthy of the notice of the nobility, gentry, yeomen, and capitalists, and if found practicable, it is hoped they will endeavour to follow the example, to restore the prosperity and stability of the British Empire. England contains 32,590,429 acres of land, of the average value of 19s. 2d. per acre. It is asserted by eminent writers on the principles of population, that England alone could maintain 60,000,000 souls, and some say more.

Farms.—In the southern division of the county, the farms are nearly equally divided between pasture and tillage; while the northern parts, from the poverty of soil, and the rawness of the climate, are mainly used as pasture for sheep and cattle. The farms, though not extensive, are generally larger in the southern portions of the county than in the north; and after all that has been said in favour of large farms, it it pleasant to see a whole county in a high state of cultivation, inhabited by respectable yeomanry, although few farms exceed £300 per annum. There are many small farms, particularly in the north, the rental of which does not exceed £20 a year; yet the occupants maintain themselves in honest respectability; which would not be the case, if ten or twenty of these little spots were thrown together.

Farm-houses and Cottages.—The farm-houses have been considerably improved within the last thirty years, and in most instances particular attention has been paid to the convenience of the outbuildings and farm-yards. In the south, they are principally buil of brick, and covered with tiles; while in the north, they are almost exclusively built o f stone, and covered with slates: most of the old houses, which were covered with thatch, have given way to more modern erections. The cottages have generally small plots of ground attached to them, and agritultural labourers are better off than in most other counties, from the facility of obtaining employment in mining, or the various branches of manufactures carried on in most parts of the county.

Rents.—The rents, as in most other counties, were considerably advanced during the late war, about forty-five years ago, owing to the extraordinary rise which had previously taken place in the price of provisions and other agricultural produce. However these have been greatly reduced since that time; and on the repeal of the Corn Laws, still further reductions were made, to meet the temporary depression in agricultural produce, but which during the last two years has more than recovered its original position.

Tenures are in all the variety of freehold, copyhold, and leasehold, and there is a considerable portion of church lands. The freeholders are more numerous than extensive, and the principal occupants of the soil are mostly tenants at will; a system which prevents those extensive agricultural improvements, which would undoubtedly take place, if leases were more generally granted. The tithes are in most instances commuted, and in others they are paid by a moderate composition.

Strata and Geology.—The geology of Derbyshire is in the highest degree interesting and instructive. The general disposition of the superior strata may be stated as follows, viz. :—1st. Argillaceous Grit, and its accompanying beds of clay, coal, ironstone, &c., varying in thickness according as the surface is more or less uneven, and containing a great variety of impressions, particularly the bamboo of India, the euphorbia of the East Indies, the American ferns, corn, grass, and many other species of the vegetable kingdom not known now to exist. 2nd. Coarse Silicious Grit, composed of granulated quartz pebbles, of various sizes. This stratum is about 120 yards in thickness, but not productive of minerals; frequently it contains crystalized fluor and barytes. 3rd. Shale or Schistus of a dark brown or blackish colour, bituminous, and appearing like indurated clay; its thickness varies from 120 to 150 yards. In its sparry veins are frequently cavities incrusted with a fine variety of crystalizations of calcareous spar; impressions of marine substances are sometimes discovered in it. 4th. Limestone regularly stratified, and varying in thickness, and seeming to be wholly composed of marine exuviæ, in which is found a great variety of shells, entrochi, corallois, madrepora, and many other species of crustaceous animals. In it are found the principal veins or fissures which contain galena, sulphuret or native oxide of zinc, a variety of ochres, fluors, barytes, calcareous crystalizations, pyrites, &c. This limestone forms a variety of beautiful marbles, some black, others of a brown red, much used for chimneypieces and different ornaments; some mottled grey, of a light stone colour. On the surface of this stratum rottenstone is sometimes found. 5th. Toadstone, a substance of a dark brown colour, with a greenish tinge, and very full of holes; sometimes filled with calcareous spar, and sometimes with green globules; not laminated, but consisting of one entire mass, and breaking irregularly in all directions. 6th. Limestone, similar to that already described, below which no miners in Derbyshire have yet penetrated. Whatever stratum in the preceding generally occupies the surface in any part of the county, the subsequent beds invariably follow in the order already enumerated. The new red sandstone extends into Derbyshire from the other midland counties, and occupies the southern districts as far north as Ashbourn, Duffield, and Sandiacre. Rocks are divided into primary, secondary, and ternary. Primary consists of granite, gneis, micaceous-schistus, hornblende-schistus, argillaceous-schistus, kiezel-schistus, chlorite-schistus, sienite, porphyry, quartz, primitive limestone, serpentine and topaz rock; which produce platina, gold, silver, mercury, tin, bismuth, antimony, nickel, cobalt, arsenic, molybdena, scheelium, uranium, &c., with the precious stones, accompanied with several ores of the metals found in the secondary. The Secondary consists of limestones, grits, sandstones, coals, ironstones, aluminous-schistus, basalt, basaltic amygdaloid, &c. The Ironstone and Coal Strata found laminated in the concavities on the surface of the grit stratum, may by some be accounted ternary; if so, the lavas compose a fourth formation; hence the basis of a quaternary division. The following delineation of the strata is from Mr. White Watson's work:—"Grit Stone, a stratum four yards thick; the surface of ground where its bassets is covered with the fragments of the incumbent beds, whose abrupt termination makes it probable to conclude that these fragments have been shook off by some convulsive violence. Grit, ten or twelves yards thick, the ending of this rock, occupies a considerable portion of ground, and makes some of the best land in the valley; in this stratum are numerous organic remains, having the appearance of large striated reeds, phytolithus, sulci culmis, and striati culmis. After which a thin bed of grit, at the termination of which the Dawlee winds through the valley."

Ferruginous Grit is of a white colour, fine grained texture, and slaty structure, easily decomposed by the air into clay. The surface undulated, in the concavities of which are formed beds of coal and ironstone. The convexities form conical hills, as at Duckmanton, Calow, Chesterfield, &c. This stone is hardened by torrification in kilns, which makes it a better material for roads.

Whetstone Grit, of a light hair brown colour, fine grained texture and conchoidal fracture, forming a stratum three yards thick, much esteemed for whetstones, tombs, paving, &c.

Grit, commonly called Cankstone, from its hardness, is much noted for roads; a bed of about ten inches thick; incumbent thereon is a bed of fire clay, used in the potteries, &c.

Organic Grit, provincially crowstone, gannister, galyard, of a very fine grained compact texture, abounding with impressions of a peculiar vegetable phytolithus plantites, &c. It forms a stratum of from six inches to upwards of three feet thick, and is much used for roads. Beneath this stratum is a thin bed of coal.

Argillaceous, or Shale Grit, of a straw yellow colour, forming an undulating surface, subject to faults from its commencement at Chatsworth, to its basseting at Bakewell Edge. The upper beds are used as slates for covering roofs, the lower beds for building; but it is necessary to place the stones in the same position in which they lay in the quarry, or they will separate and soon perish. It contains petrified plants. Bakewell church is built of this stone, from Bakewell Edge; and the fronts of Chatsworth, and the principal part of the Crescent at Buxton; though the same stone bassets on the spot, a circumstance at that time unknown.

Spheroidal Basalt with Basaltic Amygdaloid, provincially toadstone, blackstone, dunstone, channel, &c., is not in beds, but is an undulating stratum of irregular thickness, composed of irregular shaped nodules of various sizes, of different colours and textures, totally void of petrifactions, and easily decomposing on exposure to the air; some being basalt, often in concentric laminæ, containing hornblende and olivin, others amygdaloid, having the vessels filled with carbonate of lime, calcedony, and jasper, of various colours, in concentric circles, which frequently interrupt each other, forming beautiful zoned agates; others containing quartz, compact and radiated; and others green earth, steatite, raystone or actynolite, &c. This stratum is separated from the limestone by beds of blue clay, called wayboard, which abounds plentifully with sulphuret of iron, crystalized in cubes, and in balls composed of cubes in mass.

Crystalized Granular Limestone.—This stratum forms the surface from Langwith, (where the Poulter river divides this county from Nottinghamshire) to Bolsover, where it bassets out, and is composed of seven various beds. On breaking a block in Bolsover field in the year 1795, of a ton and a-half weight, a toad was discovered alive in the centre, which died on being exposed to the air. Pipe-clay used at the pipe manufactories of Bolsover, separate many of these beds. Compact shell limestone, forming an undulating surface from Bakewell to Chelmerton Lowe, is composed of fourteen laminæ of different colours and textures, all of them abounding more or less with marine petrifactions. Compact scaly limestone forms the surface from Chelmerton to near Sherbrook. Compact sugar limestone consists of three laminæ, nearly of the same colour and texture, which are separated by irregular beds of very fine porcelain clay.

The stratum of the compact shell limestone, which is composed of fourteen laminæ, is very much broken and dislocated, abounds with fissures, which are many of them filled with spars, &c. When they contain minerals, and are under four inches wide, they are termed scrins, and veins when thicker, which when perpendicular are called rake veins; and when the dislocation is very extensive, and one side of the vein sunk considerably below the other, they are termed faults. The minerals in these veins are formed alternately on their cheeks (or sides of the vein), and when there was not a sufficiency of matter to fill the vein, the last deposited substances crystalized; hence the formation of the beautiful crystals which adorn the cabinets of the curious, which, varying in their figure in different districts of the same stratum, and peculiar mines being unworked, occasions some crystals to be very scarce. Crystals of the same substance, sometimes vary in the figure in the same specimen, and frequently assume different figures in different parts of the same mine. Scrins often descend to what is termed pipe veins, when they are termed leaders, where the minerals are formed between the bedding of the rock in concentric laminæ, resembling oblate spheroids; sometimes the minerals are formed in hemispheric cups, consisting of alternate layers, found detached in mineral soils, with their mouths upwards and reversed. The oblate spheroids are often conjoined, when the places of union are called twitchings, and often stratified over each other, having their leaders passing through the centre of the whole, when they are termed feeders, which generally terminate below the pipes in small strings. When the minerals are formed in horizontal laminæ between the beds of the rock, they are termed flat-works.

These veins are productive of various ores of lead, as the sulphur of leafy camellar fracture, compact and spread over, which last is termed slickensides; the carbonate, phosphate, muriate and brown. The ores of zinc, as the native oxide and sulphate, provincially, "Black Jack." Also, ores of copper, iron, manganese, very rarely antimony. A variety of clays and ochres, &c.; accompanied with various earths of lime, as carbonate, fluate, and sulphate; varieties of sulphate of baryte, quartz, &c. Native sulphur is found compact, mixed with sulphur of lead, and in a friable state, within balls of sulphate of baryte, accompanied with crystalized sulphuret of iron.

Lead Mines are of great antiquity in this county, and were much worked by the Romans, as appears by legends on pieces of lead taken out of the old mine hillocks, three of which were deposited some years ago in the British Museum. The first was found on Cromford Moor, in 1776, which was made in the reign of the Emperor Adrian; the second was found near Matlock Bank, in 1783, which appears to have been the property of Lucius Aruconius Verecundus, lead merchant, of London; and the third was found near Matlock, in 1787, belonging to Tiberius Claudius, of Chesterfield, Triumvir, "drawn from a silver-mine." There are lead mines at Alport, Bakewell, Castleton, Crich, Eyam, Haddon, Hassop, Wren Park, Calver Sough, Matlock, Monyash, Winster, Wirksworth, &c. Of these we will just notice the Eyam Mining Company, which was formed about ten years ago, by a number of gentlemen principally residents in Sheffield, who are in possession of much that is of a prospective character—in fact, taking the current reports, as bequeathed to the present generation by the ancient miner, the more valuable portions of the Eyam possessions are those which have not yet been approached by either level or engine-shafts; and by saying this much we are by no means disposed to underrate the resources of the Dusty Pit—the principal mine at present developed on this sett, and which, by the bye, has been effected by a ten-horse engine—clearing the same of water, and draining the entire quantity of mineral to surface, a distance of fifty-two fathoms, as well as grinding the mineral and working the timber saw. The dusty pit has, within a few days, become increasingly rich, and is raising from two to three tons of first-class lead per day.

The Wren Park and Calver Sough Company will in future be denominated the North Derbyshire Mining Company.

Ironstone and Coal Strata.—Formed within concavities named troughs, sancums, &c., imbedded in clay, whose laminæ frequently abound with charcoal, carbonate of iron, sulphuret of iron, crystals of sulphate of lime, &c., lie at the bottom, and are more or less separated by clay; the bottom beds of ironstone are in nodules frequently containing vegetable impressions of ferns, galiums, nuts, and a variety of flowers, insects, &c., which are sometimes accompanied with particles of sulphur of lead. Above these beds are nodules, which contain impressions of larger plants, and incumbent are compact layers of nodules. Above these are compact beds, abounding with petrified muscle shells, incrusted with conic clay, composed of multifarious concentric ramified cones; and nearer the surface are oblate spheroids, containing septariæ of carbonate of iron, some of which septa, towards the centre of the nodule, are hollow, and lined with crystals of carbonate of iron, sulphuret of iron, sulphur of lead, sulphate of zinc, &c, Some of these beds have an inclination of about eight degrees to the east, others of about eighteen, and others a similar inclination to the west.

Rock Coal, abounding with nodules of sulphuret of iron, termed bases, bats, &c., used in making sulphate of iron (copperas). In this stratum, near Buxton, veins of sulphuret of lead are found in faults, having coal attached on both sides, accompanied with sulphuret of iron.

Aluminous Shale or Slate—Of a brownish black colour, earthy texture, which freely cleaving when exposed to the air, decomposes to clay, in which state it is used for making bricks; thin beds of grit and ironstone frequently occur in this stratum. It is also productive of alum, and cavities are frequently found herein, heretofore made by the miners, in sinking through for veins of lead ore in the limestone below; these cavities are lined with plumose vitroil of iron, and needle-like crystals of plumose alum; nodules of ironstone, called shale binds, also occur stratified with admixtures. Miners consider this stratum to be a cover for veins of lead ores in the limestone beneath.

The most ancient method of working the lead mines, appear to have been by making fires upon the veins, to crack the cheeks, and to loosen the vein materials; afterwards gunpowder was introduced, and a hole bored into the rock several inches deep and gunpowder put at the bottom, upon it was placed a slug and clippit; afterward, the gun or jumper was invented; from both which methods, in the ramming, sparks ensued, which often injured the workmen. About the end of the 17th century, some miners were invited from Saxony, who introduced the skewer and fuse, the practice still in use.

When the lead ore is got from the mine, it is separated from its mixtures, termed "deads," by knocking with different shaped iron hammers into three assortments, called Bing, Peasy, and Smytham; bing is the largest size, peasy is the size of pease, and smytham small grains; they are washed well, in which process, the very minute particles are carried away into reservoirs, and are afterwards collected by the name of bolland, and measured by the dish or standard measure, which was wrought in the reign of Henry VIII., and contains fourteen pints. It is placed in the Barmote Court at Wirksworth. This measure being liable to great imposition, by refuse being mixed with the ore, a dish has lately been introduced, by which the ore is sold by weight, at the same time that it is measured; it was introduced for the first time on the 10th of Sept., 1803, at Gregory Mine, near Ashover, and gives general satisfaction, both to the buyer and seller.

The most ancient method of obtaining lead or iron from the ores recorded in this county, appears to have been by fires made upon blocks of sandstone, termed boles, placed on the summits of high hills, exposed to the action of the westerly winds, as being most prevalent; and in many places are hills which go by the name of Bole Hill, from the above circumstance; as at Bakewell, Ashover, Norton, &c.; afterwards improved upon by the blast furnace; and in 1698, the cupola was introduced from Holywell, in North Wales, soon after which the blast furnace went out of use for smelting lead ore, the last of which was taken down at Rowsley, near Bakewell; but they are still used for obtaining lead from the cupola slags, and called slag hearths. In 1777, an horizontal chimney was placed to the cupola in Middleton Dale, to collect the sublimated particles of sulphur; and an improvement in respect to the fire was made in the cupola at Stannage, near Ashover, in 1802.

Mineral Courts, Customs, &c.—The principal part of the county where lead ore is found in considerable quantity, is known by the name of the King's field. Nearly the whole hundred of Wirksworth comes under this denomination. This does not appear always to have been the case, for in the time of the Saxons it belonged to the Abbey at Repton. But Mr. Pegge imagines that in the year 874, when this religious house was destroyed by the Danes, it was escheated to the crown; since it appears to have been in its possession when Domesday book was compiled. As to that part of the King's field which is situated in the High Peak, it is supposed that ever since the Norman conquest, it has been the property of the crown, and in the same custody with the castle. All that part of the county which comes under the denomination of the King's field, has been from time immemorial let upon lease. The present lessee of the mineral duties in the High Peak, is the Duke of Devonshire; and in the hundred of Wirksworth, Peter Arkwright, Esq. They have each a steward and barmasters in the different districts which they hold under the crown. The steward presides as judge in their great barmote courts, and with twenty-four jurymen, chosen every half-year, determine all disputes which arise respecting the working of the mines. For this purpose, they meet twice in the year, and if requisite, may, upon proper notice, be summoned still oftener. In the High Peak, the courts are held at Monyash, and in the hundred of Wirksworth, at that town. One great barmote court is also held annually at Ashford, for the liberty of Ashford, Tideswell, Peak Forest, and Hartington, of which the Duke of Devonshire is lord; and one great barmote court, annually, held alternately at Stoney Middleton and Eyam for that liberty, of which the Duke of Devonshire, the Marquis of Chandos, and Sir Richd. Tufton, Bart., are lords. And under the Wirksworth Mining Customs and Mineral Courts Act, passed in 1852, two great barmote courts are to be held in each year, for the soke and wapentake of Wirksworth, viz.—one within a month after the 25th of March, and the other within a month after the 29th of September. Small barmote courts are also held when required for the trial of causes. The barmaster for the soke and wapentake of Wirksworth is Mr. John Alsop, who resides at Wensley, near Matlock, and there are also several deputy barmasters within the district. The Queen in right of her Duchy of Lancaster is seized of the manor and wapentake of Wirksworth, and of the lead mines within the King's Field, and is entitled to the mineral duties within certain parts of the soke and wapentake of Wirksworth, of which James C. Newbold, Esq., of Matlock Bath, is steward. The office of barmaster consists of various branches; but the most material are, putting miners in possession of veins which they had discovered, and collecting that portion of the ore, to which the lessee of the crown or lord of the manor has a claim. When the miner has found a new vein of ore in the King's field, provided it be not in an orchard, garden, or high-road, he may aquire an exclusive title to it by a proper application to the barmaster, of the liberty. The method of doing which is, in the presence of two jurymen, making out in a pipe or rake work two meares of ground, each containing twenty-nine yards, and in a flat work, fourteen yards square. In recompence for the trouble, the barmaster is entitled to the first dish of ore which is gotten. If a miner neglects, beyond a certain limited time, to avail himself of his discovery, the barmaster may then dispose of it to any person who may wish to try his fortune in it. The superintending the measurement of the ore, and taking that proportion to which the lessee or lord of the manor is entitled, is attended with some trouble and difficulty to the barmaster; for these claims are exceedingly different in various parts. Peasy and bolland were formerly considered exempt. In the year 1761, the Duke of Devonshire asserted and established the claim of the crown on them in the High Peak; and the success of his Grace induced the other lessee, Mr. Rolles, a very short time after, to contest the point with the miners in his division; and for this purpose, he threw the cause into Chancery, and obtained a verdict in his favour; so that all sorts of ore are now subject to a toll throughout the Peak of Derbyshire. However, the proportion of ore which is due, and that which is really taken, are in very few places the same. The lessees of the mineral duties seldom insist upon the full extent of their claims. That part of the King's field in Wirksworth hundred is divided into eight liberties, which though leased by the same person, and subject to the same duties, pay in very different proportions. In Bonsall and Brassington, every thirteenth dish is due, but a twenty-fifth only is taken; neither is subject to tithe. Cromford pays every thirteenth dish. The tithe, smytham and bolland excepted, is every fortieth. In Elton, the twenty-fifth dish is taken, and every tenth is due as tithe to the Duke of Rutland; at the capital mines he takes every nineteenth, but at the smaller ones at discretion. One-half of the liberty of Matlock pays a thirteenth, and the other a twenty-fifth, but no tithe. In Wirksworth, which produces a larger quantity of ore than any other liberty, a twenty-fifth is taken in some places, and a thirteenth in others; a fortieth is due to the vicar as tithe. The reason of this difference arose from the resistance made to the lessee of the crown, when he asserted his right to every thirteenth dish of all kinds of ore. These observations have solely a reference to the King's field; but in the Low Peak, there are also mines which are private property; in which case it concerns each party to engage on the most advantageous terms to themselves. The customs and regulations are not materially different, in the High Peak, from those of the hundred of Wirksworth. A meare in the King's field is here somewhat larger; it measures 32 yards; two meares are given to every miner who discovers a vein, and the miner can dispose of the vein as he pleases. In the King's field, every thirteenth dish is due to the crown, but a twenty-fifth is commonly taken. The tithe is every tenth, of which a third is paid to the executors of the late Philip Gell, Esq., of Hopton. The Duke of Devonshire, as lessee, generally takes every fifteenth dish for his share of lot and tithe. Castleton is a royal manor; it pays every twenty-fifth to the crown, and every tenth dish as tithe to the vicar. There are also several private lordships in the High Peak. In Ashford, the tolls are the same as in the King's field, in Eyam and Stoney Middleton, the lot taken is every thirteenth dish. The tithe due to the rector of Eyam is a penny for every dish; in Tideswell, the lot or toll is every thirteenth; the twentieth is taken; at Litton, every twentieth is taken, but it is not subject to tithe. There are a few other liberties in which lead ore is obtained; but the laws and customs are so near the same as those mentioned, that it is needless to recite them. Besides the claims which have been mentioned, there is another called cope. In the Wirksworth hundred, it is fourpence, in the High Peak, sixpence per load, and is paid by the buyer of the ore, to the lessees of the mineral duties or the lord of the manor. Some years ago, attempts were made to extract silver from the lead, but there are now no works of this kind.

Sulphur is contained in lead ore, which when smelting rises upon the surface, and is carried up the chimney, where, by means of a vault or horizontal chimney, a considerable quantity may be collected. Dr. Watson says, that Derbyshire ore contains between an eighth and a ninth part of sulphur.

In the year 1782, the mines in the hundred of Wirksworth yielded 1,306 fodders, and those in the liberty of Crich about 200. At Ashover, during the six years preceding 1782, the mines had produced annually upon an average, 2,011 fodders; about 2000 fodders were estimated as the produce of the High Peak; so that the annual produce of lead in Derbyshire was between five and six thousand fodders or tons.

Many valuable mines have at various periods been abandoned, from their being overpowered with water; to remedy which, many levels to carry of the water have been driven at very great expense, and in many instances, steam engines have been erected at a considerable cost for the same purpose. The Gregory Mine, near Ashover, by the aid of a steam engine, as early as 1758, yielded lead in the twenty-five years following, to the value of £105,986; the produce annually being 1,511 fodders. It is said the Portaway Mine, near Winster, about the same period, produced ore to the value of £4000, in seven weeks. Such favourable changes support the spirits of the miners; and whilst they continue to take place, the working of the lead mines in Derbyshire will not become totally disregarded or neglected.

The original inhabitants of this county, at the most early period, who happened to be engaged in the prosecution of mineral concerns, would soon perceive the expediency of being governed by some kind of regulations. No doubt their laws and customs were superseded by the Romans, and by their regulations; still it appears that private adventurers were to pay a tenth to the crown and a tenth to the owners of the land; and mention is made by Heineccius of the procuratores metallorum, officers that exactly answer to the berg-masters, or as the word is now pronounced, bar-masters of the present time. For berg signifies a mine, as appears from the word rabbit burrow, still in use. Since the time of the Romans, the mineral laws of Derbyshire have undergone several changes. Edward I. directed the sherriff of the county to call a meeting, at Ashbourn, of such persons as were best acquainted with the rights and customs of the mines. On this occasion, it appears the miners petitioned that these rights and customs should be confirmed to them under the great seal, by way of charity, in consideration of the danger to which they were exposed. In the reigns of King Edward VI. and of Queen Mary also, the mineral laws received some additions and improvements; and of late years, new regulations have been proposed, approved, and passed into laws, at the great Barmote Courts of Derbyshire.

The Carbonic Acid termed sweet damp, choke or chalk damp, sometimes occurs in mines, caverns, &c. It extinguishes flame and kills animals; but quicklime, by absorbing this acid, soon renders the air pure again and fit for respiration.

Betwixt Chelmorton and Buxton, some great convulsion of nature has rent the strata, which after being basseted successively westward from Bolsover Castle to this place, a distance of about thirty miles, suddenly change their bassets to the east, and then descend in succession with a rapid westward inclination to Combs Moss, a distance only of five miles, which terminates the county. These strata, basseting towards each other, but separated by a distance of twenty-one miles, indubitably shew that some extraordinary power must have been the agent to effect their separation at Sherbrook, where the bottom of the fracture so evidently appears, and there can be no doubt that this shock was produced by the effect of heat in some grand convulsion of nature, though beyond the annals of recorded time.

The First Ornament made of Derbyshire spar, was a vase of massive fibrous carbonate of lime, commonly called Watricle (constantly forming in limestone caverns), by Mr. Henry Watson, statuary, of Bakewell, in the year 1743, at the request of Lord Duncannon, from the accidental circumstance of his lordship's horse, when riding down Middleton Dale, striking against this spar lying in the road, which on his lordship examining, he so much admired, that he expressed a wish that an ornament should be made of it, and sending Mr. Watson a design, a vase was accordingly made; from whence arose the manufacture of the amethystine fluate of lime, commonly called Blue John, of which each district produces its peculiar colour, and other fossils so universally admired. Gypsum, alabaster or plaster stone, classed by geologists, amongst the earths, is found in great purity amongst the red marl of this county: it is also sent to the potteries. The Derbyshire Diamonds, for which see Buxton. Petrosilex, chert, or china stone is found in most of the limestone districts, and sent to the potteries.

The Mineral Productions of this county embrace nearly every species of subterranean wealth; but coal, lead, iron and marble are those which chiefly engage the industry and enterprise of the inhabitants. The Coal Field lies along the eastern border, and is from 12 to 15 miles in width, with narrow branches extending from it into Nottinghamshire and along the border of Leicestershire, southward. On the Yorkshire border, the field or rake, itself widens, and occupies a large district of that nothern county. The whole extent of the coal field in Derbyshire is about 190,000 acres. The principal colleries are Alfreton, Ashgate in Brampton, Butterley, Clay Cross, Codnor Park, Denby, Ilkeston, Morley Park, New Hall, Pinxton, Ripley, Harthsay in Pentrich, Staveley, Shipley, Swanwick, Wingerworth, Wingfield, &c.

Ironstone is found in the coal stratum, except at Chinley hills. The ironstone beds near Heanor, Alfreton, Chesterfield, and Staveley, are the most valuable. The celebrated Alfreton or Butterley iron works are very extensive. The massive and magnificent castings executed here have rendered the iron works of Derbyshire universally celebrated.

Springs.—There are in this county calcareous or petrifying springs. There are also numerous medicinal and tepid springs, in the mountainous ridges and elsewhere, variously impregnated with salt, sulphur, or other mineral combination. The ebbing and flowing well, the fifth wonder of Derbyshire, lies in a field, close by the roadside, six miles from Castleton. In rainy seasons this well flows about every quarter of an hour, and, it is calculated, discharges about twenty hogsheads per minute.

Rivers.—Besides the Trent, which forms the south-west boundary for a short distance between Buxton and its confluence with the Erewash, the rivers of this county are numerous. The principal are the Derwent, the Dove, the Wye, the Erewash, the Etherow, the Goyt, and the Rother. The Derwent is the chief, as respects this county. It rises on the Moor, in the alpine ridges of the High peak, at the north-east extremity of the county, and flows southward about 46 miles, during which it receives many tributary streams, and passes Chatsworth Park, a little below which it receives the Wye; at Matlock it flows in a deep channel between lofty rocks, to Belper and Derby, where it leaves the beautiful scenery of the highlands, and becomes navigable, though since the canals were cut it has been little used. In the vicinity of Derby it enters the wide valley of the Trent, and after collecting the waters of nearly 300,000 acres of land, discharges them into that river. The Dove has been the theme of poets, the study of painters, and the resort of scientific naturalists. It rises near Buxton, in the same hill as the Wye, and is for many miles the boundary between Derbyshire and Staffordshire, till it falls into the Trent a little below Burton. As far as Ashover, its course is in a deep valley in the hilly region, and in its course presents many scenes of startling grandeur and beauty. The Wye rises north of Buxton, and flowing past Bakewell joins the Derwent at the village of Rowsley, passing on its way a great variety of valley scenery of remarkable beauty. The Erewash rises on the skirts of Sherwood Forest, in Nottinghamshire, and during the greater part of its course is the boundary between that county and Derbyshire, passing by Pinxton, and near Ilkestone and Sandiacre, falls into the Trent about one mile and a half east from Long Eaton. The Rother has its source in the junction of several small streams near Chesterfield, which it passes, and quits the county near Beighton, on the Yorkshire border. Thus the drainage of the whole county belongs to the basin of the Trent, except a few inconsiderable streams. The Etherow, which rises at the north-east extremity, and the Goyt, which rises near the Dove head, bound the county on the north and north-west, and, uniting their streams, become tributary to the Mersey. The Sheaf and the Meersbrook bound the Scarsdale Hundred on the North, separating the parishes of Norton and Sheffield, and uniting their streams at Heeley, terminate the county; soon after which the Sheaf, at Sheffield, has its confluence with the Don.

Canals.—Among the numerous canals which intersect this county, the most important is the Grand Trunk, or Trent and Mersey canal, completed in 1777; it enters the county by crossing the Dove near its confluence with the Trent, and passing Stenson, meets the southern Derby Canal near Swarkeston, and proceeds by Shardlow to the Derwent, near its confluence with the Trent. This has hitherto formed a principal part of the great line of communication between Liverpool, Hull, Bristol, and London. The Erewash canal, began in 1777, proceeds from the Trent, between the termination of the last and the confluence of the Erewash and the Trent. After successively giving off the Beeston Branch to the east, and South-eastern Derby Canal and the Shipwash branch to the west, it runs northwards along the valley of the Erewash, towards its source near Alfreton; after which, it is joined by the Nottingham canal to the north east of Langley, and shortly after by the Cromford canal, near Langley Mill bridge. The Cromford canal proceeds thence across the Erewash to Codnor Park ironworks. Shortly after it enters a tunnel 2,978 yards in length. At Lea Bridge, it is carried over the river Derwent by an aqueduct 200 yards in length and 30 feet high, built in 1792, it then crosses the Amber, a tributary stream of the Derwent, by another aqueduct of the same length, 50 feet high. A reservoir of 50 acres near the great tunnel, is the principal feeder of this canal, which is about 18 miles in length. The Chesterfield canal, commenced in 1771, and completed in 1776, proceeds from Chesterfield, along the east bank of the Rother, through a country abounding in coal. This canal after passing an aqueduct at Killamarsh, enters Yorkshire, and is, in its course to the termination (at West Stockwith, in Nottinghamshire,) about 45 miles in length. The Peak Forest canal, proceeding from the Ashton-under-Lyne canal, enters the northern part of Derbyshire at Whaley bridge, and proceeds towards Milton. This canal was commenced about 1794, and finished in 1806. The Ashby-de-la-Zouch canal crosses the isolated part of this county which is surrounded by Leicestershire, passing by Measham and Oakthorpe, and was completed in 1805. The two Derby Canals alluded to, were completed in 1794. There is a prolongation northwards to Little Eaton, and from thence there is a tramway five miles in length to the colleries.

Roads.—The great road from London to Manchester enters Derbyshire at Cavendish Bridge, and passing through Derby and Ashbourn, enters Staffordshire at Hanger Bridge, about a mile and three quarters beyond the latter town. A principal branch passes northwards, through Buxton to Whaley, thence to Stockport, joined at Whaley by another principal line from Derby, through Duffield, Wirksworth, Matlock, Bakewell, and Chapel-en-le-Frith; whence a branch proceeds by Glossop to Ashton-under-Lyne. A principal road to Sheffield passes from Derby through Chesterfield and Dronfield. An act was obtained in 1856 for making the road from Derby to Chellaston a turnpike road, besides which many other roads radiate from Derby.

Railways.—This county now enjoys by its railroads pre-eminent means of facilitating general communication and commercial intercourse.

Of these the Midland Railway formed in 1844, by the amalgamation of the Midland Counties, North Midland, and Birmingham and Derby Junction Railways, and since successively enlarged by the purchase and construction of several other lines and branches claims our first attention.

The Midland Counties section of this Railway, or as it is now called, the South Branch, is 58½ miles in length, including branches, and commences from a junction with the London and North Western Railway, at Rugby, passing by Leicester and Loughboro' and entering this county at its South-eastern corner, near the confluence of the Rivers Trent and Soar. At this point called the Trent Junction, a branch of about 7 miles in length, is thrown off to Nottingham, passing by Long Eaton and Beeston. From the Trent Junction the Main Line of the Railway proceeds in a North-westerly direction, passing by Sawley, Breaston, Draycott, Borrowash, and Spondon to Derby. Between Long Eaton Station on the Nottingham Branch, and a point on the main line, nearly midway between the Trent Junction and Sawley Station, a short loop line is constructed of about 1 mile in length, to enable trains to be run direct from Derby to Nottingham. At Long Eaton also are the two Junctions with the Erewash Valley Branch, described under that head. The cost was about £3,000,000, though the estimate was only £1,500,000. The whole line was completed in little more than three years. George and Robert Stephenson, with their assistant, Mr Swanwick, were the engineers. It was opened through all this county, and as far as Masbro', on the 11th of May, 1840; and throughout the whole line on the 1st of July, 1840. This railway is a splendid exception to the comparatively uninteresting scenery of railways in general. Its course lies along the valleys of the Derwent, the Amber, the Rother, the Don, the Dearne, the Calder, and the Aire; affording views of beautiful parks, seats, villages, woods, and ruins. It is bordered nearly all the way by fertile meadows and pastures, skirted with wooded hills, which constitute, in passing them, an almost uninterrupted panoramic picture; and the magnificent viaducts, aqueducts, and bridges with station houses of tasteful architecture, contribute much to give admiration and delight to the traveller.

The North Midland Section or North Branch, which together with the South-west (Birmingham and Derby) Branches constitute a central link between the other important railways in the North, Centre, and South of England, is 73¼ miles or with sundry small coal branches, 75½ miles in length, with upwards of 200 Bridges and 7 tunnels in its course, the latter measuring together about 2¼ miles.

From Derby the North Midland Railway runs northward by Little Eaton, (near which place is the junction with the recently constructed Ripley Branch,) Duffield through Milford Tunnel, 836 yards in length, with rich and handsome arched frontings, and by Milford to Belper, through which it runs in a cutting lined with masonry; at this place it has no less than 11 bridges crossing it in the space of one mile. It then by two timber bridges, each about 400 feet in length, crosses Belper Pool, where the Derwent expands in a broad sheet with a wooded island in the midst. Another timber bridge, a short tunnel, a fine viaduct, and another short tunnel are passed, and the Junction of the Manchester, Buxton, Matlock, and Midland Junction Railway is reached at the Ambergate Station, after which comes the interesting works at the acqueduct of the Cromford Canal. The river runs in the bottom of the valley with the turnpike road at some distance above it; the railroad passes obliquely over both, by a magnificent viaduct, and the same place is itself crossed by the canal in an aqueduct built by the company. Bull bridge, and Lodge-hill tunnel, 250 yards in length, and South Wingfield station are then passed; the column of Crich Stand, where mountain limestone abounds, being seen on the left on the distant hills. After passing a deep and extensive cutting, opened out into the romantic valley of the Amber, the summit of the line in Derbyshire is reached at Clay Cross tunnel, which is 1¼ mile in length, the entrance being fronted with a Moorish gateway, having a castellated circular tower on either side, and an arch of the unusual figure of three parts oval, with two fine rounded mouldings. Here a coal railway joins the North Midland which passes on to Chesterfield, a a distance of 24 miles from Derby. Various other stations are then passed, including Eckington station, for Worksop. The line then proceeds on the vale of the Rother to Beighton, where it enters Yorkshire, at 34 miles distance from Derby.

The Derby and Birmingham section, or West branch, is 49¼ miles in length, including the branch of 7¼ miles from Whitacre to Hampton, in Warwickshire, and the Birmingham extension of three quarters of a mile, constructed for the purpose of running into the London and North Western Railway and so on, to the Bristol and Birmingham Branch of the Midland Railway. This line commences at the Grand Central Station, at Derby between which and Willington, the Mersey and Trent canal is crossed by an oblique iron bridge. From Willington it runs parallel with this canal for some miles, crossing the border of the county on entering Staffordshire, and running by Burton-upon-Trent and Tamworth to Hampton and Birmingham, the latter distant 41½ miles from Derby. The Original act was obtained in 1836, but the works were not commenced till 1837. The line was opened throughout on the 2nd August, 1839. The Company was authorized to raise £630,000 in £100 shares, and further to borrow £200,000; and the works did not exceed the sum thus sanctioned.

The Erewash Valley Branch of the Midland Railway runs from a point near Long Eaton on the South Branch to Birchwood, near Alfreton, a distance of 15¼ miles. It was proposed at first to carry it through to Clay Cross on the North Branch, and the act of Parliament was obtained for the purpose.

The Cromford and High Peak Railway commences at the Cromford canal to the south-east of Cromford, and terminates at the Peak Forest canal at Whaley bridge. It is about 34 miles in length, and in its course passes over some very high ground, its greatest elevation being 990 feet above the level of the Cromford canal. This ascent is accomplished by means of several inclined planes, up which the waggons are drawn by stationary steam engines. The summit level is maintained for 12½ miles, and in its course the railway passes through a tunnel 638 yards long. 52 bridges and archways have been built. Contrary to the usual practice, cast iron rails instead of malleable have been adopted. They are cast in lengths of 4 feet each, and weigh 84lbs., or 63lbs. per yard.

The Sheffield and Manchester Railway crosses the north-west verge of the county for about 10 miles. The line is 40 miles in length. The act was obtained in 1837, and was opened in 1845. The Sheffield end to Dunford bridge was opened 14th July, and the Manchester end some months previous. The original capital for this line, which presented very great engineering difficulties, was £933,000. It commenced at the Bridge-houses Sheffield, on a rapid acclivity on the north bank of the river Don, and adjoining Spital hill. On leaving this station it immediately passes under a short tunnel up the picturesque and romantic vale of that river, N.N.W., to Beeley and Wharncliffe woods, to Wortley and Penistone; from which it runs nearly west to the summit near Dunford bridge, near the source of the river Don, and the eastern side of a high point which separates the counties of York, Chester, and Derby, (22 miles 26½ chains from Manchester, and 18 miles 40 chains from Sheffield), under which it passes by a tunnel (Woodhead) 5300 yards in length and 16 feet wide, for one track, which is nearly 943 feet above the level of the sea, and has a gradient of 20 feet per mile, the transit occupying about 10 minutes. It emerges in the township of Tintwistle, in the county of Chester, near the source of the Etherow, which separates that county from Derbyshire, and flows to the Mersey. The railway passes down the Vale of the Etherow, on the verge of Derbyshire; to Dinting, about one mile north from Glossop—to which place there is a short branch—then by a sweep to the south, it crosses Dinting Vale at a considerable elevation, turning westerly on the north of Upper Gamesley; crosses the Etherow, where the vale is narrow, by a viaduct of great elevation into Cheshire; after which it crosses the valley of the Tame, at an elevation of forty feet, and enters Lancashire, running west; sending off a branch to Ashton-under-Lyne and Staley Bridge, 2 miles 44½ chains in length, and proceeds to the Birmingham and Manchester railway station, Store street, Manchester. An act, during the session of 1845, was obtained for a continuation of this line from Sheffield to Great Grimsby, in Lincolnshire, at the mouth of the Humber, which was opened in 1849, and was amalgamated with the Manchester Line, under the title of "The Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway," which has a handsome Station in Sheffield, approached from the Cattle Market, by an excellent road of gradual ascent made on arches,—and from the Wicker, by a long flight of stone steps.

Since which period, several other railways have been opened to the use of the public, of which the Derby and Ripley branch, the Derby, Uttoxeter, and Stafford, and the Leicester, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and Burton-upon-Trent branches, are a portion.

New and Old Poor Laws.—To give a digest of these would require more space than our limits will allow; the former passed in 1834, the latter in the reign of Elizabeth. Much has been said about the mal-administration of the old law, and successive administrations had declared it an evil; that it was like a canker eating into the heart of the nation, pauperizing the labourers of whole counties. Many attempts at improvements were made, but to no effect; the evil kept steadily increasing. The law of Elizabeth ordered the setting to work all able bodied poor, and the providing for age, infirmity, and youth. The average poor rate of the kingdom in 1748, 1749, and 1750, was £730,135; for the year 1776, it was £1,720,316; and the average of the years 1783, 1784, and 1785, was £2,167,748; in 1803, the amount was £5,348,204;—in the years 1813, 1814 and 1815, the average amount expended for the poor was £6,123,177 but this sum enormous as it is, was surpassed in the single year ending the 25th of March, 1818, when the sum expended amounted to £7,870,801. This last year was one of great hardship to the poor, in consequence of the dearness of provisions, the average price of wheat during the year 1817, having been 94s. 9d. per qr. Certainly the time had arrived for a full investigation, and an endeavour to point out the true cause, as the only sure way to order a remedy. To do this, a parliamentary commission was appointed, with certain powers, and an investigation made through all the kingdom; and a mass of evidence the most appalling was produced. The domestic industry of the country had been swept away, and the time arrived when the parish officers could by no means find profitable employment for the poor. The labourer got what he could for his labour, and received the remainder in parish pay; a most humiliating and degrading state, which went on increasing, both in the agricultural and manufacturing districts. The Parliament framed a law, from the report of this commission of inquiry, which, they said, would restore the prosperity and independence of the labourers and operatives, and raise them from the degradation into which they had fallen. To effect this, they were thrown on their own resources, and refused all relief, except they resided in the Union-house; the power of the magistrates to order relief was taken away, with various other changes from the old law. To carry out this great object, a Poor Law Commission was appointed, having three commissioners, who each receive £2,000 a year; eighteen assistant commissioners, who receive together £12,600 a year; with secretaries, clerks, &c., in the whole amounting to £50,173 per annum; under whom guardians of parishes and townships are appointed, according to the population, to act with and assist the commissioners in carrying out this great measure. In the session of 1844, the Government, through Sir James Graham, passed a bill to make some improvement in that of 1834; which principally consists in giving to the guardians more power to order relief, but still subject to the controlling gower of the Commissioners. The amount expended for the relief of the poor in England and Wales, in the individual years, when the census was taken, was as follows, viz.:—In 1801, £4,017,878; 1811, £6,566,105; 1821, £6,358,703; 1831, £6,798,888; and 1841, £4,911,498.

Rebellions.—It appears that during the rebellion of Prince Henry against his father, Henry II., the Castle of Duffield was held against the King, by Robert, Earl Ferrars; for it is related that amongst others who came to make their submission to the victorious monarch, in the month of July, 1174, was that Earl, who then delivered into the King's hands the Castles of Tutbury and Duffield. During the civil wars in King John's reign (in 1215), William Earl Ferrars, with an armed force, took Bolsover and Peak Castles, which were then in the possession of the rebellious barons.

In the year 1264, King Henry III. sent his son, Prince Edward, into Derbyshire, to wreak vengeance upon Robert Earl of Derby, then one of the most active of the barons in rebellion against him, with instructions to lay waste his manors with fire and sword. The Earl having made his peace, by the promise of a large sum of money, and having taken fresh oaths of allegiance, broke both his word and his promise, and appeared in arms again in Derbyshire, in the year 1266, with Baldwin Wake (Lord of Chesterfield), John D'Egville, and other barons and knights, and assembled a numerous force at Duffield Frith, whence they marched to Chesterfield. Here they were surprised in their quarters by Henry, the King's nephew, and the greater part of them put to the sword. The Earl of Derby was then taken prisoner, having been betrayed, as it is said, by a woman, who pointed out his place of confinement in the Church. De Ferrars had his life spared, but was divested of the Earldom of Derby, with its large possessions, which were given to Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, and eventually formed a considerable part of the reveuues of the Duchy of Lancaster. Wake, D'Egville, and the other barons and knights, made their escape. Some of the knights and other adherents withdrew into the forest of Peak, where they continued for two years, leading a predatory life.

Nothing of consequence seems to have occurred till the civil wars in the reign of Charles I. (1662), when all Derbyshire declared for the King; of which full accounts are given in the progress of the work.

Manufactures, Trades, &c.—Derby ranks the fourth on the list of manufacturing counties, and its character has for years been rising in national estimation. It participates with Nottinghamshire in the manufacture of hosiery and lace, with Lancashire in that of cotton, and with Yorkshire in those of iron, cutlery, and woollen cloth. The latter is carried on at the north extremity of the county, and has nearly given place to the manufacture of cotton, introduced into this county by Sir Richard Arkwright, in 1771. The parish of Glossop, situated in the mountainous tracts of the High Peak, has, within the last half century, become by far the most important seat of the cotton manufacture in the county. The silk manufacture was introduced into the town of Derby in 1717; and Derby, conjointly with Nottingham, is considered the centre of the silk hosiery trade. Ribbons are manufactured to some extent, and cotton hosiery, smallwares, and lace, are extensively manufactured in various parts of the county; as also earthenware, china, hats, and spar ornaments. Collieries are worked along the northern and eastern side of the county; and the iron furnaces, and cast and bar iron manufactures are noticed with Butterley, Clay Cross, Codnor, Renishaw, Staveley, &c. The northern border of the Hundred of Scarsdale is included in the Corporation of Cutlers of Hallamshire, and partakes largely of the Sheffield trade in the manufacture of scythes, sickles, &c. Chesterfield, at the north-west extremity of the Scarsdale Hundred, is the centre of an extensive manufacture of brown earthenware, and stoneware bottles, which are in great repute throughout the kingdom. The extensive lead mines and lead smelting establishments are chiefly confined to the northern division of the county, and will be noticed in their respective places. In addition to the above may be added the valuable mineral productions of this county, which consists of stone slate, marble, gypsum, lime, calamine, chert, fluor, spar, copperas, grind and millstones, and fire clay. The whole forming a very important branch of our export trade. Cheese and malt are extensively made in various parts of the county, and the agricultural produce finds a ready market at Sheffield and Nottingham; except wool, which is much esteemed at Huddersfield and Leeds. The Import Trade principally consists of raw cotton and silk, groceries, wines, spirits, and other foreign produce; to these may be added foreign cattle, under Sir Robert Peel's New Tariff. For the Official account of the imports and exports for the six months ending June 30th, 1856, see page 104.

Iron Trade.—The quantity of Iron made in England and Wales in 1740 was only 17,350 tons, the produce of fifty-nine furnaces; in 1788 it had increased to 68,300 tons, from 85 furnaces; in 1796 to 108,793 tons, from 104 furnaces; in 1806, 250,000 tons was produced; in 1823, 442,066 tons; in 1825, 581,367 tons; in 1828, 702,584 tons; in 1830, 653,417 tons; and in 1836, the produce was 1,200,000 tons; which in 1840 was increased to 1,396,400; while in the year 1848 the total produce was 2,093,736 tons, from 452 furnaces.

Hosiery Trade.—The chief seats of the hosiery manufacture are the counties of Derby, Nottingham, and Leicester; in the last named of which nearly all the frames in which wool is employed are to be found; while Nottingham contains the largest number of frames for the production of cotton hosiery. The use of silk in this branch of manufacture is almost wholly confined to Derby and Nottingham. According to a return made in 1844, there were 42,763 hosiery frames employed in the United Kingdom, of which number 5,836 were employed in the county of Derby, 14,595 in Nottingham, 18,494 in Leicester, and the remainder in other English counties, Scotland and Ireland. The weight of material used in the same year was 9,746,960 lbs., producing 5,705,600 dozens of hose.

Charities.—The parochial accounts of the posthumous charities are given from the voluminous Reports of the Commissioners deputed by Parliament to enquire into the state and appropriation of Public Charities in England. This commission commenced in 1817, and was not finished till 1839, though up to the year 1827 £138,850 had been paid to the Commissioners for salaries and other charges. The amount of benefactions left for charitable uses in the town of Derby is nearly £2,000 per annum, and for the whole county £15,261 7s. 3d. per annum; in addition to which nearly an equal amount is subscribed for charitable and benevolent institutions.

Provident Institutions.—A great relief to the poor's rate is that laudible desire which exists amongst the labouring classes and mechanics to render themselves, as far as possible, independent of the workhouse, by providing funds for their mutual relief, is the establishment of Friendly Societies, Lodges, &c., which are numerous in the county. There are also umerous Money and Building clubs.

Savings' Banks give encouragement to the provident habits of the industrious classes, and afford them a safe and profitable investment for what they are enabled to lay by against a time of need. The amount of deposits and number of depositors are given at the places where established.

Enclosure of Commons, State of the Poor, &c.—The periods of the different enclosures are given in the parishes in which they have respectively taken place; but considerable tracts of the mountainous districts of the High Peak still remain unenclosed. Enclosures, though necessary with a rapidly increasing population, have had some effect in deteriorating the condition of many poor persons; to remedy this, in some instances landowners have made small allotments to the labouring poor, at a moderate rent, for spade culture, a practice we are glad to observe very much increasing, as it not only tends to prevent poverty, but gives encouragement to industry and economy.

The Population of Derbyshire.—Bede, an early Saxon writer, informs us that in his time the inhabitants of Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire amounted to 7,000 families. There is reason to suppose, that at the Norman survey population was not so flourishing as it had been in the reign of Edward the Confessor, for when Domesday book was compiled, the resident burgesses of Derby were reduced from 243 to 100, and 40 who were minors. At this period there were 103 houses empty, which paid tax to the king. There is no certain data on which to form an estimate of the population till the census of 1801, previous to which it had been rapidly increasing, particularly since the accession of the House of Hanover to the throne of England.

Area and Population of England, Wales, the British Islands, and Scotland, in 1851, was as follows viz :—England, 32,590,429 acres of land, and a population of 16,921,888 persons, of whom 8,281,734 were males, and 8,640,154 females; Wales, 4,734,486 acres, and 1,005,721 inhabitants, of whom 499,491 were males, and 506,230 females; The British Islands, 252,000 acres, and 143,126 inhabitants, of whom 66,854 were males, and 76,252 females; Scotland, 20,047,462 acres, and 2,888,742 inhabitants, of whom 1,375,479 were males, and 1,513,263 females, and Ireland, a population of 6,553,178; making a grand total for the United Kingdom of 57,624,377 acres, and 27,512,655 inhabitants. The number of persons absent from Great Britain and from their Usual Places of abode on the 31st of March, 1851, including men in the Army, Navy, and Seamen on board ships in the Merchant Service, &c., was 162,490. The number of seamen, boys, and other persons on board Vessels in the Ports of Great Britain and the Islands of the British Seas, on the 31st of March, 1851, was 51,748, of which number 7,843 were foreigners. The number of persons who have emigrated from the United Kingdom during the 26 years from 1825 to 31 March, 1851, was 2,624,070; and the estimated number of persons sleeping in barns, tents, and the open-air on the 31st of March, 1851, was 18,249.

Personal and Real Property.—According to Mr. Porter, in his "Progress of the Nation," section vi. chapter 2, the personal property of the county was calculated, in 1814, to amount to £1,200,000,000; in 1824, £1,500,000,000; in 1834, £1,800,000,000; and in 1845, to £2,200,000,000. The addition of £1,000,000,000 to the value of property during thirty-one years' peace will not appear improbable, if we recall to mind the facts that during the last ten years of the war the public expenditure exceeded, on the average, £83,000,000,000, while the average has in the following 24 years not exceeded £50,000,000. The difference between these two sums would alone suffice in that period to make up the sum of £1,000,000,000. Taking the real property of England at rather less than one-half, consisting of land at only twenty year's purchase, that would show a total value, in 1815, of £993,214,560; and in 1843, of £1,616,381,580; the accumulation between the two periods being £617,167,120, or something more than twenty millions annually during the whole period. On the other hand, a considerable sum has of late years been transferred from the form of real to that of personal property, through the appropriation of land to the purposes of railway construction. What the amount may be which has thus passed in transfer, it is not possible to state, nor even to estimate, with any confidence; and indeed it is very certain that if we could ascertain the amount of money which has changed hands in the operation it would not afford us any certain information, since it is notorious that in many, or most cases, other considerations than that of the actual value of the land purchased has been made to govern the price.

Courts of Law.—The assizes are held twice a year, generally in the last weeks of March and July, at the County Hall, Derby, where commissions of "Oyer and Terminer, and general gaol delivery" are opened, both for the County and the Borough of Derby.

Quarter Sessions.—The Epiphany, Midsummer, and Michaelmas are held at Derby, and the April at Chesterfield. Sessions for the Borough of Derby are held quarterly. Petty Sessions are held weekly, before the County magistrates, in most of the Market towns, and a few of the villages.

The Sheriff's Court, for the trial of actions for debt under £20, will be held in 1857, at the following times and places, during the sherievality of William Hatfield de Rodes, Esq., of Barlborough Hall, viz.:—the last Thursday in each month, at the County Hall, Derby. Writs must be delivered at the Sheriff's Office, Derby, three clear days before the day appointed for the trial of causes in the Sheriff's Court. The Court will sit at 11 o'clock each day. Under Sheriff, John James Simpson, Esq. County Clerk, Mr. William Whiston, junior.

The New Small Debts' Act, or County Courts.—This important act which has created a revolution in law proceedings, on actions for claims and demands not exceeding £20, took effect throughout England and Wales, on the 15th of March, 1847 and in August, 1851 was extended to £50. By an order in council, all courts for small debts were abolished, on the 13th of March, with the exception of a few, from which day the excepted courts were to be holden at County courts, and governed by the provisions of the act, so to be enforced. Each district court to be presided over by a judge, who is to appoint a clerk, being an attorney, and he is to appoint other officers; the fees allowed by the act are to be exhibited. The salaries of the judges and clerks, may by an order be fixed, so that in no case a judge is to be paid more than one thousand two hundred pounds, or a clerk, more than six hundred pounds a year. By the New Act, which came into operation on the 1st of October, 1856, some considerable and important alterations were made in the jurisdiction and practice of these useful institutions, and, which is perhaps of more importance to the public, the expense of proceeding in them is materially diminished. In the first place the burdensome tax, called "The General Fund," which was levied on every suitor in the Courts when the amount sought to be recovered exceeded 20s., is entirely abolished. Neither are any fees to be taken for paying money into or out of Court, a most grateful relief both to plaintiff and defendant. Again, there will no longer be any mileage for serving summonses or executing process, however distant the place from the Court town, so that a summons or other process against a defendant, residing, say 12 miles, from the Court town, will cost no more than a summons or process against a defendant residing in the town itself. Nor will there, as at present, be any additional fee for a summons against a defendant residing out of the district of the Court, nor will any fee be charged for a subpœna to witnesses; and the fees payable on plaints for recovering possession of tenements, instead of being calculated, as at present, on the annual rent of the property (whether let by the week, month, or year), are to be calculated on the amount of the weekly, monthly, or annual rent of the tenement according to the letting; so that a landlord may, in a very short time and at a very trifling expense, eject a refractory tenant; and he may also, in the same process, include a claim for arrears of rent, instead of having, as at present, to bring in a separate action for such arrears. Another great boon will be a reduction of the fee on judgments by confession or agreement, from the present amount of 2s. 3d. in the £, to 1s. in the £ only; and the same reduction is to take place in cases of judgment by default. The main alterations in the jurisdiction and practice of the Courts are the following. From the 1st day of October, 1856, the County Courts will have jurisdiction in all personal actions where the debt, damage, or demand does not exceed £50, whether consisting of an original demand of £50, or of a larger amount reduced by a set off to that sum; and by consent of parties, the Courts have jurisdiction to any amount and for any cause of action, except only actions for crim. con. and a summons against a defendant residing out of the jurisdiction of the court may be obtained at the office without previous application to the judge in court. In an action for a debt exceeding £20, a plaintiff may either issue a summons in the present form or in a form given in the New Act; and in the latter case, if a defendant has been personally served twelve clear days before the Return day, the paintiff may (unless defendant give notice six clear days before such Return day of his intention to defend the action) on, or within one month after the Return day, without giving any proof of his claim, have judgment by default for the amount of his claim and costs. A judgment summons may, by leave of the Judge, issue in the court in which the judgment was obtained, although defendent may not reside in the district. This is a very important alteration, as it was most unreasonable that a defendant should be able, by changing his residence to a distant part of the country, to compel his Judgment Creditor, at great expense of time and money, to follow him, instead of being able to bring him back (as will now be the case) to the court in which the judgment was originally obtained.

Fees.—For every plaint 10d. in the £.—For every judgment by consent (where parties can agree as to terms) one shilling in the £.—For every hearing 2s. in the £.—For every judgment summons 3d. in the £.—For hearing every judgment summons 6d. in the £.—For issuing every warrant against the body or goods 1s. 6d. in the £.

County Courts are held at the following places, viz.:—Alfreton, Ashbourne, Bakewell, Belper, Burton-up-Trent, Chapel-en-le-Frith, Chesterfield, Derby, and Wirksworth. The jurisdiction of each court is given with its respective parish.

Court of the Honour of Tutbury, and the Hundred of Appletree, commonly called the three weeks' court, extends to debts and damages under 40s. This court is nearly obsolete.

Litchurch Court.—This Court, for the Hundred of Litchurch, for the recovery of small debts, is held twice a year, by the Sheriff of the County.

Manorial Courts.—Courts Leet and Baron are held twice a year for many manors before the stewards of their respective lords; and by custom, the Leets of several manors may be held at once in some certain place within one of the manors.

Barmote Courts, for the the regulation of mineral concerns are held every six months at Monyash and Wirksworth. C. S. B. Busby, Esq., Chesterfield, steward, and James Longsdon, Esq., of Little Longstone, barmaster, of the former; and James C. Newbold, Esq., of Matlock, steward, and John Alsop, Esq., barmaster, of the latter. A Barmote Court is also held at Crich, according to the custom of that liberty Joseph Hall, Esq., Castleton, steward, and Luke Alsop, Esq., of Crich, barmaster.

An Act of Parliament was passed in 1844, for facilitating the collection of County rates, and for relieving the High Constable from certain duties. The county rates are now collected by the Boards of Guardians of the Poor Law Unions, and by them paid to the County Treasurer.

Poor Law Unions.—Besides the eight Poor Law Unions in Derbyshire, with the Burton-upon-Trent Poor Law Union, in Staffordshire, all of which are fully noticed in the progress of the work; there are 14 parishes or townships, which belong to other Unions not in the county of Derby, viz., Norton, Dore, and Totley, on the North border of Scarsdale Hundred, in the Ecclesall Bierlow Union, of the parish of Sheffield, and West Riding of Yorkshire. Barlborough, Clown, Elmton, and Whitwell, in the Worksop Union, of the Hundred of Bassetlaw, Nottinghamshire. Codnor, Codnor Park, Heanor, Ilkeston, and Shipley, in the Basford Union, of the Hundred of Broxtow, Nottinghamshire. Chilcote chapelry forms the south extremity of Derbyshire in a detached portion of the Repton and Gresley Hundred, and is in the Tamworth Union of the Hundred of Offlow, Staffordshire. Somersall Herbert, and Norbury and Roston, near the north-east extremity of the Appletree Hundred, are in the Uttoxeter Union of the Hundred of Totmanslow, Staffordshire. There are also two places in the county which are not comprised in any Union, viz. Calke, and Griffe Grange.

Extra Parochial Places.—In addition to the parishes, chapelries, and townships in Derbyshire, as in other counties, there are several of those privileged districts called Extra Parochial Liberties. These enjoy a virtual exemption from parochial burdens, and their tithes are payable to the Crown instead of the Bishop of the diocese. They are found usually to have been royal palaces, or the site of religious houses, or of ancient castles, the owners of which were unwilling to permit any interference with their authority within their own property; and in rude times the existence of such exemptions was obtained from the crown by purchase or favour.

Ecclesiastical History.—The christian religion was not propagated so early in Derbyshire as in some other parts of Britain. In the year 596, Augustine, by the order of Gregory the Great, came into this kingdom, and in the space of one year converted 1,000 Saxons in Kent. But the gospel was not preached in the kingdom of Mercia till the reign of Penda, long after the abolition of idolatry in all the neighbouring states of the Saxon Heptarchy. At length this monarch, having sent his son Peada into Northumberland, to solicit in marriage Alchflida, the daughter of King Osway, he was converted to Christianity, by the persuasive discourses of the venerable Bede. The object of his mission being accomplished, he returned to his father's dominions, accompanied by a number of celebrated divines, who immediateby began to spread the doctrines and precepts of the gospel with great success among the Mercians. The aged Penda seems to have viewed these events with indifference. He soon after entered into a war with Osway, the Northumbrian Prince, and being defeated and slain in battle, his dominions were seized by the conqueror, who, in conjunction with Peada, remained in possession of Mercia for three years, during which Christianity was declared the established religion. At the end of this period, the Mercians, weary of subjection to a foreign yoke, revolted, and being successful, conferred the crown on Wulfere, one of the sons of Penda, who still embraced the Pagan idolatry, and during the early part of his reign, the cause of Christianity was greatly injured; Wulfere, however, in the end, became a convert to Christianity himself.

Derbyshire forms part of the diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, and consists of the Archdeaconry of Derby, and the Deaneries of Ashbourn, Castillar, Chesterfield, Derby, and Repington. The following is an enumeration, showing the parishes belonging to each Deanery, in which nearly all the Chapelries are omitted.

Sawley and its chapelries, are in the jurisdiction of the prebendary of that corps, in the church of Lichfield, Calke, Dale Abbey, and Hartington, with the chapel of Sterndale, and Peak Forest, are exempt from ecclesiastical jurisdiction.

From the reports of the ecclesiastical commissioners; the commissioners for building new churches; and the Bishop of the diocese, it appears that prior to the 31st March, 1851, 40 new parishes or ecclesiastical districts have been formed in the county, embracing a population of 99,135 souls.

Ecclesiastical Courts.—The ordinary Ecclesiastical Courts are the Court of Arches, or Supreme Court of Appeal, the Prerogative or Testamentary Court, and the Court of Peculiars, the diocesan courts, being the consistoral courts of each diocese, exercising general jurisdiction. The Arches Court exercises the appellate jurisdiction from the diocesan and most of the peculiar courts. It may also take original cognizance of causes; and it has jurisdiction on subtraction of legacy, given by wills proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury. The prerogative court has jurisdiction of all wills and administrations of personal property left by persons having bona notabili, or effects of a certain value. A very large proportion, not less than four-fifths of the whole contentious business, and a very much larger part of what is termed common form business, is dispatched by this court. The Court of Peculiars takes cognizance of all matters arising in certain deaneries. The Diocesan Court takes cognizance of matters arising locally within their respective limits, with the exception of places subject to peculiar jurisdiction. They may decide all matters of spiritual discipline. They may suspend or deprive clergymen, declare marriages, void, pronounce sentence of separation, try the right of succession to personal property, and administer the other branches of ecclesiastical law. The Archdeacons Court is generally subordinate, with an appeal to the Bishops' Court, though in some instances it is independent and co-ordinate.

Monasteries and Religious Houses.—Of the Abbot and Abbey. When in a Society of religious persons, whether male or female, one Abbot or Abbess presided it was styled an Abbey. This governor had the sole power over the convent, could appoint or remove any officer at pleasure, and prescribe what rules the monks or nuns should be obliged to observe. The Abbots have enjoyed the power of conferring the lower order of priesthood, but in the essential points of jurisdiction, they were every where subject to the diocesan Bishop.

A Priory.—When the chief person in the monastery bore the name of prior, it was styled priory. These kind of religious houses were of two sorts,—either they were such whose prior was independent, or they were such as depended upon some great abbey, from which they received their prior, and to which they were often obliged to pay a small pension, or annual acknowledgment.

A Preceptory.—Whensoever the Knights Templars or Hospitallers, had any considerable manors or farms, they erected churches for the service of God, and built a convenient house for habitation, to which they sent out their fraternity under the command of a preceptor.

Monks and Monasteries.—When the society of religious persons consisted of men, it was called a monastery. There is reason to believe that there were monks and monasteries in Britain before the end of the 4th century. In the course of the 7th century many monasteries were founded in all parts of England. These monasteries were designed, in some places, for the seats of the bishops and their clergy; in others for the residence of the secular priests, and in all places they were seminaries of learning for the education of youth.

A Cell.—When a monastery or nunnery was subject to another it was called a cell. The great English Abbeys had many such cells in distant places. Chantries, were chapels erected and endowed for the singing of masses for the souls of the deceased. Chantry rents are still paid to the Crown, by the purchasers of these lands. Hospitals, were small convents, occupied by a few monks, and founded for the entertainment of all who went any pilgrimage on religious pretence. Guilds were societies of lay-brethren, who lived together like monks, but were of no professed order.

Ecclesiastical Commissioners.—Great changes are gradually taking place under the powers of this commission, appointed under an act passed 6th and 7th William IV., in the general improvement and equalization of the dioceses, in dividing extensive parishes and augmenting small livings, and the adoption of such other measures as may conduce to the efficiency of the established church. Several new parishes have already been formed in the county of Derby. The Archbishops of Canterbury and York, the Bishops of London, Lincoln, and Gloucester, the Lord High Chancellor, the Lord President of the Council, the Lord High Treasurer, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, with others, form a body politic and corporate, by the name of the "Ecclesiastical Commissioners of England," for the purposes of the said act.

Parish Registers.—The earliest of the parish registers date from the establishment of the Church of England; injunctions to that effect having been issued by Cromwell, Henry's vicegerent in ecclesiastical jurisdiction, in 1538. The canons of the church now in force, date their authority from the beginning of the James I., A.D. 1603. One of these prescribes minutely the manner entries are to be made in the parish registers, and contains a retrospective clause appointing that the ancient registers as far as they could be procured, should be copied in a parchment book. This new regulation appears to have been carried into full effect, so that the only parish register books now extant, are usually transcripts, commencing with Queen Elizabeth's reign. The parish register act of 1812 obviated some of the previous sources of error, and insured the further usefulness of the registers from that period. But a satisfactory system of registration was not established until the year 1837, when the act of registering Births, Deaths, and Marriages, came into operation in England and Wales. The registration of Births is considerably more complete than the old parochial registers of Baptisms, and the register of Deaths is believed to be very complete.

Queen Anne's Bounty.—First Fruits and Tenths.—From the earliest period every bishop and clergyman has been required to pay the amount of his first year's incumbency into a fund, and every succeeding year one-tenth. These first fruits and tenths were annually collected, at their full value, and applied to the use of the pope, as early as the time of Pope Nicholas IV. (in 1200); for this purpose a valuation was made of all the ecclesiastical livings in England, which is still preserved in the remembrancer's office, and designated "Valor of Pope Nicholas IV." At the time of the Reformation, Henry VIII. passed a law, with the sanction of Parliament, declaring that the first fruits and tenths should be appropriated to the use of the state; and he caused an accurate and full valuation to be made of the ecclesiastical livings in England and Wales, which were accordingly paid into the public exchequer, till the reign of Queen Anne, with the exception of a short period in the reign of Philip and Mary. Queen Anne, it is said, deploring the wretched condition in which many of the clergy were placed owing to the insufficiency of their livings, came to the determination that the first fruits and tenths should be paid into a fund called "Queen Anne's Bounty," and that the amount should be appropriated to the livings of the poor clergy. No fresh valuation has been made since 1535, and registered in what is called the King's book, till that made by the order of the commission, in 1835, on which the payments are now regulated. That the payment might not operate oppressively, the first year's income was to be paid by four annual instalments, and all livings of small value were entirely exempt, and hence called "discharged livings." The governors of Queen Anne's bounty, sometimes aided by benefactions, and at others by Parliamentary grants, for the endowment of churches, have been able greatly to augment many of the poorest livings, and now the resources at the command of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, by various reductions in cathedral and collegiate churches, have caused the church livings to be considerably equalized.

HISTORY

BOROUGH OF DERBY.

DERBY, a municipal and parliamentary borough and market town, is the capital of the county to which it gives name, in the hundred of Morleston and Litchurch, 52° 50' north latitude, and 1° 27' west longitude, from Greenwich; 132 miles by railway and 126 miles N. W. by the old road from London, 13 miles S.E. from Ashbourn, 25 miles S. from Bakewell, 24 miles S. by W. from Chesterfield, 10½ miles N.E. from Burton on Trent, 15½ miles W. by S. from Nottingham, and 29 miles N.W. from Leicester. It is an ancient town and formerly had a castle. The streets of the old part are crooked and narrow, but the new streets are well built and many of the modern houses are spacious and handsome. The Markeaton brook, running through the town, issues into the Derwent at the east extremity; it is crossed by seven stone bridges, erected by a general subscription, with one of wood, and an elegant bridge of three elliptical arches over the Derwent; which with the silk mills, the wears, and broad expanse of the river, forms a handsome entrance to the town from Nottingham. The town is lighted with gas, and the streets are regularly paved, and considerable improvements and additions have, during the last 10 years, been made to the buildings of this busy and flourishing borough; which is plentifully supplied with water from the new works erected in 1850, at Little Eaton, at a cost of £40,000. The vale of the Derwent on the south presents an extensive level district, and the walks in the vicinity of the town are very pleasant. The borough contains by the census of 1851, 2,970 acres of land, 8,199 inhabited houses, 303 houses uninhabited, and 87 building; 19,370 males, and 21,239 females, being a total population of 40,609. The borough contains five parishes, of which three extend beyond its limits, and is the chief place of election for the southern division of the county. The town of Derby is situated in a fertile plain, on the western bank of the Derwent, about ten miles from its confluence with the Trent. The soil in the neighbourhood is a rich red marl, and the pasture land in the immediate vicinity is let from £4 to £7 per acre. Though situate in a valley and watered by a considerable river, often causing very serious floods, yet the air from the neighbouring hills is considered very pure, and many of the inhabitants live to a great age.

The origin of the town is not known; but during the Heptarchy, it was called Northworthig; when the Danes took possession of it they gave it the name of Deorby, of which Derby is a corruption. Antiquarians have been at considerable pains to ascertain the course of this change; some suppose that the name of Derby was given, because the town stands near the banks of the Derwent, but the more general opinion is that it is derived from two Saxon words, Deor (Fera), and By (habitatio). This conjecture is rendered probable by two circumstances, one is that the arms of the town are a Buck couchant in a park; and the other that one of the lanes adjoining the town is still called Lodge lane. It has been supposed that it was a town of some importance prior to the Roman invasion. This conjecture is founded upon its short distance from Little Chester, where this people undoubtedly had a Station.

The first direct mention made of Derby in history, is in the ninth century, when in the reign of Alfred it was constituted the metropolis of the county. In the year 918 Ethelfleda, the daughter of Alfred, upon its surrender took possession of the town with all its appurtenances; upon this occasion four of her knights were slain. However at her death it again fell into the hands of the Danes, but in the year 942 king Edmund invaded Mercia, and delivered Derby, with five other towns from their yoke. No clear idea can be formed of the town at these two periods. However, in Doomsday book we meet with a pretty full description of it, both in the reign of Edward the Confessor, and at the Norman conquest. "In the time of the Confessor, Derby was a royal borough, it contained two hundred and forty three burgesses. Near to it lay twelve plough-gates of taxed land, which eight teams could plough. This land was divided amongst forty-one burgesses, who likewise had twelve plough-gates. Of the tax, of the toll and forfeitures, and of all customs two thirds belonged to the king, and one third to the Earl of Mercia. In the same borough there was in the king's demesne one church and seven clerks, who held two plough-gates of free-land in Chester. The king had likewise another church, in which six clerks held nine ox-lands free in Cornum and Ditton. There were fourteen corn mills then in the town. On the death of Edward, the Confessor, Harold ascended the throne, who was killed at the battle of Hastings, when William, duke of Normandy, took possession of it. At the time of the Norman survey, it was much reduced, there being only one hundred burgesses, and forty who were minors. There were an hundred and three dwellings waste or empty, which paid tax, and the fourteen corn mills were reduced to ten. There belonged to the town sixteen acres of meadow land, and underwood three quarentenæ in length, each containing forty perches, and two in breadth. In the time of the Confessor the borough paid upon the whole twenty-four pounds; and at the conquest with a mill and the village of Ludeceree (Litchurch) it paid thirty pounds. In Derby the abbot of Burton had one mill and one manse of land, with sac and soc, and two manses of land of which the king had the soc, and thirteen acres of meadow land. Geoffrey Aselin possessed one church. Ralph, the son of Hubert had a church with a plough-gate. Norman, of Lincol, and Edric had also each of them a church. Henry de Ferrers was possessed of three old decayed houses with soc and sac. Osmar, the priest, had one ox-land, with soc and sac. Godwin the priest had likewise one ox-land. At the feast of St. Martin, the burgesses paid to the king twelve thraves of corn, of which the abbot of Burton had forty sheaves. The king was possessed of eight decayed houses, with sac and soc, in the borough. The two pennies belonging to the king, and the third to the earl, which arose from the wapontake of Appletree, were in the hands of the sheriff, by the testimony of the two counties. In respect to Storey, the predecessor of Walter de Aincourt, it was said, that without the license of any one, he might build a church for himself, and give the tithe to whom he pleased." On the south-east corner of the town, formerly stood a castle, and although all remains of it have long since disappeared there are strong evidences of its existence, Hutton in reference to it, states, "In an orchard on the summit of the hill one of the mounds, eighty yards long, runs parallel with the houses upon Cockpit-hill, perhaps one hundred yards behind them, also parallel with those in St. Peter's parish, but twice the distance. It was guarded by the Derwent on one side, and on the other side ran the London road. This I apprehend was the chief approach, because the passage afterwards bore the name of Castle street." Several enclosures also to the east acquired the name of Castle fields. In 1836, Edward Calvert, Esq., and Mr. Williamson, purchased the last portion (22 acres) of the Castle field estate, and in 1855 the former gentleman built himself a large and good residence on a part of it.

The Duke of Normandy, (Henry I.) granted to Ralph, earl of Chester, the town of Derby, by a charter, which was signed at Devizes. It has been conjectured that the fee farm rent of the town belonged to the Duchy of Lancaster, from the time of Henry III. to the reign of Henry VII. Henry VIII., in the 33rd year of his reign, granted them to the Dean and Chapter of Burton. At present (1856) the Corporation pay £16 as a fee farm rent to the Earl of Essex, £38 13s 6d to Chas. Joliffe, Esq., and £24 17s 8d to J. H. Franks, Esq., making a total of £79 11s 2d.

Derby was incorporated by Henry I., since which its charter has been altered and renewed at several different periods. It obtained various privileges in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., John, James I., and Charles I. In the time of King John, the burgesses were returned into the king's exchequer as owing sixty-six marks (about £1,980) for the confirmation of their liberties. In the sixth of the same reign, they were likewise returned debtors, sixty marks, and two palfreys, for holding the town of Derby at the usual fee farm, and £10 increase for all services, and having such a charter as the burgesses of Nottingham have; and in the twelfth year of the same reign, the burgesses were charged £40 for the fee farm of the town. In the reign of Henry III., the king granted to the burgesses of Derby and their heirs, that no Jew should live in the town. Edward III., in the fourth year of his reign, deprived the corporation of their liberties and summoned the burgesses to answer by what warrant they claimed to have toll, and were required to shew, why none should dye cloth within thirty miles of Derby, except in the said borough, saving the liberties of Nottingham. They were also to declare what right they had to be toll free throughout the king's dominions, to choose a bailiff every year, and to have a fair on Thursday and Friday in Whitsun week, and another of seventeen days, viz., eight days before the festival of St. James, and on the festival, and the eight succeeding days, to have a coroner, and none to be impleaded out of the borough, and by what authority they held markets on Sunday, Monday, Wednesday, and from Thursday eve to Friday, every week. In answer to these requisitions; the burgesses produced the charters granted them by the different Monarchs, and for the privilege of toll, produced the charter of Edward III., dated the 3rd of June, in the 1st year of his reign. In consequence of this, the king, on their paying a fine of forty marks, and promising to pay a yearly rent of £46 16s., restored them their liberties, which he had questioned and seized, being satisfied that they and their ancestors, had from time immemorial enjoyed them.

A charter of James I., dated at Westminster, the 7th of March, 1611, in the ninth year of his reign, recites and confirms various privileges which had been granted in former reigns. The particular liberties were, that the corporation should have authority to hold courts of record, made them independent of any foreign jurisdiction, and empowered them to hold "Sessions quarterly, two courts leet, and six fairs yearly,—shall be toll free throughout the whole kingdom, and take toll and tillage from all except the Duchy of Lancaster, which shall pay but half. In 1638, mention is first made of a Mayor; the corporation antecedent to that period was styled "The Bailiffs and Burgesses of the town of Derby." In 1680, the charter was surrendered to Charles II. and a new one granted in 1683, by which the government of the borough was vested in a mayor, nine aldermen, fourteen brethren, and fourteen capital burgesses; who, together, constitute the common council; and these appoint a recorder, town-clerk, (who is also coroner,) chamberlain, four sergeants-at-mace, (one of whom is keeper of the gaol,) six constables, and other inferior officers, elected annually the first Monday after St. Luke's day. The mayor is chosen from among the aldermen, by the aldermen and brethren, these last being appointed from the capital burgesses. The mayor, the late mayor, (who is always deputy-mayor with equal powers,) and the four senior aldermen are justices of the peace. The mayor and aldermen must reside within the borough, or they can neither locally vote nor exercise any official function. The freedom of the borough is inherited by all the sons of a freeman, born within the borough, or acquired by serving an apprenticeship to a resident freeman, or by gift of the corporation. This charter continued in force till the passing of the Reform bill. By letters patent of the King, granted to the burgesses before the year 1732, they were empowered to hold two fairs every year at Derby; one on the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth days of September, and the other on the feast of St. Paul and the day preceding and following; for the sale of all manner of cattle, and of all wares and merchandise commonly bought and sold at fairs. In the year 1734, the mayor, aldermen, brethren, and capital burgesses appointed a meeting, to be held for the disposal of the latter-make cheese, on the twelfth, thirteenth, and fourteenth of March, to which all persons dealing in the said commodity might resort, toll free. In the year 1738, the above days were altered to the twenty-first day of March and the two following days. The borough has sent two members to parliament since 1294: the right of election is vested in the freemen and sworn burgesses, and the mayor is the returning officer. The Parliamentary Reform act passed in June, 1832, and the Corporation Reform act on the 9th of September, 1835. The chief provisions of the Corporation Reform act are the following:—

1st. CORPORATE, after the first election of councillors; the body corporate of all existing cities and boroughs named in Schedule A., are to have a commission of the peace, and take and bear the name of mayor, aldermen, and burgesses of the town of Derby, and by that name have perpetual succession, and be capable in law, by their council, to do and suffer all acts lawful to them or their predecessors, by any name of title or incorporation.

2nd. The Town Council is to consist of the mayor, aldermen, and councillors, to be chosen on the first of November, in every third year following. The councillors to fill up extraordinary vacancies amongst the aldermen, within ten days; to elect the mayor every year; to appoint town-clerk, treasurer, and other officers; to take security from such officers for the due discharge of their duties, and to fill up vacancies as they may occur in those situations. To give an order, signed by three or more members, for all money to be paid on account of the town council; so that no payment from the treasurer can be lawful without such order. To hold quarterly meetings, and to have three clear days notice of every other intended meeting of the council affixed in or near the town hall, and left at the usual place of abode of each councillor, or at the premises he stands registered for; and in case the mayor, upon a requisition to that effect, should refuse to call a meeting of the council, it is lawful for five councillors to call the same, by giving the usual notice of their intentions, signing their own names, and stating the nature of the business to be transacted at such meeting. The council is empowered to appoint committees, to act as trustees where the body corporate are sole trustees, to appoint a limited number of councillors to be joint trustees, to whom the powers vested in the former trustees may be transferred. The council is to appoint a watch committee, who may have the powers of inspectors, under 3 and 4 Will. IV. for lighting any part of the borough not included in the local act. The council has also power to make bye-laws, but can impose no higher penalty for their infringement than £100. The council may order a borough rate in case of insufficiency, and it has the powers of justices for such purposes, with certain restrictions, and to levy a watch rate. It is authorized to renew leases in certain cases, but cannot grant leases for a longer term than thirty-one years, or sell or alienate any corporate lands without the approbation of the lords of the treasury. It is to fix the salary of the police magistrates to be appointed by the crown, and to provide a police office. To appoint an officer to preside in the borough court of record; and also a registrar, &c., and have power to remove from office every bailiff, treasurer, chamberlain, or other officer who shall be in office at the time of the passing of this act, and shall direct where the charters, deeds, or records of the borough shall be kept.

3rd. The mayor is a member of the council, ex officio; any councillor is eligible to this office, to which he is elected on the 9th of November. The mayor's duties are to provide polling booths, to preside with the assessors at the election of councillors, and also with the assessor, to revise burgess lists, and appoint clerks for the same. The mayor to sign a declaration of his acceptance of office, and of his possession of the requisite qualification. Any councillor elected mayor, but refusing to serve, is to pay a fine not exceeding £100. Becoming bankrupt, insolvent, or leaving the town for more than six months, loses office, but is capable of re-election, upon obtaining certificate, paying debts in full, or returning. Any person acting as mayor, without being qualified, is to forfeit £50, but his official acts are to be valid. The mayor is justice of the peace, ex officio, for the year of his mayoralty and the year following, and to have precedence within the borough, and to be returning officer at elections for members of parliament; he shall sign the notices for meetings of the council, and in the absence of the recorder is empowered to open and adjourn the court of quarter sessions.

4th. MUNICIPAL.—Aldermen are to be one-third in number of the councillors elected triennially, on the 9th of November, or chosen from the town councillors, or others having the same qualification; half of their number to go out of office every three years; are not to vote for their successors, but are eligible for re-election. No one can be elected an alderman who is not enrolled on the burgess list, nor unless possessed of £1000 property, or rated at the annual value of £30, or while holding any office in the gift of the council, otherwise than that of mayor, nor while sharing in any contract of employment from the council; but this qualification does not extend to shareholders of water or insurance companies holding a contract from the council. An alderman is to preside at elections, in case of death or inability of the mayor; refusing office, to pay a fine not exceeding £50; and in other respects same as mayor.

5th. Councillors are chosen in wards on the 1st of November, by persons whose names are on the burgess roll of such wards; one-third of the council are to go out of office annually, but are capable of re-election; all such elections are to be held before the mayor and assessors; voting to commence at nine o'clock in the morning, and finally to close at four o'clock in the afternoon of the same day. Every burgess entitled may vote for any number of persons not exceeding the number of councillors to be chosen, by delivering to the mayor or assessor a voting paper, containing the christian and surname of the persons for whom he votes, and signed with his own name and residence; no councillor is eligible as auditor or assessor. The barristers appointed have divided the town into six wards, viz., Bridge Ward, Becket Ward, Castle Ward, Derwent Ward, Friargate Ward, and King's Mead Ward. To each of these wards six councillors are appointed; the law with regard to their privileges and exemptions is the same as with aldermen.

6th. Assessors.—Two are elected annually by the burgesses of every corporate borough, and must have the same qualification as councillors, and in conjunction with the mayor, revise the burgess lists, be present at the election of councillors, and with the mayor ascertain the result of elections. No treasurer, town clerk, or councillor can be elected assessor; the assessors are to be elected in wards, by the burgesses of such respective wards, and no burgess to vote for more than one assessor.

7th. Recorder is appointed by the crown; has precedence after the mayor, and is sole judge at the quarter sessions; must be a barrister of at least five years standing, to hold office during his good behaviour. His salary is to be paid by the treasurer of the borough fund; but he cannot be a member for the borough, an alderman, or councillor; he is, ex officio, a justice of the peace.

He is ineligible as an auditor or assessor, must submit his accounts to the council when required, and a summary remedy is given against him for not accounting; he is exempt from serving on juries in the borough.

9th. Treasurer is appointed by the council, of whom he cannot be a member, but can be removed at pleasure; must give security for the due discharge of his official duties, submit his accounts when required to the council, and a summary remedy is to be had against him for not accounting. Keep his accounts open for inspection of aldermen or councillors, and submit them and the vouchers to the auditors, on the first of March and the first of September respectively, and to cause an abstract to be printed.

10th. Constables are appointed by the watch committee, and have power to act in the country as well as the borough. Magistrates appoint special constables, who have 3s. 6d. for each day of duty.

11th. Auditors.—Two are elected annually on the first of March, in the form of and with the qualification of councillors; no councillor is eligible.

15th. Overseers of the Poor to make out lists of persons entitled to be burgesses, which they are to sign and deliver to the town clerk on the fifth of September every year.

16th. Burgesses and Freemen.—No one can become such of any borough by gift or purchase; but all rights of property in common lands, or public stocks, money or chattels, are reserved to all existing freemen and burgesses, and to all such persons as might have become freemen or burgesses, had this act not passed; and to their wives, widows, children, or apprentices, a discharge or exemption from all tolls, dues only excepted. Nevertheless it is provided that freemen, to be entitled to the beneficial exemptions, shall have acquired their right prior to the fifth of June, 1835. All occupiers of houses and shops, rated for three years for the relief of the poor, are entitled to be burgesses, if resident householders within seven miles; occupancy and the payment of rates are the only qualifications.

18th. Borough Fund.—The proceeds of all corporate property, one moiety of all penalties imposed under this act, and all unappropriated fines and penalties, are to form the borough fund, and to be paid to the treasurer accordingly. COUNTY COURTS are held monthly at the County Hall, St. Mary's gate, at 10 o'clock a.m.

THE NEW SMALL DEBTS ACT, or COUNTY COURTS.—This important act, which has created a revolution in law proceedings, took effect throughout England and Wales, on the 15th of March, 1847, and at first was limited to all actions and claims not exceeding £20, but was extended, August 1851, to £50. By an order in council, all courts for small debts were abolished on the 13th of March, with the exception of a few, from which day the excepted courts were to be holden at county courts, and governed by the provisions of the act so to be enforced. Each district court is presided over by a judge, who appoints a clerk, being an attorney, and he appoints the other officers. The jurisdiction of the court is thus defined in the 58th section:—"And be it enacted that all pleas of personal actions, when the debt or damage claimed is not more than £50, whether a balance account or otherwise, may be holden in the county court, without writ, and all such actions brought in the said court shall be heard, and determined in a summary way in a county court, constituted under this act, provided always that the court shall not have cognizance of any action of ejectment, or which the title of any corporeal or incorporeal heraditaments, or any toll, fair, market, or franchise shall be in question; or in which the validity of any devise, bequest, or limitation, under any will or settlement may be disputed; or for any malicious prosecution, or for any libel or slander, or for criminal conversation, or for seduction, or breach of promise of marriage." Demands are not to be divided, but may be reduced to £50. Minors may sue for wages, executors may sue and be sued. The judge is to determine the case where no jury is summoned. In cases exceeding £5 in amount, a plaintiff or defendant may require a jury of five persons, on the payment of 5s.; and under that amount, the judge is to have a discretionary power as to a jury. Witnesses are to be paid their expenses, and may be fined for non-attendance. A debt may be paid by instalments, and a judge has power to order an execution against the goods of a defendant except the wearing apparel and tools to the amount of £5. A commitment for 40 days may be made, and is not to extinguish the debt. Actions in certain cases, such as where the plaintiff resides more than twenty miles from the defendant, may be brought into the superior courts, but in other cases it is enacted—"that if an action shall be commenced after the passing of this act, in any of her majesty's superior courts of record, for any other cause than those hereinafter specified, for which a plea may have been entered into any court, holden under this act, and a verdict shall be found for the plaintiff, for a sum less than £50, if the said action is founded on contract, or for less than £5, if it be founded on tort or wrong, the said plaintiff shall have judgment to recover such sum, and no costs; and if a verdict shall not be found for the plaintiff, the defendant shall be entitled to his costs, as between attorney and client, unless, in either case, the judge who shall try the cause, shall certify on the back of the record that the action was fit to be brought in such superior court."

Clerk,—Benjamin Frear, solicitor, Full street.

The Assizes for the County are held here; the April Sessions are held at Chesterfield, and the others are held at Derby.

The Old Town Hall, erected by subscription on the site of the ancient Guildhall, about the year 1729, though in itself a good building, was, from its isolated situation in the Market-place, a great obstruction to business. It was taken down in 1825, and a new one, nearly in a line with the south side of the Market-place, was erected in 1828, at a cost of upwards of £7,000. It presents a handsome appearance, and being built on arches, is connected with a new market erected by the corporation. Considerable improvements, at a cost of nearly £700, had just been completed, when the interior of this hall was, on the 21st of October, 1841, completely destroyed by fire; leaving the outside and centre walls standing, apparently but little injured, though the damage was estimated at from £10,000 to £12,000. The interior arrangements are now considered very complete. The hall or court is an elegant room, 55 feet long, 35 feet wide, and 28 feet high, fitted up with wainscotting. A commodious gallery has been erected at the east end of the court, and the whole is lighted with four skylights. The spaces on each side of the tower, between the two wings, are decorated with bas reliefs, one having reference to judicial, the other to municipal proceedings. The external dimensions of the building are 88 feet wide, and 64 feet deep, exclusive of the tower, which is 18 feet wide, and rises 112 feet from the ground; in which is an illuminated clock and alarm bell. The inscriptions on the two wings and tower are as follows:—On the right wing, "Restitutum A.D. 1842." On the left wing, "Deflagratum A.D. 1841." On the tower, "Forum Municipale."

The County Hall, or Court of Justice, a commodious structure of freestone, with a large courtyard in front, erected in 1660, is situated at the foot of St. Mary's gate. Considerable alterations and additions were made in this building in 1829. It now extends to Jury street and Walker lane, and the total amount expended in the cost of land, and the necessary alterations, amounted to £18,052. The courts are 50ft. by 30ft. each, with galleries around three sides, which are supported by columns; similar columns also sustain the roof, and are much admired for their beautiful proportions and enrichments. It is well ventilated, and kept at a proper temperature by means of heated air, the interior of the building has been completely renovated and fitted up in harmony with the rest of the edifice. In the hall is a bust of the late Francis N. C. Mundy, Esq., of Markeaton hall. The judge's lodgings, on the right of the court yard, is a good brick building, and on the left, is the county hotel.

The County Gaol occupies a pleasant situation, in South street, near the Uttoxeter old road. It having been determined at the county sessions, in 1821, to erect a new gaol and house of correction, for the use of the county, to admit of the arrangement and classification required by act of parliament. For this purpose, six acres of land were obtained from the trustees of Larges' Hospital, by the exchange of thirty-six acres of land, belonging to the county, in the parish of Sandiacre, and in 1823, the plans of Mr. Francis Goodwin, architect, were approved of, and eventually adopted at the estimated cost of £46,208 5s. 4d.; but the total cost of the structure, including furniture, &c., was £65,227 4s. 6d. The entrance displays a bold and commanding appearance, exhibiting the strength of character of which the Doric order is capable. The boundary walls enclose an area of three acres, they are built of brick, 25ft. high, and defended with towers, which are furnished with fire-arms. The Governor's house and chapel stand in the centre, from which radiate seven wings. Two small buildings apart from the rest are appropriated to the females, and another detached building is assigned to the refractory and those sentenced to solitary confinement. The number of cells was originally, 185; but which, in 1855 and 1856, was increased to 228, some of which will hold three persons each. Workshops have also been provided for tailoring, shoemaking, joiner's work, and for the manufacture of hearth rugs. Two long ranges of sheds have also been erected, for the prisoners to break stones, in separate cages.

A magazine is built within the boundary wall, in which the powder belonging to the Cavalry and Militia, is deposited. The Armoury of the out-pensioners, is also within the prison. Mr. James Henry Sims, as keeper of the prison, has a salary of £300 a-year; Miss Eliza Hunt, as matron, £60 a-year; Mr. H. F. Gisborne, surgeon, £200 a-year, for attending the prison daily. The chaplain, the Rev. Henry Moore, receives £250 a-year, and performs divine service twice on the Sunday, and afterwards attends the prisoners, who are catechised and instructed. Prayers are also read every morning at a quarter before nine o'clock, in the week days, after which the chaplain devotes a short time to the moral and religious instruction of those convicted. There are six turnkeys, who each receive 24s. a-week; fourteen, 22s. a-week; two females, 15s. each, and a watchman, who receives 19s. a-week.

The Borough gaol, before 1730, was under the Town Hall, but when it was taken down a small addition was made to the county gaol, at the foot of St. Peter's street, to serve for that purpose. In 1756, however, they were both removed, a county prison having been erected in Nun's Green, and the borough gaol was removed to Willow Row.

The prison in Friargate was used as the county gaol till 1825, when the new one having been erected, it was bought by the corporation for £3,000, as a borough gaol, the one in Willow row being very inconvenient. It continued the borough gaol till 1840, when an arrangement was made for the reception of the borough prisoners in the county gaol; it was sold and taken down, and some good houses erected on its site.

Police Office is in the Town Hall; the force was established in 1836, and consists of Mr. J. H. Radley, the superintendent, 4 serjeants, 2 office constables, and 31 privates.

Executions.—Two gallows were erected in 1534, for hanging prisoners upon. In 1599, one Okey, was hanged in the Town Hall, but not known how. In 1601, a woman was burnt to death, in Windmill pit, for poisoning her husband. In 1607, the witches of Bakewell were executed. 1609, in this year Roger Moore was slain by Henry Bennett, for which he was executed shortly after. 1645, Richard Cockrum was executed on the gallows on Nun's green, for killing — Mills, a servant at the Angel. 1705, John Crossland and son, for horse stealing; he and his two sons were convicted of this offence, after sentence was passed, the bench offered to pardon one if he would hang the other two; the offer was first made to the father, who declined, then the eldest son, who also declined, and then to John, the youngest, who accepted it without remorse; he was afterwards hangman for this and two or three of the neighbouring counties, till he was incapacitated through old age. 1732, March 23rd, John Hewitt and Rosamond Olerenshaw were executed for poisoning Hannah Hewitt, the wife of John Hewitt; they were executed in their shrouds. 1735, Aug. 16th, John Smith, of Norbury, for burglary. 1738, March 30th, Richard Woodward, for highway robbery; he dressed himself in his shroud and walked to the place of execution. 1740, April 9th, Wm. Dolphin, aged 33, for highway robbery, near Chesterfield. 1740, August 28th, George Ashmore, for coining; the day after execution he was interred at Sutton-on-the-hill, but his body was stolen by the resurrectionists. 1741, Aug., Robert Bowler, for shooting and wounding Edward Rivington, butcher, between Belper and Pentrich. 1754, March 29th, Mary Dilks, for murdering her illegitimate child; a new gallows was erected for this occasion. 1776, Matthew Cockayne was hanged and afterwards gibbetted, for murdering Mrs. Mary Vickars. 1800, Sep. 5th, Thomas Knowles, for forgery. 1801, Aug. 14th, Lacy Powell, aged 26, and John Drummond, aged 23, two Irishmen, for highway robbery; James Gratian, of Heage, aged 28, for housebreaking; John Evans, of Duffield, aged 22; and John Dent of Coleorton, aged 47, for sheep stealing. 1812, April 10th, on the new drop, in front of the county jail, James Tomlinson, aged 27, and Percival Cook, aged 26, for robbing Mr. Hunt's house, at Ockbrook. 1817, Aug. 15th, John Brown, of Nottingham, aged 38; Thos. Jackson, of Woolley moor, aged 20; George Booth, of Chesterfield, aged 21; and John King, of Matlock, aged 24, for arson, at Col. Halton's, South Wingfield. 1817, Nov. 7th, Jeremiah Brandreth, alias the Nottingham captain, a native of Exeter, aged 27; Wm. Turner, aged 46; and Isaac Ludlam, aged 52, both of South Wingfield, for high treason; they were afterwards beheaded. 1819, March 22nd, Hannah Bocking, of Litton, aged 16, for poisoning Jane Grant, a young woman of the same village; she gave the poison in a sweet cake to her companion as they were going to fetch some cattle out of a field near to which stood the gibbet post of Anthony Lingard, who was executed at Derby for murder. 1819, April 2nd, Thomas Hopkinson, aged 20, a native of Ashover, for highway robbery; he was of the party who committed arson, at South Wingfield, in 1817, but was admitted king's evidence. 1825, April 8th, George Batty, aged 40, from Norton Woodseats, for ravishing Miss Martha Hawksley, aged 16, in the parish of Beauchief. 1833, April, John Leadham, for bestiality; he was the first criminal executed at the new county prison. 1843, March, Samuel Bonsall, aged 26; Wm. Ecclesiastical Government.—Derby is the head of the archdeaconry, which comprises the whole of Derbyshire, and was founded previous to the year, 1140, by the bishop of Coventry; its value in the king's books is £26 13s. 4d. The Venerable and Rev. Thos. Hill, B.D. the Archdeacon, holds an annual visitation in All Saints church, then by adjournment, to the King's Head inn, at which the Churchwardens of the different parishes are sworn into office.

The Clergy Charity.—This society for the relief of the widows and orphans of clergymen, and the families of distressed clergymen, within the deaneries of Derby, Ashbourn, Reppington, and Castellary, in the archdeaconry of Derby, was instituted at Derby, May 17th, 1721.

Monastic Institutions.—The ancient religious foundations of Derby, which arose in Catholic times, were neither numerous nor splendid. In the first centuries of Christianity, many of its persecuted votaries, in order to avoid a cruel death, "and the better to give themselves up to fasting, prayer, and contemplation, retired by themselves into desert places," in allusion to which they were called hermits, "After the persecutions of the Christians were over, and the church enjoyed peace, these hermits by degrees returned to towns and cities, and associating together, they lived in houses called monasteries, and confined themselves to certain rules agreed upon among themselves." But it was not till the beginning of the seventh century that Christianity obtained a firm footing in England. Monachism was first commenced in Asia, and afterwards spread all over Europe, and its reign in England was as brilliant as in any other part of the world, till Henry VIII., who was, perhaps, a necessary scourge for the sins and bigotry of the times in which he lived, swept away nearly all its institutions, and threw their immense wealth into a more corrupt channel than even that which it had previously occupied; for, instead of its reverting to the original parochial uses, or preserving it for the spiritual and bodily support of the poor, in accordance with the original intention of the donors, he sold or granted most of it to private individuals, for the gratification of his own concupiscence, and for the satisfaction of those who connived at his lascivious errors. That the monks had become insolent and corrupt, and that a religious reformation was necessary all must admit; but this perversion of property from its parochial or charitable uses all must condemn. The religious houses which existed in Derby were St. Helen, Derley Abbey, Priory of Benedictine nuns, Priory of Black Friars, Maison de Dieu, and a cell of Cluniac monks. St. Helen, the most ancient religious house in Derby, was established in the reign of King Stephen, by Robert de Ferriers, the second Earl of Derby. He placed an abbot and canons in it, and by various endowments provided for their accommodation and support. But in the early part of the reign of Henry II, the dean of Derby gave to the master and canons at St. Helens all his possessions at Little Derby or Derley, for the erection of a church and monastery at Derley, but it does not appear certain that the house at Derby was entirely deserted at this time, for in the Lincoln taxation, made in the 20th year of Edward I., the master of the house of St. Helen's, at Derby, is mentioned as distinct from the abbot of Derley.

Derley Abbey.—As it has been observed, the dean of Derby gave to the master and canons of St. Helen, his possessions at Derley, for the erection of a church and a habitation for themselves. At the same time, he endowed this religious house with his patrimonial estate at Derby, and the patronage of the church of St. Peter, with all its appurtenances. This grant was afterwards renewed and confirmed by the charters of the burgesses of Derby, and of king Henry II., but it constituted but a small part of the wealth of this religious house, for it afterwards received many valuable endowments from several other persons; in particular the churches of St. Michael, and St. Werburgh, and the school in Derby, and the churches of Crich, Uttoxeter, Pentrich, Ashover, Wingfield, Bolsover, and Scarcliffe, together with the emoluments and privileges of which they were respectively possessed. It was also endowed with many tracts of land, of great extent, in various parts of the county. Several entire manors were granted to it; of this number were Ripley, Pentrich, Ulkerthorpe, Crich, Lea, Dethick, Ible, Tansley, Winstanton, Oggedeton, (Hognaston,) Succhethorn, Aldwork, and Sewelledale. Lands in other places were likewise given for the support of this establishment; in particular, nineteen oxgangs in Chilwell and five in Aneleg, (Annesley); a moiety of Blackwell; a moiety of Kildulvescot; a moiety of Newton, with eight oxgangs in Rutington, and four in Herduvic; one manse in Nottingham, and 200 acres in Burley. It was endowed with the mill at Horsley, two mills upon Odderbroc, near Derby, and two mills in the same town. It likewise held by various patents, tenements in Derby, Alvaston, Normanton, and Wessington; in Crich, Haslewood, and Duffield; in Litchurch, Weston, Mugginton, Normanton, Spondon, Chaddesden, and Little Chester; in Thurleston, Alvaston, and Ambaston; in Ripley, Waring-grene, Codnor, and Derby. The abbot also enjoyed several peculiar privileges; all his lands in tillage, and all his other property were exempt from paying tithe. He was appointed dean of all the churches in Derbyshire, which were given to the abbey. He was empowered to hold a chapter of the secular clergy, and in conjunction with them to judge of those things which appertain to the office of a dean, without the interference of any person whatever, except the bishop. The abbot and canons of Derley were also allowed as much wood as they could draw from Chaddesden with one cart. The total value of these endowments at the dissolution, was £285 9s. 6d., or the clear value £258 13s. 6d. It was surrendered on the 22nd day of October, in the year 1539, by the abbot and thirteen monks. The site of the abbey was granted in the 32nd year of Henry VIII. to Sir William West. In the year, 1540, the tombs and whole church were sold for £20, the cloyster for £10, and the chapter house for 20s., and £45 1s. 10d. was received for six bells, and the whole of the plate weighed 134 ounces. A part of the property belonging to Derley abbey, was granted by Queen Mary to the bailiffs and burgesses of Derby, particularly the advowson of the churches of St. Peter and St. Michael, in Derby, the school, and several messuages and parcels of land, in the town and its neighbourhood.

Priory of Benedictine Nuns.—In 1160, in the reign of Henry II., the abbot of Derley founded a small nunnery at Derby. The bishop of Coventry committed it to his care, and granted him a license of consecrating the virgins who were received into it. This Priory, it appears, stood on the north-west side of the Nun's green, and at its dissolution, its revenues were estimated at £18 6s. 8d., or £21 18s. 10d. per annum. Henry III., to obtain the prayers of the prior and convent for the soul of his father King John, gave five pounds, to be paid yearly by the bailiffs out of the fee farm of the town of Nottingham. Henry IV., by charter dated the 10th of October, in the 13th year of his reign, granted to this religious house one messuage, and twelve acres of land in Bistallegh and Ashop (Alsop-in-the-dale). He likewise endowed it with twenty-seven acres of land, with their appurtenances, in Peak forest, and with the common pasture in Fairfield, in the same forest. This right was very extensive. It reached, in the direction of north and south, from Smalldale to Alport, near Youlgrave; an extent of at least ten miles, besides various other endowments, there was the site of the building with garden and curtelage, and 240 acres of land. It also possessed land in Langley and Trusley, and several messuages and parcels of land in Aston-upon-Trent.

Black Friars.—A priory of preaching or Dominican friars, which was dedicated to the blessed Virgin. In the reign of Edward I., was granted to them a meadow containing three roods and a half of land in Derby; and in the 12th year of Edward II. a patent was obtained for purchasing ten acres of land, with a view of enlarging this priory. There also belonged it in the parish of St. Werburgh nine cottages, eight acres of land, one meadow, and one croft. The revenue of this religious house at the dissolution, was estimated at £18 6s. 2d., or £21 18s. 8d., per annum. It was granted to John Hinde, in the 35th year of Henry VIII. The site of this house belongs to the family of Crompton; an ancestor of the family purchased it about 130 years ago, and erected a mansion of which the foundations were laid with stone collected from the priory, and in the garden, it is said was a place of worship and burial ground.

Maison de Dieu, or the House of God, dedicated to St. Leonard, was founded as early as the time of Henry II. for leperous persons. It was under the government of a master. It is said there was also an hospital of royal foundation, consisting of a master (whose place was in the gift of the crown) and several leperous brethren.

Cluniac Monks.—Previous to the year 1140, was a cell of this order dedicated to St. James, in Derby, but belonging to the abbey of Bermondsey, in Southwark, near London. It was protected as a poor hospital, in the 14th year of Henry III., and in the next reign reckoned among the alien priories: however, it continued to the general dissolution, when its revenues were estimated at £11 15s. 11d.

St. Thomas à Becket's chapel was situated formerly near Becket well lane, the last vestiges of which, have been removed some years, but an ancient well still remains, from which the street derives its name.

CHURCHES.

There are in the town nine episcopal places of worship, five of which are parochial churches, two chapels of ease, and two are district churches: besides which, it is supposed, as early as the reign of Henry II., there was one dedicated to the blessed Mary, and that the parish belonging to it was of large extent, but it is not known in what part of the town it stood, or whether it be the same building with that which is situated upon St. Mary's bridge, and distinguished by the name of St. Mary's chapel. That there was a place of worship in this place, is an unquestionable fact, and is supposed to have been given by William the Conqueror to the abbey of Burton. In the reign of Charles II., the Presbyterians made use of this chapel, and about a century ago it was converted into small dwellings, but is now in a state of dilapidation. Another church or chapel of equal if not greater antiquity, once stood near to the lane called St. James's lane. It was given by Waltheof to the abbey of Bermondsey, in Southwark, London. The grant was confirmed by king Stephen, in the year 1140. In digging some cellars and foundations of houses in St. James's lane, some human bones of a large size were met with; and on the north side of the lane, where the chapel stood, was discovered a stone coffin, containing a body of uncommon stature, which upon the first motion of it mouldered to dust.

All Saints, anciently and still by some called All Hallows, is a principal ornament to Derby. It is mentioned in the reign of Henry III. In the succeeding reign, with the seven prebendaries and other appurtenances, it was made a free chapel of the king, and exempted from all ordinary jurisdiction. The archdeacon of Derby was restrained from exercising ecclesiastical authority over it, and it was rendered immediately subject to the pope. It still enjoys the privilege of being exempt from all ecclesiastical jurisdiction. This church was collegiate, and the master or rector seems to have been the dean of Lincoln. A house termed the college adjoins the church, and was probably the residence of the collegians. To the college belonged two acres and a half of land, lying in Bridge-croft, Derby; all the tithes within Quarndon; the same in Little Eaton; one messuage, with lands, meadows, and pastures appertaining to it; a barn, with lands, and hereditaments, called the two small prebends; a messuage and tenement, and one close of land, all situated in Little Chester; together with all manner of tithes within the liberty. In the twenty-sixth year of Henry VIII., the revenues of the college amounted to £39 12s. in the whole, or £38 14s. clear. There was also founded within the church of All Saints, the guild of the Holy Trinity; it was endowed with various messuages, tenements, cottages, gardens, meadows, and pastures, in the town of Derby, which in the time of Queen Mary were in the occupation of more than twenty different persons; the church was, with all these endowments, granted by queen Mary, in the 1st year of her reign, to the bailiffs and burgesses of Derby. This grant ordains, "that in the parish church of All Saints, there shall be two vicarages perpetual, to be instituted and endowed, which may have succession perpetual." There is now only one vicarage, but there is a Wednesday evening lectureship. Since the passing of the New Municipal Act, the corporation have sold the advowson of this and of St. Alkmund's churches.

The Church of All Saints, in Queen street, has been once, if not twice, rebuilt since the time when it is first mentioned in history. The present structure was erected in the years 1723, 1724, and 1725, from a design of Gibbs, and was opened on the 21st of November, 1725. The living is a perpetual curacy, of the certified value of £80. Simeon's trustees are the patrons, and the Rev. E. W. Foley, incumbent. It is a handsome modern church of classical architecture, with embellishments of the Roman Doric Order, and cost about £4,000. The interior is particularly light, elegant and spacious. But the tower is more ancient, and is said to have been built in the reign of queen Mary. On one of the string courses of the tower are the words, "Young men and maydens," from which, Speed asserts that it was raised at the charge of young men and maids. This tower is of peculiar beauty, displaying the latest style of pointed architecture, and consisting of three stories, the lowest of which has a western door-way, with an elegant canopied and groined niche on each side; the others, ornamented windows; and the whole is crowned with rich battlements, crockets, high pinnacles, and other decorations. This tower, which is considered one of the most splendid in the kindom, is 174 feet in height, exclusive of the pinnacles, it underwent a thorough restoration about ten years ago, at a cost of above £1,200. It contains a peal of ten bells. Within the iron screen at the east end of the church, and on the south side, is a vault in which several of the Cavendish family have been interred. Here is a monument to William the second, Earl of Devonshire, who died in 1628, and to his Countess; whose figures are executed in white marble, standing upright, beneath a massive canopy, twelve feet in height; there is also a very splendid mural monument to the memory of the celebrated Countess of Shrewsbury, with a Latin inscription, executed under her own inspection. This very celebrated Elizabeth, Countess of Shrewsbury, built the houses of Chatsworth, Hardwick, and Oldcoates, highly distinguished by their magnificence, and died on the thirteenth day of February, 1607, about the eighty-seventh year of her age. Here too was interred John Lombe, who established the first silk mill in England. In the south aisle is a monument to the Rev. Michael Hutchinson, D.D., who obtained £3,249 by subscription for rebuilding the church. So industrious was the Dr., in his successful solicitations, that he treated the waites who fiddled at his door with a tankard of ale, and wheedled a guinea out of them. In the north aisle is another monument commemorative of Richard Crowshaw, Esq., said to be the son of a poor nailer of this town, who went to London in a leathern doublet to seek work, where by his industry and success he acquired a fortune of £10,000. We learn from the inscription upon the monument, that he was master of the right worshipful company of goldsmiths, and deputy of Broad-street Ward; that in the great plague in 1625, neglecting his own safety, he abode in the city to provide for the relief of the poor; and by his will left above £4,000 to the corporation of Derby, for the support of lectures, relief of the poor, and other pious uses. He died in June, 1631, and was buried in the parish of St. Bartholomew, where he had lived 31 years. There is also an Elizabethan monument to Sir William and Lady Wheeler, who flying from London to avoid the plague, died of that dreadful pestilence at Derby, in 1666.

St. Alkmund's, Queen street, and Bridge-gate, an ancient structure, supposed to have been founded in the 8th or early in the 9th century. It is said that Alkmund son of Alured, king of Northumberland, being slain in battle, in which he was fighting for Ethelmund, viceroy of Worcester, was for this action reputed a saint and martyr; he was first buried at Littleshull in Shropshire, but was afterwards removed to Derby, and interred in the church which now bears his name. He was believed to work miracles, and the northern people, before the reformation, made frequent pilgrimages to his tomb. This church was rebuilt on the same site, of which the first stone was laid the 6th of May, 1844. It is larger than the old church, which had accommodation for 500 persons, and was commenced taking down in the previous January. It was of various styles of architecture from Norman to late Perpendicular, it having been enlarged or rebuilt at different periods. It had for some time been considered in many parts insecure. The new church, from a design of Henry John Stevens, Esq., is a handsome stone edifice in the decorated style of architecture, erected in 1846, at a cost of about £9,000, and has a nave with clerestory, north and south aisles, a handsome chancel, a south porch, over which is a parishioners' vestry, approached without entering any other part of the church, and a lofty tower and spire at the west end. The principal entrance is at the west end, the nave is divided from the side aisles by a series of clustered columns with elegant foliated capitals, from which spring the deeply moulded arches. The ribs of the roof, which are of timber with carved bosses, rise from sculptured corbel heads of good character. The chancel arch is lofty and well proportioned, and springs from massive clustered columns. In the chancel is a beautiful altar screen, with illuminated texts, &c. Over the altar is the large east window, filled with beautiful stained glass, charged with heraldic bearings, foliage, &c. It will accommodate 1,200 persons, of which more than one half are unappropriated. This church was granted to the abbey of Derley. After the dissolution it rested in the crown, till queen Mary gave it to the corporation of Derby, who sold the presentation to Jedediah Strutt, Esq., at whose death, his son-in-law, the Rev. Edward Henry Abney, became both Patron and Incumbent. Ever since the year 1712 (as noticed by Hutton) it has enjoyed an endowment bequeathed by a person of the name of Goodwin, descended from an ancient family in Derby. "How will you dispose of your fortune?" says Mr. Cantrell, minister of St. Alkmund's. "I am at a loss," replied Goodwin, "for I have no near relations." "My church," says the parson, "stands desolate; for, instead of being a place of regular worship, it is only a nursery for bats and owls. No act of charity can surpass that of promoting religion." "Then I will give £10 per annum to St. Alkmund's at my death," says Goodwin, "and the residue at the death of my nephew." Which last event happened about 1734. This estate is situate at Plumley, in the parish of Eckington, and at that time produced £60 per annum, but now about £225.

St. Michael's is a very ancient small gothic structure, situate in Queen street, with nave, chancel, and side-aisles, with square embattled tower, and three bells. The living is a discharged vicarage, valued in the king's books at £4 15s. 0d., now £120. It has been augmented with 400 benefactions, £400 queen Anne's bounty, and £2,000 parliamentary grant, and is in the patronage of the Lord Chancellor. The Rev. John Erskine Clarke, M.A. is incumbent. It was given by one of the Freschvilles to the Abbey of Derley. Queen Mary, in the first year of her reign, gave this church to the bailiffs and burgesses of Derby.

St. Peter's is an ancient gothic structure, nearly covered with ivy, in St. Peter's street, with nave, chancel, side aisles, and has galleries all round, a square tower embattled, with lofty pinnacles, and a peal of five bells. The living is a discharged vicarage, valued in the king's books at £8, now £360. The Rev. Charles Wright and Brothers are the patrons, and the Rev. Wm. Hope, incumbent. In 1851, the chancel was thoroughly restored and fitted up with open stalls, a handsome window filled with stained glass, and a new organ was also added, the whole at a cost of £1000, raised by voluntary contributions. This church was in the reign of king Stephen given to the abbey of Derley, and at the dissolution the advowson was granted to the bailiffs and burgesses of Derby. In this church, a chapel was founded, before the 21st year of Henry VIII, by Robert Lyversege, of Derby, in which his priest and successors were to celebrate divine worship and say mass every Friday.

Thirteen poor men or women were required to be present, and were to receive a silver penny every time of their attendance. Also, here was a chantry of the blessed Mary; it was endowed with various messuages, cottages, gardens, meadows, and hereditaments, which in the reign of queen Mary were in the tenure of ten different persons, and by her were granted to the bailiffs and burgesses of Derby. The old vicarage house which stood near the church, has recently been taken down, and shops built on the site; and a handsome new one was erected in 1856, on the Burton road.

St. Werburgh.—This ancient structure situated in Friargate, near the Markeaton brook, is supposed to have been built before the Norman conquest; its foundation was injured by occasional floods, so that in 1601, the tower and a considerable portion of the church fell down; and on re-building, to prevent a similar occurrence, the tower for the sake of safety, was removed to its present position at the south-east angle, but this, like the former, fell in November, 1698. The present edifice was erected, at the principal charge of the parishioners, by the great zeal of the Rev. James Walker, the vicar, who died in 1700, and endowed the church with part of the tithes of Derby. It consists of nave, chancel, and side aisles, in the Grecian style, with a fine Gothic tower, and eight bells, with galleries on the north and south sides, and west end, in which is an organ, erected about 1839, by Gray, of London, at a cost of £350. Three new bells were added in 1849, at a cost of £140, they were cast by "Mears" of London, who, also at the same time, re-cast the old ones. In 1850, the church was enlarged by the extension of the west end, and the addition of a new wing at the end of the north gallery, at a cost of £700, the whole of which, was defrayed by voluntary contributions, with the exception of a grant of £70, from the incorporated Society for the enlargement of churches; given in consideration that 500 sittings should be free and unappropriated. The church will now seat about 940 persons. The living is a discharged vicarage, valued in the King's books at £5 12s. 8d. now £298, the Lord Chancellor is patron, and the Rev. Wm. Fras. Wilkinson, M.A. incumbent. In the reign of king Stephen, the church of St. Werbergh was given to the abbey at Derley. In this church there was a chantry of the blessed Mary. It was endowed with various messuages, gardens, cottages, and lands, which in the reign of queen Mary were in the tenure of ten different persons, and by her granted to the corporation of Derby.

St. John's Church, Bridge street, an elegant gothic structure in the later English style, was commenced in the year 1827, and opened for public worship in October, 1828, from a design by Mr. Francis Goodwin, of London, as a chapel of ease to St. Werburgh, at a cost of £7,500, of which nearly £5,000 was raised by voluntary contributions, and the remainder was from the commissioners for building churches. It is lighted by 22 gothic cast iron windows, has a double embattlement, and the six projecting buttresses on each side the nave are ornamented with caps and consols. At each corner is an octagonal tower or turret with canopied terminations. The interior is extremely neat and convenient, with a chancel 20ft. 3in. by 7ft. 4½in. It has a gallery on the north and south sides, and west end, and is capable of holding 1,200 persons, of which nearly one half are unappropriated. The living is a perpetual curacy of the value of £136. The vicar of St. Werburgh is the patron, and Rev. Thos. Arthur Scott, incumbent.

Trinity Church, situate on the London road, was consecrated in 1836. It is a neat gothic structure 92 feet long and 52 feet wide; at the west end is a square tower, terminated by four canopied pinnacles; the base comprises the porch and entrance; at the east end is a light oriel window, with ground glass in large plates; by this and twelve square headed side windows an excellent light is thrown into every part of the interior; it has a gallery on the north and south sides and west end. The living is a perpetual curacy, value not returned. B. West, Esq., patron; and the Rev. Edward M. Wade, is incumbent, for whom, a neat parsonage house adjoining, was erected in 1856, by subscription. Mr. Botham, a builder, purchased 1,530 square yards of land belonging to the Castle field's estate, and built this church on speculation, at a cost of about £3,500. He afterwards became a bankrupt, and the church was sold for the benefit of his creditors for about £2,000, which sum was raised by subscription.

Christ Church, Normanton road, built on the highest point of the town, is a picturesque and elegant structure, from a design by Mr. Habershon, of London. The first stone was laid Friday, July 6, 1838, and was opened in March, 1840. It contains 860 sittings of which 300 are free, for a district containing about 4,000 souls, of which a great portion are the poorer classes; it cost about £3,250, raised by subscription, and £1,000 for the endowment. The length of the body is 85ft., the width 50ft. The tower, which is at the east end, is remarkably handsome, and is surmounted by a spire of good proportions, with lofty pinnacles and flying buttresses. The height of both is 110ft. It is lighted by six lancet shaped windows on each side, and a large window over the entrance door in the tower; on a stone immediately under the window is this inscription—"To the memory of Bishop Ryder." The living is a perpetual curacy, value not returned. The patronage is vested in five trustees. The Rev. Roseingrave Macklin, is the minister.

St. Anne's Chapel of ease to St. Alkmund's, Leyland street, was erected in 1852, by E. S. Chandos Pole, Esq., of Radbourn Hall, at a cost of about £500, and who also pays a clergyman to do the duty, there being no endowment. It is a neat gothic building with sittings for 100 persons, all free.

The Roman Catholic Church of St. Marie's, in Bridge-gate, erected in 1839, is one of the most imposing structures in the town of Derby. It is built of very superior stone, in the early decorated style, as it prevailed in the reign of Henry VI.; the extreme length being 127ft., and the width 45ft. The tower is 100ft. high, ornamented with crockets and other enrichments, and beautified with pinnacles. Above the doors of the tower is a large foliated window, and above it is a canopied niche, in which stands the figure of the Virgin Mary, with the infant Saviour reclining in her arms. The figure which is above six feet in height, is enveloped in folds of drapery of the most graceful form, and possesses extreme beauty both in design and execution. A variety of singular figures ornament the belfry windows above, in which are the four Evangelists bearing scrolls, forming a beautiful finish to the tower. The cost of the edifice was £7,000, exclusive of the ground, which cost above £1,400. The Very Rev. Thomas Canon Sing, the Very Rev. Joseph Canon Daniel, and the Rev. Michael Gogerty, are the priests. A Convent for the Sisters of Charity, was erected on the Nottingham road, in 1846, at a cost of about £10,000. It is a large handsome building, with a frontage of 300 feet, and contains a beautiful chapel with stained glass windows, chaplain's residence, library, reception, and chapter rooms, school and training rooms, refectory, cells, and dormitories, with extensive grounds attached. Mother Mary, Evangelist, Superioress. The Old Catholic Chapel, a small gothic structure situated in Chapel street, was sold some years ago, and is now used as a warehouse.

DISSENTING CHAPELS.

Methodist Chapels.—The Wesleyan Methodists are a numerous and influential body, who date their origin from John and Charles Wesley, who commenced their extraordinary labours in the year 1729. These eminent men devoted their unwearied efforts to the good of mankind, emphatically fulfilling their apostolic mission by preaching to the poor and ignorant.

Wesleyan Methodist Chapel in King street was erected in 1841, on the site of a former chapel built in 1805. It is 90 ft. long and 64ft. wide, with a portico of the Doric Order, and cost upwards of £5,000. It will accommodate about 1,600 persons, and has a spacious burial ground and vaults attached. It is lighted by semi-circular headed windows, and is galleried all round, and contains an excellent organ which cost £800. Underneath are the vestry rooms, and a spacious school room, which will hold about 500 children; the whole being heated by hot water. The liberal sum of £712 17s. 7d. was collected at the opening, and Mr. Turner gave the munificent sum of £1,000 towards the cost of the erection. On each side of the chapel is a neat dwelling-house.

Wesleyan Chapel, Greenhill, is a plain brick building, erected in 1816, at a cost of £1,100, and was afterwards sold to the Wesleyan connexion for £700, since which the chapel has been enlarged, and a gallery erected. It is now capable of holding about 800 hearers. School rooms were erected at the back of the chapel in 1824, and in 1853, a small organ was put up at a cost of £100.

New Connexion Methodists separated from the Wesleyans in 1797. The Rev. Alexander Kilham, their founder, died Dec. 20th, 1798, and was interred in the Hockley chapel, Nottingham, and the tablet erected to his memory, was removed in 1816, to their new chapel, Lower Parliament street.

New Connexion Chapel, in Devonshire street, was built in 1824. It is a plain brick structure, now used for St. Peter's National School for boys. In 1834, they purchased the New Jerusalem Temple, in London road, a good edifice with a stone front and portico, in the Ionic order. It was built in 1819, and afterwards sold for about £1,500. It will accommodate about 800. New schools capable of accommodating 500 children, are about being erected at the rear of the chapel.

Primitive Methodist Chapel, in Abbey street, is a small brick building erected in 1854, at a cost of £950, with accommodation for about 400 persons.

Wesleyan Reform Methodists, who for sometime held their services in the Lecture Hall, at the Mechanics' Institute, removed on the 27th July, 1856, to Brook street chapel, built in 1802 by the Baptists, since which time several alterations have been made, and it will now seat about 700 persons. There are commodious school rooms attached to the chapel.

Independent Chapel, Victoria street, was erected in 1783-4, on the site of the chapel formerly dedicated to St. Thomas à Becket. It is 54 feet long and 48 wide, and was built by Mr. Thomas Wilson. It is neatly pewed and fitted up with galleries, and will hold about 700 hearers. Considerable alterations were made in 1836, at a cost of £1,200 when a good organ was erected. The Rev. James Gawthorn, and the Rev. R. A. Tarlton, are the pastors.

Congregational Chapel, situated on the London road, was erected at a cost of £5,000. This elegant structure is built of brick and stuccoed, the portico being supported by four noble columns of the Corinthian order, and surmounted by a highly enriched pediment. The interior fittings all harmonise with the general character of the building, and an organ has been erected in the gallery over the vestry. The extreme length is 70ft. by 45ft. wide, and was built from the design of Mr. H. J. Stevens, of Derby. The building was commenced in 1841, and it was opened for divine service in April, 1843. The Rev. Hy. Ollard is the present pastor.

Baptist Chapel, St. Mary's gate, was originally a private residence, erected in 1751, by Wm. Osborne, Esq.; it afterwards passed to the Bateman's family, from whom it was bought by the late Thomas Evans, Esq., banker, who resided here till he died. In 1841, the premises were purchased of the late Wm. Evans, Esq. for the sum of £4,000, by the Baptist church assembling in Brook street chapel, and soon after the completion of the purchase, the house was converted into one of the best chapels in the Midland counties. The inside of the building was removed, and the back wall carried further out; but little or no alterations were made in its costly front, which is of brick and stone in the Roman style of architecture, ornamented with Corinthian pilasters and other enrichments. The interior is handsomely fitted up with galleries all round, and will seat 1,200 persons. Underneath are spacious school rooms and vestries, and a residence for the minister adjoins the chapel. The total cost of this beautiful structure, including the site, was upwards of £5,500. The Rev. John Stevenson, M.A., is the pastor.

General Baptist Chapel, Sacheverel street, was erected in 1830, and cost about £1,200. It is neatly pewed, and contains three galleries, and will accommodate about 500 hearers. In 1851, a vestry and new schools were added, at a cost of £200, and in 1853, a new organ was put up at an expense of £70. At the north end is a burial ground. Rev. S. C. Sarjant, pastor.

Particular Baptist Chapel, Agard street, was erected upwards of 160 years ago by Archer Ward, Esq. Since that time it has been enlarged, and will now hold about 500 persons. It is neatly fitted up with galleries and has school rooms attached. The Rev. George Taylor is the pastor.

The New Jerusalem Chapel, in King street, was occupied by the followers of Emanuel Swedenberg, a Swedish nobleman, who died in London in 1772. It was erected by Mr. Robinson, in 1820, and cost about £1,000. The front of the building forms an octagon, and is a small structure, built of stone. It is at present disused, but the congregation now assembles in the chapel, in Babington lane, under the ministry of the Rev. William Mason.

The Unitarian Chapel in Friar gate, erected in 1647, is a plain brick building, richly clothed with ivy, which adds much to its venerable appearance, and makes it the most picturesque chapel in the town, and was the first non-conformist chapel built in Derby. It is well pewed, and has three galleries and an excellent organ. In 1766, Mr. Abraham Crompton left £200 to augment the minister's salary. A sunday school, vestry, and burial-ground, are at the back of the building. The Rev. Joseph Hutton, LL.D., is the minister.

The Friends' Meeting House, in St. Helen's street, was erected in 1808, and has all the neatness and simplicity which characterise that sect. Derby was the first place where they obtained the appellation of Quakers. George Fox, their founder, in his journal says—"Justice Bennett was the first that called us Quakers, because I bid him 'tremble at the word of the Lord.'"

General, or Old Cemetery is situated on the New Uttoxeter road. It was opened in March, 1843, and contains about five acres of ground, which has been tastefully laid out and fenced, at a cost of about £3,400. On the west side of the entrance is the chapel, a handsome stone building in the gothic style of architecture. The keeper, (David Mellor) occupies the lodge on the east side of the entrance.

The New Cemetery, situated on the Nottingham road, about two miles east from the town, and is about 32 acres in extent; and the grounds are tastefully laid out with shrubs and evergreens. On each side the entrance is a neat chapel built of stone. Eight acres are apportioned for the use of the Dissenters, and the remainder for those of the established church. There is no resident chaplain, but the clergy of the town officiate alternately. George Palmer is the resident superintendent. Both the above places are now under the management of the "Derby Burial Board"; which was formed in 1853, under the acts of Parliament, 15 & 16 vic., cap. 85, and 16 & 17 vic., cap. 134. The new cemetery was opened on May 1st, 1855, when the burials in the parish church yards were discontinued, and the old cemetery was purchased from the shareholders, in July, 1854, for £4,400; but parties having graves or vaults there may still use them; and parties wishing to purchase vaults or graves may do so, but no common interments, nor interments within 20 feet of the boundary walls are allowed to take place. The total outlay by the Board, when the new cemetery is completed, will be about £20,000. The Offices are at 16½, Wardwick, and the following are the names of the officials: Wm. Baker, Esq., chairman; Rev. E. H. Abney, vice-chairman; Fred. Baker, Esq., solicitor; and Mr. John Walker, clerk.

RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS.

The institutions which have for their object the promotion of Christian knowledge, are as numerous and as liberally supported at Derby as in any other place of the same importance; the members of the church and the various sectarian communities each subscribe to their respective Bible, Missionary, and Tract societies. The depository of the Derby and Derbyshire Tract society, is at Messrs. Wilkins, St. Peter's street and Queen street, and Mr. Wm. Wilkins is secretary to the Derby benevolent society, which has for its object the relieving the sick and afflicted poor in the town of Derby; it was established in 1814, is under the management of a president, five vice presidents, a committee of twenty-one gentlemen, a treasurer, secretary, with twenty-three male, and eight female visitors. Any person subscribing 2s. 6d. annually becomes a member, and has the privilege of recommending one object for relief, for 5s., two, &c. The town is divided into eight districts, and two or more visitors appointed to each. The committee meet the first Thursday in every month, at seven in the evening, at the Town Hall. William Turner Shaw, Esq., treasurer.

An Auxiliary Bible Society for the town and county was established in 1812, managed by a committee, five of whom are competent to act; the depository is at Mr. Wm. Rowbottom's, 13, Iron gate. The committee hold meetings at the depository, on the second Wednesday in March, June, September, and December, and a general meeting annually. Rev. W. F. Wilkinson, Rev. H. Ollard, and Mr. W. Ratcliff, are secretaries.

In this class stands Sunday Schools, of which useful institutions Derby availed itself as early as most places, and every place of worship, except the Friends, have shewn an equal anxiety for their promotion. The Sunday scholars attending the established churches, are about 2,700. Those attending the Catholic church, 380; and those attending the different chapels, about 3,000; making a grand total of 6,080, besides those attending the National, Lancasterian, and British schools. The importance of Sunday schools is now universally acknowledged. Mr. Raikes, of Gloucester, is generally considered as the founder of Sunday schools, which Blackner, of Nottingham, says were first introduced about the year 1778, by John Moore, a frame-work knitter, of Leicester, and Wm. Hallam, a native of Kirton, in Nottinghamshire, but then a schoolmaster, at Monyash, in the Peak of Derbyshire, both of whom taught gratis on the Sabbath, at least two years before Mr. Raikes commenced his labours for the promotion of these useful institutions, of which, though not the original inventor, he was the earliest and most active patron. Since which Infant Schools, conducted on the ingenious system introduced by Messrs. Wilderspin and Wilson, by which children betwixt the ages of two and six years, under a pleasing interchange of exercise, amusement, and instruction, experience a gradual development of their bodily and mental powers, and are kept during the day from that danger and neglect to which so many of the young children of the poor are exposed, whilst their parents are engaged in their respective avocations, have a claim as well as all other Christian charity schools, to be ranked amongst religious institutions, and within the last few years, Ragged Schools have been established for the purpose of reclaiming that class of vagrant children who abound in every large town.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Besides the numerous Sunday Schools, ample provision is made by the benevolent inhabitants of Derby, for the education of those poor children who can attend during six days of the week. During the last quarter of a century many National schools have been erected, including Infant schools, where great numbers of children are receiving daily instruction. For these charitable and intellectual uses, many thousand pounds have been employed. Many now filling useful situations in society, have received their education at these schools, and have great cause to be thankful. Too much cannot be said in their recommendation; nor should we forget the praise due to those individuals who devote their time and talents in instructing the children of their poorer neighbours. Those parents who cannot afford to pay for the education of their children, would be blameable indeed if they did not embrace the opportunities thus afforded, and where their children will be instructed in their duty towards God and their neighbour. The following descriptive list will, we hope, give every necessary particular of the charity schools, and shew the average attendance at each.

Grammar School, St. Peter's church yard.—Queen Mary, by charter dated 21st May, in first year of her reign, 1544, gave and granted to the bailiffs and burgesses, and their successors for ever, divers messuages, lands, &c., in that town and elsewhere in the county of Derby, late the possession of Derley Abbey, subject to certain yearly payments therein mentioned; and her Majesty ordained that thenceforward there should be one free Grammar School for the instruction and education of boys in the said town of Derby, to be for ever supported by the bailiffs and burgesses of that town, and that they should pay for ever to the master out of the revenues thereby granted the sum of £13 6s. 8d. Until the year 1813 there was also an usher of this school, with a yearly salary of £20 paid by the corporation, but the person who held that office having died in that year, and the number of boys in the school being very small (only two) no successor was appointed. It has been considered that all the payments made by them beyond the annual sum of £13 6s. 8d. directed by the charter have been voluntary on their part, however it appears that Jane Walton, by her will, dated 23rd November, 1605, gave £40 to the bailiffs and common council of Derby, to be employed by them to the best relief of the head master and usher, so as the stock might continue for that use for ever. In addition to the above, an annual sum of £20 is paid by the master and fellows of Emanuel College, Cambridge, towards the support of this school in respect of Francis Ash's charity, of which the trust is vested in that College, therefore does not fall under the scope of the commissioners. All the sons of burgesses of Derby, are considered as being entitled to gratuitous instruction in the classics at this school. At the time of the investigation there were only two boys in the school; which appears to have been formerly in considerable repute both for boarders and day scholars, and it is much to be regretted that so little advantage is derived from this establishment. However, it has of late considerably improved, there being now five scholars on the foundation, and about fifty boarders and day pupils. Mr. John Hudson, is head master, and Rev. Geo. T. Hutchinson, second master.

School of Art, St. Peter's street, established 1853. The object of this institution is to provide instruction in Drawing of the highest order, and on the most approved principles; and to render such instruction accessible to all classes of the public. Mr. A. O. Deacon is the master; and Mr. Gresley, assistant master.

Diocesan School, Friargate, was opened in 1842, erected at the cost of £1,500, towards which the late Thomas Cox, Esq., contributed £1,000 towards the building, and £100 towards the furnishing; it is in the Elizabethan style from a design of Mr. H. J. Stevens; the school room is 52ft. long, 30ft. wide, and 20ft. high, with entrance hall, committee rooms, &c.; Mr. Philip Edward Hammond, head master; and Mr. W. Moffit, second master. Sixty scholars attend; the terms for instruction are £5 per annum.

Diocesan Institution for training Schoolmistresses, situated in Uttoxeter New Road, is a handsome Elizabethan building of brick, with stone mullions, erected in 1851, at a cost of above £6,000, raised by subscriptions and by grants from the Committee of Council on Education, and the National society. It comprises dormitories and class rooms for 40 students; separate rooms for the superintendent, and an efficient staff of teachers, a large dining room, excellent kitchens, and servants' apartments. The premises and play-ground cover about two acres of land. In 1854, a large practising school and class room were added, at an expense of about £800. This institution belongs to the established church, and its object is to educate and train young women of character and capability, to become efficient schoolmistresses. In 1856 it had its full number of students, and had then sent out upwards of 50 trained schoolmistresses; Mrs. Dunn, superintendent; Rev. J. Latham, chaplain and secretary.

Trinity School, in Liversage street, adjoins Trinity Church yard. It is a neat brick building, and with the land and furnishing cost about £1,000. Mr. Jacob and Mrs. Mary Mayer, are the master and mistress. The average attendance is, 300 boys and 420 girls, who pay 3d. per week each, or, if two from one family, 2½d.

Bell's principles. In 1817, the school then in Bridge street, was consumed by fire and all the books burnt. The supporters, however, of the institution purchased a mill in Bold lane, for the sum of £700, where it continued to be held until 1842, when it was removed to Curzon street, where the present handsome building of brick and stone in the Tudor style had been erected. The school contains a large room on the ground floor for boys, 63ft. by 30ft. with a convenient room adjoining. The upper floor is of the same dimensions and appropriated to the girls. There are now 200 boys and 150 girls, who receive instruction. Mr. Henry Cummins, is the master, with a salary of £60 a year, and 1d. per week from each of the scholars. Miss Anna Bowmer, is the mistress.

National School, Traffic street, (St. Peter's) was erected in 1829, by the Rev. Robert Simpson, author of an elaborate history of the town of Derby. The cost of the building was £350. This school had been closed for some time, but was re-opened in April, 1856, for girls only, at which time there were 85 on the books, and the average attendance was 55; Miss Mary Athow, mistress.

The Boys' School in Devonshire street, was erected in 1824, by the New Connexion methodists, who now occupy a chapel on the London road. It is a plain brick building, and will accommodate about 160 scholars, the average attendance is 120; Mr. John Bulman, is the master.

National Schools, (All Saints) for boys, girls, and infants, situate between St. Mary's gate, and Walker lane, were erected in 1851, at a cost of £1,600, including the site, which was given by the late Wm. Evans, Esq., a grant of £311 was received from the Privy Council, and £100 from the National School Society; the remainder of the money was raised by voluntary donations. It is a good brick building, capable of giving accommodation to 360 children; the average attendance is about 200; Mr. and Mrs. Ryder, master and mistress; and Miss A. Collinson, infant mistress.

National School, Burton road, (Christ Church) for boys and girls, was erected in in 1851, at a cost of £1,400, including a residence for the master, raised by subscriptions and a grant from government of £250, and one from the National society of £80. It is a substantial brick building, capable of accommodating 350 scholars, the average attendance is 120 boys, and 100 girls; Mr. Chas. Millington, is the master; and Miss Esther M. Borlindor, mistress.

National School, Edward street, (St. Alkmund's) for boys and girls, a substantial brick building, erected in 1852, average attendance of boys, 120; and girls, 140; Mr. John Paton, master; and Miss Ruth Fletcher, mistress.

Derby British School for boys, girls, and infants, is situated in Orchard street, and was originally under the system taught by Mr. Joseph Lancaster, which was first introduced into Derby 1812, for which purpose part of a mill in Full street, was taken on a short lease, on the expiration of which the spacious school rooms were built in Orchard street, at a cost of £2,160. In 1844, an additional room was built for the girls and infants, at a cost of £2,000, previous to which, they were taught in a good building in Chapel street, formerly used as a catholic chapel. The boys' room measures 72ft. long by 35ft. wide, and the girls' room, 75ft. long by 31ft. wide; the average attendance of scholars, is 250, who pay from 2d. to 3d. per week each; Mr. Alfred Jones, is the master, and Miss Jane Belcher, mistress.

Independents' School for boys, is held under the chapel, in Victoria street, the number of pupils is small; Mr. T. A. Barker, master.

Catholic School, Edward street, a good brick building, erected in 1852, the ground floor of which is occupied as the boy's school room, and the upper floor is used for lectures, tea parties, &c., attached to which is an extensive library, of the most ancient and modern writers. There are two classifications of the scholars, the first pay 2d. per week each, and the average attendance is about 90 scholars. The second pay 1d. per week each, and the average attendance is about 60; Mr. James Murphy, master.

Ragged Schools, Back Parker street, were established in 1849, for the purpose of reclaiming that class of idle, dirty, vagrant children, who abound in every large town, and who are too destitute and naked to seek admission into the parochial schools, and who are too frequently utterly neglected by their parents, as to mental or moral culture. It is managed by a committee, to whom, the Rev. Edward W. Foley, and Captain Dixon, are the secretaries. The average weekly attendance is about 80; Mr. Thos. and Mrs. Holder, master and mistress.

Binns, master, and Miss Mary Riley, mistress.

Amount of Charitable Funds.—The total revenue derived from charities connected with this borough at the time of the Commissioners' Inquiries in 1827 and 1834, was nearly £2,000 per annum, besides large sums lent out on bonds to industrious poor, in portions according to the instructions of the donors.

ALMS HOUSES.

Countess of Shrewsbury's Alms House, Full street.—Elizabeth, Countess Dowager of Shrewsbury, by indenture bearing date 1st March, 1599, granted to the warden, brethren and sisters of an alms house at Derby, (founded by the said Countess under letters-patent, for eight poor men and four poor women, bearing date 3rd of March, in the 39th year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth), an annual rent of £100, to be issuing out of the manor of Little Longstone, in the county of Derby. After appropriating parts of the said rents to the said poor persons of the alms house, she directed that 40s. thereof should be paid to the minister or curate of All Saints, being a preacher; or, in default thereof, to the minister or curate of any other of the churches in Derby, being a preacher, for his pains to visit and see the said alms houses, and the poor there, to be kept in good order, according to the rules and orders. It appeared to the commissioners that the power of visitation thus given by the foundress to the minister of All Saints, excluded this alms house from their investigation. By the same deed the said Countess also gave, out of the said rents, to five score of the other poor of Derby, 12d. each, to be yearly distributed on Good Friday, by the discretion of the bailiffs or first magistrates, and of all ministers or curates of the three parishes, of the said town. The Duke of Devonshire's agent pays to the mayor £5 annually, to be distributed agreeable to the donor's intention. The original building, which was of stone, was taken down, and the present one erected about the year 1777, by the Duke of Devonshire. Before his death he gave an additional endowment of £50 per annum. The additional payment took place at Lady-day, 1811. Each of the alms people now receives £2 13s. 4d. quarterly, and 20s. each, per annum, for a gown.

Wilmot's Alms Houses, Bridge gate.—Robert Wilmot, the elder, of Chaddesden, by will dated July, 1638, gave to his son, Edward Wilmot, and his heirs, all the tithes of corn, grain, and hay arising within the limits of the manor of Denby, in the county of Derby; and appointed that his said son and heirs should, out of the rents and profits thereof, pay the several sums of 12d. weekly, from his decease, to 10 poor people, viz., six poor men and four poor women, of good and honest life, by him already placed in ten little houses situate in Bridge gate, Derby, which houses he had long since built, &c.; and he appointed that when any of the said poor people should die, his said son and his heirs should within a month appoint others in their room, in such manner that there should not be more than six poor men and four women; and he appointed that every year at Christmas a black gown faced with red, of the like cloth and manner as the poor people then in the said houses used to wear, or otherwise 10s. to every one of them to buy such gown; and also should provide and give to such poor men at the end of every two years a red cap of about 2s. a-piece, similar to the caps then worn by them, and should also provide yearly, at Christmas, 30 yards of linen cloth, at 12d. the yard, to be distributed amongst the said 10 poor people, to make them shirts and smocks; and should also provide a dinner yearly, at Christmas, for the said poor, or otherwise allow each of them 8d. for the same; and he further appointed that his said son and heirs should, for ever, out of the rents and profits of the said tithes, repair the said houses as often as need be. They were repaired A.D. 1814, at an expense of more than £250, by Sir Robert Wilmot, of Chaddesden. By an award, bearing date 25th March, 1729, under the hands and seals of two of the commissioners of charitable uses, appointed under the great seal, dated 16th February, 1727, it appeared that some irregularities in the appointments to these alms houses had taken place, but which were afterwards rectified. It also appeared that Robert Wilmot of Osmaston paid £13 yearly to the Derby alms houses, yet was not allowed to inspect them, but was ordered by this award that he should be allowed to inspect the payments, that he might be satisfied the money he paid was not misapplied. Each of the ten alms people receives 1s. a week, 6s. 6d. a quarter, and 13s. 8d. each at Christmas. The commissioners of 1827, applied to the agents of Sir Robert Wilmot of Osmaston, but say—"We have not been able to ascertain the existence of any document shewing in respect of what particular lands this payment is made." There is a garden behind the alms houses, containing about one rood, divided amongst the alms people.

LARGE'S HOSPITAL, Friar gate.—Edward Large, of Derby, gent., by his will, dated 3rd June, 1709, devised all his lands and tenements to John Curzon, son and heir-apparent of Sir Nathaniel Curzon, of Kedleston, Bart., and two others, and their heirs, in default of issue of him the said Edward Large, as for and concerning his estate in and about a place called the Nun's green, in Derby, being of about the yearly value of £50, in trust, that they and the survivors, &c., should, out of the rents and profits thereof, upon a croft near Nun's green, erect and build five small alms houses for the habitation of five poor parsons' or vicars' widows, for ever; the same to be elected, chosen, and put in, (after the costs and charges in building the same should be discharged out of the rents and profits of the said estates), by the choice and election of his said trustees; and that the rents and profits of his said estates should be equally divided amongst such five widows for their support and livelihood for ever.

By indenture, bearing date 27th October, 1710, made between Benjamin Parker, and Thomasin his wife, (late Thomasin Large, widow of the above-named Edward Large), of the one part; and the said John Curzon, Robert Wilmot, and Robert Holden, of the other part; reciting that the said Edward Large had, after his marriage, settled by indenture amongst other things on his said wife, a close in or near the Nun's green, and near to a field there called the White Cross Field, containing by estimation seven acres; and stating that the will of the said Edward Large could not be so effectually performed without the close, &c.; the said Benjamin Parker and Thomasin, his wife, granted and surrendered to John Curzon, Robert Wilmot and Robert Holden, all their estate and interest in the said close.

An exchange of part of the lands took place in 1823, in consequence of a site being required for a new gaol for the county of Derby, for which part of this land near Nun's green was well adapted, and it was considered advantageous to the charity to appropriate six acres to this purpose, the county agreeing to take the same after the rate of £400 per acre, making in the whole £2,400. But as the trustees had no power to sell this land, it was agreed that it should be exchanged, under the 1st and 2nd Geo. IV., for an estate of sufficient value to be provided for that purpose; and an estate at Sandiacre, belonging to Mr. John Thraves, was selected, and for which he fixed the price of £2,650; in consequence, two other parcels of the charity land were disposed of, one containing 2,945 square yards to Miss Prime, after the rate of 2s. 9d. per yard; and the others, containing 482 square yards, to Mr. Edward Ward, after the rate of 4s. 6d. per yard; which, together with the six acres intended for the use of the Gaol, were conveyed by the deed of 1823 to Mr. Thraves in exchange for his estate. It was agreed that the estate so exchanged should be let to Mr. Thraves, at a rent to be fixed by two surveyors, and which was so fixed at £80 per annum, and that £100 should be laid out by the trustees in repairing a barn and inclosing a farm yard thereon, and in draining the land and repairing the fences, and the amount, including £5 for the expense of the valuation was paid, whereby the balance in favour of the charity was reduced to £177 7s. 1d., and that sum was placed in the bank of Messrs. Smith & Co., Derby.

By indenture, bearing date 6th August, 1825, 4A. 2R. 26P. of the land near Nun's green, valued at £500 per acre, amounting in the whole to £2,331 8s. 0d. were conveyed to William Turner, of Derby, mercer, and his trustee, William Shaw, and their heirs, for several closes in Sandiacre, containing together 31A. 2R. 25P., purchased by Mr. Turner for £2,050, for the purpose of this exchange; by which transaction a balance of £194 11s. 4d. remained in favour of the charity; and of which the expenses amounted to £283 0s. 6d. which it was agreed should be paid in equal moieties; one moiety thereof being reduced from the above balance, left an ultimate balance of £75 11s. 1d. in favour of the charity, which was added to the former balance in the bank of Messrs. Smith and Co., the whole amounting to £252 18s. 2d. The land so received was let to John Abbot, who had previously occupied it as yearly tenant at £56 per annum, on the valuation of a surveyor. It has also been considered expedient to let parts of the land on building leases, and with this view two roads leading over the property, intended to be used as streets, were made in 1819. When these building lots were set out, a small addition was made to the garden of the hospital.

Mary Broom, by her will bearing date the 6th of April, 1721, devised as follows: "I leave to my brother Nathaniel Doubting, all my land free from debt for his life, and after his death to that hospital on Nun's green, where I now live in Derby, which was left by Mr. Edward Large, for parson's widows, and after my brother's death, I leave my land to the care of the same trustees which Mr. Large left for that hospital." It appears that in 1800 the land-tax charged on the lands of the whole of this hospital was redeemed, and that for this purpose a house and orchard at Alvaston, part of the property devised by Mary Broom which was under lease to John Sherwin, was sold to him for £160, leaving a balance in favour of the charity of £36 12s. 8½d., carried to the general account of the charity by Mr. Richard Murphy, who at that time managed the property for Mr. Robert Holden, until 1817, when new trustees were appointed. The rest of the land at Alvaston given by Mary Broom, containing 7A. 1R. 34P. is let to a yearly tenant for £18.

The whole rental of all the property now belonging to the charity, except the site of the hospital and garden belonging to it, amounts to £205 16s. 6d., of which the lands near Nun's green, are subject to a quit rent payable to the corporation of Derby, of 19s. 4d. per annum.

The Alms Houses, a substantial brick building with stone dressing and a pedimented front, consist of five dwellings under one roof, with a washhouse at one end thereof, a small court in front and a garden behind, divided amongst the inmates.

The effect of a codicil of the will of Robert Holden, the surviving original trustee, recited in the trust deed of 1817, has been to separate the patronage of the hospital from the legal estate in the trust land; but it may be doubted whether he was authorised to make this separation, as Mr. Large, the founder of the charity, although he made no provision for the appointment of new trustees, directed that the widows should be elected by his "trustees, or by two of them," intending, as it appears to us, that such election should be in the discretion of two of the trustees of the charity at the least. Until Michaelmas, 1817, half yearly rentals and accounts were made out by Mr. Murphy, and in January, 1818, a balance of £62 13s. 9d. was paid over by him, to Mr. Robt. Holden, the acting trustee, (1827), of which sum £20 15s. was applied in defraying the expenses of the trust deed. From 1818 to 1821 inclusive, the rents were received by Mr. Holden's bailiff, who, during that period made the payments to the widows in the hospital (being five in number, except in 1819, when there appears to have been four only) of £15 each half-yearly, and by whose accounts it appears he superintended the making the new roads over the property, soughing, fencing, &c., by which it appears that Mr. Holden, at Michaelmas, 1821, had expended £224 1s. 7d., more than he had received. From 1821 to the present time (1827), no account has been kept, for a loss of income had been sustained by the failure of the garden rents, and by a part of the land being unoccupied, &c.; that he has since 1821, continued the allowance of £15 half yearly to each of the widows, except in 1822, when it was reduced to £13, and that he had made various other payments on account of the charities. It would be much more satisfactory if regular accounts had been kept, and we strongly recommend that in future the accounts should be entered in a book, and audited annually, by the trustees, on a day to be appointed for that purpose. There seems however, to be no doubt, that Mr. Holden's expenditure has exceeded his receipts. It is hoped that the before-named balance remaining in the bank of Messrs. Smith and Co. will be sufficient to defray the expense of the repairs of the hospital, which are now required. The whole of the future clear rents of the estates, subject to deductions for the usual annual outgoings, and for future repairs, &c. ought, in conformity with the directions of the founder, to be divided equally amongst the five inmates of the hospital.

The above recommendations are now carried into effect. The accounts are entered in a book kept for that purpose, and are audited at a meeting of the trustees annually held at the offices of Messrs. J. and J. Simpson, the solicitors to the charity.

Liversage Alms Houses, London road, (see St. Peter's parish,) were erected in 1836, out of the Liversage estate, at a cost of £3,000. They consist of eighteen brick houses, in the Gothic style of architecture, each house having a front room, small kitchen, pantry, two bed rooms, and closet, with gardens at the back, and a grass lawn in front. If a man and his wife occupy a house, they receive 4s. per week, and one ton of coals annually. If two widows occupy one house, each receives 4s. per week and the ton of coals, and the gratuity of a cloak or coat or another ton of coals. Since the commissioners' report in 1826, and from a petition agreed upon at a meeting in St. Peter's, held 6th July, 1826, to be presented to the court of Chancery for the better regulation of this charity, an expence has been incurred in the suit which cost £2,781 7s., and a scheme was approved by the court which is now acted upon by the charity commissioners. Under this scheme the rents are collected by Mr. John Cordon, who is agent to the vicar, and secretary to the estate, by him paid over to the account of the vicar and churchwardens of St. Peter, into the bank of Messrs. Smith, who have now a considerable balance in their hands. The vicar and churchwardens pay the alms people and other expenses, and appoint the alms people when any vacancy occurs. There are now in the alms houses 11 men and 19 women, who receive 4s. each, weekly, and two tons of coals annually for each house, but no cloak or coat. There are also 12 outpensioners, who each receive 4s. weekly. The Rev Wm. Hope, of St. Peter's, is lecturer, for which service he receives £35, and Mr. Burrows, surgeon, with a salary of £13 a year, out of the charity estate. The yearly rental of the estate in 1856 was £800, and as the leases expire will be further augmented.

BENEFACTIONS IN THE BOROUGH OF DERBY.

Sir Thomas White's Charity.—The borough of Derby is entitled to a portion of this charity, founded in 1566, in respect of which sums are paid by the corporation of Bristol, to various cities and towns, to be employed in loans to poor men, but of this the commissioners had no power of investigation.

The Rev. William Sale, by will dated 14th July, 1588, gave to the town of Derby, £20, to the use of four poor artificers thereof, £5 a-piece, the same poor men to be named by the magistrates of the said town, to enjoy the same for four years, giving good security for the repayment thereof, and so to continue for ever.

The Rev. John Walton, by will dated 19th May, 1603, gave £100 to be lent to ten poor honest tradesmen, within the borough of Derby, to be named by the bailiffs and common council of the said borough, to every man £10 for four years, gratis, every man putting in such security as the bailiffs, &c. shall take for re-payment at the four years' end, to be lent to ten others, and so from four years to four years for ever.

William Botham, by will dated 7th February, 1603, gave to the bailiffs of the borough of Derby, and their successors, £100 to be put forth to five poor men, to every one of them £20, to employed in clothing only, taking sufficient sureties for re-payment of the same at the end of the said six years, and then to be put out again in like sort for six years, without any consideration to be taken for the same.

Richard Croshaw, of London, Esq., by deed bearing date 27th July, 1630, of the one part, and the bailiffs and burgesses of the borough of Derby on the other part, agreed that in consideration of £200 given by the said Richard Croshaw, covenanted that they and their successors should for ever lend to ten honest diligent poor tradesmen, free burgesses of the borough, to every one of them £20 for three years, without any consideration for the same, so as good security should be first given to the bailiffs and burgesses, and at the end of the said three years, they should lend the said several sums of £20 to ten such other poor tradesmen, &c., for three years; or if it should appear that any of those who had £20 for the last three years had more need than others, that they might continue on sufficient security the said loans in the hands of such burgesses for three years longer. And the bailiffs and burgesses covenanted to preserve the said stock of £200 to be employed as aforesaid.

The said Richard Croshaw, by his will dated 26th April, 1631, gave the bailiffs and burgesses of Derby £1,250, to the intent that they and their successors should pay £20 yearly for ever, to an able and efficient preacher, to read a weekly lecture every Friday, in the forenoon, in the parish church of All-hallows, in Derby; and should pay £15 yearly for ever, for, and towards the relief of seven poor ancient inhabitants of the said town, such as had lived in good fame and reputation, and had been laborious in their calling, to be distributed to them weekly, every Sunday, in the forenoon, after divine service, in the parish church of All-hallows, viz., fourpence in good household bread, twopence in good wholesome cheese, and threepence in money. And he directed that such poor as should be partakers one week, should not (except there should be great necessity) be partakers the week following, but that the same should be distributed to other poor of the said town, at the discretion of the said bailiffs and burgesses; and to the further intent that the said bailiffs and burgesses, &c., should pay £28 yearly, for ever, towards the relief of eight poor ancient inhabitants of the towns of Markeaton and Mackworth, in the said county of Derby, such as had lived in good fame, &c., to be distributed to them weekly, every Sunday forenoon, after divine service, at the parish church of Mackworth, viz., one shilling and four pence in bread and money, such poor to be nominated and chosen at the discretion of the parsons, churchwardens, and four or six more of the chiefest inhabitants of the said parishes, and he directed that such poor as should be partakers of that his gift, should not be allowed without great necessity to participate thereof the week following, but that it should be distributed to other poor of the said towns. And that such remainder of his said several gifts should be given to the clerks and sextons of the said several places.

And the said Richard Croshaw, by his said will, gave to the said bailiffs, &c. £100 more, upon condition that they and their successors for the time being, should give security by the common seal of their corporation, to his executors, that the same money should remain for a stock for ever, to be lent from three years to three years, unto six, eight, or ten honest poor householders and tradesmen, of good fame and reputation, dwellers in the said towns of Markeaton and Mackworth, upon sufficient security to be given to the bailiffs, &c., for the re-payment thereof at the end of three years, and he directed that such poor householders should yearly, from time to time, pay for the same amongst them all, 40s., yearly, which should be given and distributed towards the relief of the poorest sort of inhabitants of the said two towns, and that such poor householders and tradesmen to whom the £100 was to be lent, should from time to time be nominated and chosen by six, eight, or more of the chief inhabitants of the said towns, and that security be given for the said money, and that the said 40s. yearly might be distributed at the discretion of the said chief inhabitants.

The bailiffs and burgesses of Derby surrendered their charter to King Charles I., and were again incorporated (1638) by the name of the mayor and burgesses of the borough of Derby; and it is recited that in the month of March, 17th of Charles I., the said mayor and burgesses laid out £1,000, part of the said £1,250, in the purchase of several closes, parcel of certain ground called Rowditches, in the parish of Mackworth; and reciting that the said mayor and burgesses, in September, 1646, laid out £120 more of the said £1,250, in the purchase of a close called Horse-close, parcel of the said Rowditches; and also a close in Little Chester, (called Botham's), from the income of which £63 is distributed, in accordance with Richard Croshaw, Esq's. will.

It appears for a long time to have been the custom to distribute in bread only, both at Derby and Mackworth, the amount which the donor directed to be given partly in bread, and partly in cheese. The loaves provided for the town of Derby are sent every Sunday to All Saints' church, where they are distributed before morning service by the parish-clerk, together with the weekly allowances of money, to seven poor persons of one of the five parishes of Derby, according to a rotation of five weeks; of which the distribution for two weeks is appropriated to the parish of All Saints', one week to St. Alkmund and St. Michael, one week to St. Peter's, and one to St. Werburgh's; the churchwardens of each of the parishes (except All Saints') sending in turn to the clerk, a list of the persons to whom the distribution is to be made. The £100 given by Mr. Croshaw's will to be lent in sums of £10 each, to poor householders of Mackworth and Markeaton, at £2 per cent. interest, does not appear to have been so lent, and the interest is given in equal moieties to the two parishes.

Christiana, Countess of Devonshire, by a codicil to her will, in 1674, gave to the poor of the town of Derby, £100. In an old account belonging to the parish of All Saints', it is stated that £100 was given, to raise £6 per annum for ever, to be yearly distributed among the poor of the borough of Derby, on the 20th of June. A sum of £420 was given by the same Countess's will, for the purchase of lands, the yearly profits of which she directed to be disposed of in placing and binding out apprentices, poor children born in the town of Derby, and the town of Edensor, in this county.

It is stated in the same book, that Anthony Glossop gave £20 to raise 30s. per annum, for ever, for the use of the poor of this borough, payable on Good Friday. It is also stated in the same book, that Edward Osborne gave 50s. yearly, issuing out of Chester green, to the poor of the borough. The corporation are in possession of lands in the neighbourhood of Chester green. We have not found the instruments by which this and the preceding donations were given, but the respective sums are paid by the corporation.

Jane Walton, whose legacy for the relief of the master and usher of the Grammar school, as already been noticed, by her will, 1605, gave £40 to the bailiffs and common council of Derby, and directed that the benefit that might arise by the employment thereof, should be given to the poor within the borough of Derby, on Christmas eve and Good Friday, at the discretion of the bailiffs and common council, for ever. The annual sum of £3 appears for a great length of time paid by the corporation as the interest of this charity.

William Walthall, by his will, bearing date 16th July, 1608, gave to the bailiffs, brotherhood, and commonality, of the town of Derby, £100, to be lent to four poor young men, from five years to five years, occupiers and traders in that town, by £25 a-piece, putting in two good sureties besides the principal; and the principal to pay 20s. every year, being £4 in the whole for the year, to be distributed yearly to the poor of Derby, for ever. This sum appears to have been lent by the corporation from 1630 to 1644, but not since, and the interest, at four per cent, is now paid by the corporation. Of the above charities, All Saints' receives in the proportion of two parts, St. Alkmund and St. Michael one part, and St. Peter and St. Werburgh one part each.

By indentures, bearing date 14th July, 1619, reciting that Richard Kilby had given to the bailiffs and burgesses of Derby, £20, to the intent that they and their successors should yearly, on the Friday before Easter, distribute 20s. amongst such of the poorest persons of the parish of All Saints' as demand the same, as by the discretion of the minister and churchwardens should be thought meet, &c.

Francis Ash, by his will, dated 19th of June, 1657, reciting that he had by deed, bearing date 6th of September, 1652, settled upon Sir John Wollaston, Knight, and others, as feoffees in trust for the Goldsmith's company, certain messuages, &c., laying betwixt Shoe lane and Fetter lane, in the parish of St. Bride, London, being of the clear yearly value of of £63; upon trust that they should, amongst other sums, pay to the mayor and aldermen of the town of Derby, or such other person as they should appoint, £20 yearly, for ever; to be by the said mayor and aldermen disposed of to such uses as by his said will should be directed;—declared his will to be that the said mayor and aldermen should pay to the minister of St. Werburgh, in the town of Derby, £10 yearly for ever; and to the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, £3 yearly, for ever; to be by the minister, churchwardens, and overseers distributed to the most needy and honest poor of the said parish, half on the 25th of March, and half on the 24th December, or within six days before each of those days; and that the remaining £7 of the £20 should be disposed of by the said mayor and aldermen, for the putting forth apprentices one or two children yearly, to some honest man of good calling, &c. He also directed that if by any accident the rents and profits should fall short of the sum of £49 yearly, (the sum total by him directed to be paid, &c.) in such case the said feoffees should abate upon every payment proportionably, as well to the town of Derby as all others. It appears from the corporation accounts, that for many years previous to 1809, the annual sum of £10 12s. 6d. only, was received in respect of this charity. This abatement is understood to have been occasioned by a loss from fire; but in that year, the Rev. Edwin Unwin, the vicar of St. Werburgh, made an application to the Goldsmiths' company, in consequence of which, the full annual sum of £20 has since been received from the company by the corporation. But it appears the full sums for apprentice fees, and for the poor, had not been expended from 1806 to 1825; in the former case a balance of £104 2s. 0d. remained in the hands of the corporation; and of the latter, only £1 11s. 10½d. had been annually paid. The commissioners suggested to the corporation the necessity that both should be fully made up.

Elizabeth, Countess Dowager of Shrewsbury, by indenture, dated 1st March, 1599. —(See Alms Houses.)

George Linacre, by his will, bearing date 27th September, 1703, gave his messuage and lands in Findern, in the county of Derby, after the death of Elizabeth Cadman, to whom he gave a life interest therein, to Samuel Goodwin and Thomas Goodwin and their heirs, in trust that they, and the survivor of them, and his heirs and assigns, together with the mayor of the borough of Derby, the minister of All Saints', and the vicar of St. Werburgh's for the time being, or the greater number of them, should yearly dispose of the rents and profits of the premises, for the putting forth of two poor boys, being the sons of some honest, poor inhabitants of the town of Derby, being of the principles of the Church of England, apprentices to some trade; the said boys to be chosen and put forth to such masters as the said trustees and the survivor, his heirs and assigns, the said mayor, minister and vicar, or the greater number of them, should think meet. But he directed that the trustees, and the survivor and his heirs, should first satisfy themselves all charges which they might be put to in reparation of the buildings standing upon the premises, or touching the execution of the trust.

By indentures of lease and release, bearing date the 18th and 19th July, 1822, Daniel Parker Coke, Esq., as the only son and heir-at-law of Matilda Coke, wife of Thomas Coke, Esq., and the only daughter and heiress of Thomas Goodwin, Esq., who was the surviving trustee named in the will of George Linacre, at the request of the Rev. Henry Lowe, mayor of Derby, the Rev. Charles Stead Hope, minister of All Saints', and the Rev. Edwin Unwin, vicar of St. Werburgh's, conveyed to Sir Robert Wilmot, Bart., Bache Heathcote, Esq., Francis Mundy, Esq., and Godfrey Meynell, Esq., and their heirs, the trust premises at Findern, devised by the will of the said George Linacre, by the description of a messuage, outbuildings, and two small gardens; and the closes called the Old-field, in two parts, containing 6A. 1R. 32P., the Fartleborough close, containing 3A. 0R. 18P., the Long Pingle, containing 1A. 2R. 9P., and a barn and plot of land, No. 45, in the plan annexed to the award of the commissioners, for inclosing the open grounds in Findern, containing 8A. 3R. 2P., allotted to the trustees of the said George Linacre. The messuage, outbuildings, and gardens mentioned in that deed, are now let from year to year, to Joseph Watson, of Findern aforesaid, sadler, at a rental of £7 10s. 0d. per annum, and the remainder of the trust property is let in the like manner, to Thomas Milnes, of Findern, farmer, at a rental of £38 8s. 0d. per annum.

The proceeds arising from this estate are now annually applied in the apprenticing of three boys, being the sons of honest poor inhabitants of the different parishes in Derby, according to a table of the charity, taken in proportion to the number of inhabitants in Derby, at the census in 1851.

Mr. Whiston, solicitor, St. Peter's street, Derby, is solicitor to the trustees of this charity. The present trustees are, Sir Henry Sacheverel Wilmot, Bart., Wm. Mundy, Esq., M.P., and Cockshutt Heathcote, Esq.

Thomas Byrom, of Derby, apothecary, by will dated 14th July, 1714, devised his messuage or tenement, in Rotten row, to Samuel Pole, of Radborn, Esq., Wm. Woolley, of Derby, Esq.; and John Gisborne, of Derby, gent., and their heirs in trust, for ever, yearly to employ the rents and profits of the said premises for teaching and instructing such and so many poor children of Derby, at such time and times as the said trustees, their heirs and assigns, or the major part of them should think fit, to read English, learn the creed, the Lord's prayer, and the ten commandments, and other fundamentals of the Protestant religion, contained in the Church catechism, and for buying books, &c. The premises consist of a house and shop, and let for about £20 per annum. The receipts having exceeded the expenditure, there was in 1826, a balance of £143 11s. 10½d. in the hands of the treasurer.

Dorothy Cundy, by will dated 11th March, 1697, left £5 yearly on the feast of St. Michael, to two of the most indigent poor people in Derby, being freemen of the trades of a fellmonger or glover, or the widows of such freemen.—(See St. Werburgh's parish.)

It is stated on a table of benefactions, in All Saints' church, that Peter Hough, of Langley, gave 20s. per annum in bread, to twenty widows of the borough of Derby, but no trace of the gift can now be found.

PARISH OF ALL SAINTS.

Countess of Devonshire and others' charities,—(see Derby). The portion appropriated to All Saints amounts to £7 16s. per annum, which is received by the churchwardens, and distributed on St. Thomas's day.

Sweetnam's Charity.—By indenture dated 21st September, 1652, Jethro Thornton, in consideration of £26 paid by the Rev. Joseph Sweetnam, minister of the church of All Saints, granted to Roger Allesbrey, Gilbert Ward, Samuel Goodwin, and their heirs, a yearly rent charge of 26s. to be issuing out of a barn and croft, situate in Full street, &c., in trust, to distribute yearly, on Good Friday, 16s. to sixteen poor widows dwelling in the parish of All Saints, to each 12d.; and the other 10s. residue thereof, to ten poor widows dwelling in the parish of St. Alkmund, Derby; at the discretion of the trustees, overseers, churchwardens, &c., or the greater part of them.

Elizabeth Stone, by will dated 12th July, 1717, gave to the Rev. Thomas Gilbert, and his heirs, her house and garden, in Kirk Ireton, in the county of Derby, of 25s. yearly rent, in trust, to pay ten poor widows of the parish of All Saints, Derby, being of the communion of the Church of England, 1s. a-piece, on Easter day. The overseers, receive 10s. annually from the owner of the house and garden at Kirk-Ireton.

Harpur's Charity.—It is stated in a book relating to All Saints, that Joyce Harpur gave £10 to raise 10s. a-year for ever, for the poor of this parish, which £10 was applied towards building a workhouse; and the interest was according to the parish order, to be yearly distributed for ever, according to the intent of the giver, by the churchwardens. The annual sum of 10s. is now paid by the overseers of the poor of All Saints, out of the poor rates, to the churchwardens, and distributed on Good Friday.

Beamont's Charity.—It is stated in the same book, that Alice Beamont gave 10s. a-year in bread, to be distributed in the church porch, on Christmas eve and Good Friday. The annual sum of 10s. is now received from the tenant of a house on the west side of Full street, and is distributed on Good Friday.

Rents of 10s. and 6*s.* 8*d.*—In the before-mentioned book, relating to the charities of the parish, it is stated that Benjamin Edge paid to the churchwardens, 10s. per annum, out of Middleton's Pingle, at Normanton, and Joshua Tatham paid out of a house, in Sadler gate, 6s. 8d., being a chief rent. These sums are distributed on Good Friday.

William Duffield, by will dated 22nd December, 1639, gave to the poor of All Saints' parish, namely, such as were lame and not able to work, six gowns, at 16d. a yard; for maintaining of which, he left the rent of his house, in Friar gate, Derby, between the vicarage and Wm. Shaw's house, for ever. He also gave the rent of his house, in Bag lane, to the poor of All Saints, they maintaining it in good repair as it was. The property in Friar gate, consists of two dwellings, let for £15 10s. The house in Bag lane being in a ruinous condition, was in 1740, leased to Robert Simpson, for a term of 70 years, at the yearly rent of £1 10s., the lessee covenanting to expend £50 in repairs. The term of 70 years having expired in 1810, the premises were advertised to let, when George Simpson became the highest bidder, and the churchwardens devised the same for 21 years, by the description of a messuage in Bag lane. and a messuage situate down the yard, and another small tenement adjoining to the said George Simpson, for the term of 21 years, at the yearly rent of £8 5s., with a covenant on the part of the lessee, to keep the premises in repair. The rent is distributed on Good Friday.

Samuel Ward, of Derby, maltster, by indenture dated 31st March, 1673, conveyed his estate to certain trustees, for the raising and making, for ever, 2s. weekly, to be bestowed in six loaves of bread, of the value of 4d. a-piece, and it was declared that when eight of the trustees should die, the survivors should, at the cost of the parish, convey the said lands to the mayor and burgesses, to the intent that they should reconvey the same to the surviving trustees and eight others of the inhabitants of Derby. Trustees were re-appointed in 1707, and the last appointment was made on 23rd and 24th Nov., 1809. The property of this charity consists of an undivided moiety of a parcel of land, containing between eleven and twelve acres on the west side of the turnpike road leading from Derby to Allestree, (the other moiety of which belongs to Moore's charity, next mentioned), let for about £87 per annum, and occupied principally as a nursery. Thirty sixpenny loaves are distributed every Sunday, at the church, by the parish clerk, for which he receives £1 per annum, and the receiver of the rents, £3.

Isabella Moore, by indenture dated 31st March, 1673, conveyed her estate to certain trustees, for the raising £5 from the profits of the said lands, to be bestowed in the putting forth to an apprentice in some honest trade of one male child, being the son of some poor person, inhabiting within the parish of All Saints. The last appointment of trustees is dated 21st Oct., 1782, (for the description see Ward's charity above). £44, the yearly proceeds, is employed in binding out apprentices with premiums of £10 each, but if they are placed with framework knitters only £5 is given.

Francis Goodwin, of Derby, glover, by his will dated 11th Nov., 1626, gave his house in the beast market, in Derby, to his son, Francis Goodwin, and his heirs, that the rent of the said house should be bestowed yearly, for ever, fourteen days before Christmas, in cloth, to be given to the poor, in Derby, &c. In the before-mentioned old book, relating to charities, this benefaction is stated as being a yearly sum of £1 13s. 4d. for ever, out of a tenement at the market head, in the parish of St. Werburgh. It appears from this donor's will, that the whole rent should be bestowed in cloth, but Mr. Robt. Dowman Battelle has produced to us an abstract of a deed made 1767, by which it was conveyed free from incumbrance, except a certain charity of £1 8s. or thereabouts, per annum, which is laid out in purchasing four gowns for four poor widows, of the parish of All Saints, in Derby.

Charity for Gowns.—Six gowns of the value of about 10s. each, have for many years been given at Christmas, to six poor widows, out of property belonging to Sir Hugh Bateman, Bart., until his death, 1824, afterwards by Richard Thomas Bateman, Esq., his nephew. Mr. Bateman's agent says, they cannot find any documents by whom or at what time this charity was given, but says that he has been informed the distribution is made in respect of a house in St. Mary's gate.

PARISH OF ST. ALKMUND.

Countess of Devonshire, and others.—The annual sum of £2 5s. 4d. is received from the chamberlain of the corporation, by the churchwardens of this parish, as the portion of the above charities already described.

Sweetnam's Charity,—(see All Saints), 10s. whereof is given to ten poor widows of this parish; given amongst the others the day after Christmas day.

Christopher Nayler, by his will dated 4th February, 1666, declared his will to be, John Nayler and his heirs should have his house in the parish of St. Michael, on condition that he and his heirs should pay yearly the sum of 20s. to the overseers of the parishes of St. Michael and St. Alkmund, for ever, 10s. a-piece, to be by them distributed to the most honest and needy poor inhabiting therein, on the 25th December; the sum of 10s. is paid by the occupier of a house in Queen street, and the distribution made with others the day after Christmas day.

Parish Land.—By an indenture dated 1st February, 1667, between the mayor and burgesses of Derby, on the one part, and ten others, parishioners of St. Alkmund, a parcel of land, containing 4A. 2R. 36½P., situate in High Grave field, Little Chester, was conveyed to the parish of St. Alkmund, to the use and behoof of the poor, in lieu of other lands belonging to the said poor, dispersed amongst the lands of the said mayor and burgesses, and of which part had been alienated to the Dean of Lincoln. The field is now let for £16 a year, received by the vestry clerk and carried to the overseer's account. We have not been able to discover by what means this parish became possessed of the parcels of land granted to the corporation in exchange.

LITTLE EATON TOWNSHIP, ST. ALKMUND'S, DERBY.

Richard Parker, by will dated 20th December, 1659, gave to the inhabitants of Little Eaton, £20, to be vested in land, the profits thereof to be distributed to the poor of the said town, for ever, and made Edmund Webster, Esq., his executor, &c. John Webster, at a court holden for the manor of Duffield, on the 10th March, 1719, surrendered a Pingle, called Cumberland Pingle, paying yearly to the overseers of the poor of Little Eaton, the sum of 20s. at Christmas, to be disposed of to the poor. By indenture, dated 14th March, 1719, this was vested in trustees, &c. The field is now the property of John Balguy, Esq., whose agent pays 20s. yearly to the overseer, which is distributed a few days after Christmas.

Ann Parby, by deed, in 1715, gave to the poor of this township the sum of £10, producing 10s. per annum; which is now paid by Mr. John Tempest, of Burley, in the parish of Duffield.

PARISH OF ST. MICHAEL.

Countess of Devonshire and others' charities.—(See Derby.)

The annual sum of £1 2s. 8d., being the portion of these charities appropriated to the poor of this parish, is received from the chamberlain of the corporation by the churchwardens, and distributed shortly after Christmas, in sums of 6d. and 1s. each, to poor persons of the parish, widows and others.

William Botham, whose bequest of £100 to be lent to the poor of Derby is already noticed, also left 40s. yearly by his will dated 1603, to be paid by his heirs, for ever, out of his lands, towards the relief of the poor people of Derby. The only sums now paid from this charity are, 2s. 8d. to St. Michael's parish, and 8s. to the parish of St. Werburgh; the parts belonging to the other parishes are not now paid.

Daniel Deane, by his will dated 1st April, 1637, gave to the poor people of the parish of St. Werburgh, in Derby, yearly, for ever, 15s. to be distributed by the churchwardens of that parish, to 45 poor inhabitants, in fourpenny loaves, on the Feast-day of Virgin Mary, and to the poor people of the parish of St. Michael, yearly, for ever, to be distributed by the churchwardens in like manner. By an old book relating to charities of this parish, the house charged with this payment is stated to be situated on the east side of the Market place of Derby. The annual sum of 5s. is now received from the secretary of the assembly rooms, which are situate on the east side of the Market place. At the time of our investigation, three years' payment of Deane's charity for this parish remained undisturbed, in consequence, as the assistant overseer said, of his not having been aware in respect of what donation it was received.

Christopher Nayler's charity.—(See St. Alkmund's parish.)

Ten shillings yearly is paid to the overseers of this parish. For some years this has been erroneously carried to the general account of the churchwardens and overseers of the poor; it ought, however, to be distributed to the poor in future, on Christmas day; and the arrears from the time of the last distribution ought to be accounted for and given in the same manner.

Parish Lands.—By indenture, dated 1st September, 1657, certain premises were vested in trustees for raising a sum for the repairs of the parish church of St. Michael. By lease, bearing date 29th September, 1674, the trustees, in consideration of £10, paid by Richard Boothouse towards the repairs of the church and bells of St. Michael, and of the surrender of three former leases, devised to the said Richard Boothouse, his executors, &c., the messuage or tenement situate in the parish of St. Michael, for a term of 999 years, at the yearly rent of £4. This rent is now paid from two houses in Queen street, opposite the end of Full street, by the tenants under Lord Scarsdale. A rent of 10s. per annum is paid in respect of some property in Walker lane. A rent of 9s. is paid by the county treasurer, in respect of a part of the buildings erected for the Judges' lodgings, on the site of which formerly stood two houses, being near the lower end of Walker lane, it appears originally intended for the poor of St. Michael and St. Alkmund. A rent of 4s. appears to have been formerly received for a garden in St. Michael's lane, which now forms the site of some houses belonging to the parish; and a rent of 5s. was formerly received for a piece of ground which is now the site of the parish vestry. The rents of £4, 10s., and 9s., are received by the assistant overseer, and carried to the general account, for the repairs of the church and relief of the poor.

ALVASTON CHAPELRY, ST. MICHAEL'S, DERBY.

Gilbert's charity and others'.—By an inquisition taken at Derby, before the commissioners of charitable uses, it was found that there was one cottage and backside, and various other lands, &c., given by one Gilbert, and others, for the repairs of the church at Alvaston, and for the discharge of the yearly sum of £3, paid by the churchwardens of Alvaston to the vicar of St. Michael, Derby.

By indenture, &c., dated 23rd and 24th June, 1825, a messuage, with a garden, barn, and cowhouse, situate in Alvaston, was conveyed to trustees; who declared the purchase-money (£120) was received by them, as trustees of the charity, under a former deed, made in 1810. The property is now let for £61, and is divided amongst labouring men, to enable them to keep a cow each.

The house, purchased for £120, in 1825, is let for £4 a year. The cow-house and barn was taken down, and two school rooms have been erected at an expense of £100. The sum of £3 3s. is paid to the vicar of St. Michael, in lieu of various dues, &c. £2 2s. is subscribed to the Derby infirmary for the benefit of the poor of the parish; and 10s. is paid to the treasurer for keeping the accounts.

There are also two small donations, amounting to 12s. a year, supposed to be made from Robert Herbert's bequest of 8s. a year, and 4s. from that of William Robinson.

It appeared to us desirable some more regular plan should be adopted for the application of the charity, regard being had to the purposes for which it is applicable.

ST. PETER'S PARISH.

Robert Liversage, by deed of feoffment, dated 2nd August, 21st Henry VIII., (1529) granted and confirmed to the vicar of St. Peter, and seven others, various tenements and lands, to the use of the said Robert Liversage and Alice his wife, and the survivor of them, to the fulfilling of his will, as follows—viz., that Ralph Ley, his priest, and his succsessor, his priests, should receive all the rents and profits of the said premises, and have the letting to farm of the same, by the advice of the vicar and churchwardens of St. Peter's; to the intent that the said Ralph, and his successors, should say mass daily in a chapel which he built, for the souls of the said Robert and Alice his wife; and he directed that on Fridays, weekly, the said Ralph, and his successors, should say mass in the said chapel, and that 13 poor men and women should be present, and each receive one silver penny; and his yearly obit should be kept, on the anniversary of his death, within the parish church of St. Peter, and certain payments therein specified, made to the vicar, the priests, and others, attending at such obit, all the costs and charges of which he directed should be paid out of the rents and profits of the said premises.

Various awards, decrees, exchanges, and indentures, have in regard to this property taken place; and which still, in 1826, appears to have been in an unsatisfactory state. The commissioners recommended that a scheme for the future disposal thereof, under the sanction of the court of equity, should be framed; for which it was agreed, at a meeting holden 6th July, 1826, that a petition should be presented, under the act 52nd Geo. III., to the court of Chancery, for the better regulation of this charity. The proceeds of the property amount to £590 8s. 4d.

The trustees conceive that their power extends only to the management of the property, not to the application of the proceeds, and that their duty ceases on paying over the clear rents to the churchwardens. The present vicar (1826) having declined to take any part in the administration, after a small payment (£4 6s. 8d.) for a weekly distribution of bread, and all necessary repairs of the church, the residue is paid to the overseers of the poor. In 1818, a sum of £650 was paid by the churchwardens from this charity, for the purchase of a new burial ground near the church.

Countess of Devonshire's charity and others'.—The annual sum of £3 8s. 0d. arising from these charities, already noticed, is paid by the chamberlain of the corporation to the churchwardens. This sum, with several others following, they distribute on St. Thomas's day amongst the poor of the parish, who attend the church, usually in sums of 1s. each.

Osborne and Stables's charity.—The Rev. Wm. Osborne, late vicar, left by will £26 in money, and three lands lying in Cowsley field, Derby, to the vicar and churchwardens; to whom and others, trustees of Liversage's charity, they were conveyed by indenture, dated 1st June, 1722; to distribute three two-penny loaves to three poor persons frequenting the church and coming to prayers; and reciting that the said lands had been sold for £9, and reciting that by the will of Jane Stables, £5 was left to the vicar and churchwardens for the payment of 1s. a-piece yearly on St. Thomas' day to five poor housekeepers not receiving alms of the parish; and reciting that the sums of £26, and £9, and £5, amounting to £40, had been paid to the trustees of Liversage's charity. No distribution is made in respect of the small donation of James Stables, but ought to be on St. Thomas' day.

Babington's charity.—The parliamentary returns of 1786 state, that Augustine Babington, in 1568, gave a rent-charge of 20s. per annum to the poor of this parish, also, 20s. to the poor of the parish of Normanton. The annual sum of 20s. is received from the tenant of a farm at Normanton, which formerly belonged to the Dixie family, and applied with others, on St. Thomas' day.

Elizabeth Wilcox, formerly of Spondon, and afterwards of Elvaston, in the county of Derby, spinster, by will dated 20th April, 1646, reciting that she had by indenture, bearing date 10th June, 12th Chas. I., conveyed to certain trustees her messuage, situate in Derby, nigh St. Peter's bridge, stating, that after her decease, she gave the said premises to the poor of Ashwell, in the county of Rutland, Elvaston in the county of Derby, and St. Peter's, Derby, the rents, &c., to be divided as follows, viz., one half to the poor of the parish of Ashwell, and one half to the poor of the said parishes of Elvaston and St. Peter, to be distributed by the parsons, vicars, and churchwardens of the said parishes, on the Feast-day of St. Thomas, the apostle.

The trust property consisted of the Angel Inn, situate in the Corn market, and parish of Saint Peter, Derby, and a messuage and garden adjoining to the back or rear thereof, which premises were let together for some years previous to, and up to the year 1852, for the annual rent of £60, at which time the property was sold to the corporation of Derby, by virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery, for the sum of £2000. This sum is now invested on ample freehold security, in the names of the present trustees of the charity appointed by the court, viz.:—William Whiston, the younger, of Derby, gentleman, Herbert Mountford Holmes, of the same place, coach manufacturer, Henry Morley, of the same place, gentleman, George Gascoyne, of the same place, builder, John Walters, of the same place, ironmonger, and Edward Etches, of the same place, cheese factor. The present interest of the trust funds, is £90 per annum, which is annually paid to the different parishes according to the directions, and in the proportions, directed by the will of the testatrix.

Mr. Whiston, solicitor, in Saint Peter's street, Derby, is the present solicitor of this charity.

Dorothy Cundy, by will dated 1697, (see St. Werburgh) gave a rent charge of £5 to be bestowed in eight gowns or coats of the value of 12s. 6d. four of which were to be given on St. Thomas' day, to St. Peter's parish. The annual sum of £2 10s. a moiety of the above rent charge is paid from a house in Sadlergate to the churchwardens of the parish, who provide seven gowns which they distribute to poor widows on St. Thomas's day.

George Jackson, M.D., by his will dated 16th May, 1699, gave to the poor of St. Peter's parish, Derby, 50s., to be paid yearly, for ever, on St. Thomas's day, out of the fee farm rents of the Champagne of the Peak, in the county of Derby. The above is paid by the agent of the duke of Devonshire.

Theodosia Brough, by will dated in 1723, charged her lands in the parish of Spondon, county of Derby, with the payment of a rent charge of 40s. per annum, to pay to ten poor widows of the parish of St. Peter, Derby, 2s. a piece; and to ten poor widows of the parish of St. Werburgh, Derby, 2s. a piece. The annual sum of 20s. is distributed on St. Thomas's day.

ST. WERBURGH'S PARISH.

Countess of Devonshire and others' charities.—The annual sum of £3 8s. arising to this parish is paid by the chamberlain of the corporation to the churchwardens of this parish, who also receive several others, as noted hereafter, amounting to £8 7s. 10d., usually distributed on the day after Christmas day, amongst the poor of the parish, in sums of about 2s. each to the widows, and 1s. or 1s. 6d. each to other poor persons, and of about £5 arising from the alms collected at the sacrament. But the accounts appear not kept in proper order, and the commissioners (1826) observe, "It is very desirable that in future a debtor and creditor account should be kept of all the charities received and disposed of by the churchwardens," &c.

Ash's Charity—already noticed, of which the poor of this parish are entitled to the annual sum of £3; but the sum of £1 11s. 10d. only has been hitherto paid by the corporation of Derby.

Botham's Charity.—See St. Michael's parish.—The annual sum of 8s. is received by the churchwardens, from John Smith, Esq., as the owner of a house in Derby, on the Ashbourn road.

Samuel Fletcher, by will, dated 15th June, 1695, gave two acres of land for the use of ten of the poorest widows in the parish of St. Werburgh for ever, and directed that Samuel Fletcher, his nephew, should hold the said acres during his life, and that in recompense he or his assigns should yearly, on Christmas Day, before divine service in the morning, pay to the vicar of the said parish, the full sum of 20s., to be equally distributed to ten of the poorest widows of that parish, who should on that day be at divine service (if able to come thereto). And that after the death of the said Samuel Fletcher, it should be lawful for the vicar and churchwardens to enter upon the premises, and to take the full rent for the uses aforesaid. By a lease bearing date 26th December, 1729, this property was leased to William Turner, for a term of 1,000 years, on paying £50 as a fine, and the reserved rent of 20s., and reciting that the said William Turner intended to inclose the land in Park Field, with other of his lands, so that the bounds and description of the same might in time become unknown. The reason assigned for this transaction is, that the parish wanted to raise a fund to build a workhouse. It is clear from the donor's will, that the vicar and churchwardens had no authority to raise money by granting such a lease.

Brough's Charity.—See St. Peter's.—Ten poor widows receive 2s. each, amounting to £1 per annum, out of certain closes at Spondon.

Isaac Cheshire gave to the poor of this parish 20s. per annum, to be distributed on the feast of our Saviour's nativity. This annual sum is received by the churchwardens out of an estate at Langley, in the county of Derby.

Daniel Deane, by will, dated 1637, (see St. Michael's,) gave 15s. per annum, out of his house in Derby, to be distributed to 45 poor inhabitants of St. Werburgh, in four-penny loaves, on the feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. This is now paid by the secretary of the Assembly Rooms to the churchwardens, and the bread distributed on Lady-day.

Jones's Dole.—On the 13th May, and 23rd November, annually, bread to the amount of 4s. is given by the churchwardens. The same distribution appears to have been made as far back as 1747, but no other particulars have been obtained.

John Bloodworth, by will, gave to the churchwardens of St. Werburgh £100, to be laid out in purchasing land in the names of feoffees, the rents thereof to be yearly disposed of as follows:—12d. every Sunday in wheaten bread to the poor of that parish; 2s. to the churchwardens, and 2s. to the parish clerk, for their pains; and 13s. 4d. to the minister of the church to preach a sermon on the 5th Nov. yearly, in remembrance of the deliverance of the nation from the gunpowder plot, and the residue he directed to be laid out on that day, in two-penny loaves of wheaten bread, to be distributed amongst the poor of the said parish by the churchwardens and overseers of the poor. By indenture dated 3rd Sept., 1660, this £100 was, with the consent of the principal inhabitants, vested with the mayor and burgesses of Derby, and a yearly rent charge of £6, to be payable, issuing out of two closes known by the names of the Rayles and Darley Hill, which are now not known, but this annual sum is considered a charge upon their general property.

Mary Day, by will dated 25th Sep. 1669, gave £60 to trustees, to be bestowed by them in the purchase of land lying in the county of Derby, that out of the rents and profits thereof, there might be 1s. weekly raised for ever, to be by the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, distributed in the parish church of St. Werburgh, viz., 6d. in money and 6d. in bread. By indenture, 10th April, 1674, a close of meadow, called the Old Meadow, was enfeoffed for the payment. The annual sum of 52s. is now paid by the owner of the land, John Gisborne the elder, of Derby, by will dated 3rd May, 1689, gave to his sons. John and Thomas Gisborne, £200 in trust, that they, and the survivor of them, and his heirs should purchase therewith land of inheritance, or a fee farm rent, of the yearly value of £10, if they could, the rents and profits thereof to be disposed in the following manner, viz. :—one-half of the yearly value of the rents and profits, above all charges, to be yearly disposed of on the feast of St. Thomas the Apostle and St. John the Baptist, to the poor of the parish of Willington, in the county of Derby; one moiety of such half of the rents to buy four gowns or coats, for four poor men or women of that parish, to be disposed of on St. Thomas's day, the other moiety of said half to be given in money on the feast days of St. Thomas the Apostle and St. John the Baptist, in equal portions, to such poor inhabitants of Willington, not having the said coats or gowns that year. And the testator directed, that the other half of the yearly rents, above all charges, should be disposed of, one moiety in gowns and coats, and the other in money, to poor persons of St. Werburgh, Derby, in the same manner as at Willington.

By indenture, dated 3rd July, 1690, it appears that £262 11s. 8d. was paid by the two Mr. Gisborne's, to whom an annual fee farm rent, payable out of the rectory and church of Church Broughton, was granted. John Gisborne, his son, by will dated 16th April, 1704, gave to his son, John Gisborne, and his heirs, &c., a fee farm rent issuing out of the tithes in Church Broughton, in trust to buy and provide four gowns or coats, each of the value of 12s., to be by him and his heirs disposed of on Christmas-day; two of the said poor persons to be inhabitants of St. Werburgh's, Derby, one of Hilton, and one of Boylstone, in the said county. The fee farm rent of £13 2s. 7d., appears to be now (1826) vested in Edmund Henry Lushington, Esq., from which sum £1 19s. 5½d. has always been deducted as land tax.

Dorothy Cundy, by will dated 11th March, 1697, gave to trustees a yearly rent charge of £5, issuing out of her messuage where she dwelt, and out of the malt room, outhouses, &c., thereto belonging, situate in the parish of St. Werburgh, and out of the tenement, &c.. situate in St. Peter's, on trust that they should bestow the same yearly in eight gowns or coats, of the value of 12s. 6d. a piece, to be yearly given on the feast of St. Thomas the Apostle; four of the said gowns or coats to St. Peter's Parish, and four to the poor inhabiting Saint Werburgh's; she also gave the vicar of St. Werburgh and his successors, nine acres of land by estimation, lying in the fields of Derby and Normanton, provided that he and they should preach, or cause to be preached, two sermons, one on the 23rd Nov., and the other on the 13th of March; she gave to her executors £140 in trust, to purchase land, &c., of the clear yearly value £7, of which £5 to be paid to two indigent glovers, &c., (see Derby) and 40s. to be laid out in bread, yearly to be distributed at St. Werburgh's on the 23rd Nov. and 13th March. By exchange and enclosure several changes have been made in the original property. Mr. Charles Howard Whitehurst, at present, (1826) holds the property, which was by him granted on lease for 21 years, to Wm. Bromley. Mr. Whitehurst has signified his willingness to convey the lands to trustees, that the whole rents and profits might be employed upon the trusts mentioned in Mr. Cundy's will, provided the existing lease granted by him be left undisturbed, but it was considered the property was worth £20 per annum, whereas, for sixteen years they would only get £13 per annum.

Rebecca Fowler, out of her zeal for the education of poor children inhabiting within St. Werburgh, directed in her lifetime, that her brother William Fowler, should after her decease bestow upon a purchase of land £116, part of her estate. By indenture dated 18th of November, 1711, Thomas Alestrey, conveyed to William Fowler and four others, a close called the Moor Furlong Close, in Alvaston and Bolton, that the said William Fowler, his surviving trustees and all others as should be elected trustees, should with the rents and profits thereof, put to school and educate in the reading of English 14 poor children, and should find them necessary books, &c. It is also further agreed the trustees on the Saturday after Michaelmas day, should meet in the said parish church, in the presence of other inhabitants, and make a just account of the state of the charity, &c. The estate contains about 7 acres, now let for £12 per annum.

Thomas Haughton, by indenture dated 24th October, 1729, granted to the vicar of St. Werburgh and four others and their heirs, three parcels of land, with a newly erected messuage thereon, called Foulbrook close, in the liberty of Little Over, near the Red ditch lane, in the county of Derby, in trust that if they should be living at the time of his decease, they should let the said premises for the best rent, and apply the rents, &c., towards putting out apprentices, such and so many poor children of St. Werburgh to such trades and businesses as they shall think fit, &c., that as any of the trustees die others shall be elected within three months. The property consists of a small house and 22A. 2R. 24P. of grass land, let for £54 10s. per anuum, which had been let previous to 1822 for £71 per annum. The premium has been advanced to 12 guineas.

William Potter, it is stated on a benefaction table in the church, gave 50s. per annum to the poor, which was paid by the parish, and in the parliamentary returns of 1786, this gift is mentioned as being £50 vested in the parish officers, &c. We have not been able to find any trace of this charity in the parish books, nor any further information.

John Spateman, it is also stated, in 1729 left £10 for the use of the poor of this parish. As there is now no such sum, it may have been distributed at the time when given.

Parish Land.—There is a parcel of land containing about two acres, in the old meadows, near Derby, subject to the common rights of the burgesses after the crop of hay is taken, formerly let for £9 a year, and is now occupied by the parish, and the profits carried to the general account of the overseers of the poor.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS AND INSTITUTIONS.

The Derby General Infirmary is pleasantly situated on the London road. It was first open for the reception of the sick and poor lame of any country or nation, in the year 1809, and since then great numbers have partaken of the healing benefits of this benevolent institution, which ranks as the most extensive and useful in the town of Derby. The building is a modern stone structure, approached by steps and a portico, supported by four Doric pillars, the bottom story being a little sunk and surrounded by an area. It is calculated to accommodate one hundred patients, and is surrounded by 14 acres of land purchased to prevent the too near approach of buildings, and cost nearly £18,000, which was raised by subscription. The middle story is a little elevated, and contains a spacious hall, which is lighted by a dome of elegant design, over the centre of the building, surmounted externally by a colossal figure of Esculapius, and the upper story is approached by a staircase which terminates in a gallery surrounding three sides of the hall. Two spacious day rooms, one for each sex, are appropriated to the convalescent patients, and the whole building is effectually warmed and ventilated. Five large baths are heated by steam, into which the water is pumped by a steam engine, the power of which is likewise applied in performing the more laborious domestic operations of the establishment; a portion of the building was so constructed as to have no internal connection with the Infirmary, which is used as a fever ward. All the internal arrangements are of the most complete and satisfactory order, and reflect the highest credit on the late Wm. Strutt, Esq., who was the principal designer. A new wing has recently been added at the north-west angle, consisting of fever and lock wards, with convalescent rooms, lavatories, fumigating rooms, wash houses, &c. Since its commencement to Sept. 29th, 1855, 71,429 patients have been admitted, and 70,969 discharged, and 2001 out-patients, 942 in-patients were admitted during the year ending Sept. 29th, 1855, the average number in the house was 95 during the same year. The expenditure of this noble institution was for the same period, £2793 1s. 9d., and the receipts, £2865 15s. 3d., the annual subscriptions amounted to £1461 12s. 0d., and the interest on funded and other property to £965 per annum. During the year 1855, donations and legacies amounting to £110 were received. The Derbyshire County Lunatic Asylum, situated in the parish of Mickleover, three miles W.S.W. of Derby, is a handsome Elizabethan brick building with stone quoins, and the windows have stone dressings and mullions, erected in 1850-51. The total cost of the land (79 acres), building, furniture, &c., was £98,396 16s. 3d. It is approached from the Uttoxeter road, by a pleasant lane, and in which at the the N.E. angle of the estate are the entrance gates with a lodge attached; a carriage drive, with turfed slopes, leads from these gates past the Eastern front, and along the South terrace, which stretches across the property from East to West, to the chief entrance in the centre of the Southern or principal front, the drive being continued forward to the farm, which is also approached by a back road from the entrance lodge, which, skirting a plantation (about four acres) to the North, also affords access to the offices and back premises of the establishment; a kitchen-garden (containing about five acres) surrounds the building on the north, east, and west sides. The site of the building and exercise gardens covers a space of five and a half acres. The internal arrangements of the building are such as cannot be found in any other similar establishment; it is the first in which a recreation-hall has been included, in which there have been provided private corridors of communication to all the wards, in which the cheerfulness, comfort, and warmth of the patients' galleries, and airing grounds have been made an entirely primary consideration, and in which a complete system of ventilation by means of shafts has been attempted and carried out with success. It is calculated to accommodate 300 patients, and is divided into twelve wards, replete with every convenience, including a reception room, visitors' room, dining rooms, committee room, dispensary, two kitchens, above which are the chapel and recreation-hall, work rooms, laundry, general wash house, foul-linen wash house, bed picking and upholstery room, tailors' shop, and shoemakers' shop, beyond which is the engine house, containing a steam-engine of fifteen horse power, which is used for the pumping of water, and the driving of the washing and brewing machinery. Below the engine house is the well, 103ft. deep, having, when at rest, 53ft. of water. Adjoining the well is a soft water feeder, communicating with two tanks capable of containing 122,000 gallons of water. To the east of the engine house is the plumbers' shop, next which is the brewhouse, and beyond the brewhouse is the bakehouse, with large oven and flour-store attached. At the top of the four towers at the angles of the principal front are four water tanks, capable of holding 10,000 gallons of water, and the roof of that portion of the building which contains the chapel is surmounted by a clock-turret, having a clock which strikes the hours and quarters, and has four dials. Outside the gates, a little to the north, are the gas-works, consisting of a gas holder 31 feet in diameter, and six retorts, from which the whole of the establishment is lighted. The farm establishment, lying west of the building, consists of the steward's house, with a bailiff's house adjoining, beyond the bailiff's house is the farm yard, surrounded by the required buildings; a stack yard is at the back of the farm buildings, beyond which, in the extreme north-west angle, is the burial ground, surrounded by a dwarf wall. In the burial ground is a small chapel; also a mortuary, fitted with a table and other necessary appointments. Since the opening of the Asylum, on the 21st August, 1851, 158 patients have been admitted, and 35 discharged. There are now 123 patients in the house, viz., 66 men, and 57 women.

Provident Societies.—Belonging to this class there are in this town a number of Benefit Societies, the members of which pay small contributions to their respective funds, from which they are relieved in case of sickness, infirmity, and superannuation, and from which the friends of deceased members receive sums of £8 or £10, to provide for their decent interment, &c. Amongst these fraternities are several secret orders, viz.: lodges of Freemasons, Odd Fellows, and Ancient Druids, whose splendid "regalia," gives an imposing effect to all public processions. The Odd Fellows and Druids are very numerous in Derby and the neighbouring villages.

Savings' Bank, Friar gate, is a provident institution, which affords a safe and beneficial investment for the savings of the humbler classes. It was established in 1818. A handsome stone building was erected out of the surplus fund in 1839, from a design of Mr. H. J. Stevens, with a residence for the clerk, at a cost of about £2,800, and was opened 23rd Nov., 1840. It is open on Monday and Friday, from half-past eleven o'clock to half-past twelve, and on Saturday evening from seven to eight o'clock. At the annual meeting of the Trustees and Directors, in Nov., 1855, the Right Hon. Edward Strutt, M.P., in the chair. Town and County Library, Amen alley, to which situation it was removed at Michaelmas, 1840. It was established in Full street, in 1835, at which time the Permanent Library, which was established in 1811, at Mr. Wilkin's, transferred their stock to this library, which was raised by shares of £5 5s., and an annual subscription of 25s., and that of non-proprietors, £2. Cook's Museum, Piazza, Market place, established in 1822, by Mr. John Cook, the proprietor, though comparatively small, contains an excellent collection of curiosities, and is undoubtedly worthy the attention of the curious. The specimens in Natural History, 2,000 in number, are from all parts of the globe, and extremely beautiful. In this class we would particularly mention as worthy of notice, the splendid Argus pheasant, the gold and silver pheasants, and the Himalaya pheasants; all of which we have seldom seen surpassed, if equalled, in any exhibition of a similar nature. There is also a magnificent collection of humming birds, king trogans, and spiders; also, an enormous American vampire, the head of which resembles, in appearance, that of a wild fox. The other curiosities in the Museum are numerous, select, and of a peculiar interesting character; and we would urge visitors to the town, as well as the inhabitants generally, to give them a close examination, as we feel assured they will be highly gratified by so doing. Admittance 6d.; working people and children 3d. each.

Mechanics' Institute and Library, in the Wardwick, was established in 1825; but in 1832, more commodious premises were purchased for the institution, at a cost of £1,500. In 1836, the first stone of a Lecture Hall was laid by the late Joseph Strutt, Esq., the president of this noble institution, which was opened in 1837, and cost upwards of £2,000, including the necessary furniture. The principal entrance is beneath a Doric portico, surmounted by a pediment of elegant proportions. The room is 75 feet long, 40 feet wide, and 65 feet high, and the walls are ornamented with many valuable paintings, given by the late president. £1,600 having been borrowed on mortgage, it was resolved to open an exhibition and raise a fund to pay off this sum. For this purpose, the nobility and gentry, in the town and neighbourhood, were solicited for the loan of articles, and upwards of 5,000 different specimens, including the newest improvements in arts and science, and an extensive collection of rare and valuable curiosities were kindly furnished. To witness this interesting exhibition, which lasted 18 weeks, no less than 96,000 persons availed themselves. The total receipts amounted to £2,119 9s. 8d. The expenses being £764 9. 8d., it left a balance of £1,355 for the liquidation of the debt; since which there has been added a good gallery, a spacious reading-room, and four ante-rooms, which now render it one of the most complete institutions in the Midland counties; part of the remaining debt has been paid off, and it is in as favourable a position as could well be wished. The library contains 5,000 volumes, and a museum and philosophical apparatus. The reading-room is open from eight o'clock to ten at night, and is well supplied with periodicals, and newspapers. It is under the management of a president, vice-president, and a committee of 22 members, eleven of whom are elected every six months. Lord Belper, president; Mr. John Walker secretary, and Mr. Henry Helliwell, librarian.

News Room, Amen alley, established 1835, in Full street, but removed to its present situation with the Town and County Library, in 1840. There are 35 subscribers; those in the town and neighbourhood pay 22s. 6d. annually, if more than two miles distant, 21s. annually. Open daily, from eight o'clock in the morning to half-past nine in the evening.

Derbyshire Club, or County News-Room, established in 1854, consists of 152 members. It is under the management of a committee of eight, including the president, vice-president, and secretary, who meet the first Friday in every month, at the King's Head hotel, Corn-market. The annual subscription is one guinea, with two guineas entrance, to residents; and to parties resident more than ten miles from Derby, the annual subscription is one guinea, and one guinea entrance. Albert Club and News-Room, Albert street, established 1855, has about 100 members, who pay an annual subscription of one guinea; the latest reports of the corn-markets, the state of the funds, of politics, &c., are received by Telegraph daily. Mr. Wm. Giles, secretary.

The Assembly Rooms, Market place, were erected by a subscription of the nobility and gentry of the county, and the foundations laid in the spring of the year 1763, but the rooms were not finished before the year 1774; the cost was £2,500, and is in the hands of trustees. It is an elegant stone buildings, on a rusticated basement; the ball-room is an elegant apartment, 68ft. long, 32ft. wide, and 30ft. high. It is fitted up with splendid chandeliers, sconces, and rich drapery. At one end is a spacious orchestra, and adjoining are convenient card and ante-rooms, whilst below are the refreshment rooms.

The Theatre, Bold lane, was erected at the expense of Mr. Jas. Whiteley, in the year 1773. It is a small brick building, inconveniently situated, and quite inadequate for the proper representation of the drama, and for the requirements of the day.

The Arboretum is situated in Litchurch parish, the principal entrance being in Grove street, through an elegant entrance lodge, in the Elizabethan style. It was opened on the 16th Sept., 1840, and was celebrated with every demonstration of joy by all classes of the inhabitants; it is supposed that not less than 6,000 people were assembled on the grounds, parading the serpentine walks, and admiring the beauties of nature, scattered with exquisite taste by the scientific hand of Mr. Loudon, the landscape gardener. It occupies above eleven acres of ground of an irregular form, and contains an immense collection of evergreens, shrubs, and forest trees, all arranged and described so as to afford the means of instruction and gratification. This interesting place was formed at a cost of about £10,000, by the late Joseph Strutt, Esq., and by him vested in trustees for the benefit of the public, on condition that it be open free to all classes of the public on the Sunday, (except between the hours of ten and one o'clock,) and on one other day in every week. On all other days a charge of 6d. admission is paid by the visitors; which, with subscriptions, forms a fund, by which the grounds are kept in a proper state of order. We will conclude this notice, however, by giving an extract from the speech of the munificent donor at the presentation of this noble gift. He says—"I have purposely omitted any endowment to keep the Arboretum in order, as I know by experience, that I shall best provide for its future preservation by entrusting it to those who will enjoy and profit by it, and who will take an interest in its permanence.* * *—If we wish to obtain the affection and regard of others, we must manifest kindness and regard towards them; if we seek to wean them from debasing pursuits and brutalizing pleasures, we can only hope to do so by opening to them new sources of rational enjoyment. It is under this conviction that I dedicate these gardens to the public; and I will only add, that as the sun has shone brightly on me through life, it would be ungrateful in me not to employ a portion of the fortune which I possess in promoting the welfare of those amongst whom I live, and by whose industry I have been aided in its acquisition." That Mr. Strutt's views and expectations were well founded, has been fully realized by the fact of the trustees having, in 1845, purchased upwards of five acres of land, adjoining the Arboretum, which they have laid out and planted in a style corresponding with the original gift, at a cost of above £2,000. A new Lodge has also been erected on the Osmaston road, opposite the end of Regent street, which is surmounted by a full length figure of the donor.

Races were held on a fine course called the Siddals, and have been in considerable repute for a number of years. They were discontinued in 1833 for a few years, but have been established again on a suitable piece of land on the Nottingham road, where a very excellent grand stand was erected in 1852, at a cost of £2,400. The course is two miles round, and is remarkable for the ease of the curves, and for the general regularity of its surface. They are held in September.

The Cricket Ground is in the extensive meadow on the south side of the Morledge.

Football Play.—Football continues to be played on Shrove Tuesday and Ash Wednesday, in many parts of England; but the mode of playing it at Ashbourn and Derby differed much from the usual practice of this sport. In Derby, the contest lay between the parishes of St. Peter and All Saints, none of the other parishes of the borough taking any direct part in the contest, but they all joined in the sport, as well as persons from the adjacent country. The game commenced in the Market place, where the partisans of each parish were drawn up on each side. The goals to which the ball was to be taken were Gallows balk, on the Normanton road, for St. Peter's and Nun's mill, for All Saints. About noon the ball was tossed up; this was seized by the strongest and most active men, the rest closed in upon them, and a solid mass was formed, the struggle was then violent, and the motion of this immense human mass heaving to and fro, was tremendous and appalling. Still the crowd was encouraged by respectable persons attached to each party. The numbers engaged exceeded 1,000, and the streets were crowded with spectators, the shops were closed and business suspended. It is said to have been in commemoration of an occurrence as early as the year 217, when the Britons beat a troop of Roman soldiers.

The Athenæum, &c., a magnificent pile of buildings erected in 1839 at the entrance of the Corn Market from the London road, and forming the most striking improvement that has taken place in Derby for a considerable period. The building comprises the Athenæum, the Royal Hotel, the Post Office, the Derby and Derbyshire Bank, and the Museum;

it possesses two lines of frontage, one of 185 feet towards Victoria street, and the other of 134 feet towards the Corn Market. The cost of the whole was upwards of £20,000, including the site. The entrance to the Athenæum and Museum is in Victoria street, and on the basement story of this portion of the building is the News Room, Library, and Reading Room; and ascending a flight of elegant stone stairs you reach the Large Hall which is used for first class concerts, balls, lectures, &c; it is a noble and well proportioned room, of an oblong square, with a beautifully ornamented ceiling; at the east end is a raised platform divided off from the room by massive dark scagliola columns, supporting an enriched entablature. From this platform two doors communicate with the Royal Hotel. Over the Hall is another room of equal proportions appropriated to the Museum.

The Royal Hotel forms the extreme angle of the building and is a remarkable convenient and elegant establishment, with a frontage of 92 feet towards Victoria street and 62 feet towards the Corn Market. The entrance is beneath a balconied porch in the angle of the edifice, with a window on either side the door way. Over the entrance are two massive Grecian Ionic columns, supporting the entablature and the cornice, which is surmounted by the Royal Arms.

The Post Office forms the basement story of that end of the Hotel which fronts the Corn Market; the Offices and Letter boxes are situated within a recessed portico supported by massive square pillars, and the interior is fitted up with every convenience for the despatch of business. Thomas P. Bainbrigge, Esq., is the Postmaster.

Town and County Museum, (see page 82.)

The Derby and Derbyshire Bank, which forms another portion of the Athenæum, has a frontage of 36 feet towards the Corn Market, with a rusticated basement, constructed on the fire proof principle, and is ornamented with various decorations combined with the arms of the town and county.

Fairs are held on the Monday after January 6th and 25th, March 21, and the two following days, Friday in Easter week, Friday after May day, Friday in Whitsun week, July 25th, the first Tuesday in August, and on September 27th and two following days. Those in March and September are large cheese fairs, the others are principally for cattle.

The Market Place is an open space, surrounded by shops and public buildings, in the centre of the town containing 110 yards by 55, near to which is a covered Market for the sale of meat, butter, vegetables, &c., erected by the corporation in the year 1830. The regular market days are Tuesday and Friday, the latter is the principal one, and is abundantly supplied with agricultural produce of every description.

The Cattle Market is held in the Morledge every alternate Tuesday, for fat cattle, and on every Friday for lean cattle and swine. This market has been considerably enlarged and improved, by covering over the mill fleam or goit in the Morledge with an arch.

The Hide and Skin Market, Albert street, is held every Friday, at 1 30 p.m.; and Wool sales are held the last Friday in each month, during the season. W. Pool, broker.

The Gas Works, in Cavendish street, were built under the authority of an act of parliament, passed in 1820, and commenced the Christmas following; and consist of six gasometers, which will contain 302,000 cubic feet of gas. In 1855, 67,000,000 cubic feet of gas were made, and the pipes extend about 30 miles. Mr. Thomas Crump is the manager. The Office is in Friar gate, and Mr. Isaac Fisher is the secretary.

The Water Works, originally established in 1691, were at the bottom of St. Michael's lane. A New Company was formed, and an act of parliament obtained in 1848, for the better supplying with water the borough of Derby, under the powers of which eleven acres of land were purchased in the parish of Breadsall, about 2½ miles from Derby, on the road to Little Eaton, and New Works erected thereon in 1849-50. They consist first of a collecting reservoir, from which the water is pumped into another and larger reservoir, formed on an elevation of 185 feet above the turnpike road, and capable of holding 2,000,000 gallons of water, from whence it flows into the filtering beds and ultimately into the service reservoir, when by means of the engines it is conveyed by pipes to every part of the borough, and the inhabitants can now boast of as an abundant supply of pure, filtered water, at constant pressure, as any town in the Midland Counties. The Engine House contains a pair of splendid engines of 50 horse power each, (by Hawthorne, of Newcastle-upon-Tyne) capable of pumping 2000 gallons of water per minute. Adjoining the Engine house is the residence of the Engineer, a good Gothic building, with a neat and tastefully arranged garden in front. The entrance Lodge is occupied by the engineman or stoker. The New Water Works Company, whose offices are at No. 16, Wardwick, have a capital of £40,000, in 1600 £25 shares, and is managed by a Board of Directors: Thomas Hawksley, Esq., is the chief engineer; Mr. James J. Jessop is the secretary; and Mr. John Thomson, resident engineer.

The Temperance Hall, Curzon street, a handsome building erected in 1853, at a cost of £3,000. It consists of basement and upper-story, the frontage is 60 feet, and 40 feet on the wall rising in the centre of Pediment to 55 feet. The centre portion of the façade recedes so as to allow of access to the floor, and the gallery staircases, which are placed in the remaining portion of the front, and form the piers, from which a large semicircular arch springs, at the height of 30 feet. Within this arch are two subordinate arcades, the lowermost of which forms the portal, and has its cornice and balustrade. The principal entrance to the hall is in the centre, and there are entrances from the staircase lobbies. The Hall is 70 feet long and 45 feet wide, and will accommodate 1000 persons comfortably.

Rivers, Canals, and Bridges.—Derby possesses a most extensive and direct communication with the inland navigation of England. The river Derwent which passes the east side of the town, through a fine open valley, running in a very tortuous course, (south-east,) forms its confluence with the Trent on the Leicestershire border, in the parish of Sawley, at about 7 miles distance in a direct line from Derby, but by the course of the river nearly double the distance. The Derwent is not now navigable to Derby. The Old Navigation was sold for the sum of £3,696 to the proprietors of the Derby canals; of which one, running south, joins the Grand Trunk, or the Trent and Mersey canal, near Swarkeston bridge, a distance of 5 miles; and thus forms a direct communication between Liverpool and Hull, and all the navigable rivers and canals in the western parts of the Island, and Bristol and London. The other runs south-east from Derby, joins the Erewash or Langley bridge canal, near Sandiacre, about 8 miles E. by S. from Derby. Opening a direct communication with the coal and iron district of the county. Also the Erewash canal communicates with the river Soar, near Sawley ferry; which, with the Leicester Union, the Grand Union, the Grand Junction, the Paddington, and the Regent's canals, form a direct line of navigation betwixt the Trent and the Thames, and thus opens a communication with all the canals in the south of England. There is also a prolongation to Little Eaton, 3 miles N. from Derby. These canals were made under an act of parliament passed in the year 1777, and were opened in 1795-6. The proprietors were empowered to raise the sum of £90,000, and required when the dividends exceed 8 per cent. to reduce the tolls. There is a large and convenient wharf in Siddal's lane for loading and unloading the boats.

All the rivers and canals in the county are described at a preceding page, in the general survey of the county.

Bridges.—The Markeaton brook which rises near Mugginton, 6 miles N.W. from Derby, is crossed by seven good stone bridges, and one of wood, in the town of Derby, erected by subscription, immediately after which it has its confluence with the river Derwent, over which a modern and elegant bridge of three arches, each of 44ft. span, was erected, under an act of parliament obtained in 1788. It is situate at the bottom of Bridge gate. It was finished in 1793, it is a handsome structure with stone balustrades. The contract was £2,900, and for extra work £875, in addition a considerable sum of money was expended in the purchase of property to form the approaches. There is also a handsome stone bridge of three arches, erected in 1850, for horses and foot passengers, from Derwent street to the Nottingham road, and the Long bridge for horses and foot passengers crosses the Derwent from the Mill Fleam, Siddal's lane, to Derwent row.

There are three bridges over the Nottingham canal, one extends over the canal and Nottingham road, and is built with brick with stone facings, and cast iron ribs; one from Nottingham road to Erasmus street, of stone; with one from Derwent row to Exeter street; and one of iron over the Derby canal, near the railway station.

The Railway Viaduct.—The station is situate at the south extremity of Derby, on the western side of the Derwent, over which is a handsome bridge of three cast iron arches, of 100ft. span, the abutments and piers are of stone, the latter being 40ft. wide, 10ft. long, and 22ft. below the level of the water. There is also a versed rim of 10ft to the arches; the width of the road-way measuring 27ft.; on the north side there are two 25ft. flood arches; this bridge was commenced in June 1838, the Butterley Company furnished the iron work.

EMINENT MEN.

Thomas Linacre, M.D., was born in Derby, 1460, educated at Oxford, resided at Rome and Florence, and was a learned and great physician. He founded two public lectures in Oxford, and one in Cambridge, for the study of physic; and the College of Physicians in London. He was chief physician to Kings Henry VII and VIII. In 1509, he entered into holy orders, and was eventually made Prebendary of Westminster, which he held until 1524, when he died, aged 64, and was buried under a stately monument at St. Paul's, London.

Joseph Wright, an eminent painter, the son of Mr. Wright, an attorney of Derby, was born in 1734, and commenced his career as a sign painter. He produced a set of historical pictures, which may deservedly rank amongst the earliest valuable productions of the modern school; of these, the "Blacksmith's Forge," "Air Pump," "Gladiator," and several others, are well known by Pether's mezzotintos. His style of landscape painting is more varied than that of any other artist whose works we are acquainted with. Sometimes he excites the sublimest ideas under the various effects of day, fire, or moonlight; at other times we are soothed with the calm and still scenery of Italy, in which he introduces the clear and brilliant skies peculiar to that climate. He again exhibits the most playful execution and charming effects, which constitute the principal beauty of our mountain scenery in Westmoreland and Cumberland. His judicious combination of fire and moonlight has particularly attracted the admiration of connoisseurs, several of his pictures realised large sums, amongst which may be enumerated a fine production of "Vesuvius," sold to the Empress of Russia for 300 guineas; also a companion picture "Girandolo," for 200 guineas; the "Siege of Gibraltar," sold to Mr. John Milnes, for 400 guineas; a large picture of "Prospero in his cell, shewing a visionary spectacle to Ferdinand and Miranda," for 300 guineas, with many others of a similiar character.

John Flamstead, one of the most eminent Astronomers England or any other country ever produced, was, it is generally supposed, born at Derby, on the 19th August, 1646, and received the first part of his education at the Free school, in that town, but was interrupted by a bad state of health in his preparation for the University. During his sickness, having met with an astronomical work, he received much pleasure from the perusal of it, and formed a taste for those studies, from the successful prosecution of which he afterwards acquired the most distinguished reputation. His first attempts in astronomy were calculations of the places of the planets, and of an eclipse of the sun by the Caroline tables. By means of the latter of these observations, he became acquainted with Mr. Emanuel Halton, a mathematician of some eminence, who resided at Wingfield manor. This gentleman very liberally supplied him with the astronomical works then extant. From this time Mr. Flamstead prosecuted his favourite study with great success. In the year 1669, he calculated some remarkable eclipses of the fixed stars with great precision, which procured him the thanks of the Royal Society, and the correspondence of some of its most learned members. In the year 1674, passing through London on his way to the University, he was informed by Sir Jonas Moore, that a true account of the tides would be highly acceptable to his majesty (Charles II.) and he embraced the opportunity of recommending himself to the favour of the king by gratifying his wishes. He also constructed two barometers, at the request of Sir Jonas Moore, who shewed them as great curiosities to the King and the Duke of York, and accompanied them with Mr. Flamstead's directions, for judging of the weather by these instruments. This great patron and friend, Sir Jonas, the year following, brought Mr. Flamstead a warrant to be astronomer to the King, with a salary of £100 a-year, payable out of the ordnance. This appointment did not lessen his inclination to go to the church, and a few months afterwards he was ordained by the Bishop of Ely. In the year 1684 he was presented to the living of Burstow, in Surrey. On the 10th August, 1675, during his residence at Greenwich, he laid the first stone of the Royal Observatory, built by Charles II., at the solicitation of Sir Jonas Moore, then surveyor general of ordnance. He took possession of the Observatory in 1676, and directed his whole attention to that science which had been the means of raising him to the honourable situation in which he was now placed. After having made many important discoveries and improvements in astronomy, as may be seen from perusing the Philosophical Transactions, published at this time, he died on the last day of December, 1719. About six years after his disease, his great work, Historia Cœlestis Britannica, was published and dedicated to the king. It had been prepared and part printed before his death, and will be a lasting and noble monument to his memory. He composed the British Catalogue of Fixed Stars, containing about three thousand, which is twice the number of those contained in the catalogue of Hevelius. To each of these stars he has annexed its longitude, latitude, right ascension, and distance from the pole-star; together with the variation of right ascension, and declination, while the longitude increases a degree. The great accuracy and extent of Mr. Flamstead's observations are deserving of admiration, nor has any age or country produced a more eminent astronomer, if we except the late celebrated Dr. Herschel, whose discoveries have raised the astonishment of all Europe.

William Hutton, the celebrated historian, was born in Full street, Derby, in 1729, where his father was a woolcomber, burthened with a large family, for whom his utmost exertions scarcely sufficed to procure subsistence. When five years old, Hutton tells us he was sent to school to a Mr. Thomas Meat, who often, he adds, "took occasion to beat my head against the wall, holding it by the hair, but never could beat any learning into it." He continued his attendance for about two years, when he was taken away; and, although only 7 years old, was sent to work at the silk mill. At the close of this weary bondage in his fourteenth year, he was bound apprentice again, for seven years more, to his uncle, a stocking weaver of Nottingham. After remaining with him for some time, a quarrel ensued, and he ran away; but in less than a week his finances being exhausted, he resolved to throw himself upon the protection of his father, and the affair ended by his consenting to complete his engagement with his uncle. He seems now to have first begun to shew that ingenuity and taste for intellectual occupation, which we find afterwards so strongly marking his character. Having borrowed a dulcimer, he set about the fabrication of an instrument for himself; but as he had neither timber to work upon, tools to work with, nor money to purchase either, one of the family relics in the shape of a large trunk was made to supply the former, while his pocket knife had to serve all the variety of edge tools, and a fork with one prong was made to act in the capacity of sprig-awl and gimblet. In this way he at last completed the dulcimer; which, after learning to play, he sold to one of his wealthier companions for 16s., bought a coat with the money, and constructed a better instrument for himself. In 1746, he first began to be fond of books, and those he bought being mostly in a tattered condition, he felt anxious to restore them to a more seemly appearance; and accordingly bought from a bookbinder several of his cast-off tools and a worn-down press, for which he paid 2s. This proved for 42 years his best binding press. Seeing no prospect of anything but drudgery and poverty in the trade to which he had been brought up, his great ambition now was to be settled in business as a bookseller, and he at last determined to set up in that character in the town of Southwell. Here he accordingly opened a shop, with (as he expresses it) about 20s. worth of trash for all his stock, and in one day became the most eminent bookseller in the place. This humble attempt was, however, the beginning of his prosperity. Next year he was offered about 2 cwt. of old books, on his note of hand for 27s. Upon this, he determined to break up his establishment, and transfer himself to Birmingham. There he succeeded so well that by the end of the first year he had saved about £20. Mr. Hutton had been in the habit of sending verses occasionally to the magazines, almost from the commencement of his residence in Birmingham; but it was in the year 1780 that he undertook for the first time to write a book. This was his celebrated history of Birmingham, for which he was immediately elected a fellow of the antiquarian society of Edinburgh. Of his other works, the principal are his "History of the battle of Bosworth," his "History of Derby," and his "Description of the Roman Wall." In order to prepare himself for the composition of this celebrated remnant of antiquity, he performed a journey of about 600 miles, entirely on foot, at the age of 78. Soon after the publication of his history of Derby, the riots at Birmingham took place, when his house was burnt to the ground, and property to the amount of £8,000 destroyed. In 1806 he visited London, on which occasion he remarks "I was never more than twice in London on my own concerns; the first was in 1749, to make a purchase of materials for trade, to the amount of Three Pounds; the last was in 1806, 57 years after, to ratify the purchase of an estate which cost £11,590. One laid a foundation for the other, and both answered expectation." He died September the 20th, 1814, at the advanced age of 92, and was burried in Aston Church.

The corporation are lords of the manor, and considerable owners.

Under the NEW POOR LAW, which passed in 1834, the Derby Poor Law Union has been formed, which consists of the parishes of All Saints, St. Alkmund, St. Peter, St. Werburgh, and St. Michael's, with the townships of Little Chester, Darley, and Litchurch, containing together a population of 43,684 souls; and the UNION HOUSE, Osmaston road, was erected in 1838. It is a plain brick building, the centre being 23 yards long, with wings of equal extent, The extent of the premises, including the gardens, is three acres, and the cost, including fixtures, about £8,000; it will accommodate 500 paupers, but it is limited to 450. RAILWAYS.—The DERBY STATION, London road, is a handsome brick structure of very great extent, being erected for the accommodation not only of the North Midland, but also for the Midland Counties, and Birmingham and Derby Companies. It was built by the Midland Company, and is under the management of its directors, but the other companies pay six per cent. on that proportion of the cost which is for their accommodation. The entire area enclosed is 26 acres. The station consists of offices for the booking of passengers, waiting rooms, handsome refreshment rooms, apartments for the directors, secretary, and other officers, warehouses for goods; a shed of great extent and lightness to cover in the landing places of the railways, and separate engine houses and workshops. The walls have open arches in their whole length, and the width is about 140ft. under three roofs, of light, yet strong construction, amply lighted from above, and supported by 60 fluted cast iron pillars 22ft. high. The length of the main shed is 450ft., but one of three roofs extends to the length of 1050ft. by 42ft. wide. The engine house and workshops afford every convenience, and are lighted from a dome shaped roof, the engine house contains sixteen lines of rails radiating from a single turn-table in the centre; the engines on their arrival are brought in here, placed upon the turn-table, and wheeled into any stall that may be vacant, each of the sixteen stalls in these locomotive stables will hold two or three engines each, and here the iron horses receive every attention necessary. There are also carriage houses and workshops on a large scale, for the repairing everything on the spot, and upwards of 600 men are employed in the various departments of the station. On the south side are the gas works, from which the whole of the establishment is lighted, about 1000 burners being used for that purpose. The Midland Hotel, at the entrance of the station, is fitted up in a superior style of elegance for passengers travelling by railway, and post-horses and carriages are always in readiness. Thos. Jackson, Esq., of London, is the proprietor, for whom Mrs. Susan Chatfield is the manager. The Refreshment rooms at the station are also under the same management.

IMPROVEMENTS.—In 1766, an act was obtained for selling part of Nun's green, and for applying the money for the improvemement of the remaining part of the said green. In 1792, an act was obtained for paving, lighting, cleansing, and otherwise improving the streets within the borough of Derby, and for selling a piece of waste ground called Nun's green. This continued in force till 1825, when it being found insufficient for the increasing wants of the public, a further act was obtained "for better paving and otherwise improving the borough of Derby." Under this act power was given to take down the Town hall and build a new one, to erect a new market, to take measures for improving the streets, and lighting the town, for establishing a night watch, for better paving, draining and cleansing the borough and for preventing nuisances. The powers of this act were vested in commissioners, consisting of the Mayor, Aldermen and owners of property of the rateable value £30 a year. By this act the commissioners were empowered to borrow £20,000 to be laid out in lighting and improving the town.

The streets and principal thoroughfares have, during the last 30 years, been greatly improved, and new streets have been formed in every quarter, particularly in the Castle fields, Nun's green, Kensington, between the Derwent and North parade, and between the Normanton and Osmaston roads; and during this period four Protestant churches, one Catholic church, with numerous schools and charitable institutions have been erected, all of which are noticed under their various heads. The efforts of the commissioners since the improvement act of 1825, have been judicious and energetic in attending to the health and convenience of the inhabitants. We will here make a few extracts on the sanatory condition of Derby, from the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry into the state of populous towns, in 1844:—"The principal part of Derby stands on a layer of gravel, under which is a thick bed of marl, the probable source of the salts of lime, which renders the waters so generally hard. The natural drainage of the town is good, both as to the quality of the soil and the fall; but the obstructions offered by weirs and by dams on the river, and by the foul brooks, render it at present extremely defective. 13,000 acres drain in this most inefficient manner into the river Dervent, the Markeaton and other brooks, which pass through and around the town, of which about 500 acres are occupied by roads, streets, and buildings. The sources of aqueous exhalation in and about Derby are, therefore, bad in their nature and very abundant. The Derwent washes the town to the entire east, while the Markeaton brook traverses it from west to east, with the Kensington and Bramble brooks falling into it. These streams are so surcharged with the town refuse as to be in fact nothing but great open sewers, the offensive emanations from which, owing to the circumstances stated, rise sensibly into the atmosphere, so as to offend in every quarter of the town. The state of public health in Derby is unfavourable, especially that of the operative classes; for while the average mortality of all England is but 2.2 per cent., and in many parts of the country is but 2.0 per cent., that of Derby was 2.6 per cent., during 1840, 41, and 42; and in those years the excess of deaths in Derby over the most favoured districts, amounted to 648; and, by the death of 752 labourers and artizans, the average age was only 21 years." The powers of this commission have been well executed; great evils, with their remedies, pointed out; but, it is to be feared, the greatest evil to the operative classes did not come under their powers.

The report of Mr. Commissioner Muggridge, on the condition of the frame-work knitters, published in 1845, ably describes the miseries, hardships, and privations of this industrious and deserving class of the community; and fully proves the necessity that the legislature should direct their attention to the evil, and endeavour to secure to the operatives of every class some chance of existence.

The flood culverts near the railway, on the Nottingham road, are about to be extended; and a sewer from thence to near the china manufactory, and a sewer in Park street, are about to be made.

A most melancholy accident happened at Derby on Tuesday, 5th Nov., 1844. It had been resolved to provide a cattle market, and otherwise improve the town, to effect which the mill fleam, or goit, in the Morledge, was to be covered over. This work was in progress, by Mr. James Sims, the contractor, six or seven yards of the arch being finished. The arch was a span of 38ft., and built to rise 6ft. 6in., forming the segment of a circle 62ft. diameter; it was 20in. thick, and turned in four rings of 5in. each. The arch and backing was laid and grouted with Barrow lime. At about a quarter past eight o'clock in the morning, the workmen struck some of the wedges away, and the whole of the centreings were lowered and eased from the masonry. The middle supports were then taken away, leaving the centreings to rest on the two opposite sides. At nine o'clock the workmen were employed in striking out the remaining wedges which supported each end of the centreings; the arch having stood sound until that time. Up to this period the masonry was free from the wood work, but immediately after the whole mass of brick work fell, computed to be about 60 tons weight, without the least warning, burying under the ruins six of the workmen, who were instantly crushed to death. At the time of the accident, two individuals were on the top of the arch, one of whom (Thomas Whittington) went down with it; the other, Jacob Beresford, jumped off, and providentially neither of them were hurt. After this it was agreed, with the view of making the work more secure, that two arches should be thrown over the stream instead of one. This was accordingly done, and the arches were completed, in so far are regards the brick work. From these two main arches two branches were projected to the mill fleam, to convey the water from Messrs. Evans's to the main trunks. These also were covered in. On Tuesday, 16th April, 1845, at three o'clock in the afternoon, Mr. Sims and his son, and five others, commenced removing the centres. Every thing appeared right, and the wedges were struck in the usual way; Mr. Sims was just in the act of remarking, "How well the cement had set," and that he "never saw a bit of better work," when down came the arch upon them and buried Mr. Sims and his son, and two others, under the ruins, of whom the elder Sims, and Edward Harlow, his apprentice, were killed. This was an elliptical arch; and Mr. Samuel Harper, the town surveyor, on the inquest, said, "The arch has been completed about a month. The work was well done; but I think the wedges ought to have been more gradually slackened, which would have afforded an opportunity to see how the work stood; and but for that reason it would have stood."

DERBY ANNALS.

The following is a short annals or sketch of the most remarkable events which have at different periods of time taken place in the town of Derby:—

918.—About this time, the Danes took possession of Derby, which was soon after recovered by the heroic Ethelfleda, daughter of Alfred the Great, and princess of the Mercians. The town appears at this time to have been strongly fortified. About twenty-four years after, it fell a second time into the hands of the Danes, but was delivered from their power by King Edmund.

1199.—King John conferred on the burgesses of Derby and Nottingham, an exclusive privilege of dyeing woollen cloth.

1202.—The burgesses of Derby were returned debtors to the King's Exchequer sixty-six marks, for the confirmation of their liberties; a sum nearly equal to £1,980 of our present money.

1257.—The burgesses of Derby paid a fine of ten marks, for having a certain charter granted to them, that no Jew or Jewess should reside in the town.

1302.—An act was obtained for paving the town.

1343.—A proclamation was made to carry into effect a previous resolution of parliament, expressly for the protection of the wool trade of Derby, which ordains that no person shall purchase wool at a lower price than nine and a half marks per sack, that being the price established in Derbyshire. About this period, was the conquest of Calais, where a mart for the wool at Flanders had long existed; and foreign wool was introduced into this country, which diminished the price of the home-grown commodity. Edward perceived the advantages of this intercourse, and notwithstanding this protecting edict, he incorported a company of wool merchants, and ordained that the price fixed by them at Calais should be the regulating value. This company maintained its station, keeping up a continual correspondence with agents in Derby and Nottingham, until the loss of Calais under Queen Mary, when that channel of prosperity to this town gradually declined.

1534.—Two gallows were erected for hanging prisoners, and the next year the dissolution of the Abbeys commenced.

1545.—Mr. Griffin was at St. Peter's church, and would have taken Mr. George Curzon away, being a ward; the town bell was rung, and resistance was made.

1554.—Sir John Marriott, vicar of St. Alkmund's, hung himself by one of the bell-ropes in the belfrey.

1555.—By the charter of grants of Queen Mary, there appears to have been three fulling mills on the river Derwent, and the name of "Full street" still points out the particular part of the banks of the river where the fullers carried on this branch of business.

1556.—Joan Waste was burnt as a heretic at Windmill pit, near the road going to Burton. She was a poor blind woman, who, during the reign of Edward VI., had attended the services of the church, and had acquired a thorough knowledge of the Protestant religion. After Queen Mary came to the throne, she was induced to continue a public profession of it, and she was accused before the Bishop of the diocese, of maintaining that the Sacrament was only a memorial or representation of the body of Christ, and the elements were mere bread and wine. This opinion she was required to renounce; but persisting in it, she received sentence of condemnation; she was then committed to the custody of the bailiffs, and kept till the writ for burning heretics was sent, when she suffered death as a martyr to the Protestant faith.

1576.—From a dispute, Sir John Zouch and Sir Thomas Stanhope assembled great numbers of persons; but the peace was kept by the interference of the burgesses, and the ringing of the town's bell.

1585.—Mary Queen of Scots was lodged one night at Derby, on her road to Tutbury from Wingfield Manor.

1586.—The plague broke out in St. Peter's parish.

1587.—St. Mary's bridge was broken down, and the mills which stood at the further end were carried away with the water.

1588.—There was a great fray between Mr. Vernon's and Mr. Langford's men, who were parted by the burgesses, and the ringing of the town's bell.

1592.—The plague again broke out in Derby, and great numbers were carried off by this awful calamity.

1601.—A woman burnt in Windmill Pit, for poisoning her husband.

1603.—The burgesses began to break open commons. The year ensuing they continued the practice, and justices of the peace were sent to decide the matter. At the next assizes they were indicted, and three or four of them committed to the common gaol.

1607.—The witches of Bakewell were hanged.

1610.—By a great flood on the Markeaton brook, two prisoners were drowned in the town gaol, which stood where the Royal Hotel now stands.

1610.—There was a great affray between the electioneering parties of Sir Philip Stanhope and Sir George Gresley, and much controversy about it in the town; in consequence the assizes were removed and held at Ashbourn that year.

1611.—A great flood on the Markeaton brook.

1617.—A Cockpit was made on Nun's green.

1633.—King Charles I. was expected at Derby, but was prevented by Lord Grey from coming. However he visited the town two years after. When the king returned from Ripon, in Yorkshire, where he had been negociating a treaty with the Scots, he passed through the town. On this occasion, the corporation gave to the Earl of Newcastle, by whom he was attended, a fat ox, a calf, six fat sheep, and a purse of money, that he might keep hospitality in the town. They also presented the Elector Palatine who accompanied him with twenty broad pieces.

1634.—A great snow, wherein four persons perished between Derby and Chaddesden.

1636.—The spring was forward, and the plague again made its appearance; it was thought (first) in Bag lane.

1643.—On the 25th of August, the royal standard was erected at Nottingham, and the king marched through Derby. It is said that he borrowed £300 of the corporation, and all the small arms they could furnish, which he promised to return at the conclusion of the war. In November, Sir John Gell, of Hopton, came to the town, garrisoned it for the parliament, and kept the main guard at the Town hall.

1645.—The town was disgarrisoned and the soldiers discharged. The assizes were held in the Friars' close.

1652.—The ceremony of marriage was performed by justices of the peace.

1659.—An insurrection was made against Richard, son to Oliver Cromwell.

1660.—The new mace was made; before which, the mayor had the two old ones, which formerly belonged to the bailiffs. The County hall built in St. Mary's gate.

1661.—The river Derwent was so wonderfully dried up, "soe that people might goe over drye shod."

1662.—A great hurricane, which blew up trees and did considerable damage on the south side of the town, while the north side completely escaped.

1665.—Derby was again visited with the plague; the town was forsaken; the farmers declined the market place, and grass grew upon the spot on which the necessaries of life had been sold. To prevent a famine, the inhabitants erected a stone a little way out of the town, for the purpose of exchange. This was called the Headless Cross.

1672.—The maltsters, who were not burgesses, by an order of sessions upon the statutes of the 29th of Elizabeth, were suppressed; upon which twelve agreed with the corporation for their freedom. Barley was then about 2s. 3d. a strike.

1673.—A great flood upon the Markeaton brook, filled the cellars as high as Rotten row, and broke down three of ten bridges. St. James's bridge was landed at the Sun inn, St. Peter's street.

1674-5.—February 18th, the funeral of Christiana Countess of Devonshire, was solemnized in great state. Dr. Fampton preached a funeral sermon from Prov. xiv. 1. In the afternoon a funeral oration was made by Mr. Nealer, from 2 Samuel iii. 38, in commemoration and commendation of Col. Charles Cavendish, who was slain in the civil war, about Newark, in the year 1643; whose bones were brought with them, and likewise laid in the vault in All Hallows church. One hundred pounds were given as a dole to the poor of Derby.

1676.—A great frost, and the Derwent frozen over, so that loaded wagons were able to cross the ice.

1678.—A great alarm in Derby, occasioned by a letter found at Thurlston, hinting that 500 papists would rendezvous at Nun's green the following (Sunday) night.

1680.—The association was burnt, the town charter surrendered up, and the present charter obtained at the charge of nearly £400.

1688.—Noted for the glorious revolution. On the 21st of November, the Earl of Devonshire came to Derby, with a small retinue, which some accounts assert was composed of 500 men. He invited many gentlemen to dinner, and openly declared his sentiments in favour of the Prince of Orange, who was then landed in England. He read to the mayor and commonalty, the declaration of the prince, and delivered another made by himself and the nobility and gentry in concert with him, "That they would, to their utmost, defend the Protestant religion, the laws of the kingdom, and the rights and liberties of the subject."

1698.—On Novembor 5th, a great flood, occasioned a great part of St. Werburgh's church to fall.

1715.—Was noted for the rebellion caused by the Chevalier de St. George, son of James II., but which was ended at Preston, on Monday, 14th November, when 7 lords and 1,500 men, including officers, fell into the hands of the king's forces.

1730.—Old town hall taken down.

1740.—A great flood; many of the inhabitants were confined to their upper rooms, and were in great fear of being swept away by the torrent of water.

1745.—Noted for the rebellion of Prince Charles Edward Stuart, commonly known by the name of the Pretender; when a desperate effort was made by the partizans of that family to regain the throne which James II. had reluctantly abdicated. On the 4th of December, the prince, with his army, amounting to about 6,000 men, entered Derby. Previously to their appearance in the town, steps had been taken to provide for the safety of the inhabitants, and to oppose their progress towards London. Nearly 600 men had been raised by subscription of the gentlemen of the town and country, besides 150 levied and maintained by the Duke of Devonshire. On Tuesday, the third of the month, these forces were reviewed by his Grace and the Marquis of Hartington. The inhabitants were now in high spirits, which were much increased by the news, that the army of the Duke of Cumberland would come to an engagement with the rebels the next day. But they were soon thrown into the greatest terror and confusion, by hearing of the approach of the van-guard of the rebels towards Ashbourn. The disorder was not diminished by the immediate orders which were given for the soldiers to march out of the town. Distraction appeared in every countenance, and several of the principal gentlemen and tradesmen, having conveyed away or secreted their most valuable effects, now departed themselves, with their wives and children, with all possible haste. About ten o'clock at night, the drums beat to arms, and the soldiers by torch light marched for Nottingham, with the Duke of Devonshire at their head. About eleven o'clock the day following, two of the van-guard of the enemy entered the town, and immediately seized a fine horse belonging to Mr. Stamford. When they reached the Market place, they continued between two and three hours on horseback; and to prevent any further impression being made on their minds, the bells were rung, and several bonfires were kindled. About three o'clock in the afternoon, Lord Balmarino with the life guards, and many of their chiefs arrived on horseback, and being the flower of the army, made a fine appearance. Soon after them, the main body marched into the town, in tolerable order, six or eight a-breast, with about eight standards, having white flags and a red cross. However, old men and boys formed a part of their army, and their music was chiefly the bag-pipe. In obedience to their commands, their prince was publicly proclaimed by the common crier, before his arrival. He marched into the town on foot, and was attended by a large body of men, who conducted him to Lord Exeter's house, in the Full street. The Dukes of Athol and Perth, Lord Balmarino, Lord George Murray, Lord Pitsligo, Old Gordon of Glenbucket, Lord Nairn, and some other persons of distinction, with their chiefs and general officers, took possession of the best houses in the town. Many ordinary houses, both public and private, had each forty or fifty men quartered upon them, and some gentlemen's houses nearly a hundred. Great pains were taken to supply these unwelcome visitors with every necessary article of food, and every expedient was employed to prevent insult and depredation; but all efforts for this purpose proved ineffectual; for on the second day they seized every sort of property, and behaved with so much violence, that several gentlemen thought it prudent to conceal themselves. They beat up for volunteers, but were only joined by three idle and unprincipled fellows of the lowest class. By a calculation made, collecting the number in each house throughout the town, there appeared to have been 7,148 persons, exclusive of women and children, in the town. The evening on which the rebels arrived in Derby, a council of war was held. The only resolution made was that of levying money from the town. Having obtained a list of the gentlemen who had subscribed for the defence of his majesty King George, they demanded that the money should be advanced to them; and it was found necessary to comply with their requisition. The total sum raised in various ways, during their stay, was between two and three thousand pounds. In the evening of the second day, another council was held, at which their debates grew very warm, and were overheard by Mr. Alderman Eaton, who constantly attended the Duke of Perth. The final result of their deliberations was, to return to the north. The causes of this resolution was supposed to be, the very small encouragement they had met with on the road, and the great strength and quick approaches of the army under the command of the Duke of Cumberland. Another circumstance is mentioned in Derby, as having had some influence on their determination. It is said that when the standard of their prince was taken into his lodgings, it was broken at the entrance into the door. This incident was considered as ominous of their fate, and the minds of some of their chiefs were a good deal affected by it. Early on Friday morning, their drums beat to arms, and their bag-pipes played about the town. As their advanced guard had secured the pass at Swarkeston bridge, it was expected that they would march towards London. But about seven o'clock, they made a precipitate retreat towards Ashbourn. Their hussars rode into the neighbouring villages, and plundered the inhabitants of horses, and of every other kind of valuable property of which they had the least want. Two of the rebels went to Clifton, near Ashbourn, and demanded a horse, which being refused, they shot the person to whom it belonged. In the like violent manner, they took away the life of the innkeeper at Hanging bridge, betwixt Ashbourn, and Leek. The fate of a gentleman, son to Mr. Birch, of Manchester, is particularly deserving of notice. Arriving at Derby in the evening of the second day, from the Duke of Cumberland, he was stopped by the guard attending the artillery on Nun's green, and being suspected as a spy, was closely confined in the house of Lord Exeter. The next morning, before it was light, when the main body was leaving the town, he leaped from a window six yards high, into the garden. Attempting to pass a spiked part of the wall at the end of it, he fell into the river Derwent, but swam to some steps in the adjoining garden. Thinking himself not safe in this situation, he took off all his clothes, and left them, with a gold watch and some money, which soon fell into the hands of the rebels. He then plunged again into the river, and followed its course four miles to Alvaston. When he came to the village, he took refuge in a farm house, where, after the surprise of the family had subsided, he met with the utmost care and attention.

After having procured some clothes at another house, he escaped to Nottingham, and the day following passed through Derby on his way to his friends at Manchester.

TRADE AND MANUFACTURES.

Situated on the banks of the Derwent, Derby constituted a place eminently favourable for the early institution and prosperity of manufactures; and the waters of that fine river were rendered useful here by the erection of large mills, for the manufacture of silk, long before the vast spread of steam power. Indeed, Derby seems to have been noted for its woollen manufacture at a very early period. Afterwards, plain worsted stockings were the chief article manufactured, and the hosiers connected with their business that of combing and spinning Jersey. Subsequently, cotton hosiery was manufactured to a great extent. Of these branches of manufacture, the chief is silk; and Derby, with Nottingham, is now the centre of the silk hosiery trade; and Derby enjoys a good share of the cotton hosiery and of the lace manufactures. The former of which, (though the stocking frame was invented in 1589,) was not of much importance till the middle of the 18th century, nor the latter till 1778, when the point-net machine was invented and appended to a stocking frame, but has lately been supersded by warp and bobbin net machines, worked on various new and improved principles. The bone or cushion lace was from an early period a source of profitable industry to a considerable number of females in this town, who afterwards found a more constant employment in chevining hosiery, (ornamenting stockings with clocks, &c.,) or embroidering machine wrought lace net.

The Rev. William Lee, M. A., who invented the first stocking frame in 1689, was a native of either Calverton or Woodborough, in Nottinghamshire. Deering says that he was heir to a pretty freehold estate, and being deeply in love with a young person to whom he paid his addresses, but whom he found more intent upon her knitting than to his vows and protestations, he was induced to contrive a machine which would render the mode of knitting by hand entirely useless. Others, however, say that Mr. Lee was a poor curate, and married; and his wife being obliged to occupy herself industriously with knitting, which interfered very much with the attention necessary to her family, he was prompted to attempt the invention of the present complex yet simple machinery. It is certain that he or his brother exhibited the machine before Queen Elizabeth; but his invention being despised in his native country, he went to France, with several English workmen, where he was prtronized by Henry IV. The murder of that monarch overturned all his hopes of success; he died of grief and chagrin at Paris, and his few surviving workmen returned to England. After some time, a company of framework knitters was established in London, which was for a considerable time the nursery of this manufacture, and the hose made were principally of silk, of the same colour as the dress with which they were worn, and were called fashion work. In time this custom gave way; fewer colours were wanted; and as the article could be manufactured cheaper in the country, and of equal quality, thither the manufacture was again transfered, and ceased in Town in 1664. The trade soon spread itself over a great part of Nottinghamshire, Derbyshire, and Leicestershire, and a few frames are at work in most large towns in the Kingdom.

The first stocking frame produced only plain work. The Derby rib machine was invented in 1758, by Jedediah Strutt, who first appreciated the importance of Sir Richard Arkwright's inventions, and entered into partnership with him; and under a patent, which was granted them for fourteen years, carried on the manufacture of ribbed stockings till 1797; during which time the patent right was thrice unsuccessfully disputed; first with the hosiers of Derby, and afterwards with those of Nottingham.

In 1775, the warp machine, which united the stitch of the stocking frame with the warp of the weaver's loom, was invented by Mr. Crane, of Edmonton.

In 1776, the knotting machine was invented by Mr. Horton.

In 1782, The warp frame was invented by James Tarrant, which makes an inferior kind of stockings, called cut-ups, and is also used in making warp lace.

1835, a patent for a knitting machine producing distinct loops upon short needles was obtained by Whitworth.

In 1839, Mather's new patent stocking-frame was introduced, an invention of great importance to the trade and country at large; he has not strayed from the original principle, but finished what Lee began; it is a rotatory frame with double tire and parallel motion, and makes 4 or 6 hose at the same time, and can be worked by the steam engine.

It appears from a document sent in 1844 to the Board of Trade, that the hosiery frames in Great Britain and Ireland actually at work, amount to 33,300, of which about 18,000 are employed in making plain cotton hose, half-hose drawers, pieces, gloves, caps and shirts; about 9,000 in making plain worsted hosiery; about 1,080 making plain silk hose, purses and gloves; about 70 making plain flax thread hose, principally in Ireland; about 2,770 making worsted ribbed hose; 750 making cotton ribbed hose and tops; and 40 making silk ribbed hose; 200 making silk knotted hose; 40 making silk spider and jack-machine hose; 800 making cotton, tickler, spider, and jack-machine hose; 250 making Berlin warp pieces, &c.; about 200 making warp sham knotted hose, cotton, worsted, and silk; 550 making plain gloves; 150 cashmere gloves; 20 cashmere hose; 530 tuck hose, cotton, worsted, and silk; 70 making muffatees, muffs, &c., silk, cotton, and worsted; 350 making cravats, shawls, scarfs, &c., made from warp and plain frames; warp fancy gloves. Being an increase since 1815, over Blackner's calculation, of about 6,300 frames, of which several are employed in new branches. The wrought cotton hose branch has decreased, since 1815, from 7,589 to 5,580 frames; and the wrought worsted hose from 5,650 to 4,200; whilst the cut-up frames have increased from 370 to 4,500. Blackner gives no worsted hose as being cut-up; now they are estimated at about 4,200.

THE LACE TRADE.

The first lace made by machinery in England, was formed by removing the loops of the plain stocking fabric to form the mesh, but was very imperfect. About the year 1778, the thread which conjoins the loops, was placed round the loops alternately, keeping the stocking loop unremoved; this method formed a complete sexangular mesh, but had litttle or no sale, the article being loose, and only retaining its form by stiffening, which was very imperfectly done.

In 1778, the point net machine (appended to a stocking frame) was invented by Messrs. Linley, Taylor, and Flint, of Nottingham.

In 1786, an improved method of making point net, and re-looping the conjoined thread, made a fast mesh, so as to require little or no care in the stiffening. From this period, lace by machinery began to be in considerable demand, made from the barleycorn point, a fast wrought net.

In 1802, there were in England about 1,200 machines, all employed in making silk fast net. At this time, the French had increased their machines, at Lyons and Nismes, to near 2,000, all employed on single press net; and in order to protect it against the superior quality of the English net, the French republic had prohibited the latter so early as 1795.

In 1803, the war with France again commencing, Mr. William Hayne, the original patentee, was in Paris, and was detained by Buonaparte; his object was to smuggle British net into France, which he continued to do, with varied success, till 1809, when his agents having betrayed him, no less than £25,000 worth was seized in one week, which, together with the fine, amounted to £40,000. He had before sustained considerable losses, by seizures in this contraband trade, and succeeded almost by a miracle in making his escape; and though he had been considered of unbounded wealth, in 1811 he was found insolvent, and died in a childish insanity.

In 1814, after the peace of Paris, the speculations in Nottingham and Derby were ruinously extensive. Lace machines rose in value from £25 to £130, under the impression that British lace would have the same demand as in 1802. Mr. Morris, who had been at Lyons and Nismes, thought differently; and a little before he died, he sent a memorial, written with his own hand, to Lord Sidmouth, pointing out the danger from French competition, and predicting the total extinction of the silk-lace manufacture in England. The admonition was thrown by as ill-timed and useless, by that minister. However, the British were met in the great markets of Spain, Sicily, and South America, by the French single press net, stiffened and dressed in such a superior manner as wholly to supersede them, which caused the failure of most of the old houses. Large quantities of French net were imported into England, at a duty of 40 per cent. which was greatly evaded. Various memorials were presented to Mr. Robinson, and at length the duty was altered to 2s. per square yard, or more than 75 per cent. This continued till Mr. Huskisson, by his celebrated measure, altered the whole scale of duties, which took place in 1826; since which the point net machines have gradually disappeared. The workmen, principally inventors of machinery, finding that in France the bobbin-net machines were increasing at the rate of 20 per month, came to the resolution to memorialize the Board of Trade, when Mr. Herries promised a careful investigation under the Wellington administration, which was soon afterwards dissolved. After which Mr. G. Henson, of Nottingham, was permitted to wait on the new administration, but Lord Auckland doubted the propriety of interference; and Mr. P. Thompson, the President of the Board of Trade, treated the matter as frivolous and unworthy of his attention. Their Majesties soon afterwards, with a praiseworthy attention to the distress of the country, gave positive orders that no person should appear at court dressed in any but British manufactures. Silk lace had begun to be made from the bobbin-net machines, which had increased since 1813, from little more than 200 to more than 4,500, at an expense of nearly a million and a half of capital. A species of white silk lace had been made from the warp frame, another distinct mode of making machine lace. Mr. Joseph Crowder, of Nottingham, who had made considerable improvements in lace machinery, directed his attention to the stiffening of it, in which the French far excelled; and from great perseverance, was enabled to produce an article from the bobbin-net machine, equal in appearance to the French tullee, but decidedly superior in stamina. It was conceived, that if her Majesty would order a dress of this net, and thus introduce it to the notice of the nobility and gentry, their patriotism might induce them to use a British instead of a foreign article. A petition to her Majesty was signed by the principal manufacturers, and presented by Sir Herbert Taylor. Her Majesty, with the greatest condescension and attention, not only gave the order, but directed Messrs. Train and Wesson, who had in the handsomest manner undertaken to complete it, to apply to her milliner, through whom she gave directions as to the manner in which the dress, when made, was most likely to meet the public approbation. This dress, when completed, was sent by direction of Sir Herbert Taylor, direct to her Majesty, at St. James's palace. The pattern was made in stripes of nine inches, and consisted of an elegant star, having a large open-work in the middle, beautifully worked with the needle, encircled with a series of roses; the whole appearance of the dress was brilliant, and absolutely dazzled the eye. Her Majesty took the earliest and most effectual method to introduce the article to the notice of her court, by wearing it at the Juvenile Ball, given by their Majesties on the 24th of May, 1831, in honour of the Princess Victoria of Kent, the heiress presumptive to the crown, and now our most gracious Sovereign. Thus her Majesty in the noblest manner did her duty, in introducing the article in the most effectual way to her Court. The manufacture of lace is principally confined to the Counties of Nottingham, Derby, and Leicester; there being, according to Mr. Grainger, 2,760 machines employed there; and only 787 in the Isle of Wight and all the rest of England. The value of this machinery may be estimated in round numbers at a sum not far short of £1,500,000. The amount of the actual fixed capital has not been calculated, but the value of the goods sold in the year 1835, was £2,212,000. The annual value has since fallen off, but to what extent is uncertain. A large portion of the machines are now worked by the agency of steam, and the broad machines worked by manual labour, have two men each, who work them in "four hour shifts." About 700 persons are employed in Derby in the manufacture of lace.

In 1833, a patent was obtained, of which Messrs. Fisher and Crofts were the proprietors, for improvements in the machinery for ornamenting bobbin-net, with patterns of opaque cloth work, made by the employment of additional warp threads to each carriage or bobbin.

In 1837, William Bull Dexter obtained a patent for applying the Jacquard principle to the manufacture of warp-lace, the first application of this principle in Nottingham for figuring lace; but it has since extended to all kinds, and its powers seem but half developed, and will have a great effect on the fancy and warp-lace manufacturer.

The Jacquard Machine, by means of which great improvements have been made to the lace machine, for the figuring or working patterns upon it, is one of the most useful of modern discoveries; it was invented by a Frenchman of the name of Jacquard, who was originally a straw hat maker at Lyons; for this invention the Emperor Napoleon conferred upon him a decoration, and granted him a pension of one thousand crowns. But on his endeavouring to introduce the machine to general use at Lyons, the workmen broke out into revolt; in consequence of which, his machine was ordered to be destroyed in the great square of that city. From the successful competition of foreigners, and the consequent decline of trade in France, some intelligent manufacturers were led to think on the man whose discovery might bring some relief to that depression. They found strength of mind to make another experiment, it succeeded; silks of greater beauty were introduced at a lower cost; this was a dawn of prosperity, and it has continued to shine. Of that machine, which had been devoted to destruction, thousands have been introduced; such was the success of the Jacquard machine in France. Some years elapsed before it was introduced into this country. In the silk manufacture of Spitalfields it was first used; then in the carpet manufacture of Scotland, and subsequently of England; in the silk and cotton manufacture of the West Riding of Yorkshire, where some thousands are employed in weaving worsted, damask, figured merinos, figured stuffs, fancy waistcoats, silk manufactures, camblets, carpets, &c., and a great many at Barnsley and the neighbourhood, in the linen manufacture; and lastly this method is coming into general use in the lace manufacture.

The method invented by M. Jacquard, in using perforated cards, seems likely to be superseded; the using of knobs on the cards being now preferred by the mechanics. A great improvement has been made upon this principle; the cylinder, instead of standing perpendicular, is now fixed on horizontally, and made to advance and recede in a straight line to the bolts, having no angular pressure, and consequently have no tension to cause them to break off, as in the perpendicular motion.

In 1838, a new and important manufacture arose in the making of lace caps from the hosiery or stocking frame, by the aid of the jack-tickler or Jacquard machine; this machine has been latterly applied to the making of lace in breadths, and with such brilliant success as to astonish the oldest workmen.

In 1844, Wm. Clark, obtained a patent for improvements in machinery for manufacturing ornamented bobbin-net or twist lace, and for making it scalloped or any figure of edge.

In 1844, Thomas Unsworth, of Derby, silk weaver, obtained a patent for an improved manufacture of elastic fabrics. About the same time, several patents were taken out for improvements in lace machinery by Nottingham machinists.

In 1844, Richard Harris the elder, of Leicester, manufacturer, obtained a patent for improvements in machinery employed in the manufacture of looped fabrics.

Silk Mills and Manufacture.—Silk was used as the principal material in hosiery, soon after the invention of the stocking frame; but it was not until the beginning of the eighteenth century, that the manufacture of that elegant article upon an extensive scale, by machinery, was introduced into England. The Italians previously possessed the art of throwing silk by machinery, and the French excelled in the fabric of piece-goods; but all attempts to rival these productions here were unavailable, till an enterprizing mechanic, named John Lombe, proceeded in 1715 to Italy, clandestinely, and at great personal risk, investigated the whole process, and returned in 1717, with plans and models, and with two Italian workmen. He immediately came to Derby, rented a long swampy island in the Derwent, and erected "the Silk Mill," the first in England, which was long esteemed a masterpiece of mechanical skill, and was said by every turn of the water-wheel, (which went round three times in a minute,) to organzine, or prepare for the weaver, 73,726 yards of silk thread. In 1718, he obtained a patent for fourteen years, but dying shortly afterwards, from poison, as it was suspected, administered by an Italian sent to England for that purpose, his brother William succeeded to the business; but being of a melancholy disposition, the mill soon came into the hands of his cousin, Thomas Lombe, who continued the silk manufacture here till 1732, about which time 300 hands are said to have been employed. The patent then expired, and on application for a renewal, he was knighted, and in lieu of it, a remunerating grant of £14,000 was voted to him, and a model of the works was ordered to be deposited in the Tower, at London. Since this original mill was erected, many others on improved principles have been added; and a government ordnance depot, built in 1803 for 15,000 stand of arms and 12,000 barrels of gunpowder, has been converted into a silk mill. Besides the manufacture of hosiery and lace, the weaving of piece goods was introduced about twenty years ago; and about ten years afterwards, sarcenets, gros-de-naples, and other rich silks, were manufactured in a style equal to those of Spitalfields. The weaving of narrow piece goods was introduced in 1823, by James and C. S. Peet, when ferrets, galloons, doubles, &c., were manufactured by steam power. Ribbon hand-loom weaving was also carried on; but now the steam-loom ribbon manufacture has not only put an end to this branch of the hand-loom weaving at Derby, but is entering into formidable rivalry with that great monopolizer of the ribbon manufacture, Coventry.

The broad loom fabrics, introduced here by Mr. William Taylor, then produced by hand looms, were chiefly gros-de-naples, plain velvets, plain and figured satins, plain sarcenets, &c. The total number of looms thus employed in Derby and its dependencies, in 1839, was about 344, and the trade was extending.

The first fire proof mill ever built in England, and the largest mill in Derby, was erected in 1793, by Messrs. W. Y. and J. Strutt. The floors are constructed on brick arches, and paved with brick. These gentlemen were extensive manufacturers of cotton thread, hosiery, figured waistcoat pieces, &c., for many years. This mill is now occupied by Mr. Joseph Davenport, as a silk mill.

COTTON TRADE.

The first Cotton Mill erected in the World was built at Nottingham, in 1769, by the celebrated Richard Arkwright. The machinery here introduced for the spinning of cotton was invented in Lancashire; but, from a determination of the workmen to resist all improvements that had a tendency to supersede manual labour, Nottingham obtained the honour of having the first mill for that purpose. Until the latter part of the 18th century, the warp of cotton goods was of linen yarn, principally imported from Germany or Ireland; and the weft was of cotton, which was carded by hand, and spun in the weaver's own family by the distaff and spindle, which, after England began to export cotton goods, were soon found greatly insufficient to supply the increasing demands of the loom, though upwards of 50,000 spindles were daily in motion, in Lancashire, by as many individuals. At this juncture, Thomas Highs, a reed maker of Leigh, assisted by John Kay, a clock maker, invented a machine which gave motion to six spindles, and which he named after his own daughter, "Jenny."

In 1767, James Hargrave, of Blackburn, constructed a spinning jenny that would spin 20 or 30 threads into yarn, but it was destroyed by a mob; in consequence of which, he left Lancashire and went to Nottingham, where he set several similar machines to work; but his patent was invaded, and he died in poverty and distress, having no claim to the invention, which belonged to the before named Thomas Highs, who also (in 1767) invented the Throstle, for the spinning of twist by rollers,—but of this he was also superseded by Richard Arkwright, who was a barber at Preston, who had the address to possess himself of a model of Highs's machine, and from it further improvement, particularly by the addition of two movements for the laying on and taking off the cotton from the carding engine, was the foundation of Mr. Arkwright's future prosperity, and of the extension of the cotton trade. After Mr. A., afterwards Sir Richard Arkwright, had constructed his machine, he found he had many difficulties to contend with, before he could derive any benefit from his invention. Being in low circumstances, it was necessary to find some persons of property who were able and willing to encourage his project. With these he was so fortunate as to meet, and a patent was obtained for the exclusive use of the first three movements, Carding, Sizing, and Roving, for the term of fourteen years. Another patent was afterwards granted for the operation of spinning during the same period. The specification was enrolled in Apl., 1776, which privilege he enjoyed till 1785, when his patent right was destroyed by a decision of the court of King's Bench after a long protracted litigation. Though Sir Richard has been deprived of the honour of the original invention, and subjected to a charge of a want of fair dealing towards Highs, he possessed the merit of having perfected that which before had attained only any embryo state, and of having surmounted difficulties by the force of his own mind, which scarcely any other man in the same situation could have triumphed over. His capacity for combination, if not of invention was of the highest order, and his manufactories in Derbyshire (see Cromford), and Nottinghamshire in the infancy of the cotton trade manifested the intelligence of a presiding genius. He became one of the richest commoners of England, and died at Cromford, in 1792, in the 60th year of his age. Two cotton mills were erected in Derby about the year 1780, and the manufacture of calico was also carried on by Mr. Strutt. Previous to the death of Sir Richard, whose principal establishment was at Comford, there were 16 other cotton mills in Derbyshire, belonging to various individuals, and the hands employed by them computed at 3,000. There is at present no cotton spun at Derby, but there is a manufactory of tapes and small wares, principally worked by steam power. At present there are in Derby 57 steam engines of the aggregate power of 629 horses, besides four water wheels of 116 horses' power. Since the introduction of the rotatory lace machine about the year 1830, many small steam engines in various parts have been erected, and now that the stocking frame is made on the rotatory principle, no doubt inanimate power will greatly increase in the lace and hosiery districts.

From 1776 to 1780, the average annual import of cotton wool into Great Britain was 6,766,613 lbs. In 1843, the quantity entered for consumption in the United Kingdom was 585,909,104 lbs. The export of cotton goods in 1780 was £355,060. In 1843, the official value was £82,165,291, of which the declared value was £23,443,039. In 1844, the exports at the declared value were £25,831,586. The official value being according to a scale fixed in 1694. In 1810, the whole of the British manufactures and produce exported at the official value, was £34,940,550, the declared value was £49,975,684, but which should have produced £58,875,740; in this year and the year previous, the exports were very large, for in the year following they were ten millions less in value. In 1820, the exports were £37,818,636 official value, £35,568,670 real value, and they should have been £63,724,386, being an annual depreciation of £28,155,710. In 1830, the exports at official value were £61,140,865, at declared value £38,251,503, which should have produced £101,763,602, being an annual depreciation of £63,511,499. In 1840, the exports were £102,705,372 official value, and £51,406,430 declared value, but which should have been £170,943,074, being an annual depreciation in the value of £110,536,644. In 1842, the exports at the declared value were £40,785,350. In 1843, £44,812,020. In 1844, £50,615,265. The price of weaving 12 yards of 60 reed 6-4ths cambric was in 1800, 14s. In 1812, 10s. In 1820, 4s. 6d. In 1830, 1s. 9d. In 1832, 1s. 7½d., after which this return for weaving is omitted. The growth of all our manufactures, particularly that of cotton, has been greatly facilitated by Bolton and Watt's Rotative Steam Engine, which gave full scope to Sir Richard Arkwright's inventions, and to the power loom invented by the Rev. — Cartwright, of Kent, in 1785, but not brought into extensive use till about 1820. About 1830, the lace machine was made rotatory, and the steam engine applied to it; and in 1839, the stocking frame also, as before noticed. Lace machines are now made of the width of 22 quarters; and no doubt the rotatory stocking frame will ere long equal it. In addition to hose, drawers, or singlets, coats of woollen yarn are manufactured, and it is anticipated will soon become an article of considerable export. It is estimated that the cotton twist and weft spun in Great Britain, amounts to 120,000,000 lbs. per annum, of which nearly one-tenth is used in the lace and hosiery manufacture, two-tenths, exported in twist and weft, and the remainder manufactured at home into calicos, muslins, fustains, &c.

In 1856, from Jan. 1st to June 30th, 22,413,888 lbs. of woollen and worsted yarn were exported against 20,071,744 lbs. for the same period for 1855, and 12,715,024lbs. for 1854. When we consider that our exports to foreign countries, (though they have increased since 1800 six times over on the aggregate, and in the cotton trade to a much greater extent,) never amounted to one-eight part of our home trade and consumption, one seems to be amazed at the magnitude of our commerce; from which we are led to suppose, that the labourers of England and the British islands are industrious, happy, improving, and contented; yet on examination the very reverse proves to be the case. They often lack employment, are badly paid, are demoralized, pauperized, and miserable. A large portion of the inhabitants can have no adequate conception of their condition. During the various panics which have occurred of late years, committees of investigation have repeatly been appointed in all the principal manufacturing towns, with the most appalling results, as to the misery and destitution of the inhabitants, and temporary relief afforded; but pauperism, destitution, and crime, are every year on the increase. Where are we to look to for a remedy? Adam Smith, in his "Wealth of Nations," says, "To say that what improves the circumstances of the greater part is an inconvenience to the whole, is to say, that a society can be flourishing and happy, of which the greater part are poor and miserable. It is equity that those who feed and clothe the whole, should have such a share as to be themselves well fed, clothed, and lodged." But this is a subject which not only the government, whose first care should be the well-being of man in general, but also the nobility, gentry, clergy, merchants, and manufacturers, ought to be all interested in devising means by which the industry of the people may be secured and fairly remunerated; the only real source of wealth, and of the well-being and safety of the state.

The Manufacture of Porcelain or China was commenced here about the year 1750, by Mr. Duesbury, who brought it to such perfection as in some respects to equal the best foreign china. A rich and elegant dessert service, consisting of one hundred and twenty pieces, was made for the Prince of Wales, afterwards George IV.; and rich services have been made for the Earl of Shrewsbury, the Duke of Devonshire, and other noblemen. In 1819, a rich service, for the Persian ambassador, was executed in a style of superior splendour; the ground was gold, chased, and inscribed with Persian characters. The "biscuit" figures, and ornamented china, of the most exquisite beauty, which is manufactured here to a considerable extent, were first made at this establishment, and are held in high estimation.

The Spar Works here are objects of curiosity, taste, and science. Mr. Elijah Mellor, in 1750, established the first jewellery manufactory here. The fluor spar, or as it is termed, "Blue John," is an elegant natural production. The only mountain where it can be obtained in sufficient abundance and quality for the purposes of manufacture, is situated westward of Castleton, between Mam Tor and the eminences that compose the Long Cliff. The deep violet is the most common kind, but in some a fine yellow tint prevails, and in others a pale rose colour. The acid procured from fluor spar is more powerfully corrosive than any other, and is used in engravings upon glass; and the spar is worked into a variety of useful and ornamental articles, such as vases, cups, necklaces, eardrops, &c. Mr. Joseph Hall has erected a very ingenious machine for sawing and polishing marble, which is put in motion by a steam engine. The beautiful spars and marbles peculiar to the county are here formed into elegant chimney pieces, ornamented tables, and figures of the most chaste and beautiful description.

Mr. Henry Moore, artist, Derby, is the sole inventor of a process for ornamenting black marble, without corroding the surface or destroying the polish. It is effected by decomposing the black carbonaceous colouring matter of the marble, to the different degrees of shade that may be undertaken, which when highly polished, resembles a mezzotinto engraving.

Iron Works.—Iron ore is found at a short distance east of the town, alternating with the coal, and here are some extensive iron and brass foundries, steam engine and boiler manufacturers, where also articles of domestic use are produced. The beautiful temple in the Alton tower gardens, was cast for the Earl of Shrewsbury at the Derwent foundry. Here are also some extensive iron forges and rolling and slitting mills, where malleable iron bars, sheet-plates, and tin-plates, are produced and manufactured into steam-boilers, gasometers, stove-grates. and various kitchen apparatus, &c.

Lead Works,—There are two establishments in Derby for making white and red lead, and two at which lead pipes and sheet lead are manufactured. The shot tower of Messrs.

Cox Brothers is a curious object. It is a circular building, about 80 yards in height. The lead, in a state of fusion, is poured from a boiler at the top of the tower, and falls through sieves into a reservoir of water below.

Besides the above-mentioned manufactures, we may name the Coach Manufactory of the Messrs. Holmes, one of the most celebrated in the Kingdom; also the Manufactories for Roman Cement, Plaster of Paris, &c. of Messrs. Pegg Harper, and Co., and Mr. Robt. Brookhouse, in the Morledge. Of Colour and Chemical Works, there are likewise some extensive firms, and amongst the various improvements which are daily taking place in every branch of trade, we may refer to a novel machine for grinding drugs, &c., recently patented by Mr. H. Goodall, of Derby. This invention consists in the application of mechanical power to a pestle producing a compound of variable rotary motion, originally intended for grinding drugs on a small scale, but in carrying out the invention its grinding powers were discovered to be so great, that it has led to a trial on a larger scale, and the result is more than satisfactory. So portable as to be easily fitted up in any room, so simple that its getting out of order seems out of question, the wonder is, that such an apparatus has not long ago been invented and superseded the primitive hand pestle in all operations where quantity of work was wanted to be despatched, or fineness of material essentially required. And Mr. Goodall's machine brings with it this further recommendation, that whereas retail druggists and others were formerly at the mercy of wholesale houses, now they can, at a reasonable cost, have their own grinding apparatus on their own premises—no slight advantage, we should think, judging by the exposures which have lately been made. There is no doubt the invention, when extended and worked by steam power, will supersede much of the machinery at present in use for various purposes, especially as a mineral or quartz crusher, being capable, we understand, of doing much more work with less power than any other machine; it will, therefore, be found of great service to miners, brass founders, emery grinders, &c. Mr. Goodall's clever invention has received the approbation of Mr. Nasmyth and other scientific men. There are also several breweries, malting, soap making, and dyeing establishments, and an old established manufactory for turret and every other description of Clocks.

At an early period Derby was famous for its malt and ale. Cambden says, that "the latter was derived from the Danish word oel, and was made here in great perfection." A large quantity of malt is still made in the town, of which a considerable part is sent into Cheshire and Lancashire; yet with all these sources of employment, and trade good, in 1833-4, Derby became the field of one of the most protracted and severe contests between masters and men ever witnessed in a manufacturing community. The silk weavers and others had enrolled themselves by thousands in the trades' unions. The masters resisted, and determined to put a stop to them, and twenty of the principal Derby masters, on the 25th of November, 1833, issued a declaration, "That each of them will immediately cease to employ every man who is a member of the trades' union." On the very next day, the operatives struck work, and most of the mills stood still; 2400 were said to have turned out. Up to the 7th of May, 1834, when the turn-out terminated, they were supported by subscriptions from other trades' unions, to the amount of £4,783 15s.; but the hands who had returned to work had suffered great privations, and many, it is said, had died from sheer want. Yet, although "picketing," or placing turn-outs to prevent the introduction of fresh hands, was as usual practised, the turn-out was attended with fewer breaches of peace than almost any on record.

The town of Derby has had the honour of giving the title of earl to several great and noble families. Some writers assert that it was enjoyed by the Peverells, Earls of Nottingham. It was certainly conferred on Robert de Ferrieres, in the third year of King Stephen, in reward for his eminent services at the famous battle of Northallerton, Yorkshire, when a glorious victory was obtained over David, King of the Scots. Robert, his son and successor, was styled Comes junior de Ferrieres. He founded the religious house of Saint Helen, in Derby, and was a large benefactor to the priory at Tutbury. He was succeeded by William de Ferrieres, in the twelfth year of Henry II. Dugdale mentions Robert de Ferrieres, who lived in the nineteenth year of his reign. But it does not certainly appear that he was Earl of Derby. The title was next enjoyed by William de Ferrieres, who attended King Richard into the Holy Land, and was slain at the siege of Acre. William, his son, was created Earl of Derby by a special charter, in the first year of King John, who girded on his sword with his own hand. He died in the twenty-first year of King Henry III., and was succeeded by his nephew William, who survived him only seven years. Robert, his son, was the last of the family who enjoyed this title. When he came to years of maturity, he joined with the barons in a rebellion against Henry III., and by his revolt lost his title and a large part of his estates. His possessions and power in Derbyshire were conferred upon the king's son, Edmund; but it is said the title was not disposed of till the reign of Henry III., who by act of parliament granted the earldom of Derby to Henry of Lancaster, son of Henry, Earl of Lancaster. The title continued in this family till Henry VII. bestowed it upon Thomas Stanley, who had not only married his mother, but crowned and proclaimed him king on Bosworth field. Since which the title has continued in the same noble family.

HISTORY AND DIRECTORY OF

THE OUT TOWNSHIPS IN DERBY.

ST. ALKMUND'S PARISH.

CHESTER (LITTLE), a township and small ancient village on the east bank of the Derwent, one mile N.N.E. of Derby, without the borough, was anciently a city. It contains 446 acres of land including 11A. 2R. 18P. of roads and waste, and in 1851, had 91 houses, and 1430 inhabitants. Rateable value, £1391 5s. The Duke of Devonshire is lessee of the manor, under the Bishop of Lichfield. The corporation of Derby own 330 acres. The Derby canal occupies 5A. 2R. 13P., rated at £151 6s. 1d.; and the Midland railway, 9A. 2R. 11P., rated at £516 10s. 6d. The railway passes close to the E. side of the village, under a neat stone bridge of three arches, over which the road passes to Mansfield. In 1831, during the Reform Riots, the Grange, a neat house belonging to Miss Harrison, was ransacked, and the interior with the furniture destroyed by fire. It has since been restored. A church (St. Paul's) was erected here in 1849, till which a factory, in the City road, was fitted up for divine service. The Church, a handsome cruciform edifice in the decorated style, was erected at a cost of £2000, raised by subscriptions, as a memorial to the late Bishop Shirley, formerly Archdeacon of Derby. It consists of a north aisle, and north and south transepts, chancel, and turret with one bell. It was consecrated on the 22nd of May, 1850, and has 800 sittings, half of which are free. Since which an organ, a stained glass window in the chancel, and the chancel floor laid with encaustic tiles has been added. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £150, in the patronage of the Bishop and Crown, alternately. The Rev. John D. Massingham, M.A. is the incumbent. A good parsonage house, a little east of the church, was erected in 1856 at a cost of £1200, by subscriptions, aided by a grant from the Diocesan Society, and Queen Anne's bounty. National Schools, Mansfield street, were erected in 1852, capable of accommodating 250 children. There is a residence adjoining for the master and mistress. The average attendance is 140. Little Chester occupies the site of the Roman station Derventio, the most important in the county, occupying nearly six acres. The wall that surrounded it was traced by Dr. Stukely, in 1721, but subsequent cultivation has removed every vestige of it. It stood on the line of the Iknield street, which here crossed the river, and is noticed in Domesday Book under the name of Cestre, being described as a parcel of the ancient demesne of the Crown. Numerous foundations, coins of gold, silver, and copper, and other Roman remains have been discovered. A.D. 275, the Britons besieged a colony of Roman soldiers here, and took it by storm, putting all the Romans to the sword.

The City House is a large ancient building, supposed to have been built in 1594, is the property of the Corporation of Derby, and in the occupation of Mr. Joseph Parker.

Handsome brick school rooms were also erected by Mr. Evans, in 1826, at a cost of about £3,000, consisting of a boys' and girls' school rooms, with a house at each end for the teachers. About 55 boys and 30 girls attend the day schools. The residence of Misses Evans, is a neat modern mansion on rising ground, north of the village, surrounded with plantations and pleasure grounds. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £116 per annum, which has been augmented with £400 Queen Anne's bounty, and has 3A. 3R. 19P. of glebe land. The parishioners are patrons, and the Rev. Edwd. The church, a handsome stone edifice, erected in 1856, on the site of the old chapel, is in the Perpendicular style, with the exception of the chancel, which is in the Decorated. It has nave, chancel, side aisles, and tower, with two bells. The cost, exclusive of the old materials, &c., was about £1,600, raised by subscriptions and grants, towards which the Earl of Harrington contributed two days at Elvaston Gardens, which realized £180; ladies' stalls at the gardens, £180. G. B. Mills, Esq., £110, Rev. C. Poole and family, £100, Messrs. Burnsides, the impropriators, £70, Rev. W. It is fitted up with open seats to accommodate 320 persons, exclusive of 60 children in the tower, with a handsome carved pulpit and reading desk. An ancient Greek cross was found under the foundation of an older tower than the one pulled down in 1855. This old tower, with its spire, fell in 1775. Several old coins were also found, and an old stone, built into the wall to form the top of one of the windows, had a double cross worked upon it. The chancel contains several marble tablets to the Borrow and Allestree families; and a very neat one to the Rev. Samuel Hey, vicar of Ockbrook, and minister of this place from 1809 to 1830, was erected by the parishioners, as a token of respect to him. He died April 14th, 1852, aged 71 years. The Methodists and Presbyterians have chapels, but that of the latter is not at present used. A school was built a few years ago, by Gilbert's Charity, to which the trustees contributed £20 per annum, on condition that 20 children are taught for 1d. per week. The average attendance is 70. The children from Boulton attend this school also.

Sinfin Moor contains 106A. 1R. 9P. of land in this township, and is returned as an extra parochial liberty. The Derby canal occupies 6A. 3R. of land, valued at £120. Here is a gunpowder magazine. Feast, Sunday after 11th of October.

ST. PETER'S PARISH.

BOULTON, a township, small village and chapelry, 3 miles S.E. from Derby, adjoins to and is intermixed with Alvaston, in St. Michael's parish. It contains 791A. 3R. 4P. of land; and. in 1851, had 43 houses, and 206 inhabitants; rateable value, £1,274 10s. 9d. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., is lord of the manor, and principal owner. Rev. William Cantrell, Richard Riley, Earl of Harrington, John Curzon, Esq., and others, are owners. The chapel is a perpetual curacy, value £120, which has been augmented with £400 benefactions, and £400 Queen Anne's bounty. The landed proprietors are patrons, and the Rev. Edward Poole, of Alvaston, incumbent. At the enclosure of a common, in 1802, the lay impropriators, Messrs. Burnside, had 44A. 0R. 32P. of land awarded, and 42A. 2R. 6P. were awarded to the incumbent, in lieu of tithe; besides which the incumbent has 10 acres of glebe land here and 37A. of land in other places. The chapel, a small ancient Norman structure, has nave, chancel, small turret and two bells. In 1840 it was new pewed and the body extended about 12ft., and thoroughly repaired, at a cost of £483 8s. 10d., defrayed by voluntary subscription, and a grant from the Diocesan society of £50. £203 was raised by a ladies' bazaar. The children attend the school at Alvaston. At an interment in the chapel several years ago, some tesselated bricks were found, on which were two keys crossed. In the year 1271, an agreement was made between the abbot of Derley and Robert de Sacheverell, who claimed the patronage of Bolton as a parish church. By this agreement, in consideration of 20 marks paid by the abbot, the said Robert gave up his claim, and admitted Bolton to be a chapel of St. Peter, in Derby, the abbot agreeing to present a fit minister, who should have three bovates of land, nine sellions and 12s. rent, besides the small tithes. The Earl of Harrington claims the right of the Derwent fishery through this as well as Alvaston township. 22A. 3R. 23P. of land belonging to the above chapel is situate in Alvaston township.

APPLETREE HUNDRED.

This Hundred is bounded on the north by Wirksworth Hundred, on the east by Morleston and Litchurch Hundred, on the south by that of Repton and Gresley, and on the west by the river Dove and Staffordshire. The parish of Breadsall on the north of Derby, with the parishes of Chaddesden and Spondon to the east of Derby, are detached and situated within the Morleston and Litchurch Hundred. It comprises an area of 89,649 statute acres. The soil is mostly of a rich red loam or sand with a portion of clay, in a high state of cultivation, and chiefly used for dairy purposes. Many of the farmers keep from 30 to 50 head of cows for making cheese, which is in great repute in all the neighbouring counties. On the eastern side the hosiery and lace trades are carried on to a considerable extent, and the north-east part is noted for its extensive collieries and iron works. Belper has long been celebrated for its cotton manufactories and for the manufacture of nails. Great improvements have been made in the buildings within the last 30 years. The ancient half-timbered and thatched houses and cottages have nearly all disappeared and been replaced by more modern erections.

The following is an enumeration of its 29 parishes, shewing their territorial extent, the annual value, and their population, from 1801 to 1851, as returned at the five decennial periods of the Parliamentary Census.

BARTON BLOUNT, a parish and small village, 11 miles W. from Derby, contains 1170A. 1R. 13P. of strong grazing land, the rateable value of which is £2,130 14s., and in 1851 had 7 houses, and 69 inhabitants, of whom 32 were males, and 37 females. Fras. Bradshaw, Esq., is lord of the manor, and principal owner, but Edward S. Chandos Pole, Esq., owns 7 acres of glebe, and the Field Farm of 208A. 1R. 15P. which is the residence of his son, Henry Chandos Pole, Esq. The Church, situated near the Hall, is an ancient stone edifice, partly covered with ivy, with a small turret, but no bell; it was thoroughly renovated and re-pewed in 1854, and a handsome east window of stained glass was put up. The living is a Rectory, value in K.B., £4 19s. 1d., now £76; augmented with £200 benefactions; £300 subscriptions; and £600 parliamentary grant. The tithe is paid by a modus of £11. Fras. Bradshaw, Esq., is the patron, and the Rev. George P. Lowther, rector, for whom the Rev. Alpheus Slight, M.A., officiates. In the Church is a neat mural tablet to the late Fras. Bradshaw, Esq. This manor, Baretune, at the domesday survey, was held by Ralph, under Henry de Ferrars. In 1266, under Edward, Earl of Lancaster, by John de Bakepuze, and it had the name of Barton-Bakepuze; after it had passed to the Blounts their successors, it took its present name. Sir Walter Blount, who had a charter for free warren at Barton, in 1385, was slain in the battle of Shrewsbury, being then the King's standard bearer. Walter, his great grandson, became Lord High Treasurer to King Edward IV. and K.G., and in 1465, was created Lord Mountjoy. Afterwards the manor came to the family of Merry, from which it passed by marriage to that of Simpson. In the year 1751, it was purchased of the trustees of Merry Simpson, said to have been a mendicant friar in a convent in France, by Sir Nathaniel Curzon. The late F. Bradshaw, Esq., obtained it by an exchange with Lord Scarsdale. The Manor House, originally a castellated building, surrounded with a moat, was garrisoned during the Civil Wars, in Charles the First's time, by Col. Gell, on behalf of the parliamentarians, to watch the motions of the King's garrison at Tutbury. A skirmish took place between the two on the 15th February, 1646. It has lately undergone considerable alterations, and is pleasantly situated on an eminence in a fine open country, amidst pleasure grounds and thriving plantations, and is the seat of Francis Bradshaw, Esq.

BOYLSTONE, a parish and well-built but scattered village, 7½ miles S. by E., from Ashbourn, contains 1,305 acres of fertile land, 67 houses, and 302 inhabitants, of whom 153 were males, and 149 females, rateable value £2,300. John Broadhurst, Esq., is the principal owner, but Henry Tatham Esq., is lord of the manor and a small owner. The Church dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is a rectory, valued in the King's book £6 0s. 2d., now £260. The Rev. Tansley Hall, M.A., is the patron, and the Rev. Roger Bickerstaff, incumbent. It is a small structure, with a tower, and was repaired in 1843, at a cost of £465, raised by subscription, aided by grants, &c. The rectory is a good residence, having been recently enlarged and improved, and is very pleasantly situated a little east of the church. A National school, with a residence for the master, was erected in 1845, on the south side of the church, the land for which was given by John Broadhurst, Esq.; the average attendance is about 24. The Methodists and Primitive Methodists have each a Chapel. This manor, Boilestune, at the domesday survey, belonged to Harvey de Ferrars. The co-heiresses of Reginald, soon after the conquest, married Redware and Grendon, whose posterity held the manor in moieties. It was carried by heiresses to the Bassinges, the Walsdehof, again to the Redwares and Cottons, by whom it was possessed for several generations. The co-heiresses in the reign of Henry VII., married Fitzherbert, Venables, and Grosvenor. Sir Henry Humphrey Ferrars died seized of the manor in 1609. The Chaloners purchased it of the Ferrars in 1664. The Rev. Thomas Gilbert who married the heiress of Chaloner, sold it to John Gilbert Cooper, Esq., in 1743. Mr. Gilbert re-purchased in 1746, and in 1751 sold to Henry Tatson; the latter devised it to the Rev. Thomas Manlove.

These are now paid from a farm the property of Mrs. Ann Clough. John Harpur, in 1676, gave to the poor of Boylestone and Cubley 8s. a year in bread, to be dealt 4 dozen on Easter-day and 4 dozen on Christmas-day. This is now paid by Robert Stone, Esq., of Rolleston Park, Staffordshire, and distributed as above. Bailey's charity, noticed in the returns of 1786, gave land producing 12s. a year, for bread to the poor of this parish. BRADLEY, a parish and scattered village, 3¾ miles E. from Ashbourn, contains 2357A. 1R. 1P. of gravelly and strong clay land, rateable value, £2,480. 5s. 10d, and in 1851 had 59 houses, and 248 inhabitants, of whom 128 were males, and 120 females. The principal owners are Samuel Harwood, Esq., Mrs. Sqambella, Mrs. Archer, Mrs. Stoddert, the Executors of the late Mrs. Meynell, and Charles Sprengel, Esq.; Mrs. S. Harwood, is lady of the manor. The church dedicated to All Saints, is an edifice, with nave, chancel, and wooden turret, with three bells, and was repaired in 1836, and again in 1843. The living is a rectory, value in K.B., £5 19s. 9½d. now £259, in the patronage of the Bishop of Lichfield, and incumbency of the Rev. Wm. Skynner, for whom the Rev. Evan Thomas, officiates. The rectory, a good mansion, pleasantly situated south of the church, is occupied by Mrs. Archer. There are 60A. 1R. 27P. of glebe land, and the tithe was commuted in 1838. A Free school was established by the rector several years ago, at which about 40 children attend. At the domesday survey, this manor belonged to Henry de Ferrars. At an early period it became the property of the family of Kniveton; Sir Gilbert, whose father was a younger branch of the family, was created a baronet in 1611, and had been long settled at Mercaston, but at that time removed his residence hither. His successor, Sir Andrew, who had suffered much in the civil war, sold Bradley, in 1655, to Francis Meynell. Bradley Hall, a large mansion E. from the church, is the residence of Samuel Harwood, Esq. Bradley Park, at the S.E. extremity of the parish, and 4 miles E. by S. from Ashbourn, contains 3 farms. Fox & Hounds, a large inn on the Ashbourn and Belper road, $3\frac{3}{4}$ miles E. from the former, is in the occupation of Mr. Charles Haseldine. The Pastures, a good substantial house, with a large farm of 430 acres, $3\frac{1}{4}$ miles from Ashbourn, on the road to Belper, is in the occupation of Messrs. Thomas Tomlinson & Son.

CHARITIES.—John Walker, in 1691, after certain devises, gave all the rest of his lands and tenements lying in Turnditch or Hazlewood, subject to the payment of 20s. per annum to the minister of Turnditch chapel,—20s. per annum to the poor of Turnditch and Cowers lane,—20s. to the poor of Bradley, and 20s. to the poor of Hulland. All the above sums are now paid by Mrs. Statham as the owner of two fields, containing about 28A., called the Long Leys and the Little Leys. The 20s. received by this parish is distributed to poor widows not receiving relief.

Rev. Francis Gisborne, of Staveley, by indenture, dated 6th of December, 1817, wishing to establish a fund for providing flannel and coarse woollen cloth for the poor of the several rectories, vicarages, curacies, and chapelries, being 100 in number, vested with the Hon. Philip Pleydell Bouverie and three other clergymen, on trust, the sum of £13,500 for that purpose, which was laid out in the purchase of £16,167 13s. 4d. three per cent. consolidated bank annuities, that they, after defraying the expenses incurred in the execution of the trust, should pay the residue yearly amongst the rectors, vicars, curates, or ministers, that they should apply the share of the dividends amongst the poor residing in their parish, whether they should or should not have received parochial relief, or obtained a legal settlement or not, in the purchase of flannels and coarse Yorkshire woollens; but that no place should receive more than £5 10s; and that as often as by death or other cause the trustees should be reduced to two, the survivors should nominate others; the Archdeacon of Derby, for the time being, to be one.

The said Francis Gisborne, (who died July, 1821,) by his will dated 7th May, 1818, after making various bequests, directed that all the residue of his property should be divided into three equal parts—one part to be given to the Infirmary of Sheffield, another part to the Infirmary of Derby, and the remaining third part to the said Philip Pleydell Bouverie, and the other trustees, for the use of the charity above named, and to whom was transferred £4,083 three per cent. consolidated annuities, £2,643 three per cent reduced annuities, and £116 14s. 3d. in money. The annual amount of the dividend is £686 16s. 3d., but the annual payments of £5 10s. each, to all the places mentioned in the schedule to the deed, amount only to £550. The trustees have presented a petition to the court of chancery, praying for a scheme for the disposal of the surplus income. The dividends are received by Messrs. Bouverie and Lefevre, bankers, London, and transmitted by them to the incumbents of each place, which are as follows:—Ashbourn, Ashover, Alfreton, Ashford, Atlow, Bonsall, Bakewell, Buxton, Bradley, Bradborne, Barlborough, Barlow, Beighton, Bentley, Blackwell, Brassington, Bolsover, Belper, Baslow, Beeley, Ballidon, Brimington, Brampton Castleton, Carsington, Chesterfield, Chapel-en-le-Frith, Clowne, Crich, Chelmorton, Derwent, Darley, Dethick, Denby, Dronfield, Dore, Duffield, Edale, Eckington, Elmton, Eyam, Elton, Edensor, Fairfield, Glossop, Hartington. BRAILSFORD, a parish, and large well built village, on the Derby and Ashbourn road, 7 miles N.W. by N. from the former, and 6 miles S.S.E. from the latter; it includes the hamlet of Ednaston, and contains 4,174A. 2R. 4P. of light land, principally in dairy farms, 52 acres of which are in roads; rateable value £6,730. In 1851 it had 148 houses, and 708 inhabitants of whom 365 were males, and 343 females. The principal owners are Thos. Wm. Evans, Esq., who is also lord of the manor; Evans Swindell, John Harrison, Wm. Cox, Geo. Greaves, and Fras. Osborne, Esqs.; Earl Ferrers, the Trustees of Ashbourn school, and Mrs. Beeston have also estates here. The Church, dedicated to All Saints, is an ancient stone structure, situated on an eminence in the centre of the parish, and has a nave, chancel, south aisle, and a tower with five bells. By a date over the Porch, (1629) it would appear that portion was then added, as the Church is supposed to have been built 700 years ago. The living is a rectory valued in the King's Book at £9 19s. 2d., now £673; Patron, Earl Ferrers; Incumbent, the Rev. Walter Shirley, M.A. The tithes were commuted in 1839 for £500 per annum, and there are 71A. 3R. 21P. of glebe. The rectory, a good residence ¼ mile E. from the church. A National school was erected by the late Mr. Evans; about 60 boys and girls attend. The Methodists and Primitive Methodists have each chapels here. Feast latter end of October. This manor was held by Alsin ancestor of the ancient family of Brailsford, under Henry de Ferrars at the Domesday survey. The heiress of Henry de Brailsford, who was living in 1380, brought this estate to Sir John Russell. Sir Ralph Shirley married the heiress of Bassett. The late Earl Ferrers sold the manor, with several farms, to Mr. John Webster of Derby. On his becoming a bankrupt, this estate was sold to W. Drury Lowe, Esq., of whom it was purchased by the late Charles Upton, Esq., of Derby. Brailsford House, a handsome mansion at the east extremity of the village, pleasantly situated in tastefully laid out grounds, in the front of which is a small lake, is the seat and property of William Cox, Esq. Culland, a hamlet of four farms and two cottages, 1½ miles S. of Brailsford. William Cox, Esq., the owner. The Rose and Crown, a good Inn where the Commissioners of Taxes hold their usual meetings; and where also an Odd Fellows Lodge and Sick Society are held.

Ednaston, a hamlet and village 1¼ miles S.W. from Brailsford. Earl Ferrers and John Harrison, Esq., are the principal owners. The North Farms are scattered on the north side of the parish, about 2 miles from the church.

Charities.—Elizabeth Poole, in 1698, gave £20 to the poor of this parish. Rev. Samuel Labonnel, in 1714, left £20. These sums, at the time of our investigation, (1826), were in the hands of Mr. Joseph Morley, a farmer of Brailsford, at 4½ per cent. interest, amounting to £1 16s. per annum. The interest is paid at Easter and Christmas, and given to the poor.

BREADSALL, a parish and well built village, locally situated in the Morleston and Litchurch Hundred, is pleasantly situated, 2½ miles N.E. by N. from Derby, in the vale of the Derwent, at the verge of a steep hill which shelters it from the northerly and easterly winds. It contains 2,164A. 0R. 19P. of fertile land; rateable value £4,875 6s. 6d., and in 1851 had 133 houses and 621 inhabitants, of whom 298 were males, and 323 females. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., is lord of the manor, (and holds a court annually) principal owner, and patron of the living, a rectory value in K. B. £28 2s. 8d., now £640. Sir Fras. Darwin, Knight; Joseph Morley, and Samuel Henchley, Esqrs., are also owners. The Church is a Norman edifice, with nave, chancel, side aisles, neat tower, and 5 bells, surmounted with a handsome lofty spire. In the chancel are three stone stalls, and a basin for holy water. The communion railing is of oak beautifully carved, and it has a gallery and small organ. In 1830 the South wall of the Church was taken down and rebuilt, and other repairs were carried out at an expense of about £300, defrayed by subscriptions and rate. Rev. Henry Robert Crewe, M.A., rector, who also receives a modus of £1 6s. 8d. from the rector of Morley, which has been paid from time immemorial. Here are 6 marble tablets to the Darwin family, and several to various rectors and others. The Rectory is a handsome mansion a little N.E. from the church. It is a cemented building, erected in 1832, and has 439A. 1R. 29P. of ancient glebe and common allotment. 1,461 acres of commons and wastes were enclosed in 1815, when land was allotted for tithe. The Methodists have a neat brick chapel with stone dressings. The Priory is a large ancient stone building, in a retired situation, surrounded by park like grounds, 1 mile N. by E. from the village. It is the property and seat of Sir Francis Darwin, Knt. The Priory on Breadsall's Park is mentioned in the time of Edward the Confessor, as a religious house, and afterwards in Domesday book. Here was a house of Friars or Hermits, in the time of Henry the III. It afterwards, to the dissolution, continued a small Priory of the Augustine Order, dedicated to the Holy Trinity. It was granted by Edward the IV. to Henry Duke of Suffolk. From the Duke of Suffolk it went to Thos. Babington, afterwards to Sir John Bentley; in the year 1702, to Sir John Bland, then to Thos. Leacroft, who sold it to Andrew Greensmith; and in the year 1799 Erasmus Darwin purchased the Priory. Mr. Darwin died soon after his purchase, having bequeathed the priory to his father, Erasmus Darwin, M.D., F.R.S., the well known physician and poet, who spent the last year of his life at the priory. He died April 18th, 1802. He was born at Elston, near Newark, and of the rare union of talents which so eminently distinguished him as physician, a poet, and a philosopher, his writings remain an unfading testimony. On laying the foundations for the improvements made by Dr. Darwin, several stone coffins were discovered. The ancient chapel was on the north side of the house. The Priory Cottage, a neat house, the seat of Charlton Jas. Wollaston, Esq., is the property of Sir Francis Darwin. The Derby Water Works are situated in this parish, and occupy about eleven acres of ground; they consist of engine-house, with two splendid engines, each of 50 horse power, a collecting reservoir, a larger one capable of holding 2,000,000 gallons of water, a service reservoir, and three filtering beds, also neat residences for the engineer and fireman. Mr. John Thompson is the engineer. The Midland Railway and the Little Eaton canal intersect the parish. During the alterations at the Church an ancient silver coin of one of the Edward's was found.

Charities.—Rev. John Clayton, rector of this parish, in 1745 left £200 for teaching poor children of the parish to read and say their catechism. In respect of this charity, there is now standing in the names of the late Daniel Parker Coke and Thomas Lowe, Esqrs., £346 18s. 4d. 3 per cent. consolidated bank annuities. The dividends, £10 8s. a year, are received through the bank of Messrs. Crompton & Co., Derby; and a school was erected at the joint expense of the lord of the manor, Sir Henry Harpur, and the parishioners, in 1788. The late Sir Geo. Crewe, Bart. erected a commodious school in 1837, and a house for the master in 1843. About 50 boys and 40 girls attend. Sir J. H. Crewe pays an endowment of £10 to the master, who also receives the children's pence, as well as the interest from the Rev. J. Clayton's bequest.

Anne Johnson, London, gave a close of land known by the name of the Beadstead Orchard, on trust to pay the rents thereof to such poor widows who should have been the wife of one husband, and of the age of threescore years; and in case there should be no such widows, she directed it to be distributed amongst such poor fatherless girls as should be then living there. The close contains 8A. 3R. 1½P., and is let to S. Potter, Esq., for the rent of £12 yearly. Two widows qualified as above, are appointed every Lady-day.

Rev. John Walton, archdeadon of Derby, in 1603, gave £49 after the disease of his wife, to be set out and ordered by the succeeding parsons of Breadsall, and churchwardens for the benefit of the poor. This money was laid out in lands at Spondon, which were let for £7 a year. At a vestry meeting held 1824, it was agreed to sell the land in Spondon, containing 3A. 2R. 20., and with the produce thereof to purchase other messuages in Breadsall; to effect which, Edward Frear advanced £60 on mortgage which has since been paid off. The property now lets for £15 per annum, and is distributed on St. Thomas's-day.

Anthony Walker, in 1714, devised a parcel of land, called Stonebark, in the liberty of Darley, to the poor of Breadsall, to buy 12 twopenny loaves, to be distributed every Sunday. He also directed what money should remain should once in the year be distributed to sick or lame people in the said parish. The property consists of four closes containing 13A. 2R. 25P. situate on the south side the road leading from Matlock to Darley, now let for £24 per annum.

William Keen bequeathed £30, and John Bailey bequeathed £20 (noticed on a beneaction to be in the church), the use thereof to be paid to the poor of Breadsall. These were deposited in a bank at Derby, which failed many years ago. The sum of £46 was however recovered. This was afterwards placed in the hands of an individual who failed about 1814, but the whole principal was repaid, and it was then carried to the account of the parish, for which £2 is paid as interest, and distributed on St. Thomas's-day.

The principal owners are, the Duke of Devonshire, John Broadhurst, Esq., Francis Bradshaw, Esq., John Harrison, Esq., executors of the late William Stretton, Mr. Wm. Sampson, Mr. Wm. Richardson, and Mr. Thos. Salisbury; the former is lord of the manor. In 1552, this manor was granted by Edward VI. to Sir William Cavendish. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, is a venerable stone edifice, with nave, chancel, side aisles, an embattled tower and three bells. The north side has been rebuilt, and the whole was repewed and repaired in 1845, at a cost of £600. In the chancel are 3 stone stalls, and at the top of the centre aisle is an ancient font. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £6 13s. 4d., now £264; has being augmented with £400, Queen Anne's bounty. John Broadhurst, Esq., is patron, Rev. John Wm. Jones, B.A., incumbent, for whom a new vicarage house is about to be erected at a cost of £1000. There are 12 acres of land and seven cottages belonging the church for its reparation, let for £42 per annum; and the vicar has 84A. 1R. 7P. of glebe, and £30 per annum from the lord of the manor in lieu of tithes. The rectory was formerly appropriated to the priory at Tutbury. A lock-up was erected here in 1855 by the Duke of Devonshire, at a cost of about £420; John Jones, superintendent. Bent House, half a mile S.E. from the village, is a good brick and cemented building, the property and residence of Mr. Wm. Sampson.

SAPPERTON, a hamlet and a small scattered village, which maintains its own roads, 1 mile W. from Church Broughton. John Harrison, Esq., is lord of the manor and principal owner. John Broadhurst, Esq., Mr. Joseph Hellaby, and Lord Vernon are also owners. The Manor house, 1 mile S.E. from Church Broughton, an ancient building, with pointed gables, richly clad with ivy, is the residence of Mr. Trevor Yates, and the property of the Duke of Devonshire. Muse Lane, 2 miles S.E. from Church Broughton, a good brick farm house, the joint property of John Harrison and Henry Chawner, Esqs., and the residence of Mr. John Dicken. Lee Hall, 1½ mile S.E. from Church Broughton, an ancient farm house on an eminence, is the property of Joseph Hellaby, gentleman, and the residence of Mr. James Hawksworth.

A School was founded by subscription about 1745, to which the Duke of Devonshire was the principal contributor, and by whose consent, and the rest of the freeholders, land was set out from the common for its endowment. By the award at the enclosure, made March 17th, 1775, the land, amounting to 19A. 16P., was allotted to the school, which is let for £30 per annum, for which the master teaches 20 children of the parish free. A new school was erected in the centre of the village in 1835, by the Duke of Devonshire, capable of accommodating about 90 children; the average attendance is 34 boys, and 28 girls.

CHARITIES.—Church and Poor Lands.—On a table of benefactions in the church it is stated, land was given for the repairs of the church, and if the church does not want repairing, to the poor. This now consists of Butterhill Close, about 5A., and a piece of land in the Cote Field, containing 7A. 0R. 7P.—allotted under the Boylstone Inclosure Act, 1773, to the churchwardens and overseers, in satisfaction of all their rights—let for £18 per annum. There is also a rent-charge of 7s. 6d. paid from Upper Cote Close, the property of the Duke of Devonshire. The above rents were paid to the churchwarden's account up to 1845. No part of the rents have ever been distributed to the poor, though the expenses of the repairs of the church have not, upon an average, exceeded £5 per annum.

William Woolley, it is also stated, gave 40s. a year for preaching four sermons—viz., on Christmas-eve, Easter-eve, Whitsun-eve, and the Saturday before Michaelmas; also 20s. a year for ever, to the poor of this parish, to be distributed in bread on Christmas-eve.

Henry Jackson, by will dated 25th June, 1690, gave 10s. a year for ever, to be paid out of an estate in Roston, to be laid out in 20 sixpenny loaves, and distributed on St. Thomas's day.

Lydia Mennell, gave 10s. a year to be distributed in fourpenny loaves on Good Friday, but nothing has been received for many years on account of this charity.

CHADDESDEN, a parish, and well-built but scattered village, locally situated in the Moreleston and Litchurch Hundred, 2½ miles E. from Derby, contains 2060A. 1R. 18P. of principally strong clay-land; rateable value, £4335. In 1851, it had 93 houses, and 433 inhabitants, of whom 204 were males, and 229 females. The principal owners are, Sir Henry Sacheverel Wilmot, Bart., the Duke of Devonshire (and impropriator), and Holland's Trustees; the former is lord of the manor. The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient stone edifice, with nave, chancel, side aisles, and low embattled tower, with three bells. In the chancel is a stone stall, there are also some remains of stained glass in the east window, and a beautiful carved oak screen divides the nave and chancel. The living is a perpetual curacy, valued in the King's books at £22, now £89. Sir H. S. Wilmot, Bart., is the patron, and the Rev. Chas. Rawlins, M.A., incumbent, who resides at the parsonage, a handsome Elizabethean building, erected in 1851, a little north from the church. There are about 25 acres of glebe. In the chancel is a cenotaph to Sir Edw. Wilmot, M.D., who died at Herringstone in Dorsetshire. He was physician to George II. and George III. He died 21st Nov., 1786, aged 93. A monument to Sir Robert Mead Wilmot, his son, who died 13th July, 1842, aged 77. By the parish register, it appears that Thomas Harris, aged 107 years, was buried 29th February, 1593. It is also said John Pick died in May, 1666. at the age of 105. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, built 1838. In the reign of Edward III. a chantry was founded here for a warden and two chaplains, by Henry de Chaddesden, Archdeacon of Leicester, that divine service might be performed daily, besides the original endowment in 1361. In 1380, 60 acres of land were given to the chanters at the altar of the Virgin Mary. Robert Newton died seized of the chantry, in 1593. In 1782, about 900 acres of land were enclosed. The Hall, a large brick mansion, erected about a century ago, by Robert Wilmot, Esq., is situated at the extremity of the village, on a gentle elevation, embowered with plantations and shrubberies, is the seat of Sir H. S. Wilmot, Bart. The Derby canal, the Nottingham branch of the Midland railway and the river Derwent runs through the parish. Feast, nearest Sunday to St. Peter.

CHARITIES.—Robert Wilmot, the elder, of Chaddesden, by will dated in 1638, founded 10 alms house at Derby, and 6 at Chaddesden,—(see Derby.)

Thomas Gilbert, by will gave £20 a year for purchasing land of the value of 20s. per annum, to be distributed amongst 20 poor persons of Chaddesden. This was enfeoffed by indenture bearing date 7th December, 1680, to Harry Gilbert, his son and heir of Locko. The annual sum of 20s. is now received by the overseers, from William Drury Lowe, of Locko, Esq., out of a house and croft in Chaddesden, and distributed on Christmas-day in the church.

Robert Walker, in 1705, gave his close called Stone Flat Pingle, in Chaddesden, towards paying the schooling of three boys of Chaddesden, to be nominated by his executors. An annual sum of 12s., arising as is supposed from his donation, was previously to the year 1792 paid by the tenant, under Hugh Bateman, Esq., of a piece of land called Nether Wildridding, containing about half an acre, to William White, the schoolmaster. In 1792, an enclosure was made, and by the award of 3R. 37P. situate in Riley Field was allotted to the schoolmaster in lieu of all his rights, and also in lieu of four leys, part of Nether Wildridding, for which two poor children are taught.

Robert Wilmot, Esq., in 1737, granted a part of a yard called Stamford Old yard, next the churchyard of Chaddesden, on which a school and a house for the master was built by subscription.

John Berrysford, in 1813, gave the interest of £600 stock in the three-per-cent. consols, to the vicar and churchwardens of Chaddesden and their successors, to be applied to the poor widows and fatherless children of the parish. And he also gave to the said vicar the rents and profits of his freehold house, No. 29, Camden street, Walworth, to be applied to the same purposes; but this was void by the statute of 9 George IV. The £600 stock was by the legacy duty reduced to £540 three-per-cent. consols, now standing in the names of the vicar and two others, and the dividend amounting to £16 4s. per annum, is applied agreeably to the donor's will.

The Church, dedicated to St. Andrew, situated about the centre of the parish, is an ancient Norman structure, with a lofty tower (on which the arms of the Montgomery family are sculptured,) and 4 bells. It was repaired in 1855. The Living is a Rectory with Marston Montgomery annexed, valued in K. B. £13 6s. 3d., now £560.; the Earl of Chesterfield is patron, and the Rev. Rd. William Vevers, M.A, incumbent, who resides at the Rectory, a good mansion east of the church. There are 5 acres of glebe, and the tithes were commuted for £380. The patron and the incumbent each allow to a schoolmaster £10 per annum, and he occupies a house rent-free, for which he teaches twenty poor children. This manor (Cobelei), at Domesday survey was held under Henry de Ferrars by Ralph, probably ancestor of the Montgomery family, who are known to have possessed it as early as 1160. John Montgomery, Esq., the last male heir, died in 1513, leaving three daughters, one of whom brought Cubley to Sir Thomas Giffard, with whose heiress his estates passed to Sir John Port, of Etwall; Sir John had three daughters, coheiresses, the younger of whom brought Cubley to the Stanhopes. This was the chief seat of the Montgomery family, who had a park here, and was for a time the seat of the Stanhopes, but the mansion was pulled down long ago. A market, on Monday, was granted to William Montgomery, in 1251, and a fair for three days on the festival of St. Andrew, but both are disused. A fair is still held here on 30th November. Here is a Friendly Society who hold their feast on Holy Thursday.

CHARITIES.—John Harpur, in 1686, gave 8s. a year to the poor of this parish, to be distributed in bread, on Easter-day and Christmas-day—(See Boylstone.)

Robert Bull, Ann Bull, his wife, and Joseph Bull, his son and heir, in consideration of £14, and of a sum of 10s. to be laid out in bread, and given yearly to the poor of this parish, granted, in 1708, to William Bowyer, and his heirs, a close called Breach Field Intake. This close was, in 1756, transferred to John Massey of Roston, and the sum of 10s. yearly, is now paid from a farm at Roston, and given in bread.

DALBURY-WITH-LEES, form a joint township and parish, 6½ miles W. by S. from Derby, and contains 1172A. 0R. 26P. of rich pasture land, rateable value £1462 14s. 0d., and in 1851, had 53 houses and 237 inhabitants, of whom 125 were males, and 112 females. The Rev. Chas. E. Cotton is lord of the manor and a considerable owner. E. S. C. Pole, Esq., Samuel Fox, Esq., Rev. Wm. Fox, Rev. F. W. Spilsbury, Godfrey Franceys Meynell, Esq., (a minor) Rev. Philip Gell, Mr. Wm. White, Mr. Geo. Peach, and others, are also owners. The Church, dedicated to All-Saints, is a small ancient edifice, covered with ivy. It contains nave, chancel, low tower, and two bells. Over the belfry expands a Norman arch. The font is of stone with a cover richly carved, and in one of the stained glass windows is a figure representing St. Michael. Here are also, in stained glass, the arms of Sir John Port, also those of Sir Samuel Sleigh, and in the year 1855, a beautiful stained glass window representing the Crucifixion, was placed in the east end of the chancel at the expense of the present Rector, at the cost of about £60. In 1844 the church was repaired and enlarged at a cost of £250., defrayed by subscription, by which means eighty-three additional sittings were obtained, 53 of this number being free. The Communion plate belonging to this church, is of considerable value, and is the gift of various members of the Cotton family. The present incumbent will long be remembered for the attention he has paid to the preservation and improvement of this venerable edifice, he having rebuilt the chancel, and also the Rectory house, at a great expense, the latter in a very superior style, and the pleasure grounds which are on an extensive scale, are laid out with much taste. The Living is a Rectory, valued in the king's books at £4 16s. 3d., now £206. Mrs. Elizabeth Cotton, patron, and the Rev. Chas. Evelyn Cotton, L.L.B., Incumbent. There are 47 acres of glebe, and the tithe was commuted in 1839 for £187. Dalbury, in Domesday survey, is described as a hamlet of Mickleover, belonging to the Abbot of Burton. Dalbury and Dalbury Lees were, in the reign of Edward II., the property of Sir Robert Holland. Sir Samuel Sleigh, who died in 1679, was possessed of them, and they passed with his daughter and co-heiress to Samuel Cheetham, Esq., and on his death, without issue, to Rowland Cotton, Esq., of Bellaport, in Shropshire, who married the other co-heiress.

LEES, a small scattered village, 2 miles N. from Dalbury, and 5 miles W. from Derby. There was formerly a Green here of about 30 acres, which was enclosed in 1854, and is now let for cottage gardens. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel here, built in 1835.

ROOK HILL, an ancient farm-house, on an eminence, about ¼ mile N. from the Church, is the property of Saml. Fox, Esq., and the residence of Mrs. H. Shaw.

CHARITIES.—George Dickinson, in 1638, gave to nine of the poorest householders in Dalbury 20s. yearly for ever, out of a messuage of which Jno. Neale is the present owner, who distributes the money the last day in the year.

Peter Hough, who was buried at Kirk Langley in 1689, is supposed to have left £4 a-year, in respect of about 11 acres of land in Kniveton, from which £4 was received for charities paid to 5 parishes, to be distributed on Christmas-day in the following proportion, from the reserved rent—viz., a fourth part to the poor of Radbourn, a sixth to Markeaton, a sixth to Dalbury, a sixth to Mackworth, another fourth to the poor of Meynell Langley and Kirk Langley. These payments have hitherto been paid by Mr. Edward Cooper, of Ashbourn. In some of the places an impression existed that the whole of the rents, £11 10s., belonged to the poor. It is said the trustees formerly leased this property for a long term to Richard Allen for £4 per annum, and that John Allen his son, underlet the land to Bridgewood for £2 6s., in addition to the £4, and Bridgewood transferred it Mr. Cooper,

German Pole.—The particulars of this charity, in respect of which the parish of Dalbury is entitled to one-sixth part of the clear rents of an estate in Marston Montgomery, now let for £120 per annum, for putting out an apprentice annually, or for the poor, in case there is no boy or girl to be so placed out. DOVERIDGE, with the hamlets of West Broughton, Eaton, and Sedsall, is a township, extensive parish, and scattered village, on the river Dove, 16 miles W. from Derby, and 2 miles E. by S. from Uttoxeter, and contains 4369 acres of fertile land, (inclusive of roads and rivers); rateable value, £7,339. In 1851, it had 161 houses, and 766 inhabitants, of whom 390 were males, and 376 females. There are 35 acres of roads, and 57A. 2R. 32P. of land, situated on the west side of the river Dove, the natural boundary of the county; in this part the river has in several places changed its course. Lord Waterpark is lord of the manor, principal owner, and impropriator. Mr. Thomas Sherwin, Mrs. Ann Salt, and the Rev. Ralph B. Baker have also estates here. The Church, dedicated to St. Cuthbert, is a small edifice, chiefly in the early English style of architecture, situated on a bold eminence above the Dove, and has a nave, chancel, side aisles, tower and spire with 5 bells, was new pewed and repaired in 1842, at a cost of £300, raised by subscription, to which other improvements have been added. In the church yard are the remains of an old cross, and a very ancient yew tree. The vicarage is a large and beautifully situated mansion south of the church. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book, at £12 2s. 1d., now £563, and is endowed with the rectorial tithes of West Broughton. Patron, the Duke of Devonshire, and the Hon. and Rev. Thomas Cavendish, M.A., incumbent. The tithes have been commuted for £807. The rectorial tithe with one-half the hay tithe for £210 to the impropriator, and the other half the hay tithe for £39, belongs to Frederick Taylor Webster, Esq., of Bagley, (Shropshire.) The vicarial tithe with the rectorial tithe of West Broughton, amounts to £416. There are 82A. 0R. 27P. of glebe. In the chancel is an ancient monument to one of the Devenport family, with the full length figure of a man in armour, his wife, and four children, also several others to the Cavendish family. The Wesleyans have a neat chapel, erected in 1805, by Joseph Sadler, and the Primitive Methodists have one erected in 1841. A National school, for girls and infants, was erected in 1841 by the vicar, which he also supports. The average attendance is 100. The manor of Doveridge, which had belonged to Edwin, the last Earl of Mercia, was held by the Prior of Tutbury, under Henry de Ferrars, at the time of Domesday survey. It appears that Bertha, wife of Henry de Ferrars, gave it to the priory. The monks soon after became possessed of Holt park, to which Sir William de Eyton and Henry Deneston quitted claim. In 1552 the manor of Doveridge and Doveridge-Holt were granted to Sir William Cavendish. Henry Cavendish, his son, settled this estate in 1611, on Henry his natural son. In 1792, Sarah the lady of Sir Henry Cavendish was created baroness of Waterpark, of the kingdom of Ireland, which title with the baronetcy and the Doveridge estate, were inherited by her eldest son Richard Baron Waterpark.

Doveridge Hall, a noble brick mansion north of the church, situated on a bold ridge above the river Dove, was built about the year 1770, commanding an extensive view towards Staffordshire, with the town of Uttoxeter, is the seat and property of the Right Hon. Henry Manners, Lord Waterpark. Clownholme, a well built brick mansion, 3 miles N. from Doveridge, beautifully situated above the vale of the Dove, is the seat and property of Mr. Wm. Webb. Upwood House, 1 mile N. from Doveridge, is a substantial building, on a good elevation, from which may be seen five parish churches, also Alton Towers, the beautiful seat of the Earl of Shrewsbury. It is the property of Lord Waterpark, and the residence of Mr. James Walwyn. Woodhouse, an ancient farm house, 1 mile N.N.E. from Doveridge, is the property of the Rev. Ralph B. Baker, and the residence of Mr. Thomas B. Cope. About $\frac{1}{4}$ mile E. from the church is an ancient half timbered farm house, supposed to have been built prior to the year 1090; it is the property of Lord Waterpark, and the residence of Mr. Thomas Deaville.

Broughton West, is a manor and hamlet of scattered houses, which keep their own roads, extending 4 miles S.E. from Uttoxeter, and forming the S.E. extremity of the parish. Formerly here was a church, of which no vestige remains. Lord Vernon is lord of the manor and principal owner. The Hon. B. C. Wandesford, and Mrs. Mary P. Fidler are also owners. Ley Hill, a good house and estate, the residence and property of Miss Robotham.

Eaton and Sedsall form a hamlet, which keeps its own roads, extending 3 miles N.W. from Uttoxeter. It contains 4 farm houses, picturesquely situated near the river Dove. The river Churnet, from Staffordshire, has its confluence with the Dove in this hamlet, and covers 1a. 1r. 19p. of land. Eaton Old Hall, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles N.W. of Doveridge, now a farm house; Hon. Charles H. B. C. S. Wandesford, of Castlecomer, Ireland, is the owner. The manor of Eaton, in the reign of Edward I., belonged to the family of St. Pierre, whose heiress about the year 1356 brought it to Sir Walter Cokesey. From this family it devolved to the Russels. Sir John Russel died seized of it in 1556. A few years afterwards it passed by sale to the Milwards. The heiress of Milward brought it to the Clarkes, of Somersall. Holt Wood is an extra-parochial and tithe-free liberty, consisting of one farm house, which now keeps its poor with Doveridge, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles S.E. from Doveridge. Near this is Breach Moor, an ancient brick residence, 2 miles E. from Doveridge, on the banks of the Dove, is the property of Lord Vernon, and the residence of Mrs. Mary Harrison.

Charities.—Thomas Madely, in 1640, left £10 for the use of the poor. Robert Worden, in 1657, left £10. Elizabeth Scott, in 1696, left £10, and Ralph Moseley, in 1714, gave the same sum. These donations were laid out in the purchase of premises, (except £5 which had been lost,) viz.—two houses and a bakehouse. The bakehouse was rebuilt in 1821, at a cost of £40, which has been liquidated from the rents. In 1826, there was a small balance in the churchwarden's hands, which with the yearly rents ought to be given to the poor according to the donor's intentions.

Sir Gilbert Clarke, Knight, in 1681, left a rent charge of 20s. yearly out of the Intake in the Kibbage Field, for 1,000 years, the amount to be distributed to 20 of the most necessitous poor of Doveridge. Richard Stubbing charged a piece of land, called Woolley's Meadow, with the payment of 20s. yearly to the poor. This amount is now paid by Lord Vernon. Thos. Buxton directed 20 fourpenny loaves to be paid out of the rents of his house in Doveridge, on St. Thomas's day. Lord Waterpark now pays 6s. 8d. on account of this charity. Margaret Faldering, in 1685, gave the interest of £5. The Rev. Luke Glen gave the interest of £10. 16s. is received as the interest of these two sums: 9s. is paid from a farm in Doveridge and 7s. by Lord Waterpark, which is disbributed on St. Thomas's day. Humphrey Wall, in 1713, left, out of land in Doveridge, 1s. weekly, to be given in bread every Sunday. Mary Burgh gave £40, the interest to be distributed at Christmas. In 1785, this sum was paid to the vicar on trust. The Rev. Henry Stokes, on receiving the above sum, gave his promissory note, and paid interest several years. On application, he paid over the principal to Francis Turner, then churchwarden, but no further trace can be made of this legacy. Sir Henry Cavendish gave £100 towards providing a school, erected in 1787. Afterwards, a house for the master was erected. It is supposed Mrs. Burgh's legacy was applied towards building the house. If this conjecture be well founded the application was incorrect. Isaac Dance, in 1786, gave £100 upon trust, 40s. thereof to his brother William for life, and 40s. to the widow of James Dance for life, and after their deaths 40s. to be given for the encouragement of psalmody in the parish church, and 40s. towards the support of a schoolmaster. The £100 is now in the hands of Lord Waterpark, at 4 per cent., and the interest is given according to the donor's intention. Lucy Bakewell, in 1798, gave to trustees £40, to lay out that sum towards building a school in Doveridge, or distribute the same amongst the poor inhabitants. It does not clearly appear how this has been or is applied.

DUFFIELD, an extensive parish, containing 8 townships—viz., Duffield, Belper, Hazlewood, Heage, Holbrook, Shottle and Postern, Turnditch and Windley, of which four are chapelries, 15,987A. 1R. 21P. of land; rateable value, £43,832 3s. 3d.; and in 1851, had 3688 houses, and 17749 inhabitants, of whom 8730 were males, and 9019 females.

DUFFIELD is a township and well-built village, delightfully situated in the vale of the Derwent, 4 miles N. from Derby, and 3 miles S. from Belper, and contains many handsome modern residences. In 1851, it had, with the hamlets of Milford, and Makeney, 618 houses, and 2926 inhabitants, of whom 1365 were males, and 1561 females; 3090 acres of land, a red gravel; rateable value £10,968 14s. In Domesday-book it is called Dunelle, where there were at that time a church, a priest, and two mills. Henry de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, in the time of William the Conqueror, had a castle at the N.W. part of the village, which was demolished in 1264, by order of Henry the III., in consequence of Robert de Ferrers, the last Earl of Derby, joining the Barons in a rebellion against that monarch, and so effectually was it carried out, that not a vestige can now be traced of its ancient grandeur, nor a stone left to point out the spot where it once stood; but a piece of ground called the Castle Orchard, is supposed to have been the site. There was formerly an extensive forest at Duffield, which it appears, also belonged to the Earls of Derby, for in the 26th year of Henry III., (1242). William de Ferrers, gave to the monks of Tutbury, for the health of the soul of Agnes his wife; and those of his ancestors, tithe of all his pannage, venison, honey, and rent, arising out of the forest of Duffield. William Lord Hastings, who was beheaded by Richard III., was constable of Tutbury, chief forester of Duffield, and surveyor of that honour, with the fee of £12 a year for life. Duffield once belonged to the Earls of Lancaster. The daughter of Edmund Earl of Lancaster, second son of King Henry III., had for her dower, besides other lands in Derbyshire, the manor, the advowson of the church, and the whole forest of Duffield. The tithe of Duffield, with the exception of a third part to the church, was given by Henry de Ferrers to the Priory of Tutbury. In the reign of Charles I., Duffield was granted to several persons. Sir Richard Paul Jodrell, Bart., is lord of the manor, and holds a court at Duffield. Mr. James Oldham Swettenham, is steward of the manors in the fee of Duffield. Lord Scarsdale and other principal residents are owners.

The Church, dedicated to St. Alkmund, is a handsome Gothic edifice, containing nave, north and south aisles, separated by stone piers and pointed arches, a transept, vestry, chancel, and an aisle on the north side, called the vicar's chancel, and a tower containing six bells and a clock, surmounted by a lofty spire. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's books at £8 4s., now £163, in the patronage of the Bishop of Lichfield, and incumbency of the Rev. Wm. Barber, M.A. It has been endowed with £400 benefactions, £400 Queen Anne's bounty, and £300 parliamentary grant. The church was thoroughly renovated very recently, and the south aisle was restored at the sole expense of the Misses Colville, sisters to C. R. Colville, Esq., M.P., and contains many ancient monuments, the most striking of which is one to Anthony Bradshaw, father of President John Bradshaw, who passed sentence on King Charles I. Anthony Bradshaw had two wives, and by them 23 children, 20 of whom are interred here with himself and wives. The monument contains figures representing the whole of the family, and there was formerly painted on the walls the sponsors to all the children. He resided at Makeney hall, and died in 1614. One to Samuel Bradshaw, of Holbrooke; he was receiver-general of the land-tax for 30 years, and during three reigns; he died in 1716. Also, a very fine altar-tomb to the memory of Sir Roger Minors, of Windle hill, in the parish of Sutton, who died in 1536, and of his lady. This tomb stands on the north aisle of the chancel, and is decorated on the sides with figures of friars sculptured in bas-relief, and at the ends with angels holding shields of arms; upon the tomb are the effigies of the knight and his lady; he is bareheaded, encased in plate armour, and decorated with a collar of SS. His head reclines upon his helmet, with crest and lamberquin. The lady is clothed with a gown and mantle, and wears the angular head dress. She has a little dog on each side of her feet. Altogether this is one of the finest monuments in the county, and is highly valuable, as illustrating the minutiæ of clothing and body armour worn during the reign of Henry VIII.

The Vicarage is a neat mansion west of the church. The Wesleyan Reformers, late the Wesleyan Methodist chapel, is a handsome stone structure, erected in 1843, at a cost of £800, will seat 400 persons. The Wesleyan Methodist old chapel was rebuilt and enlarged in 1855, and will now seat 200 hearers. It had long been used as a Sunday school, and was the oldest chapel on the circuit. A General Baptist chapel, was erected in 1830, of brick and stone, at a cost of £500. Here is an excellent endowed school—(see charities) at which about 80 children are instructed. It is a handsome stone building, with residence for the master, Mr. Wm. Bland.

The Literary and Mutual Improvement Society, established in 1855, is held in the building which was formerly used as a Unitarian chapel, at the nominal rent of 1s., to C. R. Colville, Esq., M.P., the owner. The institution is supplied with the usual periodicals, and the London and Provincial newspapers, to which also is about to be added a— Library. Lectures are given every fortnight during the winter season, which are free to all. There are about 60 members. Mr. Isaac Johnson is the secretary.

Fairs are held on the Thursday after New Year's day, and March 1st. The feast is on the first Sunday after All Saints. The Midland Railway passes through Duffield, and has a station here.

Farnah Hall, 2½ miles N.W. from Duffield, a large elegant mansion situate in a fine park, near the Wirksworth road, is the property and seat of the Right Hon. Lord Scarsdale.

Duffield Hall, an ancient stone mansion of the Elizabethan order, four miles N. from Derby, is the residence of John Bell Crompton, Esq. In the grounds at the back of the hall, is one of the largest cedar trees in England.

Duffield House, a good modern mansion, the residence of John Balguy, Esq., Q.C., Recorder of Derby.

Duffield Bank House, 4½ miles N.E. from Derby, a beautiful residence on the banks of the Derwent, in the occupation of Mrs. C. E. Horsfall.

Burley, 1½ miles S. of Duffield, a few scattered farms.

Cowper's Lane, a few scattered houses, 1 mile W. from Duffield.

MAKENEY, a hamlet and small village on the Belper road, 1½ miles N. by E. from Duffield, and the same distance from Belper. The Old Hall, now a farm house, is noted for the birth-place of John Bradshaw, president of the council who passed sentence on Charles I., and son of Anthony Bradshaw, Esq. The present Hall, a handsome mansion, is the seat of Anthony Strutt, Esq. The Lord President died in the latter part of the year 1659. He had many years before recovered the estates belonging to the family, in the Court of Common Pleas. He left his estates to a niece, who married Colonel Sydenham, son of Lord Falconbridge, one of the best officers in the King's party.

Makeney Lodge, 6 miles N. from Derby, and 2 miles S. from Belper, is a newly erected stone mansion, the property and residence of A. Holmes, Esq.

MILFORD, a hamlet and considerable village in the township of Belper, 1½ miles N. from Duffield, and 6 miles N. from Derby, was in 1846 formed into a new ecclesiastical district or parish, with a population of 1,933 souls in 1851. The Church dedicated to the Holy Trinity was built in 1847-8, on a site given by Messrs. Strutt. The cost of the erection was about £2400, defrayed by grants and private benefactions. It is a handsome stone edifice in the Early English style, with lancet windows, and consists of nave, one aisle, and chancel, the windows in which are of stained glass, turret, and one bell. The Living is a perpetual curacy, value £150 in the patronage of the Crown and the Bishop of Lichfield, alternately, and incumbency of the Rev. Robert Leigh, for whom they are building a new parsonage.

The Baptists have a neat chapel, erected in 1849 at a cost of £360. It is a good stone edifice with school rooms attached, and will seat about 140 persons. The Wesleyans, Wesleyan Reformers, and Primitive Methodists have each places of worship here. The inhabitants are almost wholly employed at the cotton mills, bleaching and dye works, &c., of the Messrs. Strutt, who support a large school in connexion with the establishment, at which about 310 children of both sexes receive instruction; they have also constructed a large swimming and shower bath for the use of the workpeople, the charge for which is merely nominal. It is plentifully supplied both with warm and cold water. Here is also a Mechanic's Institute, under the liberal patronage of the Managers of the Works. Lectures are given occasionally during the winter months, and the Library contains about 350 volumes. The room is open three nights a week as a Reading Room, and is well supplied with the London and Provincial Newspapers, several of which are furnished by Mr. Geo. H. Strutt and Mr. A. Holmes.

Milford House, a large handsome mansion South of the village, is the seat of George Henry Strutt, Esq.

Derwent House, a neat stone residence on the East bank of the Derwent is the property and residence of Messrs. Henry and Charles Elmes.

Post Office at William Tempest's; letters arrive from Derby at 7.45. a.m., and are dispatched at 6.30. p.m. Money Orders granted and paid from 10 o'clock a.m. to 5 o'clock p.m. daily (Sundays excepted).

BELPER, an improving market town and chapelry, in the parish of Duffield, is pleasantly situated on the eastern bank of the river Derwent, over which it is crossed at the N.W. by a handsome stone bridge of three arches; distant 7 miles N. from Derby, and 8 miles S.W. from Alfreton. It contains 2700 acres of land, mostly a red sandy soil, rateable value £17,312, and in 1851 had 1987 inhabited houses, 75 uninhabited, and 6 building; 10,082 inhabitants, of whom 4890 were males, and 5192 females. Of this number 205 were in the Union Workhouse. It is an irregularly built town, with several streets well paved, and lighted with gas, and amply supplied with water; the principal of which are Bridge street and King street, containing some excellent shops and private residences.

Sir Richard Paul Jodrell, Bart.; is lord of the manor and owner, the other principal owners are John Strutt, Esq., Geo. Hy. Strutt, Esq., Chas. Robt. Colville, Esq., M.P., Rev. Jno. Bannister, Messrs. Thos. and Jas. Harrison, John Harrison, Esq., and Moore's trustees. The Church, in Church street, dedicated to St. Peter, is a handsome stone edifice, in the decorated style of English architecture, and contains nave, chancel, north and south galleries, with a lofty tower, surmounted with pinnacles. The east window is partly filled with stained glass. It contains 1804 sittings, of which 1,204 are free; and was erected in 1824, at a cost of £1,200, raised by subscriptions and Parliamentary grant. The living is a perpetual curacy, valued in the King's book at £3, now £158, it has been endowed with £800 Queen Anne's bounty, £300 benefactions, and £2,300 Parliamentary grants. The vicar of Duffield is patron, and the Rev. Robert Hey, M.A., incumbent. The original chapel, built by John of Gaunt, is now used as a Sunday school. The burial ground attached is still used, in which are some very old yew trees. A short time ago, on opening a grave, some ancient coins were turned up, of the reigns of the Edward's and Elizabeth. It is supposed that they were interred with the bodies of those who had died of the plague, and buried with their clothes on.

Christ Church, Bridge Hill, was erected in 1850, at a cost of about £3000, raised by grants to the amount of £1065, from the different church building societies, and the rest by an appeal made to the county at large, by the incumbent. It is a plain structure, in the early English style, with turret, and three bells, an organ, purchased from Kirkstall Church, near Leeds; and a handsome font. It contains sittings for 600 persons, 452 of which are free and unappropriated. The Living is a perpetual curacy, in the alternate patronage of the Crown, and Bishop of Lichfield, value £150. The Rev. John Bannister, M.A., the first and present incumbent, through whose exertions the Church was built, and who is about erecting a Parsonage house adjoining it. Until 1845, the town made but one ecclesiastical district; in that year, the part to the west of the Midland Railway, was by an Order in Council, formed into a separate district, and became a new parish, for all ecclesiastical purposes.

The Wesleyan Chapel, Chapel street, is a handsome stone building, erected in 1807, and will seat 1,400 persons. In 1841, a large school-room was erected behind the chapel, at which 100 children attend, and on Sunday, 200. In 1844, an organ was placed in the gallery behind the pulpit, and two large burial grounds are attached, with a house for the minister. The whole cost has been about £5,500.

Wesleyan Chapel, Pottery, a plain stone building, erected in 1816, will seat 500 persons.

Wesleyan Reform Chapel, Market-street Lane, now in course of erection, at a cost of about £1000, is intended to seat about 700 persons.

The Primitive Methodist Chapel, at Field Head, is a neat stone building, built in 1822, on the site of a smaller chapel, erected in 1817. It cost about £1000, and will seat about 700 persons.

The New Connexion Methodists, had a neat brick chapel, in Short Row, which was destroyed by fire, in 1843. The fire happened in the night, and was supposed to be the work of an incendiary. A suit in chancery was the consequence. It was rebuilt in 1849, but is not now used.

The Independent Chapel, is pleasantly situated in Market-street Lane. It is a large stone building, with galleries all round, and will seat about 600 persons, erected in 1799. The Rev. J. Whewell is the pastor.

The General Baptist Chapel, Bridge street, a neat stone building, erected in 1820, at a cost of £800, will seat upwards of 400 persons.

The Unitarian Chapel, Field Row, erected by the late Messrs. Stubbs, in 1788, and still supported by the family. The Rev. R. L. Lloyd, is the pastor. They have also a neat stuccoed building, in Market-street Lane, which is used for a Sunday school; it was built in 1721, and enlarged in 1855.

National Schools, (St. Peter's,) the Butts, erected in 1849, at a cost of about £1000, raised by subscriptions, and grants from the National Society of £536. It is a neat Gothic building, and consists of one large room, 80 ft. by 70 ft., divided in the centre by a wooden partition, and will accommodate about 400 children, the average attendance is about 150 boys, and 130 girls.

Lancasterian Schools, erected by the Messrs. Strutts, near their factory, where about 600 children, including infants, are educated, who pay 1d. and 2d. per week. There are spacious play-grounds attached.

Infant School, High street, in a convenient room to hold 100 children, established 22 years since, supported by subscription and the payments of the children. Average attendance, 55.

Congregational School, Cow Hill, a good stone building, erected in 1844, for a Sunday school and occasional preaching. In connexion with which, a British School was opened, Oct. 14th, 1849. Average attendance, 50.

Literary Institution, Library, and News Room, established in 1854, is held in the National School room, Butts. There are about 200 volumes in the library, and the news-room is well supplied with the London and Provincial newspapers, periodicals, &c. Rev. Robert Hey, M.A., president; Mr. Jno. Morley, librarian.

The Town's News Room, at Mr. Pegg's, Market place, was established in 1852, and consists of 20 members, who pay £1 1s. 0d. annually. It is open from 8 o'clock in the morning, until ten in the evening. Half-members or subscribers are admitted from 4 o'clock in the afternoon, until 10 in the evening, on payment of 10s. 6d. annually.

The Savings' Bank, was established in 1818, at the Old Chapel, but since, removed to a more suitable building, in Bridge street, and on 24th November, 1855, there were 1,056 depositors, having deposits amounting to £40,000, besides 9 charitable societies with about £305, and 39 friendly societies with upwards of £2000. Mr. John Hunter is the actuary. The bank is open every Saturday, from 1.30 to 3 o'clock.

There are a great many Friendly and Odd Fellows' societies in the town, which have tended much to keep down the poor's rate.

Gas Works, Derby road, adjoining the Railway station, were erected in 1848, by a Company with a capital of £3,500, in 350 shares, of £10 each. The works contain a gasometer capable of holding 17,000 cubic feet of gas, and 12 retorts, but it is intended to have them enlarged, they being found too small for the requirements of the town, previous to the erection of which the town was lighted from the works of Messrs. Strutt.

Baths, Nottingham road, were established in 1848, by Mr. J. C. Topham, and consist of slipper, shower, and swimming baths, neatly fitted up with every requisite, and which during the season are most liberally and deservedly supported. Mr. Thomas Seavern, is the proprietor.

Lockup, on the Matlock road, erected in 1848, is a substantial stone building and contains four cells. Mr. Adam Ryde, keeper; and Mr. John Hawkins, superintendent constable.

Town's Office, Church street, for the receipt and payment of rates, meetings of the overseers, and the general business of the township. Mr. Joseph Taylor, assistant overseer.

Inland Revenue Office, is at the Lion Hotel, Bridge street.

Petty Sessions are held every Wednesday at the Office, Bridge street. The attending magistrates are Francis Hurt, Thomas Peach, A. R. Strutt, G. H. Strutt, and T. W. Evans, Esqrs. Mr. George Pym is their clerk.

The Market Place is small and inconveniently arranged, but the market which is held on Saturday, is well supplied with meat, fruit, vegetables, butter, eggs, and poultry, &c. Fairs are held May 12th, and Oct. 31st, and a hiring for servants, Nov. 1st. The Feast, first Sunday after St. Peter.

The ancient name of the town was Beaupoire, or Belle Piere, signifying Fair stone from the whiteness of the stone in its quarries. Edmund Crouchback, Earl of Lancaster, who died in 1296, had the manor of Belper, previous to which there is no mention of a manor, and it is supposed that it originated in his enclosing a park and building a hunting seat, to which, from its beautiful situation, he gave the name of Beau Repaire—afterwards corrupted to Belper. It has been handed down from time immemorial, that John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, and son of Edward III. once resided here, but no confirmation of the fact has been acquired. A few fragments of old walls, of great thickness, have been discovered in the coppice near a dwelling called the Manor House, which has long been down, but which show it to have been a large establishment, with an extensive park, and said to have been a favourite sporting establishment of its founder, John of Gaunt. A farm house has been built on part of the site. An antique stone from this house is placed in the gable of Mr. Jessop's house, Belper lane.

The ancient bridge over the river Derwent, on which, from the arms placed in the centre, was thought to have been built by John of Gaunt, was destroyed by a great flood in 1795, and succeeded by the present handsome stone bridge of three arches.

Bridge Hill House, a large handsome stone mansion, delightfully situated on a commanding eminence in park like grounds, is the property of the Messrs. Strutt, and the seat of John Strutt, Esq. It was erected by the late G. B. Strutt, Esq., in 1794.

TRADE.—The original staple manufacture of Belper, is nails. The horse nails made here are much in demand, arising from the peculiar quality of the iron and coal in the neighbourhood. About 500 persons are employed in making common nails, and 300 in making horse nails. In 1777, cotton spinning was introduced by Messrs. Strutts, whose successors have an extensive establishment in Bridge street, for cotton spinning, with establishments for bleaching, dyeing, founderies, and machine making, all done on their own premises. They also have a large establishment at Milford, 1½ miles lower down the river. The whole fitted up with the newest and most approved machinery. The manufacture of cotton and silk hosiery and gloves was introduced here about 60 years ago by the firm of Ward, Brettle and Ward, which is now continued by two firms,—George Brettle and Co., of 119, Wood street, Cheapside, London; and Ward, Sturt and Sharp, 89, Wood street, Cheapside, London. The machinery employed by these firms is scattered over the country for 20 miles round, but is chiefly within 10 miles of Belper. The employment of labour in hosiery fluctuates a good deal, and the total number of persons, men, women, and children employed, may vary from 4,000 to 5,000. The number of framework knitters in Belper and its immediate neighbourhood, is about 400.

The Midland Railway passes through the centre of the town and has a neat stone station with waiting rooms and convenient offices on the Derby road; and the numerous bridges caused by the railway have given the town a very striking appearance.

The Cromford Canal is about 2 miles north of the town, and the High Peak railway about 6 miles distant.

The New Small Debts Act, or County Courts.—This important act, which superseded the Court of Requests, came into operation on the 15th March, 1847.

Belper County Court is held at the New Inn, Market Place, monthly, and the district comprises the following places, viz.—Belper, Denby, Duffield, Hazlewood, Heage, Heanor, Hillcliff Lane, Holbrook, Horsley, Horsley Woodhouse, Ilkestone, Kilbourne, Little Hallam, Loscoe, Makeney, Mapperley, Milford, Morley, Shipley, Shottle & Postern, Smalley, Turnditch, Windley.

Judge, J. T. Cantrell, Esq.

Clerk, Mr. M. W. Ingle, Church street; office open from 10 till 4 o'clock.

High Bailiff, Mr. Thomas Jennison.

Belper Poor Law Union consists of 35 parishes and townships, and has 53 guardians, who meet every Saturday, at 1 30 p.m., in the Board room. The Union is divided into 6 registration districts, viz.—Alfreton, Belper, Wirksworth, Duffield, Horsley, and Ripley. The Workhouse is a large stone building, in the Elizabethan style, east of the Derwent, on the Derby road, and near the railway station; erected at a cost of £12,000, and is capable of accommodating 340 persons, but the average number is 220. The Union includes an area of 66,590 acres, with a population in 1851, of 46,872, which in 1841 was 46,188. The total expenditure for the year ending March, 1856, was £1,449, (not including out door relief.) The average weekly cost of the indoor paupers for the last year, was, (including rations of officers) 2s. 6d., each, and for clothes, 3½d.

The places are Alderwasley, Alfreton, Allestree, Ashley-hay, Belper, Crich, Denby, Dethick, Lea, Holloway, Duffield, Hazlewood, Heage, Holbrook, Horsley, Horsley-Woodhouse, Idridgehay, Ireton Wood, Kedleston, Kilbourne, Kirk Langley, Meynell Langley, Mackworth, Markheaton, Mapperley, Morley, Mugginton, Pentrich, Quarndon, Ravensdale Park, Ripley, Shottle and Postern, Smalley, South Wingfield, Turnditch, Weston, Underwood, Windley, and Wirksworth.

Chairman to Board of Guardians, John Strutt, Esq.
Chaplain, Rev. Robert Leigh, B.A.
Clerk to Board of Guardians and Superintendent Registrar, Mr. George Pym.
Master and Matron of the Workhouse, Robert and Mary Wheatland.
Registrar of Births, Deaths, and Marriages, Mr. Wm. Cantrell.
Surgeon, Richard Rowland Allen, Belper.
Relieving Officers, John Weston, Horsley Woodhouse, and John Bacon, Crich Carr.

BELPER CHARITIES.

John Lockoe, of Holbrooke, in 1676, conveyed to trustees and their heirs, an estate of 10 acres, at Kilborne, for the uses following—viz., 40s. to be distributed yearly to the poor of Belper, 10s. yearly to Kilborne, 20s. yearly to Horsley Woodhouse, and 20s. yearly to the poor of Horsley, to be paid out of the rents of the said cottage and premises. In 1809, the property, 12 acres, was let for 21 years at the yearly rent of £15. Belper receives four-ninths, £6 13s. 4d., which is distributed on Christmas-eve.

Henry Smith, of Whitemoor, in 1705, gave all his lands, called Cawoods, lying in Belper, on trust, to pay yearly the sum of £4 to the poor of Belper, also £4 to the curate or officiating minister. The premises consist of a farm house and 17½ acres of land, between two and three acres, an allotment from Belper common, which is let for £6 per annum, and the house and residue for £24 per annum. One moiety is paid to the perpetual curate, and the other distributed to the poor on Christmas-eve.

John Taylor, in 1746, left one acre of land, lying on the upper side of the Round Meadow, in the Milly Laund, in Belper, the rent to be distributed to the poor. 19s. 2d. is received from the Messrs. Strutt, who have owned the land since 1810, when it was purchased, subject to that payment.

Matthew Smith, by will in 1713, reciting that he had built two alms houses in Belper for two poor people, and devised four closes lying in the Hoppings, containing 13 acres, and one pingle near the Cow-hill, of half-an-acre, which were of the value of £8 per annum, and directed the rents thereof to be employed towards the relief of two poor people. The two alms houses have small gardens adjoining, and the lands, which contain 14A. 0R. 28P. are now (1826), let for £21 per annum. The alms houses which were very dilapidated, were rebuilt by Mr. Gregory, the acting trustee, in 1829, at the cost of about £130, towards which there was a balance in his hands of £84 5s. 6d.

James Sims gave, by his will two alms houses and coals. The income, in 1786, was 12s. per annum. Two houses, supposed to be these, fell into decay, and were claimed by the parish, who rebuilt the houses out of the poor-rates, and the tenants pay rent. It is said the coal-money was payable from land in Belper, now not known

John Taylor, in 1714, left £40, the interest to be distributed to the poor. This gift is mentioned in the returns of 1786, as being withheld, and we have not been able to get any information relating to it.

Rev. Francis Gisborne's Charity,—(see Bradley).—The annual sum of £5 10s. received by the minister, is laid out in coarse cloth and flannel, and given to the poor.

HAZLEWOOD, a township and scattered village, 6 miles N.W. from Derby, and 2½ miles S.W. by W. from Belper. It contains 1299A. 3R. 8P. of land, rateable value, £1834, and in 1851 had 94 houses, and 416 inhabitants, of whom 211 were males, and 205 were females. The principal owners are Lord Scarsdale, Messrs. Strutt, George Henry Strutt, Esq., Mr. William Mason, and Beamsley Hospital, (Yorkshire) 140 acres. The Church, dedicated to St. John, is a neat stone edifice, in the early English style, erected in 1845, at a cost of about £2,000, raised by subscriptions. It contains a nave and chancel with a Gothic porch, and a turret with two bells. The chancel is separated from the nave by a handsome screen, and has a beautiful window of stained glass presented by Miss A. Colville. The number of sittings are 293, all of which, with the exception of 91, are free. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £150. Patron, the Bishop of Lichfield. Incumbent, Rev. John Horner Jenkins, B.A., who resides at the parsonage house, a handsome Elizabethan building, pleasantly situated on an eminence, near the church, built at a cost of £2,000. Handsome schools, with residences for the teachers, were built here in 1845, at a cost of about £1,000, raised by subscriptions, the greater portion of which was borne by General Colville. The average attendance of children is about 50. The Wesleyans have a small chapel here. On the farm occupied by Mr. Joseph Goodwin, may be distinctly traced the foundations of a large building, with court yard, &c., partly surrounded with a moat. The ground on which it originally stood would be about an acre and a half, and the fact of a number of ancient silver coins having at various times been dug up, is strongly corrobative of its having been at an earlier period a place of some note. Here are some large stone quarries.

CHARITIES.—Mr. Alfred gave £10 to the poor of this township, which, in 1786, produced 8s. a year. It appears that this sum, which had been placed out at interest, was, in the year 1812, paid in, since which (1826) no distribution has been made. However, since our inquiry, 10s. as the interest of £10, was distributed to poor widows of the township, and, it is intended, shall be so in future.

HEAGE or HIGH EDGE, is a township, chapelry, and large scattered village, on the Chesterfield road, 2½ miles N.E. from Belper, and 5½ miles from Duffield. It contains 2278A. 2R. 39P. of land; rateable value £5678; and in 1851 had 486 houses, and 2278 inhabitants, of whom 1206 were males, and 1,072 females. Francis Hurt, Esq., of Alderwasley, is principal owner, and lord of the manor, but Charles Colville, Esq., M.P., of Lullington, and others, have estates here. The Church, an ancient structure, was enlarged in 1836, and contains 362 free sittings, for which purpose the Incorporated Society for the enlargement of Churches, contributed £300. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £150, having been augmented with £1,000 Queen Anne's Bounty, and in 1813 with £1000 Parliamentary grant. The Vicar of Duffield is the patron, and the Rev. Henry Mosse, B.A. incumbent, who resides at the Parsonage house, a good residence near the Church. A National School was built in 1841, capable of accommodating 200 children, at a cost of £200, raised partly by subscriptions, aided by a parliamentary grant. The average attendance is about 60. Heage Hall, an ancient building, now a farm house. The soil is clay and abounds in iron stone, which has been worked here from a very early period; charcoal was anciently used in the smelting and manufacturing of it, but coal is now found in abundance. The Wesleyan, the Primitive, and the Reform Methodists have each chapels here. In 1853, Mr. William Else erected a small steam corn mill of 10 horse power, near Bull Bridge. A school was founded here in 1705, by George Storer. (See Charities.)

AMBERGATE, a small hamlet on the Midland Railway, at the junction where the Matlock and Rowsley branch joins the main line, 2 miles N.W. from Heage, and 3½ miles N. from Belper. It consists principally of the Railway Station, with the offices and outbuildings attached thereto; a handsome stone building, with convenient waiting rooms, &c., from whence trains are despatched North and South several times daily; contiguous to which is the "Thatched House Tavern," a first-rate commercial, and posting, and boarding hotel, fitted up with every convenience, and where post horses, flys, &c., are in readiness at five minutes notice,—Mr. Benjamin Broadhurst, proprietor. Here is also an extensive steam saw mill, built in 1856, by Mr. John Linacre.

BUCKLAND HOLLOW, one mile N.E. from Heage, on the Cromford Canal, is the extensive establishment of German Wheatcroft & Son, carriers to all parts of the kingdom. At a short distance, and near Bull Bridge, are the Hopton Wood Stone Company's works, where all kinds of chimney pieces, monuments, tablets, &c., are manufactured in Derbyshire and Foreign marbles, also landings, staircases, steps, &c. The Methodists have a chapel here.

MORLEY PARK, half a mile S. from Heage, is a scattered district of farms, and the extensive iron works of John and Charles Mold, who have two blast furnaces, with steam engines of 300 horse power. They manufacture all kinds of iron work. They have also a large establishment at Alderwasley. Morley Park was granted by Queen Elizabeth, about 1753, to John Stanhope, Esq., and in 1677 was found to contain 560A. Since the purchase of Heage, it has passed with that manor, and now belongs to F. Hurt, Esq., of Alderwasley.

TOAD MOOR, a small scattered hamlet, 2¼ miles N.W. from Heage, where the Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel.

CHARITIES.—George Storer, in 1705, conveyed two closes, 9 acres, near Harthay, of the yearly value of £3, in the following trusts, viz.: the yearly sum of £5 to be paid to apprentice poor children, natives of Heage, and in default of such, to poor children of Belper; and the sum of 10s. to be paid by the said trustees to some orthodox minister, to preach two sermons on Trinity Sunday, in Heage chapel yearly. By indenture, 1705, the said George Storer conveyed to other trustees two closes, 12 acres, called the Upper Haggs, at Harthay, and several closes called the Nether Haggs, containing 12 acres, in the lordship of Ripley, to apply £5 10s. for teaching poor children. The property consists of a house, garden, barn, and about 26 acres of land, at a rent of £35 per annum. The profits of both are carried to one account, £5 only being paid as the apprentice fee. The schoolmaster now receives £28 annually. A school room was built about 1810, from the funds of the charity. Thirty boys and girls are instructed, and £1 1s. is paid to the minister of Heage chapel, for the two sermons.

Edward Ridge, in 1709, left 5s. per annum, to be paid out of the High Green House, and to be divided between two of the poorest widows of Heage.

James Holland, in 1774, vested £150 in the hands of trustees, the interest of £100 to the minister of Heage Chapel, and the interest of £50 to be given in bread or money to the poor attending public worship in the said chapel. This has been lent, formerly at 3 per cent, latterly at 4 per cent interest. About 1820, Thomas Sims had £45, but dying intestate, the sum of £26 5s. 3d. was received as a dividend from his estate. In order to preserve the remaining part £136 1s. 9d. from loss, it appears desirable that it should be invested in some public security.

Rev. Francis Gisborne's charity.—(see Bradley.) The annual sum of £5 10s. is received by the minister, and expended in the purchase of coarse cloth and flannel, and given to the poor.

Post Office at J. Hopkinson's, Heage. Letters arrive by foot post from Belper, at 9 15 a.m., and are despatched at 6 15 p.m. Post Office at Henry Adams, Toad Moor,—letters arrive from Belper by mail cart at 6 a.m., and are despatched at 8 p.m.

HOLBROOK, a township, chapelry, and picturesque village, 2½ miles S.E. by S. from Belper, and 5½ miles N.E. from Derby. It contains 886A. 3R. 5P. of land; rateable value, £1,368; and in 1851 had 203 houses, and 981 inhabitants, of whom 511 were males and 470 females. The manorial rights, which were sold by Charles the I, are divided between Thos. W. Evans, Esq., and Mrs. Meynell of Tapton Hall, and the principal owners are, Thos. W. Evans, Esq., of Allestree Hall, and Geo. Strutt, Esq., of Belper, besides several small freeholders. The church was erected in 1761 by the Rev. Saml. Bradshaw, who endowed it with £30 per annum, charged on the Holbrook estate, it has been augmented to £50 with £200 Queen Anne's bounty. It having fallen into decay in 1841, it was rebuilt and enlarged by the late William Evans, Esq.; it is a plain stone building without a tower, and will now seat 420 persons. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £50, in the patronage of Thos. W. Evans, Esq., and incumbency of the Rev. Wm. Leeke, M.A., who resides at the Hall, a handsome mansion delightfully situated on a commanding eminence, embracing fine views of the surrounding district. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in making gloves and stockings. In 1837, the late Wm. Evans, Esq., built a school for the instruction of boys and girls; it is a plain stone building, capable of accommodating 200 children; the average attendance is about 100; and in 1842, he erected a similar one on Holbrook moor for infants; the average attendance is about 50. The commons were enclosed in 1790.

COXBENCH, a small village partly in the township of Holbrook, and partly in Horsley parish, about equal distance from each. Here was a considerable estate, which for many generations, belonged to the ancient family of Franceys, whose residence it was. The co-heir of Mr. Robert Franceys, the last male heir of the family, carried it to the Johnson family, from whom it passed to the Meynells. The Hall, a neat mansion 4½ miles N.N.E. from Derby, is now unoccupied. The Independents have a chapel here, and the Methodists one on Holbrook Moor.

CHARITIES.—John Lockoe surrendered a close of land called Spencer's Croft, 2 acres, upon trust to pay the rents to the poor of Holbrook for ever. About the year 1808, a turnpike road was cut through this close; afterwards, £20 8s. 8d. was received by the trustee. Out of this sum an expense of £2 11s. 11d. had been incurred in searching the Duffield court rolls, and the remainder, £17 16s. 9d., was placed at interest. In 1822, a further portion of the land was sold for £83. This sum, with 8s. 3d, as interest, and the above £17 16s. 9d., made in the whole £101 5s.; of which the sum of £94 12s. 6d. was in the year 1823 laid out in the purchase of £100 new 4 per cents. £1 1s. 8d. was paid for a power of attorney to receive the dividends, and £5 11s. was in 1835 distributed to the poor. The remaining part of the close, 3R., is now let for £6 per annum. The present income, £10, is now distributed on St. Thomas's day.

Here is a school to which there is a small endowment attached, and for which the master teaches 12 poor children. In 1824, the old school-room was converted into a dwelling for the master, and a new school consisting of two rooms, was erected at the expense of the inhabitants; in which Divine Service is performed every Sunday, by the Rev. Jas. P. Deacon, incumbent of Turnditch. The Wesleyans have a chapel on the south side of the township, erected in 1816. The General Baptists hold religious services in a room belonging to Mr. Joseph Malin. SHOTTLE GATE, a small village on the Ashbourn road, 3 miles W. from Belper, and Shottle Gate House, a large handsome residence, with extensive and superior outbuildings combining all the most recent improvements in the arrangement of a farmstead, is the property of John Strutt, Esq., of Belper, and in the occupation of Mr. Wm. Winson.

CHARITIES.—Ralph Dowley, in 1738 gave £40 in trust, for the instruction of poor children until the sum should be wholly expended. On the death of Ralph Dowley, his widow Rebecca Dowley, paid the said legacy; and to augment the charity, she also gave £35, in order to have the whole laid out in land and the charity made perpetual. And for that purpose Adam Simpson, in 1749, conveyed to the trustees 7 roods of land and two beast gates upon Bonsall Leys, and the Green. This property consists of about $5\frac{3}{4}$ acres, now let for £7 10s. per annum. Of this sum two-thirds is paid to the schoolmaster, and one-third by Mrs. Dowley's grant, is paid to a dissenting chapel at Wirksworth. 12 children are taught free.

Countess of and William Earl of Devonshire's Charities, extend to various places, and the annual sum of £4 is received by the overseers of this township, to be applied in apprenticing poor children.

National schools for both sexes were erected in 1846, at a cost of about £300, raised by subscriptions and grants from the Committee of Council of £75, and from the National School Society of £50. It is a neat stone building, near the church, and will accommodate 111 children; the present average attendance is about 50, supported by voluntary contributions and the children's pence. The Independents have a chapel, erected in 1818, by the late Mr. Wm. Statham, and the late Mr. Abraham Harrison, of Belper, to which Mr. Statham left an endowment. EDLASTON-WITH-WYASTON, a township, parish, and village, delightfully situated 15 miles N.W. from Derby, and 3 miles S. from Ashbourn, contains 1,263A. 3R. 24P. of land, mostly a strong soil in Edlaston, gravelly in Wyaston and a good portion arable; in 1851, 44 houses, and 197 inhabitants, of whom 95 were males, and 102 females; rateable value, £1,724. John Harrison, Esq., is lord of the manor and principal owner. Mrs. Greaves, and Francis Wright, Esq., have also estates here. The Church, dedicated to St. James, is a small stone structure, with nave, chancel, a small wooden turret, and two bells. The living is a rectory, valued in King's book at £3 18s. 4d., now £212. Patron, the Bishop of Lichfield, and the Rev. Thos. Cupiss, M.A., rector, who resides at the rectory, a good house W. of the church. Here is a small school, at which about 20 children attend. A common of 20 acres was enclosed in 1824. Wyaston Grove, a neat cemented residence, a little E. of the village, is the property of Francis Wright, Esq., and the residence of Mrs Alderson. The Wesleyan Methodists have a neat chapel at Wyaston. The manor of Edlaston was given to the prior and convent at Tutbury, by Robert Earl Ferrars, son of the founder; after the Reformation it was granted by Henry VIII., about 1548, to William Lord Paget, who the next year conveyed it to Sir Edward Aston, Knt. At a later period it belonged to the Eyres of Hassop, and was sold by Rowland Eyre, Esq., to Mr. Danl. Morley, of Ashbourn, of whose devisee, in trust, it was purchased by the ancestors of the Rev. Thomas Gisborne, of Yoxall, in Staffordshire, who conveyed it to Edmund Evans, Esq., at whose death it came to his only surviving daughter, the wife of John Harrison, Esq., the present owner.

CHARITIES.—George Frost, by will 1674, devised 10s. a year to the poor of Edlaston and Wyaston, payable out of two pieces of ground called the Riddings. This, with two other charities, is given shortly after Christmas.

Humphrey Calvert devised to the poor 6s. 8d. yearly for ever, out of a field called Littlewood in Clifton. Two other similar payments are made to Clifton and Yeaveley, given by this donor's will, but the date is not known.

Florence North gave £7 to the poor of this township, to be put out at interest and applied in buying bread. For this sum the overseers pay 7s. a year as interest, which is laid out in bread, as directed.

Mr. Waterhouse left £3, the interest to buy bread to be distributed to the poor. This also is said to be in the hands of the inhabitants. 3s. is given by the overseers in penny rolls on Easter-day.

Paul Kirkland, in 1714, gave a yearly rent tax of 20s. free, to be issuing out of his lands in Wyaston, to the minister, rector, or curate of the said parish, for preaching on the 29th June and 25th January, a sermon in the church of that parish; and if such sermon is not preached, the said sum should be distributed to the poor on the day following. He also gave another 5s., to be issuing out of the said premises, to the parish clerk of Edlaston, for ringing the bells and attending service on those days; and he gave to his wife, for life, all his messuages and lands in Wyaston or elsewhere, subject to the same yearly payments; and after her decease he gave the same, subject as aforesaid, to two persons, on trust, that one moiety of the profits, &c., should be distributed half-yearly amongst the poor of Edlaston and Wyaston, for ever, and the other moiety amongst the poor of Yeldersley and Painters' Lane, in the parish of Ashbourn, deducting each particular of cost the trustees might be put to. The premises consist of a farm-house and out-buildings, and 33A. 0. 9P. of land, let for £55 per annum. From the year 1821 to 1825, the portions of the rent applicable both to the poor of this parish and Yeldersley were carried to the general account of the overseers of those places, and no regular distributiou was made. This mode of application appears to us to have been improper. About the year 1810, there was a fall of timber on the lands of this charity, of which the produce was £185, which was received by Mr. George Williamson Greaves, a solicitor, of Ashbourn, on behalf of Mrs. Lydia Brookes, the trustee. Mr. Greaves paid interest for the money for several years, but in 1821 Mr. Greaves made an assignment of his effects for the benefit of his creditors, but no dividend has ever been paid; and neither this person, or his representatives are now to be found, consequently this money is entirely lost to the poor. About six year ago, Moreton Brookes, Esq., the representative of the original Trust, being resident in a distant part of the kingdom, found he was unable to look properly after the charity, consequently the farm-house and buildings became sadly dilapidated, the rents, not regularly paid, and when received oftentimes applied to uses alien to the will. Mr. B. therefore, to remedy these abuses, earnestly requested Francis Wright, Esq., of Osmaston manor, whose estate the charity land joins, to take upon himself the full power and care of the charity, which he did in 1850, and which has since been confirmed to him by the charity commissioners. Associated with him in the trust, is John Harrison, Esq., of Snelston, and Charles Greaves, Esq., Yeldersley. About two years ago, the farm buildings were almost entirely re-built at a cost of £250. As there were no funds for this purpose, Mr. Wright advanced the money, and deducts a small amount yearly from the rents, as shown in the books kept expressly for the purpose, and will continue to do so until the whole is repaid.

ETWALL parish consists of the townships of Etwall, Bearwardcote and Burnaston, which together, contain 3,434A. 1R. 27P. of land; rateable value, £5,286 9s. 0d.; and in 1851, had 170 houses, and 765 inhabitants, of whom 370 were males, and 395 females.

ETWALL, a township, and large pleasant village, 6 milles W.S.W. from Derby, contains 2,019A. 0R. 22P. of land, a clay loam, (except the common, which is light, on a sub-stratum of gravel,) about two-thirds is pasture, and mostly occupied in dairy farms; rateable value, £3,446 5s. 0d. In 1851, it had 133 houses, and 579 inhabitants, of whom 277 were males, and 302 females. The Rev. Chas. Evelyn Cotton, is lord of the manor and a small owner. A. N. E. Mosley, Esq., Sir Hy. Flower Every, Bart., Rev. Wm. Heacock, John Barber, Esq., W. T. Cox, Esq., Wm. Eaton, Esq., Mr. Wm. Watson, Mr. Thos. Richardson, Mr. Saml. Eyre, Mrs. Ann Eaton, and several others are owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Helen, is a small stone edifice, of considerable antiquity, with nave, chancel, north aisle, low embattled tower, and 3 bells. A portion of the north side, which contains 12 carved oak stalls and a reading desk, is appropriated to the use of the alms-men and master. The living is a vicarage, valued in King's book at £8, now £342. Patron, the Executors of the late Wm. Eaton Mousley, Esq., and the Rev. Wm. Eaton Mousley, M.A., incumbent, who has a good vicarage house, pleasantly situated near the church, and 104 acres of glebe. The tithe was commuted in 1848, for £147 10s. 0d. for Etwall, and £210 for the whole parish. The church received considerable damage from a violent tempest on the 20th June, 1545. It contains the tomb of Henry Porte, Esq., dated 1512, and Elizabeth his wife. The figures of the wife and 17 children are in brass, also, another beautiful brass figure to Hy. Porte, and his two wives dated 1558. Several tablets to the Every, Green, Beer, and Cotton families, and the masters of Etwall almshouses, one of which is to William Boultbee Sloath, D.D., F.S.A., rural dean, and vicar of Willington, and master of this hospital and Repton school 32 years, who died 21st October, 1842, aged 82 years. Etwall Lodge, a good modern residence, situated about a ¼ mile S.E. of the village, erected by the Rev. Wm. Beer, in 1812, is now the property of the Corporation, and the residence of John Sheppard, Esq. The Hospital at Etwall was founded by Sir John Porte, in the year 1556, for six poor persons. It appears by an inscription, that it was re-built in 1681, and at the same time, the number of almsmen was doubled and the salaries increased, in consequence of the improved value of the estates left for this hospital and the school at Repton. The masters of the hospital and school, the ushers, and three senior poor men, are a body corporate, by the name of the Repton and Etwall Corporation. There are 338A. 1R. 30P. of land in this parish; value £606; belongs the corporation, besides estates in Willington, Repton, Egginton, Normanton, &c., amounting to about £2,700 per annum. The governors are the Marquis of Hastings, Earl of Chesterfield, and Sir Robert Gerard, Bart. About £1000 per annum goes to the school at Repton. The hospital stands on the north side of the church, and consists of 16 houses, built of brick, with stone dressings, for 16 poor men. who have 12s. per week, each. They have each on entering, a blue cloak. The master's salary is £180 per annum, with a good residence; the vicar is the master. It appeared to the charity commissioners, in 1826, this charity was excluded from their enquiry. There is a school, endowed with £4 per annum, by Rowland Cotton, or Mary his wife. The Methodist chapel, a handsome building, lighted by ten Gothic windows, erected in 1838, at a cost of £300. It will seat 250 persons. King Henry VIII., in 1540, granted this manor and impropriate rectory and advowson of the vicarage, (which had been given to Welbeck Abbey, Nottinghamshire, in the reign of King Stephen) to Sir John Porte, Knt., one of the Justices of the King's bench. The elder daughter and co-heiress of his son brought Etwall to Sir Thomas Gerard, whose great grandson, Sir William Gerard, sold this estate in 1641, to Sir Edward Mosley, Bart., of whom it was purchased in 1646, by Sir Samuel Sleigh. Mary, only daughter of Sir Samuel, by his third wife, married Rowland Cotton, Esq., of Bellaport, in Shropshire. The Hall, a large venerable mansion of brick, faced with stone brought from Tutbury castle above 200 years ago, contains many splendid apartments, and in the picture gallery, some exquisite carvings in wood. It was anciently the seat of the Portes, and consequently of the Cotton family, one of whom was Major General Cotton, lately deceased. The gardens are extensive, and kept in the old style, and in them is a mulberry tree, of which several branches, bending to the ground, have taken root. It is the property of the Rev. C. E. Cotton, of Dalbury. An Infant School, was erected in 1852, by the vicar, and is also supported by him; it is a small brick building, and will accommodate about 70 children. The average attendance is 56.

BEARWARDCOTE, a township and small village, 4½ miles W.S.W. from Derby, contains 431 acres of strong clay land, and in 1851, had 4 houses, and 34 inhabitants, of whom 19 were males, and 15 were females; rateable value, £469 4s. 0d. C. E. Newton, Esq., is sole owner and lord of the manor. It pays a modus of £2 0s. 4d., to the vicar of Etwall. The old hall was surrounded by a moat, approached by a stone bridge, with a lodge on each side of the gateway. It was taken down in 1790. The moat and part of the bridge remains. The last occupier was Mr. Exuperus Turner, who sold it to Robert Newton, Esq. He died in 1789, having bequeathed this, and other estates, to John Leaper, Esq., who took the name of Newton.

Burnaston township is pleasantly situated on an eminence, a little south of the Derby and Uttoxeter roads, 5 miles S.W. b. W. from Derby, contains 984A. 1R. 5P. of strong land, and in 1851, had 33 houses, and 152 inhabitants, of whom 74 were males, and 78 females; rateable value, £1,371. Rev. C. E. Cotton, lord of the manor. A. N. E. Mosley, Esq., Henry Cox, Esq., Mr. Willder, Mr. James Stone, and Mr. William Stone, and Rev. William Leeke, are owners. It pays a modus of 5s. 6d., to the vicar of Etwall. A small chapel was erected here in 1839, at a cost of £150, which was used occasionally as a lecture room. It is now occupied by the Primitive Methodists. The children of this township are eligible to the school at Etwall. In 1672, Ralph Bonnington. Esq., sold this manor to Sir Samuel Sleigh. It was inherited by his grandson, Samuel Chetham, Esq., devolved afterwards to the Cottons—descended from a co-heiress of Sleigh. The Old Hall, now a farm house, an ancient half-timbered building with pointed gables, is the property of A. N. E. Mosley, Esq., and the residence of Mr. Samuel Bailey. Burnaston House, 1½ miles S.E. from Etwall, is a handsome mansion, the seat and property of Ashton Nicholas Every Mosley, Esq.

Charities.—Sir John Port, Knt., in 1586, devised certain lands for the foundation of an almshouse, at Etwall, and a grammar school at Etwall or Repton. By charter, granted in the 19th year of James I., upon the petition of Henry, Earl of Huntingdon, Philip, Lord Stanhope, and Sir Thomas Gerard, Bart., then the co-heirs of the said John Port, the master, and poor men of the hospital at Etwall, and the schoolmaster and ushers of the school at Repton, were incorporated by the name of "The master, schoolmaster, ushers, poor men, and poor scholars of the hospital and free school of Sir John Port," and were thereby empowered to take certain lands from Sir Harpur, Knt., and from Sir Thomas Gerard, Knt., or any others who had power to convey the same. And it was thereby ordained, the master should receive the rents of the said hospital and school, and make the payments in the orders thereunto annexed; and that Sir John Harpur should be the first governor, and after his death Henry, Earl of Huntingdon, Philip, Lord Stanhope, and Sir Thomas Gerard, and their heirs for ever, should be governors and superintendents of the said hospital and school. The poor have the interest of £20, given by John Edwards, £10 by Alice Cunliffe, £10 by Joyce Harpur, £40 by Dr. Chetham, and 20 marks by Ellis Cuncliffe. The amount of the above sums, with an addition by the parishioners, making £100, was laid out many years ago, on a security of the Derby and Uttoxeter road, which now bears interest at 5 per cent. This, with the incomes from Jennings' and Saxton's charities, are annually distributed by the churchwardens and overseers—two-thirds to the township of Etwall, and one-third to the township of Burnaston.

John Jennings, in 1657, devised from his lands in Wilton, 20s. yearly to the poor of Etwall, and 20s. yearly to the poor of Swarkeston, for ever—now paid out of property belonging to William Martin.

John Saxton, by will, gave 20s. yearly out of a piece of land called the Ipcroft, in Etwall, now paid in respect of a field of about 15 acres.

Robert Heacock, gave 10s. yearly, one-half to the poor of Etwall, and the other to the poor of Burnaston, which was paid by Mr. Enson, of Marston. By a conveyance in 1765, a moiety of a farm at Hilton was to continue liable for ever to the payment of 10s. a year to the poor of Etwall, and 10s. to the poor of the townships of Marston and Hilton. This payment was continued till about two years ago, when the premises in Hilton were sold by Thos. Ensor, who had for some time paid the sum from a house and garden at Hilton, as part of the property conveyed in 1765; from which, to the time of our investigation, (1826), the annuity had not been paid, in consequence of a dispute between the parties as to their liabilities to pay it.

School.—An annual sum of £4, was for many years paid by the owners of the estate of Etwall, belonging to the Cotton family; but it is not known from whose gift it is made. It has not been paid now for some years, and from what cause we are not able to learn.

HARGATE MANOR, an extra parochial liberty, 7¼ miles S.W. from Derby. It contains 51 acres of land, two houses, and nine inhabitants, of whom, six were males, and three were females. Miss Every owns 35 acres, John Mousley, Esq., of Hilton cottage, 11 acres, and A. N, E. Mosley, Esq., 5 acres; the Manor House is occupied by Mrs. Laban, and the Swan Inn, by John Pickering. This manor, formerly called Heath House, is supposed to have been a portion of the original manor of Egginton not granted by William Fitz Ralph, to his nephew William de Grendon. It was afterwards successively the property of the Frechevilles, and Babingtons of Dethick. It was purchased of the latter by the Leigh's.

KEDLESTON, a parish, and small well built village, 5 miles N.W. from Derby, and 8 miles S.E. from Ashbourn, contains 972A. 1R. 16P. of land, a strong red marl, rateable value, £1,903 11s. 2d., and in 1851 had 19 houses, and 85 inhabitants, of whom 38 were males and 47 were females. Lord Scarsdale is lord of the manor and sole owner. The Church, dedicated to All Saints, is an ancient cruciform structure, with a low tower and one bell. It has a Norman south door, and contains some ancient monuments to the Curzon family; the living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £3 19s. 7d., now £159: the tithes were commuted in 1771. Lord Scarsdale is the patron, and the Rev. Alfred N. H. Curzon, B.A., incumbent. The rectory a pleasant mansion $\frac{3}{4}$ mile W. from the church, has recently undergone a thorough repair. This manor, Chetelestune, at the Domesday survey was part of the property of Henry de Ferrars. It was held under the Ferrars family, by that of Curzon as early as the reign of Henry I. Sir John Curzon was created a Baronet in 1641. Sir Nathaniel Curzon, the fifth Baronet, in 1761, was created Baron Scarsdale, of Kedleston. The Hall, a magnificent mansion half a mile E. from the village, is a Grecian structure, erected in 1765 by the grandfather of the present noble owner. It consists of a centre and two wings, with a grand portico, the columns for which were proportioned from those in the Pantheon at Rome. The length of the whole is 360 feet; and is situated in a fine open park, of 1,200 acres, in which are about 1,800 head of deer, a beautiful sheet of water of 52 acres, some magnificent oaks, and many fine plantations. The flower gardens and pleasure grounds, which occupy about 12 acres of ground, are to the south of the hall, and are laid out with exquisite taste. The interior of the building is planned after the ancient Greek mode, and is deservedly admired for the classical taste generally displayed throughout its general decorations. The Hall is 67 feet 3 inches, by 42 feet, and 40 feet high, with 20 corinthian columns of alabaster fluted, 2 feet 6 inches in diameter, with rich capitals of white marble. The Saloon is a most elegant apartment, its figure is circular crowned with a dome, its dimensions are 42 feet in diameter, 34 to the cornice, 55 to the top of the dome, and 62 feet to the rose in the skylight. The Saloon is divided into four alcoves or recesses, having fire-places, representing altars adorned with sphinxes and basso-relievos, and as many doors; the whole painted and ornamented with white and gold. The doors have Scagliola pilasters. This noble room is enriched with the finest works of art, and is one of the most beautiful apartments of its kind in Europe; and almost every room is decorated with paintings by the most eminent masters. Lord Scarsdale's principal residence being at Farnah Hall, only a small establishment is kept here. In the park is a neat building erected over a sulphurous spring, the temperature of which is about 47°; the water which resembles that of one of the Harrogate springs, has been found efficacious in scorbutic and cutaneous diseases.

Prestwood, half a mile W. of the Hall, a large farm, occupied by Mr. W. Smith.

Edward Baskerville, by will, 1713, directed that all the residue of his personal estate, above what he had disposed of, should be put out to interest and the produce disposed of to the most charitable uses, and desired the minister for the time being should be the trustee for the same. The sum of £50 was realized, and vested in the three per cent consols, and subsequent accumulations of the dividends added thereto, now (1826) amounting to £131 9s. 1d. standing in the name of the Hon. and Rev. Francis Curzon, the rector. The income has been usually applied towards placing out apprentices, but the testator has not confined it to this particular purpose.

LONGFORD is a township and parish, comprising also the townships of Alkmonton, Bentley Hungry, Hollington and Rodsley; 6470 acres of land; rateable value, £9,356, and in 1851 had 240 houses, and 1162 inhabitants, of whom 580 were males, and 582 females.

LONGFORD township and village, 7 miles S.S.E. from Ashbourn, contains about 3,000 acres of fertile marl and clay land, 103 well-built houses, and 530 inhabitants, of whom 252 were males, and 278 females; rateable value, £4,511 11s. 11d. The Hon. Edward Coke is the principal owner, and lord of the manor. Francis Bradshaw, Esq., William Dakin, and George Brassington have also estates here. The late Earl of Leicester erected two neat substantial bridges in 1842, over the mill stream in the centre of the village, at an expense of £800, which he gave to the county, on condition the county kept them in repair. The Church, dedicated to St. Chad, formerly a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £3 8s. 9d., is now a rectory of the value of £700. The Earl of Leicester is patron, Rev. T. A. Anson, rector. The Church, half a mile N. from the village, is a very ancient structure, with nave, chancel, side aisles, tower and six bells, and has three stone stalls in the chancel. It was renovated in 1843, at a cost of £800, of which sum £600 was raised by subscription, £100 by rate, and £100 was received from the Incorporated Society. It contains 486 sittings, of which 232 are free. The roof and east window are very beautiful, and the arms of the Cokes and of the late rector are represented in several of the windows in stained glass. In the chancel is a monument to Thomas William Coke, late Earl of Leicester, surmounted with a marble bust. He died at Longford, 30th June, 1842, and was interred in the family vault at Tittleshall, in Norfolk. The monument was executed by Mr. Robert Hall of Derby, and the bust by "Francis," of London. The cost was 300 guineas, which was raised by subscription, showing the high estimation in which the noble Earl was held in this neighbourhood. The Countess of Leicester died at Longford, in 1844, where she was interred. There are various other monuments and tablets in the chancel and church to the Coke family. The tithe was commuted in 1839, the rectorial for £204 1s. 2d., and the vicarial for £77 18s. 6d., and there are 98A. 3R. 24P. of glebe. The rectory, half a mile E. from the church, was re-built in 1853. It is a large handsome mansion delightfully situated on rising ground, from which some fine views of the surrounding scenery may be obtained. Longford Hall, an ancient noble mansion on the south side of the church, is the property and occasional residence of the Hon. Edward Coke. In the conservatory is a handsome marble fountain, brought from Italy in 1844, and the grounds, which have recently been enlarged and improved, are laid out with great taste. Mammerton, half a mile S. from the village, consists of two good houses, built by the late Earl in 1837. Nether Thurvaston is a hamlet and small village one mile E.

The ancestor of the family, which took its name from this place, was Oliver Fitz-nigel, who acquired Longford and Mammerton with the co-heiress of Fitz-Ercald, in the reign of Richard I. Sir Nicholas Longford, the last male heir, who had at various times represented the county in parliament, died in 1610. Soon after, Clement Coke, Esq., sixth son of Lord Chief Justice Coke, became possessed of the estate. He married a co-heiress of Reddiche by the heiress of Dethick, who had married one of the co-heiresses of Longford

Edward Coke, Esq., of Longford, elder son of Clement, was created a Baronet in 1641. His two sons, Robert and Edward, successively enjoyed the title and estate, and died without issue. Sir Edward, by whose death the title became extinct in 1727, bequeathed Longford to his relation, Edward Coke, Esq., brother of Thomas Coke, Esq., afterwards Earl of Leicester, this gentleman dying without issue in 1733, left Longford to his younger brother, Robert Coke, Esq., at whose death, in 1750, it was inherited by his nephew, Wenman Roberts, Esq., who, in 1756, took the name of Coke, and was father of Thomas William Coke, Esq., M.P., of Holkham, and of Edward Coke, Esq., M.P., who had the manor of Longford for his life.

Alkmonton township and small scattered village, 2 miles S.W. from Longford, 5½ miles S. from Ashbourn, contains 694 acres of good marly land, 15 houses, and 78 inhabitants, of whom 44 were males, and 34 females; rateable value, £802 10s. Thomas Wm. Evans, Esq., is sole owner and lord of the manor. The Church, dedicated to St. John, was erected in 1843, by the late Wm. Evans, Esq. It was originally a chapel of ease to Longford, but has since (with Bentley Hungry) been made a separate parish for all ecclesiastical purposes. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £50, in the patronage of Thos. Wm. Evans, Esq., and the Rev. Alpheus Slight, MA., is the incumbent. The parsonage-house, about a quarter mile E. from the church, was built by the late Wm. Evans, Esq., at a cost of £1,200. It is a handsome brick residence, pleasantly situated on a gentle eminence, commanding some fine views towards Staffordshire. An ancient font was removed from Cockshut Croft in 1844, into the church-yard, and after the church was consecrated it was placed in the church. Near the place from which it was taken, are the remains of an ancient building, supposed to have been a church, dedicated io St. Alkmund. The tithe was commuted in 1839, for £54 15s. A school for boys and girls, with residence for the master, endowed with £40 per annum, by the late Wm. Evans, Esq., is now (1856) in course of erection.

Bentley Hungry liberty, a township, and scattered village, 5 miles S. from Ashbourn, contains 1,074A. 1R. 28P. of fertile loam, of which one-fourth is arable, 13 houses, and 84 inhabitants, of whom 51 were males, and 33 females; rateable value, £1,473. Sir Henry Sacheverel Wilmot, Bart, is lord of the manor and sole owner, except Boothey Hay Flats, containing 33A. 2R. 24P. of land, held for an unexpired term of 830 years, granted by Roger Jackson to William Woolley, on the 26th March, 1686, for 1,000 years, without impeachment of waste, at the yearly rent of £10, subject to land-tax. The Rev. German Buckston is the present owner of it. The tithe was commuted in 1839, for £67 10s. Formerly here was a chapel, of which nothing remains. The Bentley estate was purchased by Sir Edward Wilmot, great-grandfather of the present Baronet, on the condition of having a deer leap, considered to be seven feet from the boundary of the liberty, the timber growing on which, with the minerals, are the property of the owner of the Bentley estate. Bentley hall, an ancient building, (now a farm-house) is in the occupation of Mr. Daniel Oakden; and Middleton park, another farm-house, is in the occupation of Mr. Thomas Oakden.

Hollington, a township, and well-built village, 6 miles S.E. by S. from Ashbourn, contains 964A. 2R. 4P. of land, (a strong marl); rateable value, £1703 18s. 4d.; and in 1851, had 66 houses, and 302 inhabitants, of whom 143 were males, and 159 females. The principal owners are, the Hon Edward Coke, John Harrison, Esq., J. G. Crompton, Esq., E. A. Dyke, Esq., Mr. John Wood, Mr. John Radford, and Mr. Holmes; the former is lord of the manor. At the enclosure, in 1819, the tithe was all exonerated, by an allotment of 100 acres of land. The Primitive Methodists have a small chapel here erected in 1847.

Rodsley township and scattered village, 4½ miles S.S.E. from Ashbourn, contains 811A. 2R. 7P. of fertile land. Rateable value, £865.; and in 1851, had 43 houses, and 168 inhabitants, of whom 90 were males, and 78 females. The principal owners are, the Hon. Edward Coke, Mrs. Wm. R. Fearn, the Duke of Devonshire, the Rev. G. Buckston, and the Etwall corporation; the former is lord of the manor. The tithes were commuted in 1840, for £59 0s. 2d. The Methodists have a chapel here. The Feast is first Sunday after October 20th.

CHARITIES.—Sir Robert Coke, Bart., of Longford, in 1687, gave to the rector of Longford, and other trustees, all his manor, messuages, and tithes, in certain places, mentioned, on trust that they should, after his decease, erect one hospital containing six bays of buildings, each bay sixteen feet square, for the habitation of six poor people; with half an acre of land adjoining, for gardens; and that six poor men or women, inhabitants within Longford or the four next adjacent towns, should be placed therein; each inmate to have 2s. per week for their diet and 6d. for their fuel, and every year a gown of good grey cloth faced with blue baize, of the value of 20s.; and pay yearly to the vicar of Longford, £10, for saying prayers to the said poor daily. It does not appear any new trustees have ever been appointed. The Hon. Edward Coke, of Longford Hall, keeps the hospital in repair, and pays the above named sums, and the vicar performs the service every day in Lent, and every Wednesday and Friday throughout the year.

Dame Catharine Coke, in 1688, gave all those closes and lands at Rodsley, called Finnes and Red Lane Ends, on trust to pay the rents thereof to her niece for life, and after her decease, to be employed in the instruction of poor children, in putting out apprentices, and in such manner as the heir-male of her late husband (Sir Edward Coke) and the rector or vicar of Longford should appoint. The premises consist of four fields at Rodsley, called the Finnes, about 21 acres, and the Slang, five acres, forming part of a farm held under the Hon Edward Coke; a plantation of fir tress of about five acres, and a pasture field at Rodsley, called Red Lane Ends, let for £10 a year. There are no buildings on any of the lands. All the rents are received by the Hon. Edward Coke, who pays £32 per annum to a schoolmaster of Longford, for teaching 20 poor children, and also £4 per annum to a schoolmistress at Rodsley. The schoolroom and garden at Longford appear to have been originally taken from the waste. The master occupies them rent free, and the school is kept in repair by the Hon. Edward Coke. No children have for many years been apprenticed.

Joseph Holme, in 1768, gave £1 per annum for teaching poor children of Hollington township. The sum is paid by John Gilman to the schoolmaster at Longford for instructing two poor children.

John Sherwin the elder and younger, in 1666, conveyed an estate in Wyaston, reserving a yearly rent of 20s., payable to the poor of Rodsley. The money, paid by a tenant of Dr. Greaves, is distributed amongst ten poor people of Rodsley.

MARSTON-ON-DOVE parish comprises the townships of Marston, Hatton, Hilton, and Hoon, which together contain 4,139A. 0R. 4P. of rich land, principally grazing, rateable value £7,346, and in 1851 had 270 houses, and 1,191 inhabitants, of whom 609 were males, and 582 females.

Marston-on-Dove, a township and small well built village, 9 miles S.W. by W. from Derby, and 4½ miles N. from Burton-upon-Trent, contains 975A. 1R. 8P. of fertile land, a light sandy loam, rateable value £1,688, and in 1851 had 17 houses and 77 inhabitants, of whom 41 were males and 36 females. The Duke of Devonshire is lord of the manor, sole owner, and impropriator. The Church dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome structure, partly in the early and partly in the decorated style of English architecture, with nave, chancel, side aisles, tower, and 4 bells, with a lofty spire, and has in the interior a remarkably fine old Norman font; it was repaired and repewed in 1816, and in 1830 a gallery was added on the north side, by which 90 free sittings were obtained. The living is a vicarage valued in King's Book at £7 15s. 2½d., now £225. The Duke of Devonshire is patron, and the Rev. Henry Syer Trimmer, B.A., vicar. The Vicarage, north west of the church, a neat residence, was rebuilt in 1831. There are 75 acres of glebe. Hoon pays a modus of £3, and Marston a rent charge of £300 and upwards, in the lieu of tithe to the impropriator. By an old church account book, (1602) the clerk's yearly salary was 4s., and wine was 6½d. per quart. In 1635, King James, being at Tutbury, the ringers had 4d. for ringing. In 1652, the parish expenditure was about £3 per annum; and land for the benefit of the church and poor, about 8 acres was let for £3 2s. This land was sold in 1816, when the church was repaired. The manor had been given to the priory of Tutbury by the founder, Henry de Ferrars. It was granted, after the Reformation, to the Cavendish family. The North Staffordshire Railway runs through the village and occupies 14A. 1R. 34P. of land.

HATTON, a township and ancient village, 1½ miles in length, and 9½ miles W.S.W. from Derby, contains 695A. 1R. 35P. of rich light land, rateable value £1,547, and in 1851 had 68 houses and 319 inhabitants, of whom 166 were males, and 153 females. The Duke of Devonshire is lord of the manor, and principal owner; but Mr. Samuel Faulkner, and Mr. John Hallam have also estates here. A handsome stone bridge here crosses the river Dove to Tutbury in Staffordshire. It was erected in 1816-17, at a cost of £8000. It consists of 5 arches, and is 230 feet long by 24 feet wide. The first stone was laid June 20th, 1815. The Tutbury station near the bridge on the North Staffordshire Railway is in this township. It is a neat brick building, whence trains to Derby, Uttoxeter, and Burton-upon-Trent are despatched several times a day.

HILTON, a large, pleasant, but straggling village, on the Derby and Uttoxeter road, 8 miles S.W. by W. from Derby, contains 1,698A. 1R. 1P. of land, rateable value £2,776, and in 1851 had 181 houses, and 757 inhabitants, of whom 380 were males and 377 females. The principal owners are the Duke of Devonshire, Rev. German Buckston, Geo. Enzor, John Harrison, John H. Mousley, A. N. E. Mosley, Richard Beer, Thomas Herrick, Esqrs., and others. The freeholders are lords of the manor. Ernulf de Beck, at a very early period, being lord of the manor, and Thomas de Piru, gave three bovates of land to the church at Marston, for the privilege of having a chapel at Hilton, and agreed that the inhabitants of Hilton should go on certain festival days to the mother church at Marston. Of this chapel there are no remains, but there is a place still known as the chapel yard. The Wesleyans have a neat brick chapel, erected in 1841, at a cost of £450, which will seat 500, and the Primitive Methodists have one erected in 1847, which will seat about 100 persons. A school was built here in 1799, but a new one, with a residence for the master was erected in 1856, at a cost of £350. It is a plain brick building, capable of accommodating about 70 children. It is endowed with 12A. 1R. 39P. of land, let for £30 per annum, for which the master teaches all the poor children of the village above seven years of age. The average attendance is 30. An infant school was built in 1856, by the Rev. H. S. Trimmer, on the site of an old barn, belonging Woolley's charities, towards the support of which he pays £5 annually. The average attendance is 45.

HOON, a township, 1 mile W. from Hilton, and 9 W.S.W. from Derby, contains 770 acres of land, rateable value £1,335, and in 1851 had 4 houses and 38 inhabitants, of whom 22 were males and 16 females. The soil on the hills is a gravelly marl, that on the common a rich sand. The principal owners are Messrs. Robert Archer, Thos. Archer, George Enzor, Thomas Orme, and the Rev. T. B. Paget. It pays a modus of £3 in lieu of tithe to the Duke of Devonshire, as impropriator. The Hall, now a farm house, an ancient building with pointed gables is the residence and property of Mr. Thomas Orme. This manor (Hoge,) at Domesday survey, was held by Sewall, ancestor of the Shirley family, under Henry de Ferrars. The Shirleys possessed it in the reign of Henry VIII. It was purchased of them by the Palmers, who were succeeded by the Staffords. About the middle of the seventeenth century it was purchased by John Pye, Esq., who settled at Hoon, and was created a baronet in 1664. His son, Sir Charles Pye, was a great traveller, and visited Egypt and the Holy land. The two sons of Sir Charles, Richard and Robert, successively enjoyed the title and estate. Sir Robert (who was in holy orders) bequeathed the estate to his three daughters, from whom it passed by inheritance to the Watkins. It was purchased of the late Catain Watkins by Mr. W. J. Lockett, who afterwards sold it.

Charities.—Thomas Woolley in 1667, left £50 to buy land at a rent-charge, the yearly increase thereof to be distributed to 20 of the most ancient inhabitants of Marston. An annual sum of £2 13s. 4d. is now paid by the overseers of Hoon and Hoonhay to the overseers of Marston, and given in that township. It appears by Mr. Woolley's will, that it should be given to the parish generally.

Adam Woolley, by will, in 1700, gave to the poor of the parish of Marston £25.

William Woolley, in 1719, bequeathed to his son a lottery annuity in the Bank of England of £100, and declared his will to be, that out of the interest his son or executors should pay yearly 50s. to poor persons in the parish of Marston, until, by some other means, he should secure the payment on some other estate, and which said payment was in satisfaction of a yearly sum of 50s. directed by the will of John Woolley, brother of the testator.

William Woolley of Hackney, in 1726, bequeathed £25, which he directed should be added to the £25 legacy then in his hands, left by his father, Adam Woolley, to the poor of Marston; the whole he directed to be laid out in lands, the rents to be distributed on Christmas-eve. In 1731, lands were settled on account of Adam, John, and William Woolley's charities. The property now consists of a house, in the village of Hilton, a croft near the house, 2r. 10p. and five fields on the Heath common, 22a. 1r. 14p. now let for gardens, for about £40 per annum. The rents are distributed amongst the poorest persons of the several townships at the church, on Christmas-eve.

John Pownall, in 1671, devised his land, called Rolston Piece, lying in Marston Field, to his executors, for the use of the poor of the parish of Marston, to be distributed at Christmas and Whitsuntide. The land, a meadow called Weir Hollow Field, now inclosed, in the parish of Rolleston, contains about 4 acres, an addition having been made to it by the alteration in the course of the river. It is supposed the rent of £1 2s. 6d. was formerly paid for this land; and in 1786 such sum was paid by the trustees of the present owner. Thomas Orme, who claims it as his own, has not paid anything since about 1800; it being said that the testator had no power to dispose of it.

John Debanke gave, at his death, to the parishioners of Marston, 13s. 4d. every half-year, to be distributed on Christmas-day and Easter-day, by Walter Bagnold and his successors, to the end of time. This was, by indenture 1726, secured on land now vested in the Tutbury Mill Company. Of the annual sum, £1 6s. 8d., one moiety has usually been divided at Christmas amongst 20 poor widows, and the other laid out in twopenny loaves.

William Spurrier, by the parliamentary returns of 1786, gave a rent-charge of 10s. yearly, for bread to the poor. Walthall Spurrier afterwards paid the same, but it has always been considered a voluntary payment.

Heacock's Charity, (see Etwall.)—2s. 6d., the share of Marston, was, when received, given amongst others at Christmas.

Hilton Charities.—Hilton School.—No authentic account of the foundation or endowment of this school is to be found. It appears, however, from a memorandum kept by a Mr. William Martin of Hilton, with the documents relating to a rent-charge given by Arthur Harrison, that the school was originally founded by Arthur and Thomas Harrison. The property belonging the school consists of two closes called the Great and Little Green, in Hilton, containing 9A. 0R. 28P., and an allotment of 2A. 0R. 22P. to the schoolmaster. in lieu of his right by the award in 1781, and a piece of land 1A. 0R. 29P., called the Barrow close. These premises in the hands of the schoolmaster are stated of the value of £30 per annum. The trustees are A. N. E. Mosley, and Wm. Eaton, Esqrs. The school is free for all the poor children of Hilton to be taught reading, writing, and accounts.

Arthur Harrison, in 1659, gave to the poor of Marston parish 20s. yearly, and 10s, to the school for the repairing it and augmenting the schoolmaster's wages. In 1655, the above sums were secured on a close called the Poor's Field, the property of John Herrick.

Heacock's Charity, (see Etwall.)—7s. 6d. was, when paid, the share of this township.

Thomas Harrison, by will, left £40 to the poor of Hilton. This legacy, with a further sum of £20, supposed to have been given by a person of the name of Gisborne, is in the hands of John Brown, on promissory note dated May 20th, 1847, payable to the overseers of Hilton. The interest is distributed shortly after Christmas.

Mary Astill, in 1786, gave to the poor of Hilton a field called Strong Lands, let for £3 10s. per annum, said to be worth £6, but the claim of the poor does not fully appear. However, the sum is annually paid, and distributed, with others, soon after Christmas.

John Gisborne's Charity, (see St. Werburgh, Derby.)—One poor person of Hilton is annually entitled to a gown or coat.

Miss Shemonds, in 1826, left by will £40, the interest of which was to be distributed among the poor widows of this parish who attended church. The principal is placed in the Burton-on-Trent Savings' Bank, and the interest £1 5s. 0d. is distributed annually in November by the Vicar.

MARSTON MONTGOMERY, a parish and village, pleasantly situated on a gentle acclivity, 14 miles W. by N. from Derby, and 7 miles S.S.W. from Ashbourn, contains 2,471A. 3R. 27P. of land, including roads; 101 houses, and 473 inhabitants, of whom 240 were males, and 233 females; rateable value, £2,791 14s. 6d. There are also 86 acres of common lands, of which trustees appointed by the parish have the management, and the income is applied to parochial purposes. There are seven trustees, of whom the rector of Cubley is one. The principal owners are Lord Vernon, J. Harrison, Esq., Rev. C. Landor, Thos. Goodall Copestake, Esq., William Bowyer, John Bowyer, William Webb, John Richardson, Wm. Allsop, Wm. Jeffery, Wm. Silcock, Mrs. Jane Lowndes, and the Earl of Chesterfield. The Church, dedicated to St. Giles, is a perpetual curacy, annexed to the rectory of Cubley. The Earl of Chesterfield, patron; Rev. Richard William Vevers, incumbent. The Church, an ancient Norman structure, with nave, chancel, gallery at the west end, and brick bellfry with 3 bells, was repaired in 1824, at a cost of £400. The parsonage is a small house north of the church. The tithe was commuted in 1842 for £140. The Wesleyans have a neat chapel, erected in 1845. A new school is about to be erected, the old one being unfit for use. Marston lodge, 1 mile N.W., a pleasant farm house. Hollyhurst, a farm 1 mile S.W. Waldley, 3 scattered farm houses, 1 mile S.W, from the village, the largest of which is the residence and property of Mr. William Bowyer. Woodhay, two farms, 2 miles N., with several other out farms.

CHARITIES.—John Lowe, in 1686, gave to the poor of this parish 30s. a year, to be paid half-yearly, on St. Thomas's day and Good Friday; paid from a farm in Marston Montgomery.

Walter Copestake, by will, in 1715, gave to the poor of Norbury and Roston the sum of 12s. out of a meadow called Hollis Holme, about 2 acres; and the clear yearly profits of the said meadow, over and above the said 12s., he gave to the poor of Marston Montgomery, to set out apprentices, or for other relief of the poor there, on every 1st of January and every Good Friday, by equal payments. The sum of £1 8s. was paid for a number of years for the poor of this parish, and was merely considered a rent-charge. We applied to the Rev. J. B. Copestake on the subject, who, in reply, dated 15th August, 1826, stated that he was entirely ignorant of the nature of the claims, and supposed they were specific gifts, but saw by the extract of the will that the latter was otherwise, and that he would write to his agent to look out the meadow, and inform them of its annual value, for the purpose of its application to what was specified in the will.

Arthur Bowyer, at the request of his father, gave to the poor of Marston Montgomery a piece of land called Bolhams's Piece, containing about an acre and one rood, now let at the rent of £2 10s. yearly, and given by the minister and churchwardens on Good Friday and St. Thomas's day.

Henry Jackson, in 1690, gave to the poor of Marston Montgomery the sum of 10s. a year for ever, to be paid by the heirs and possessors of his estate at Roston; the same to be laid out in 20 sixpenny loaves, and to be distributed by them and the rector to the poor, on St. Thomas's day.

MUGGINTON is an extensive parish, containing the townships of Mugginton, Mercaston, and Ravensdale Park, in this Hundred, and Weston Underwood, in the Morleston and Litchurch Hundred, and comprises 5190A. 0R. 34P. of land; rateable value, £7,221 6s. 6d.; and in 1851, had 141 houses, and 719 inhabitants, of whom 373 were males and 346 females. The parish is 7½ miles in length, and in some parts 3½ miles in width. Lead ore has been found in the parish.

MUGGINTON, a township and well-built village, pleasantly situated on an eminence, 7 miles N.W. from Derby, contains 2,076A. 3R. 0P. of land, a gravelly marl with some limestone, of which about one-third is arable; rateable value, £2,843. In 1851, it had 54 houses, and 262 inhabitants, of whom 141 were males, and 121 females. The owners are, Lord Scarsdale, Thomas Hallowes, Esq., William Bateman Morely, Esq., George Poyser. Esq., Rev. H. R. C. Pole, Rev. J. Bateman, Mrs. Bateman, Duffield School, and others.

Thos. Hallowes, Esq., is lord of the manor. The Church, dedicated to All Saints, is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £9 12s. 8½d., now £525. Edw. Sacheverel Chandos Pole, Esq., is the patron; Rev. Hy. Reginald Chandos Pole, B.D., rector, and the Rev. C. R. Hope, M.A., officiating curate. The Church, situated on a commanding eminence, is a large Gothic structure, with nave, chancel, side aisles, square tower, surmounted by pinnacles, and 4 bells; will seat about 500 persons, and was thoroughly renovated in 1805, at a cost of £217. The stone of which the tower is built is of a perishable nature, but heavy buttresses have been erected against it for support. In the chancel is the tomb of Sir Richard Kniveton, who died in 1400, and of his wife, Joan, on which are two large and five small metal figures. The rectory, a handsome mansion pleasantly situated a little N. from the church, was enlarged in 1853, by the Rev. C. R. Hope, at a cost of £500, and has 25 acres of glebe. In the churchyard are two fine yew trees, one of which is supposed to be above 1000 years old. The Feast is the first Sunday after November 1st. In 1840, a neat brick school-room was erected, partly from the funds of Mrs. F. Pole's charity and partly by subscription, 20 boys being on the foundation, but the girls' school is supported by subscription. At Domesday survey, this manor (Mogintune) was held by Chetel, under Henry de Ferrars. In the reign of Edward I., the manor and advowsons were in moieties between the families of Chandos and Stafford. Chandos's moiety passed by a female heir to the immediate ancestor of Edward Sacheverel Pole, Esq. Stafford's moiety, in the reign of Henry IV., was in the family of Dethick, and in that of Rolleston in the reign of Elizabeth. Nathaniel Hallowes purchased it in 1654.

Mercaston, a township, and small village, 7½ miles N.W. from Derby, contains 1122 acres of fertile land, of which about one-third is arable; rateable value, £1527; and in 1851, it had 23 houses, and 137 inhabitants, of whom 70 were males and 67 were females. Edward Sacheverel Chandos Pole, Esq., is lord of the manor and sole owner, except one acre of glebe which belongs to the rector. At the Norman survey here was a church, of which no traces are now extant. The Hall, an ancient house, formerly the residence of Sir Richard Kniveton, is now a farm house, in the occupation of Messrs. George and Thomas Webster. Wild Park Farms, are 1¼ miles W. from Mugginton. New House, a good farm, one mile W. from Mugginton. The tithe was commuted in 1845 for £92 13s. 5d. per annum. This manor, Merchenestune, was for many generations the property and seat of a younger branch of the Knivetons of Bradley, who were settled here as early as the reign of Edward III. Their descendant, Wm. Kniveton, Esq., was one of the Baronets created by James I., soon after the institution of the order in 1611. Sir Andrew Kniveton, the third Baronet, was a zealous royalist, and governor of Tutbury Castle for the King. He suffered much in his property, and was obliged to sell most of his estates. This manor was purchased by an ancestor of E. S. C. Pole, Esq. This township is entitled to one-sixth part of German Pole, Esqr.'s charity.—(See Radbourn.)

Ravensdale Park is a township, with a few scattered farm houses and cottages, 1 mile N.W. from Mugginton, contains 623A. 3R. 31P. of land, gravelly loam on the hills, and peat in the valleys, 10 houses, and 175 inhabitants, of whom 42 were males, and 33 females; rateable value, £433 15s. Lord Scarsdale is lord of the manor and sole owner, except 28A. 3R. 28P., which belongs to Ashbourn Grammar School, and 6 acres to E. S. C. Pole, Esq. Tithe was commuted in 1845 for £42 18s. 5d. per annum. The liberty is noted for a sulphurous spring. This estate was sold by Sir Andrew Kniveton, in 1649, to William Bache, Esq., and by Mr. Bache, in 1673, to Sir John Curzon, Bart., ancestor of the Right Hon. Lord Scarsdale.

Weston Underwood, a pleasant village, situated on an acclivity on the Derby and Wirksworth road, and in the Hundred of Morleston and Litchurch, 6 miles N.W. by N. from Derby, contains 1367A. 2R. 3P. of land; rateable value, £2417 11s. 6d. In 1851 it had 54 houses, and 245 inhabitants, of whom 120 were males, and 125 females. Lord Scarsdale sole owner and lord of the manor. The tithe was commuted in 1850 for £164 3s. 11d. per annum, paid by his lordship, the farms being let free of tithe. The Scarsdale Arms, in the village, is a noted inn, occupied by Mr. Samuel Newbould, at which there are held two sick clubs. This estate belonged to the Knivetons, but was in the Curzon family as early as 1416. Hall Close, a farm one mile W. Moseylee farms, one mile N. from the village. Considerable improvements have been made in the buildings, particularly at the out-farms, which are now very conveniently arranged. On the farm occupied by Mr. Thos. Poyser, may be traced the site of the Old Hall, and in a field adjoining, there is one of the finest springs of soft water in the county.

CHARITIES.—Rev. Samuel Pole, by indentures, in 1746, made over to German Pole, Esq., of Radbourn hall, one moiety of certain premises for teaching poor children of this parish; and further reciting, that Ann Pole, their mother, had by her will given £100, after the death of her son John, for the instruction of poor children of Radbourn, and that John Pole was dead, and the £100 was in the hands of G. Pole, Esq., who, to secure the same, purchased the other moiety for £100; and, in consideration of which, a close, called the Upper Butt Meadow, lying in Turnditch, was conveyed on trust to pay one moiety of the profits to Samuel Pole and his successors, rectors of Mugginton, whom he appointed perpetual trustees, and thereby directed that eight children should be instructed or as many more as they should think proper; and permitting that if any person was desirous to found a school they might join with such person. It appears from a table in the church, that Mr. Francis Pole gave certain premises at Clifton, near Ashbourn, called the Little Wood and Cross Pingle; and, in the returns of 1786, it is mentioned as having been given, by deed, in 1751, for teaching 10 poor children. We have not found this deed. The land consists of 4 acres of meadow, let for £12 per annum. The Butt Meadow, in Turnditch, contains 5A. 0R. 3P. of grass land, and a limestone quarry of 2A. 3R. 5P. The close is now let for £11 per annum. The limestone pit has not been worked for the last 25 years. The money received for the lime which has been gotten has been invested in the funds, and there is now £967 7s. 2d. stock, new four-per-cents, standing in the names of the trustees, E. S. C. Pole, Esq., of Radbourn hall, and the Rev. H. R. C. Pole, rector of Mugginton; producing an annual dividend of £38 13s. 10d.* On the inclosure of Hulland Ward, about an acre was set out to the trustees in respect of the above named close, now let for £2 10s. per annum. Of the whole of these incomes one moiety is paid to the schoolmaster of Radbourn, and the other, with the rent of the land at Clifton, to that of Mugginton. In consideration of the income, £38 1s. 11d., the master teaches 36 poor children; 13 of Mugginton, 3 of Mercaston, and 20 of Weston, but at the time of our enquiry, there was not above one-third that number taught.

Rev. Francis Gisborne's charity.—(See Bradley.) £5 10s. is received by this parish, and laid out in flannel and cloth, which is given to the poor at Christmas.

NORBURY-WITH-ROSTON is a township, parish, and small scattered village, 16 miles W. from Derby, and 4 miles S.W. by W. from Ashbourn, pleasantly situated on the Dove, and contains 2207A. 1R. 7P. of fertile land; rateable value £4131 11s. 8d. In 1851, it had 103 houses, and 475 inhabitants, of whom 237 were males, and 238 females. The principal owners are Thomas Fitz Herbert, Esq., John Harrison, Esq., George Whitgreave, Esq., T. G. Copestake, Esq., Wm. Orpe, Esq., and John Orpe, Esq., the former is lord of the manor. The land is tithe free. The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient stone structure, in the style of the 14th century. From the various styles it comprehends it is evident it has been erected at different periods. It has nave, chancel, side aisles, square tower, and three bells. The chancel, which is a fine specimen of the decorated style, extends 48 feet in length from the oak screen, separating it from the nave, and 20 feet in width lighted by 8 large pointed windows, of three bays, with curvilineal tracery, four on each side, divided from each other by only the breadth of the buttresses which support the walls. The windows are completely filled with stained glass, which is in good taste and evidently coeval with the building. On some of them, the initials (NF) are placed, from which it is supposed the church has been altered and repaired at the expense of Nicholas Fitzherbert. In 1841 it was completely renovated at a cost of £1200, raised by subscriptions, grants, and rates. The present rector took a very active part in raising the necessary funds. In the church are several beautiful monuments to the Fitzherbert family. One near the east end, is to Sir Henry Fitzherbert, 6th Lord of Norbury, who was knight of the shire of Derby in 1298 and 1307. There are also two others of alabaster, one to Nicholas Fitzherbert, and another to Ralph Fitzherbert, the latter of whom appears in a list of noblemen who in the reign of Edward 4th, entered into an indenture to aid and assist William, Lord Hastings, and his part to take against all persons, &c. There is also one to Sir Anthony Fitzherbert, a celebrated writer on the law, who was born here and died May 27th, 1538. Some of these monuments have been removed from the place they first occupied, on account of their being unprotected and subject to injury. The living is a rectory, with the perpetual curacy of Snelston annexed, valued in the King's book at £15 16s. 0½d., now £700. The Rev. Clement F. Broughton, M.A., is patron and incumbent. The rectory, a large handsome mansion, with projecting eaves and a handsome conservatory adjoining, is situated on an eminence a little south of the church. There are 58A. 1R. 28P. of glebe. A National school was erected in 1832, by subscription, aided by a small grant from the National school society. It is a neat brick building with residences for the teachers; about 60 children attend, who pay a small weekly payment. The bequest of Thomas Williams, who founded a school, and endowed it in 1678 with land now let for £18 a year, is appropriated to the National school. The North Staffordshire Railway runs through the parish about 200 yards N. W. of the church, and has a small station here. The manors of Norbury and Roston are described in Domesday survey as held by one Henry, under Henry de Ferrars. Robert de Ferrars, son of Henry, gave the manor to the prior and convent of Tutbury, who in the year 1125, conveyed it to William Fitzherbert, in fee-farm rents, subject to the yearly rent of 100s.

ROSTON is a considerable village, 5 miles S.W. from Ashbourn, and three-quarters of a mile S.E. from Norbury. John Harrison, Esq., of Snelston Hall, is the principal owner. The common was enclosed in 1818, and the tithes were commuted in 1844, for £210. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel here, built in 1847, the land for which was given by Mr. William Smith, of Sedsall. Birchwood Park, one mile E. from Roston, is a considerable estate, on which it is supposed there is coal and copper, and propositions have been made to the owner for the getting of it.

CHARITIES.—Thomas Williams, in 1687, devised to the rector of Norbury and two others, two closes called Bill's Nether Meadow, and the Under-Town-Intake, in trust; the rents and profits thereof for the maintenance of a schoolmaster, to teach all the children in the parish of Norbury, Roston, and Snelstone. New trustees have never been appointed and the whole management has devolved on the rector of Norbury for the time being. The property consists of two closes in Roston, about 11 acres, let for £16 4s. per annum. A schoolroom was built many years ago, upon the waste by the road side, out of the income of the charity, aided by subscriptions. By the award of an Inclosure Act, passed 1818, the site and a garden adjoining were set out to the school, with an allotment of nearly an acre. The house and garden are occupied by the master, and the allotment is let at 12s. per annum. In consideration of this income, all the children of the above townships are taught free.

Robert Bill, about the year 1728, gave a close called the Poor's Croft, in Roston, containing 4A. 0R. 28P. with a dole meadow. Upon the inclosure of the common fields, the commissioners set out to Thomas Maskery, as trustee for the Poor's land, an allotment of 1R. 3P., in respect of the Poor's croft, and 1A. 2R. 9P. in lieu of the dole. There are no documents relating to this charity. Mr. Maskery and his ancestors have successively acted as trustees thereof. The Poor's Croft, with a part of the meadow, was, till 1825, let for £6 per annum, but was then advanced to £15. The allotment is let for 10s., and the residue of Boston Meadow, 3R. 20P. for 30s. per annum. The amount is distributed on New Year's day, amongst the poor of the parish.

Greensmith's Charity.—No documents were to be found relating to this. The yearly sum of £2 is paid by Rev. C. F. Broughton, as being charged upon property in Roston, purchased by Samuel Evans, by whom the sum was paid in 1786. This is distributed with Bill's charity.

Walter Copestake's Charity.—The yearly sum of 12s. is received on account of Walter Copestake's Charity, and 20 sixpenny loaves, on account of Henry Jackson's charity. —(See Marston Montgomery.)

Railway Conveyance.

The North Staffordshire Line, (Ashbourn branch) from whence there are 4 passenger trains each way daily to Rochester and Ashbourn. Saml. Vinney, station master

OSMASTON, a township, parish, and village, pleasantly situated on an acclivity 2½ miles S.E. from Ashbourn, contains 1,192 acres of land, sand and gravel, with portions of clay on the high grounds, and is principally used for grazing purposes; rateable value £1,851 15s. 6d. In 1851 it had 68 houses and 366 inhabitants, of whom 179 were males, and 187 females. Francis Wright Esq., is lord of the manor, and principal owner, but Mrs. Sarah Greaves, Robert and Francis Johnson, Esqrs., are also owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Martin, was built at the sole expense of Fras. Wright, Esq., in place of the former dilapidated structure, at a cost of £8000, and was opened for divine service, June, 1845. It is a beautiful edifice, in the decorated style, as it prevailed in the middle of the 14th century, and consists of nave, chancel, side aisles, west tower, south porch, and vestry; the extreme length being 94 feet by 42 feet wide. The main portion of the wall is built of dark mountain limestone, the windows, doorways, and ornamental parts being carved in cream coloured freestone, the dark grey of the one agreeably contrasting with the light and lively tone of the other. The pulpit, desk, and fittings are all of oak, the former being filled with pannelled tracery. The font, of Roche Abbey stone, is a large circular bowl, with a continuous lotus ornament on the upper part. The tower contains a peal of 5 bells and a handsome clock by Whitehurst, of Derby. The first stone of the old church was laid in 1400, but in consequence of the unsettled state of the country, was not finished till 1600. The village was then called Whitestone, afterwards Osmaston-in-the-Wood. The tithe was commuted in 1837, for £107, and there are 23A. 2R. 20P. of glebe land, belonging to the incumbent. The living is a perpetual curacy. Francis Wright, Esq., is the patron, the Rev. Walter Shirley, incumbent, and the Rev. Gerard Smith, B.A., resident curate. The school with the school house, erected together with the church, at an expense of about £1000, is a suitable adjunct to that building, and is capable of accommodating 100 scholars. The average attendance is 83. Mr. John S. Marshall is the master.

Osmaston Manor, 1 mile S.W. from the church, is one of the most splendid mansions in the county, and was erected by Fras. Wright, Esq., at an expense of above £80,000. The building is in the pure Elizabethan style, 330 feet in length by 192 feet, and with the terraces covers 4 acres of ground. Henry J. Stevens, Esq., of Derby was the architect. The first stone was laid on the 22nd May, 1846, and the manor became the family residence on the 11th July, 1849. This mansion is an object of general attraction to the lovers of nature and art, and is distinguished, no less, by a generous Christian hospitality. A part of the parapet of the central tower will be observed to form the following sentence, in stone wrought capitals—"THE WORKS OF OUR HANDS ARE VANITY, BUT WHATSOEVER GOD DOETH IT SHALL BE FOR EVER." The venerable yew trees and rich plantations of timber and shrubs greatly add to the beauty of the scenery. In the centre of the park is a fine reservoir, supplied by a water wheel, at the south end of the lake, and supplying the manor, the fountains, and the grounds with water. This manor, Osmundestune, was held with Brailsford, under Henry de Ferrars, at the Domesday survey. Alsin de Brailsford gave it to the priory of Tutbury. Matthew Kniveton died seized of the manor in 1562; after which, it passed with the Bradley estate to Godfrey Meynell, Esq., and eventually came into the possession of Fras. Wright, Esq. The Methodists have a chapel here. Feast first Sunday after November 11th, or on that day, if Sunday.

CHARITIES.—Edward Pegge, in 1666, gave £5 4s. yearly, to be given by 2s. a week, to buy twelve loaves, half to be given to six poor people in Ashbourn, and the other 6 loaves to poor people in Osmaston, every Sabbath day, in Osmaston church. And he granted the yearly rent of £5 8s., to be issuing out of certain premises in Sturston, one half to be paid to the churchwardens and overseers of Ashbourn, and the other half to those of Osmaston for the time being. And gave 4s., residue of the above sum, to the clerks of the two parishes, 2s. each. Mr. Joseph Bradley, of Ashbourn, pays the money, which is distributed as above.

Thomas Kniveton, in 1712, beqneathed a yearly rent issuing forth of his messuages in Osmaston, to be paid by the owners thereof; and directed that 26s. thereof should be paid to the officiating minister, for preaching a sermon in Osmaston church, on Ascension day and on St. Thomas's day; the money in default thereof, to be given to the poor. And he directed that 20s., the other part, should be yearly paid to eight poor families, in Osmaston, on St. Thomas's day. The sums are regularly paid from two small farms in the parish.

Gospel Greave Close.—A sum of £50, supposed to have been given for the benefit of the poor, but by whom is unknown, appears to have been laid out in the purchase of this close. The conveyance is dated 27th July, 1782—whereby Thomas Pares conveyed to certain trustees and their heirs, the above close, containing 1A. 3R. 32P., in trust, to let the same at 12 o'clock on every 25th of December, in the church, to pay the rents thereof amongst such of the poor of Osmaston as the minister, churchwardens, and overseers should direct. The close is now let for £2 10s. per annum, which is distributed on St. Thomas's day, RADBOURN, a parish and small scattered village, 4½ miles W. from Derby, contains 1923 acres of strong clay land; rateable value, £2146 10s.; and in 1851, had 47 houses and 230 inhabitants, of whom 118 were males and 112 females. Edward Sacheverel Chandos Pole, Esq., is lord of the manor, and sole owner, who resides at the Hall, a large and handsome brick and stone mansion, erected about 1740, in the Grecian style of architecture; it is pleasantly situated on a good elevation, in a well wooded park, and commands some beautiful and extensive views of the adjacent country. The Church, dedicated to St. Andrew, is a stone edifice, with nave, chancel, north aisle, low tower, and three bells: was re-pewed and new roofed in 1826. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's books at £8 3s. 4d., now £372. E. S. Chandos-Pole, Esq., is the patron, and the Rev. Reginald Chandos-Pole, M.A. rector. The rectory is a good mansion, near the church, to which there are 130 acres of ancient glebe. The tithe was commuted in 1842, for £225. Here is a splendid monument to German Pole, Esq., (who died in 1683,) and Ann, his wife. One to Ralph Pole, Esq., and several others of the Pole family. Radbourn was, at the Domesday survey, one of the manors of Henry de Ferrars. The co-heiresses of Robert Fitz-Walkelin, who lived in the twelfth century married Chandos and Stafford; and this manor, probably by the purchase of Stafford's portion, became vested in Chandos. After the death of Sir John Chandos, the celebrated warrior, without male issue, in 1370, this estate passed to his representatives in the female line, and eventually to Sir Peter de la Pole, who married his niece, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Lawton. Sir Peter was one of the Knights of the shire in 1400. Ralph Pole, his son, was one of the Justices of the common pleas in the reign of Henry VI. German Pole, who died in 1683, founded and endowed a school for four poor children, agreeable to the will of his mother, Ann Pole. The income, £26 1s. 11d., is now paid to a schoolmaster appointed by the rector, who erected a house for the master in 1850. It is now a mixed school, with about 30 scholars, 10 of which are free—the rest pay from 3d. to 6d. per week each. The school is on the Common, about one mile from the village. Old Park House, a good residence, half-a-mile S.E. by S. from the village, is the residence of E. S. Chandos-Pole, Jun., Esq. The parish was enclosed in 1793.

CHARITIES.—German Pole, by his will, in 1682, directed that his executors, within 12 months after his decease should purchase land of the clear yearly value of £48, to hold to feofees, Sir Thomas Gresley, Bart., and six others, and their heirs, on trust that they should yearly, with the said monies, set forth six poor children to be apprentices to some trade such as they, with the advice of the ministers and churchwardens, should deem suitable, in the manner thereinafter mentioned, viz.; 1 for the town of Radbourn, 1 for Markeaton, 1 for Mickleover, 1 for Mackworth, 1 for Mercaston, and 1 for the town of Dalbury Lees; and should pay £8 a piece for the binding them apprentices, and directed they should be put forth in May or June in every year; and in case there were no children, male or female, fit to be bound apprentice, he directed that the money should be given to the poor in that town.

By deed, dated 1st January, 1687, Ann Pole, relict of German Pole, enfeoffed to trustees, property in Marston Montgomery, that they should out of the rents pay £48 yearly, without any deduction, for the above-named charity; and upon further trust that they should pay to the minister and churchwardens of Radbourn 10s. yearly, on St. Thomas's day, for the poor of the said parish, which was in discharge for £5 which Henry Hemings gave to the poor of Radbourn. The property at Marston-Montgomery now lets for £120 per annum, and the dole of H. Hemings charity has been increased accordingly.

The said Ann Pole, in 1703, directed Samuel Pole, Esq., of Radbourn, and his heirs, to lay out £200 in the purchase of lands or a good rent charge, to make good the charity of £48 left by her late husband; 40s. per annum to defray the charges of the trustees; and the overplus she gave to the said Samuel Pole and his heirs.

In the years 1786 and 1787, timber was sold off the estate for £240; and the money afterwards vested in the funds; but in 1807 the stock was sold, and the money expended in the repairs of the buildings which had been set out on 5th April, 1804, as belonging to this charity. The farm was then let for £87 12s. per annum. In August, 1815, it was let on lease for 21 years, for £100 for the first 14 years, and £120 for the residue, with covenant for good husbandry, and to keep the buildings in repair, rough timber and bricks being found by the lessors; but owing to bad times several abatements of rent have been made. £12 12s. have been allowed as premiums, but as there are some balances remaining, and if the full rent be in future received, it is intended to give a larger premium for providing a good situation.

Adrian Munday, who died 1677, by will, gave to the poor of Markeaton, Mackworth, Allestree, Quarndon and Radbourn, to each town 20s. a year, to be distributed as the ministers and churchwardens should think fit; and he gave 4s. to each of the ministers and churchwardens for their trouble. He also gave to the town of Quarndon £3 a year, towards the hiring of a minister to read divine service at the chapel, and 20s. a year to the clerk; but directed that if there should be no minister, the sum of £4 should, during such vacancy, be distributed amongst the poor of the above-named towns, 16s. each to be paid at the same time as the 20s. For the payment he gave his mill and lands, at or near Ashover, to his kinsman, Gilbert Munday, of Allestree, and his heirs for ever, provided they should pay the said £10. The owner of the mill at Ashover pays the £10 to the minister of Quarndon, and 24s. is transmitted by him to Radbourn.

German and Millicent Pole, in 1682, gave a rent charge of £4 per annum to the poor of Radbourn. The yearly sum of £4 10s. is paid from the Radbourn estate to the rector, and distributed at Christmas. Probably the 10s. may be for Hemings' charity, before noticed. 45s. a year is received from Hough's charity. (See Dalbury.)

SCROPTON-WITH-FOSTON, a parish, and large village, on the northern bank of the Dove, 11½ miles W.S.W. from Derby, and 7 miles N.W. from Burton-upon-Trent, contains 3248A. 1R. 39P. of fertile land; rateable value, £5501; and in 1851 had 110 houses, and 515 inhabitants, of whom 274 were males, and 241 females. 468A. 3R. 13P. of the above quantity of land was awarded to this parish under the Needwood Forest Enclosure Act, which passed in 1801, but not completed till 1811. Needwood Forest now forms one of the most beautiful and highly-cultivated territories in the honour of Tutbury, (Staffordshire,) and contains, exclusive of the public roads, 9437A. 2R. 31P. of land. It forms a separate ecclesiastical jurisdiction; and for the use of the inhabitants a handsome church, dedicated to Christ, was erected under the powers of an act passed in 1805, and endowed by the King with 10 acres for the site of the church, parsonage-house, and churchyard, and 150 acres for the support of the minister, whose duty it is to baptize the young, visit the sick, and bury the dead. For baptism and burial double fees are paid, of which one-half is claimed by the incumbent of that parish from which they arise. The principal land owners are, John Broadhurst, Esq., Messrs. Wm. Shipton, Robert Shipton, and Thomas Shipton, Mrs. Sarah Eld, Mrs. Priscilla Jackson, Duke of Devonshire, Mr. Jph. Hellaby, and others. The Church, dedicated to St. Paul, an ancient edifice, having become much dilapidated, was taken down in 1855, and a handsome Gothic structure was erected on the site at a cost of £1600. It has a nave, chancel, and tower with three bells, and sittings for about 300 persons, the greater portion of which are free. The living is a perpetual curacy, certified at £49. John Broadhurst, Esq., is the patron, and the Rev. John William Jones, B.A., incumbent, for whom the Rev. Jas. Alex. Wood, B.A., officiates. The church is a peculiar, and the rectory was appropriated to a chantry in the parish church. Here are 15 acres of glebe, and the tithe was commuted in 1847 for £125 6s. 4d. John Broadhurst, Esq., is the impropriator. A National school was erected in 1850, at a cost of £450, raised by subscription, and a grant from the National Society; the site (1½ acres) was given by John Broadhurst, Esq. Average attendance, 40 boys, and 20 girls. The North Staffordshire Railway runs through the parish and has a station here. The Feast is on the nearest Sunday to St. Paul's day. The manors of Scrotun and Faruluestone, at Domesday survey, belonged to Henry de Ferrars. The paramount manor afterwards, in the Earls and Dukes of Lancaster, was granted in 1628, to Wise and others. Brook House, near the Church, is an ancient half-timbered building with pointed gables, the property of John Broadhurst, Esq., and the residence of Mr. John Jackson.

FOSTON, a pleasant well-built village on the Derby and Uttoxeter road, 11 miles W.S.W. from Derby, and 7 miles E. by S. from Uttoxeter, had in 1851, 30 houses, and 140 inhabitants, of whom 74 were males, and 66 females. Jno. Broadhurst, Esq., is principal owner and lord of the manor. Foston Hall, a large handsome mansion, was totally destroyed by fire in 1836, and the only vestiges remaining are the coach house and stables. In the village is a good inn, in the occupation of Mr. Joseph Kniveton, where a lodge of the ancient order of Foresters is held. A considerable portion of the land is arable. Arthur Agard, born at Foston in 1540, was 45 years deputy chamberlain of the exchequer and member of the original society of antiquaries; he died in 1615. This family held the manor as early as 1310. Their seat being at Foston, John Agard, Esq., sold the estate by the name of the Manor of Scropton and Foston, to Richard Bate, Esq., of whose descendant, Brownlow Bate, Esq., they were purchased by John Broadhurst, Esq.

CHARITIES.—Thomas Wall, by will, in 1807, bequeathed to four trustees £160 on trust, to be placed on good security, to apply the interest as follows, viz.: that they should keep his monument in repair, and pay to the parish clerk of Scropton, 10s. 6d. yearly on the 2nd of February, for his trouble of keeping the same clean, and that they should purchase six tammy gowns yearly for ever, to be given to six poor widows of the hamlet of Foston and township of Scropton on the said day, and pay the residue to the churchwardens and overseers, to be laid out in bread and beef, to be distributed amongst the poor of the said places. It was determined at a meeting of the trustees, in July, 1826, that the money should be invested in the funds.

SHIRLEY parish contains the townships of Shirley, Stydd, and Yeavely; 2,911A. 0R. 8P. of land; rateable value, £4,051, and in 1851 had 134 houses, and 659 inhabitants, of whom, 352 were males and 307 females.

SHIRLEY, a township and pleasant village, 10 miles N.W. from Derby, and 4½ miles S.E. by S. from Ashbourn, contains 1582A. 3R. 6P. of land (a strong marl), rateable value, £2,269 13s. 8d., and in 1851 had 74 houses, and 387 inhabitants, of whom, 207 were males and 180 females. Earl Ferrers is lord of the manor and a considerable owner. Fras. Wright, Esq., Rev. Thos. C. Brown, Mrs. Greaves and Messrs. Joseph Wibberley, Wm. Leedham, John Hitchcock, and Thos. Metcalf are also owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, an ancient edifice, contains chancel, side aisles, and tower with three bells; it was thoroughly repaired and the tower taken down, and rebuilt in 1842, at a cost of upwards of £600, raised by subscriptions and grants. The living is a Vicarage, valued in the King's book at £6 13s. 4d., now £200, has been augmented with £200 benefactions, and £300 parliamentary grant. Earl Ferrers is the patron and impropriator; and the Rev. Eardley Wilmot Michell, B.C.L., Vicar, who resides at the Vicarage, a handsome mansion, a quarter of a mile N.E. from the church with 9 acres of glebe. In the centre aisle of the church is an ancient stone font, and in the churchyard an old stone cross; also a fine yew tree. In the north aisle is a handsome marble Tablet to the Right Rev. W. A. Shirley, Bishop of Sodor and Man, and for some years previous Archdeacon of Derby, and Vicar of this parish. He died April 22nd, 1847. The tithe is commuted for £150. The National school with residence for the teacher, was opened in 1845, it is a neat Gothic building, and is attended by about 45 children, attached to which is a small library for the use of the parishioners. The Primitive Methodists and the New Connexion Methodists have each a chapel here, the former built in 1842, and the latter in 1855. In the Manor House, or Old Hall, the residence of the Shirleys, who settled here in the reign of Henry II, still remains one of the rooms which is wainscotted throughout—has the arms of the Ferrers carved in oak over the fire-place. It is nearly surrounded with a moat, and is occupied by Mr. William Goodall, whose family, with the exception of 25 years, have resided in it upwards of 450 years. This manor, Sireli, belonged to Henry de Ferrars. In the reign of Henry II., it was held under that family, by the immediate ancestor of Earl Ferrars, who seating himself here, took the name of Shirley. Soswallo or Sewall, the ancestor, occurs in Domesday, as holding manors (but not Shirley) under superior lords. Sir Thomas Shirley, who died in 1382, was a distinguished military character. His son, Sir Hugh, was slain at the battle of Shrewsbury. Sir Ralph, son of Sir Hugh, was a commander at the battle of Agincourt. Their descendant, Sir George, was created a baronet in 1611; and his great grandson, in 1677, had been declared Lord Ferrers, of Chartley, in virtue of his descent from that noble family, through one of the coheiresses of Deveroux. The Earl of Essex was in 1711 created Viscount Tamworth and Earl Ferrers. The church of Shirley was given to Darley Abbey, by Fletcher de Ireton, and confirmed by James de Sherley, about the year 1230.

STYDD township, and tithe and toll free liberty, contains 313 acres of strong fertile land, mostly pasture, 5 houses, and 34 inhabitants—of whom 17 were males, and 17 females; rateable value, £400. Mrs. Goodall, John Potter, John Harrison and Joseph Frearson, Esqs., are the owners. The Hall, 5 miles S. by W. from Ashbourn, in a picturesque and retired situation, belongs to Mrs. Goodall. Here was formerly a preceptory of knights hospitallers, dedicated to St. Mary and St. John the Baptist, to which Sir William Meynell was a great benefactor, in 1268, and at the dissolution had a revenue of £93 3s. 4d. The chapel has long been a ruin. A small portion of the wall and font still remain. Ralph le Fun, in the reign of Richard I., gave the hermitage of Stydd to the knights hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem, on condition that he should inhabit it during his life. The site was granted by Henry VIII., in 1543, to Charles Lord Mountjoy; conveyed by his son, in 1557, to Ralph Brown, and by him, in 1559, to Francis Colwich; it was afterwards in the family of Hurd, and then the property of John Walker, Esq.

YEAVELEY, a township and chapelry, 4 miles S. from Ashbourn, contains 1,015A. 1R. 2P. of fertile land; rateable value, £1.381 5s. 4d. and in 1851, had 55 houses and 238 inhabitants, of whom 128 were males, and 110 females. Earl Ferrers is lord of the manor. The principal owners are John Harrison, Esq., Rev. German Buckston, Thomas Skevington, and William Robinson, Esqrs. The Church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, is a neat brick structure, with a tower and one bell, erected in 1840, and contains 154 sittings, of which 74 are free. The cost was about £500, raised by subscriptions and a grant from the Incorporated Society. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £51. The Vicar of Shirley, patron, and Rev. Henry S. Pearson, B.A., incumbent. The tithe was commuted in 1839—£50 for the large tithe, to Mrs. Kinnersley, the impropriator, and £20 the small tithe, to which the Vicar of Shirley adds £25 for the minister. The common was enclosed in 1840. The parsonage is a neat Gothic building, erected at a cost of about £1,000. A National school was erected in 1840; and the Independents have a chapel, in which they have service on a portion of the Sunday, and the Primitive Methodists occupy it on the other portion. Feast, first Sunday after August 16th.

HALES GREEN, a small village 1 mile N.W. of Yeaveley.

CHARITIES.—Edward Pegge gave 20s. yearly to the poor of Shirley, 10s. at Christmas, and 10s. at Easter; also 15s. to the poor of Yeaveley, in the same manner. These sums are paid by the owner of the impropriate rectory of Shirley, to the churchwardens, at Christmas and Easter.

Elizabeth Pegge gave 6s. 8d. to the poor of Shirley, and 3s. 4d. to the poor of Yeavely. These are charged upon a close in Rodsley, in the parish of Longford, the property of Wm. Fearn, and are given with the above.

Robert Goodall gave 12 twopenny loaves to the poor of Shirley township, to be distributed every Christmas-day, and the same number every Easter-day. This is charged on two pieces of land at Kniveton, one called Field-head, and the other Horsley Piece, the property of Mr. Goodale, of Middleton, near Wirksworth.

Edward and Elizabeth Pegge's Charities,—(see Shirley.)—The yearly sums of 7s. 6d. 7s. 6d., and 3s. 4d., received by the chapel warden, are distributed to the poor of Yeaveley chapelry.

Mr. John Morley, Shirley Brook, gives to the poor of the parish 3d., and a can of milk every Christmas-eve.

SNELSTON, a township, parish, and village, pleasantly situated, 14 miles W. by N. from Derby, and three miles S.W. from Ashbourn, contains 2072A. 1R. 1P. of rich land, mostly pasture; rateable value £3112. In 1851, it had 81 houses, and 389 inhabitants, of whom 201 were males, and 188 females. The North Staffordshire railway runs through the parish, and occupies 9A. 3R. 2P. of land. John Harrison, Esq., is the principal owner, and lord of the manor. Lord Scarsdale, Thomas Fitzherbert, Esq., J. G. Copestake, Esq., and the Hon. and Rev. Augustus Duncombe, have also estates here. Many of the farm houses have been lately rebuilt, some of which are extensive dairy farms. The Church, dedicated to St. Peter, is an ancient Gothic structure, covered with luxuriant ivy. It has nave, chancel, side aisles, and handsome tower, with a clock and three bells, and the interior is neatly fitted up. The living is a perpetual curacy annexed to the rectory of Norbury, valued at £350. The tithe is paid by rate. Rev. Clement F. Broughton is patron and incumbent, and the Rev. Joseph Cockerham, curate. A new school was erected in 1849, by John Harrison, Esq., at a cost of about £400, who also supports the same. The average attendance of children is about 40. Snelston Hall, is a handsome Gothic mansion, $2\frac{3}{4}$ miles S.W. from Ashbourn, situated in a fine park of 350 acres; the gardens and pleasure grounds are laid out with great taste, and shew a great diversity of trees and shrubs. On the south side of the hall is a fine sheet of water, which adds much to the beauty of the scenery. Snelston was held by Walter de Montgomery, under the Earl of Lancaster, in the reign of Edward I. Robert Docksey was lord of the manor in 1599, by whose descendant part of the estate was sold, about 1780, to Mr. William Bowyer, whose daughter married first, Edward Walhouse Okeover, Esq., and afterwards the Rev. Thomas Langley, by whom she had one son and one daughter, but they dying in their infancy, the estate reverted to her father's only sister, and from her it came into the possession of John Harrison, Esq., the present owner. Children of this parish are entitled to the benefit of the school at Norbury, founded by Rev. Thomas Williams. DARLEY MOOR, one mile S.S.E. from Snelston, consists of a few cottages. Lime Works, one mile S.W. from Snelston, usually known as Birchwood Lime Works, are the property of John Harrison, and Thomas Fitzherbert, Esqrs.

CHARITIES.—Robert Docksey, in 1704, gave to the poor of Snelston 40s. yearly, out of a close called Townsend Croft, to be laid out in coals. This payment was discontinued about 1814. John Harrison, Esq., is the present owner of the field, and pays the annuity.

Mr. Brunt, it is stated in the Parliamentary Returns of 1786, gave £1 per annum to the poor of Snelston, at that time paid by Mr. Hope. Until 1802 the annual sum of £1 was distributed by the churchwardens and overseers, and during the latter part of the continuance of the payment it was made by William Copestake, the tenant of the Rev. C. S. Hope, who on selling a part of his estate, Mr. Copestake became the purchaser of the cottage and croft, which are now the property of Henry Copestake; but we have not been able to find any other evidence to shew whether this annual payment was charged thereon, or on any other part of the property.*

Henry Bould, by indenture, in 1804, granted to five trustees, and their heirs, a messuage and six parcels of land, containing by estimation eight acres, situate at Darley Moor, on trust that, after paying all necessary expenses, they should apply the residue of the rents during the year amongst such legally settled poor inhabitants of Snelston as should not receive weekly pay, not exceeding 10s. 6d. for any grown person, or 5s. for a child. The property consists of a house, garden, orchard, and four fields altogether about eight acres, let for £16 per annum. The distribution takes place in January and May.

The principal owners are Lord Vernon, Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart., and Rev. William Heaton Mousley, the former is lord of the manor. tions The living is a rectory, valued in the King's Book at £4 18s. 10d., now, £225. Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart., is the patron, the Rev. W. E. Mousley, incumbent, and the Rev. Fras. M. Spilsbury, M.A., officiating curate. The tithe was commuted in 1844 for £195. There are 23 acres of glebe. The rectory, a little N.W. from the church, is a handsome Elizabethan building, erected in 1851, at a cost of £2000. Somersall Hall an ancient half timbered mansion with pointed gables, erected in 1564, is situated a little east of the church, is the property of Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart., and the seat of his son Wm. Fitz-Herbert, Esq. At the Domesday survey this manor was held by Alric, under Henry de Ferrars. From 1252 it was held by the family of Fitz-Herbert. On the death of the late Richard Fitz-Herbert, Esq., the last male heir, in 1803, it passed by bequest to his only surviving sister, Mrs. Frances Fitzherbert, and on her death to her nephew, the Rev. Roger Jackson. Mr. Jackson sold the manor to the late Lord Vernon, who sold the Hall to the late Lord St. Helens, (a title now extinct), and by whom it was given to his nephew, the present Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart.

SPONDON, a parish, containing the townships of Spondon and Stanley, which, together have 4,139A. 2R. 38P. of land; rateable value £9,366 15s. 11d., and in 1851 had 426 houses and 2,052 inhabitants, of whom 985 were males and 1,067 females.

SPONDON, a township, parish, and large well built village, on a commanding eminence that overlooks the picturesque vale of the Derwent, 3 miles E. from Derby, contains many handsome modern residences, and has 3,089A. 2R. 38P. of fertile land; rateable value £7,600 3s. 11d.; and in 1851 had 347 houses and 1,672 inhabitants, of whom 785 were males and 887 females. William Drury Lowe, Esq., is lord of the manor and principal owner; the other owners are the Executors of the late Joseph Osborn, Esq., Chas. O. Hodges, Esq., J. E. Swindell, Esq., Wm. Thos. Cox, Esq., John Sant, Esq., Sir H. S. Wilmot, Bart. Lieut. Col. Coke, and Mr. Henry Kerry. In 1788, 471 acres were enclosed. The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient stone building, in the deorated style of architecture, with nave, chancel, side aisles, a tower, and spire 114 feet high, and 5 bells, to which was added in 1856, a handsome clock with two dials, at a cost of £120 raised by subscriptions. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £6 14s. 7d., now £162. Wm, Drury Lowe, Esq., is the patron, and the Rev. A. A. Holden, M.A., incumbent, who resides at the vicarage, a good house near the church. The Church of Spondon was given to the hospital of Burton, to which it was appropriated. In 1544 the rectory was granted to John Dudley. Wm. Gilbert, Esq., of Locko, gave the tithes of Locko to the vicar of Spondon, an enclosure of 23A. 2R. 5P. of land on Morley Common, was given in lieu of these tithes, and the vicar has a Common allotment in Spondon, which, with the glebe. amounts to 63A. 3R. 13P. of land. In the Church yard is an antique stone, apparently Saxon. In the Church are monuments to Elizabeth, wife of Henry Gilbert, Esq., of Locko, with others of that family; also, to the Osborne and other families. At Domesday survey, the manor belonged to Henry de Ferrars; after his attainder, King Henry III. granted it to his son, Edmund Earl of Lancaster. In 1563 it was, with that of Burrow-Ash, granted to Thomas Stanhope. John Gilbert Cooper, Esq. sold this estate, in 1747, for £13,000 to John Lowe, Esq. Richard Lowe, Esq., who died in 1785, bequeathed these manors to his relative, William Drury, Esq., who took the name of Lowe. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels; the former was enlarged in 1816 to seat about 300. A National school was erected in 1839, which consists of a spacious centre and two wings, for boys, girls, and infants—cost £700, raised by subscription aided by a small grant from the National School Society; it is on the east side of the village, has large play-grounds, and is under the management of a committee of five gentlemen; about 140 children attend, who pay two-pence per week to the treasurer, (the vicar.) Mr. James Roe is the master. A school library was commenced in 1844, and has 480 volumes—Thomas Gilbert, Esq., endowed a school with 4A. 1R. 25P. of land, now let for £10 per annum; and in 1727 the Rev. George Stanhope gave an annuity of £5 to the school. These sums are still enjoyed by Thomas Coxon, the late schoolmaster, who held that office for nearly 40 years, but at his death they will revert to their proper channel. The school-room was built in 1699, and in 1839 was convêrted into a dwelling-house. Locko Park, the seat of Wm. Drury Lowe, Esq., is a handsome stone mansion, in a well wooded park of 350 acres. It is in the Doric style of architecture, with a small but beautiful chapel, consecrated in 1673. The present owner, who succeeded to the estate in 1849 on the death of his grandmother, Mrs. Drury Lowe, at the patriarchial age of 104 years, is improving and enlarging the house and gardens very materially, amongst which may be named a handsome tower 88 feet high, picture gallery, large and splendid dining-rooms, entrance hall, and magnificent conservatory, with extensive front terrace walls, garden terraces, with walls, bridges, &c., which, when effectually carried out and completed, will render it the most beautiful mansion in the county. The grounds surrounding the house are pleasantly diversified by hill and dale, and enlivened by about 250 head of deer, and an artificial lake of about ten acres. Spondon Hall, 3½ miles east from Derby, is a handsome residence, with tastefully arranged grounds, and commanding a beautiful prospect over the vale of the Derwent; it is the seat of Wm. Thos. Cox, Esq. Field House, 3 miles east from Derby, a handsome brick mansion, is the residence of Frederick Arkwright, Esq. Borrow Wood Farm, about 1 mile E. from the village, is the property of Sir H. S. Wilmot, Bart., and in the occupation of Mr. Gervase Malin. At the Birmingham Cattle Show, in 1855, Mr. J. J. Meakin, of this place, had a silver Prize Medal awarded to him, as the breeder of the best fat cow, exhibited by W. T. Cox, Esq.

BORROWASH, a large village, I mile E. by S., is principally in the parish of Ockbrook. The Derby and Nottingham Branch of the Midland Railway passes about half a mile south of the village, and has a neat station. The Derby Canal also runs through the parish. There are about 60 hosiery frames in the village, an Odd Fellow's Lodge, and two Friendly Societies. The Feast is the nearest Sunday to 2nd February.

STANLEY, a township, chapelry, and straggling village, situated in a valley, 6 miles N.E. from Derby, contains 1,050 acres of land, a rich red loam; rateable value £1,766 12s. and in 1851 had 79 houses and 380 inhabitants, of whom 200 were males and 180 females. The principal owners are Hugh Bateman, Esq., C. L. Masters, Esq., Wm. D. Lowe, Esq., Mr. Isaac Attenborough, Mr. Jno. Canner, Mr. Jno. Potter, and Mr. Jph. Potter, the former is lord of the manor. The Church, dedicated to St. Andrew, a small ancient edifice, was appropriated to Dale Abbey by William Fitz-Ralph, and after the reformation, granted to the Powtrell family. It has a nave and chancel, an open turret, and two bells, and contains several marble tablets, and was repewed in 1842. The living is a perpetual curacy, certified at £64, and has 12A. 0R. 23P. of glebe. Sir Robert Wilmot, Bart., is patron, and the Rev. Alfred A. Gibson, incumbent. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel here, and the township is allowed to send eight children free to West Hallam school, founded by John Scargill. In 1842 this village was the scene of a brutal murder; the residence of the Misses Goddard was broken into by three villians, who barbarously murdered one and beat the other. The offenders suffered the extreme penalty of the law in March 1843. Mr. Joseph Potter, of Horsley-Woodhouse, now owns the house. Mr. William Barton, a self taught and celebrated bone setter, was a resident in this place; he performed many cures which the profession had pronounced incurable, and his fame spread over this and the adjoining counties. He died, February, 1844, aged 88 years, and was buried at West Hallam. There is a small colliery here.

CHARITIES.—William Gilbert, Esq., left by will, in 1649, the sum of £1,000, with which 51A. 1R. 30P. of land have been purchased at Spondon, now let for £137 10s. per annum. There are 32 recipients, who have from 1s. to 2s. each given to them every Saturday, and the surplus is applied to charitable purposes at the discretion of the trustees.

Thomas Gilbert, of Locko, in 1657, bequeathed £60 to purchase an annual rent of £3, to be paid towards the maintenance of a schoolmaster. By indentures, 1663, in consideration of the above sum, Coxall's Pingle and Hobson's Paddock were conveyed to trustees.

Henry Gilbert, of Locko, in 1711, for a nominal consideration, conveyed to trustees a close called Brook close, in Spondon, on trust, to pay thereout to the schoolmaster of Spondon, 40s. yearly, and that any surplus should be laid out in repairing the school. The property consists of the School pingle, 1A. 3R. 11P., the Wet pingle, 2A. 17P., and Brook close, 1A. 3R. 11P., now worth from £9 to £10 per annum.

The Rev. George Stanhope, dean of Canterbury, in 1727, charged his moiety of the rectory impropriate of Spondon, of which he was seized in fee, with a yearly rent of £15, and directed, of the said sum, £10 should belong to the vicar as an augmentation to his living, provided that he should pay £4 yearly for the teaching four poor children of Spondon to read, write, and cast accounts, and that, with the remaining £1 he should provide each of such children on leaving the school, with a Bible or Common Prayer Book, and a Whole Duty of Man.

Sacrament Bread and Wine.—An entry in a book without date, but written more than fifty years ago, states that three roods of land, lying in Samuel Richardson's little buttery, were left to buy bread and wine for the holy sacrament, for ever, for Stanley chapelry. The field is now called Samuel's buttery, and the residue of it belongs to Richard Bateman, Esq., whose tenant purchases the bread and wine, estimated to cost annually the fair rent of this plot of land.

Joyce Harpur gave to the poor of this chapelry £5, vested in the overseers, and was first paid from the poor rates in 1740. The sum of 5s. was divided amongst five poor widows, until 1816, when it was discontinued; but the churchwardens have informed us (1826,) that the inhabitants are willing to recommence it and continue it in future.

William Gilbert, late of Dublin, in 1649, bequeathed to the parish of Spondon, for the use of the poor, £1000, to be laid out in lands, and by indenture 1662, Henry Gilbert of Locko, Esq., conveyed to Richard Cross and 12 parishioners of Spondon, in discharge of the above sum, various cottages and tenements, situated in Spondon or Chaddesden, and liberty was reserved for the said Henry Gilbert to exchange any part. Various exchanges have been made; and the present rental of the property is £123 7s. per annum. The Derby Canal Company pay a rent of £2 17s. for land occupied by the canal. There is also £120 three per cent consols, producing £3 12s. per annum. The number appointed to receive the charity varies. Each person appointed receives a weekly allowance varying from 1s. to 2s.

John Locko, in 1663, had a close conveyed to him by Sir Edwd. Moseley, Bart., in consideration of £65 which he conveyed to trustees, that after his decease they should dispose of the rents and profits amongst the most aged impotent persons in Spondon. The property now consists of 6A. 0R. 7P., of which 2A. 1R. 18P. was an allotment awarded at the enclosure, now let for £18 per annum. The number of recipients in 1856, was forty.

Griffith Daykin, in 1723, devised a rent-charge of 12s. yearly out of his close, called Dockey Furrows, on trust, to purchase one dark-grey gown for a widow woman of Spondon, so as the gift should not be repeated to the same person oftener than once in three years. He also devised to trustees a rent-charge of 12s. yearly out of his close in Spondon, called Great Sinderlands, toward supporting the minister officiating for the congregation of Protestant dissenters assembling at Alvaston, called Presbyterians. Providing such meeting be discontinued, then it should be employed in purchasing one dark-grey coat for a man, as above. The whole amount is now applicable for the benefit of the poor, there having been no Presbyterian congregation at Alvaston for many years.

Elizabeth Cooper, in 1728, devised her house in Spondon, and certain lands, to trustees, to dispose of the rents amongst the poorest residents in Spondon. The property consists of 7A. 1R. 26P., of which 4A. 0R. 15P. was an allotment in lieu of lands in the three common fields of Spondon, and in lieu of a little pingle by the side of Burroughfield, now let for £15 15s. per annum. The money is distributed at the schoolroom on 21st December.

Gisborne's Charity, (see Bradley.)—£5 10s. received on account of this charity is laid out by the vicar in the purchase of cloth and flannel, and distributed amongst the poor.

Poor Allotment.—At the inclosure, 1A. 39P., called Elson's Pingle, was allotted to the trustees of Spondon Poor. Joseph Elson was overseer at the time, and he enclosed and occupied it during his life; afterwards Thomas Elson, a younger son, succeeded to it, and sold it, in 1823, to Mr. Jacob Osborne, for £60. A meeting of the parishioners was called, but no steps taken to obtain possession of the allotment.

To Derby; Arthur Barton, on Fri.

SUDBURY is a parish, and well built pleasant village, on the Derby and Uttoxeter road, 13 miles S.W. from the former; and 5 miles E. from the latter, and 10 miles S. from Ashbourn; contains 3,603A. 1R. 12P. of fertile land; rateable value, £5,590; and in 1851 had 108 houses and 570 inhabitants, of whom 287 were males and 283 females, Lord Vernon is lord of the manor and sole owner. The Church, dedicated to All-Saints, an ancient structure, richly clothed with ivy, is situated in the pleasure grounds near to the Hall; it has a nave, chancel, side aisles, and tower, with 5 bells; it was enlarged and beautified in 1827, and in 1850 a handsome stained glass window was placed in the east end of the chancel, by H. M. Queen Victoria, and H.R.H. Prince Albert, to commemmorate the faithful services of Geo. Edward Anson, Esq., many years privy purse to her Majesty; and a native of this place. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's books at £14 13s. 1½d., now £747. Lord Vernon is the patron, and the Rev. Fredk. Anson, M.A., canon of Windsor, is the rector, and resides at the rectory, a large handsome mansion, at the east end of the village, to which belongs 119 acres of glebe, and the tithe, commuted, in 1835, for £600. The Church contains some ancient monuments of the Montgomery family; the most remarkable, are two very ancient effigies of females, clothed in flounced drapery, and holding hearts in their hands, which are raised in an attitude of prayer; it also contains some beautiful monuments of the Vernon family. At the west end of the church, under an ancient Yew tree, are deposited the remains of George Charles, Lord

Vernon, who died at Gibralter, 18th November, 1835, aged 55. Also Frances Maria Warren, Lady Vernon, who died at Poynton Hall, Cheshire, 17th September, 1837. This spot was chosen by his lordship as his last resting place. At the Domesday survey, Henry de Ferrars had a park here. It was held at an early period, with Aston, under the Ferrars, by the Montgomery Family. In the reign of Henry VIII., a co-heiress of Sir John Montgomery, brought the manor to Sir John, son of Sir Henry Vernon, of Haddon Hall. John, grandson of Sir John, dying without issue, this branch of the family became extinct, and the manor, with other estates, passed under his will to his widow, Mary, daughter of Sir Edward Littleton, with remainder, successively to her sons by her first husband, Walter Vernon, of Houndshill, descended from one of the elder brothers of Sir J. Vernon, who married the co-heiress of Montgomery. From Sir Edward Vernon, the elder of these sons, Sudbury and Aston passed to his immediate descendant, George Venables Vernon, who in 1762, was created Lord Vernon. The family of Vernons is of great antiquity, they are descended from the Lords of Vernon in Normandy; one of whom, Richard de Vernon, accompanied William the Conquerer to England, and was one of the seven Barons created by Hugh Lupus, the great Earl of Chester. Sudbury Hall, a commodious mansion, erected about the year 1610, by Mrs. Mary Vernon, who died in 1662. It is a brick building, in the Elizabethan style, at the west end of the village. The front overlooks a splendid park of 600 acres, having about 300 head of deer in it. The south front overlooks the Derby and Uttoxeter road, and the beautiful terrace, tasteful flower gardens, and fine lake, cover about 30 acres of land. The extensive pleasure grounds are ornamented with a profusion of rare shrubs and evergreens; the delightful walks command some beautiful views of the verdant park, and the scenery in the immediate neighbourhood. Here is a fine laurel, the branches of which cover 90 yards in circumference. This delightful retreat was the residence of the Dowager Queen Adelaide, from August, 1840, to 1843. The Church of England Schools, for boys girls, and infants, are supported by Lord Vernon; the average attendance is about 45 boys, 50 girls, and 40 infants. Attached to the school, is an excellent library of 800 vols, for the use of the parishioners. A handsome stone bridge with three arches, was built in 1853, over the river Dove, at a cost of £1,855, and in making a drain near the site of the old bridge, at a depth of seven feet from the surface, was found an oak tree, containing upwards of 100 feet of timber, in the highest state of preservation, and as black as ebony; it is in the possession of the Rev. Fredk. Anson, who purposes having it converted into cabinet furniture; also about the same time, but at some distance from the above, a number of horns and skulls of the red deer and of oxen were discovered, together with a quantity of hazel nuts in a perfectly sound state. The North Staffordshire railway runs through the parish, and has a neat station about 1 mile S. from the Village. An Odd-Fellows Lodge is held at the "Vernon Arms." ASTON is a small hamlet, ½ mile E. of the village. Sudbury Wood, an ancient farm house, overgrown with ivy, 2 miles N., is in the occupation of Mr. Richd. Chawner. HILL SOMERSALL, a hamlet, 2 miles N.W. from the village, contains some good farm houses, of which the one occupied by Mr. Thos. Allen, is a neat Gothic building, and the first which was erected on Lord Vernon's estate. Mackley (Upper) 1 mile N.E. from the village, is an ancient farm house, with extensive and well arranged out-buildings, in the occupation of Mr. Hy. Salt. OAKS GREEN, and POTTER SOMERSALL, are both small hamlets, the former 1 mile N.N.W. and the latter 2½ miles N.W. from the village. Vernon's Oak, 2½ miles N. from Sudbury, an extensive farm with good residence, which takes its name from an ancient oak of large dimensions, growing near the house, in the occupation of Mr. Wm. Fredk. Hoare. Somersall House is a handsome Elizabethan building 2½ miles N. from the village, in the occupation of Mr. Wm. Turner. The Feast is on the nearest Sunday before November 5th.

CHARITIES.—John Vernon, Esq., by will, for the carrying into effect a part of his bountiful donations, Mary Vernon, his widow, and John Vernon her son, by indenture, 1608, made over to seven trustees, an annual rent-charge of £6 13s. 4d. to be for ever issuing out, and chargeable upon the manor of Sudbury, and all the land therein, towards the relief of poor necessitous persons. The annual sum is paid by Lord Vernon, as lord of the manor of Sudbury, to the churchwardens, on four days in the year, viz.:—Candlemas-day, May-day, St. James's-day, and All Saints'-day. The churchwardens, shortly afterwards, distribute to twenty-two poor persons the sum of 1s. 6d. each, and to one of them 4d. more, being the whole sum.

John Harestaff, in 1641, enfeoffed to two persons, and their heirs, a messuage, farm, and premises at Rodsley, and declared that his feoffees and their heirs should stand seized of the said premises, to the use of Sir Edward Vernon, Knight, for life, that there should be paid out of the profits of the said premises, £18 yearly for ever to the parson of Sudbury, and by him to the churchwardens for the time being, to be bestowed yearly as follows, viz.: £11 14s. in bread, 4s. 6d. weekly to be given in 18 threepenny loaves; £3 18s. to be distributed to 18 poor inhabitants, to every one 12d. on the sabbath before Easter, Whitsuntide, and All Saints, and 16d. on the sabbath before Christmas; and that 30s. should be divided amongst the parson and the two churchwardens for their trouble; the other 18s. to be employed towards the maintenance of the bells and clock, and fencing the churchyard. Lord Vernon is the present owner, and the various sums are distributed as above.

Noon and Turton Charities.—A rent charge of £2 per annum on Lord Vernon's estate, left by persons of the above names, is paid to the churchwardens, who divide it amongst 20 poor persons, but by what instrument given is not known.

Post Office, at Mrs. Rachel Yarnalls. Letters arrive from Derby at 6 a.m., and are despatched at 7 40 p.m.

SUTTON-ON-THE-HILL parish, contains the townships of Sutton-on-theHill, Ash, and Osleston-with-Thurvaston, 3,232A. 2R. 29P. of land; rateable value, £4,735 12s. 6d., and in 1851 had 106 houses, and 570 inhabitants, of whom 304 were males, and 266 females.

SUTTON ON THE HILL, a township and small well-built village, 8 miles W. by S.W. from Derby, contains 854A. 1R. 24P. of strong fertile land; rateable value, £1095 5s. 0d., and in 1851 had 22 houses, and 129 inhabitants, of whom 69 were males, and 60 females. This estate is principally the property of the Blue Coat Hospital and Library, at Manchester, for whom it was purchased of George Vernon, Esq., by Mr. James Chetham, great nephew of Humphrey Chetham, Esq., the munificent founder of that charity, as part of the estates directed to be purchased for that endowment by the founder's will. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, is situated on a lofty hill, about a quarter of a mile N.E. from the village, whence fine views of Dove Dale, Thorpe Cloud, and Tutbury Castle are seen. It has a nave, chancel, north aisle, tower, three bells, and a spire, which was struck by lightning, 19th June, 1841, when it was taken down and rebuilt at a cost of £84.

The living is a vicarage, valued in the king's book, at £4 15s. 8d., now £225. The Rev. German Buckston, M.A., is patron and incumbent. In the church is a splendid monument to Judith Sleigh, who died 16th September, 1634. Several of the family are interred here. The vicarage, at the east end of the village, is a castelated mansion, erected by the late Rev. Richard Rowland Ward; it has 2A. 1R. 36P. of glebe. The tithes were commuted for £71 11s.; those of Ash, for £83 3s., and Osleston and Thurvaston, for £125. This church was given to the prior and convent of Trentham, Staffordshire, by Ralph de Boscherville, and a rectory farm of 80A. 10P., now belonging to Mr. Thos. Mold, who also receives £5 per annum in lieu of hay tithes on certain lands in the parish, including a modus of 8s. 4d., and he pays to the vicar a modus of 6s. Feast first Sunday after October 11th.

ASH, a township and small village, one mile E. from Sutton, contains 690A. 3R. 37P. of land; rateable value, £922 9s. 6d., and in 1851 had 6 houses, and 46 inhabitants, of whom 25 were males, and 21 females. The Rev. German Buckston is the sole owner. Ash was the seat and property of the family of Sleigh. The elder daughter and coheiress of Sir Samuel Sleigh, who died 1679, brought it to James Chetham, Esq.; in consequence of the death of his sons without issue, it passed to the family of Cotton, from thence to the Rev. Rowland Ward, of whom it was purchased by the present proprietor.

OSLESTON-WITH-THURVASTON, form a joint township, and small village 7½ miles W. by N. from Derby, contains 1687A. 1R. 8P. of land, a rich marl; rateable value, £2,717 18s., and in 1851 had 78 houses, and 395 inhabitants, of whom 210 were males, and 185 females. The principal owners are, the Rev. John Edmund Carr, Samuel Archer, Francis Bradshaw, Wm. Cox, Samuel Fox, Jas. Hanson, Thomas Holmes, Wm. Hopkins, John Smith, and Samuel Freirs, Esqrs., and Chetham's Hospital. The corn tithes are in various owners. Mr. John Radford receives £2 7s. 6d., Mary Smith, £9, and Wm. and Maria Cox, £1 4s. John, who is supposed to have been the ancestor of the Montgomery family, gave half the tithes of his demesne in this township to Tutbury priory. These manors passed from the Montgomery family to the Vernons. The Rowes had a house and estate at Osleston, which passed by marriage to Mr. Newell, chancellor of Lincoln, since sold in lots. Long Lane, a few scattered houses, E. of Thurvaston.

CROPPER, a hamlet and scattered village, in Osleston, where the Primitive Methodists have a chapel, erected in 1838. A New school was erected in 1851, by Mr. Samuel Stretton, of Cropper Top, at a cost of £450 to £500. It is a neat brick building with residence for the master, and will accommodate about 120 children.

CHARITIES.—Ann Jackson, in 1722, bequeathed so much money out of her personal estate as wherewith to purchase lands and tenements of the yearly value of £20, or an annuity or rent charge for ever of £20 a year, to be distributed by her executor and his heirs—the yearly sum of £4 to a schoolmaster, and the remainder to be employed in apprenticing poor children; and that, in case there should be any overplus, it should be be distributed to poor persons above the age of 50 years. No purchase has been made in respect of this charity, but by an indenture dated 1st May, 1755, the Rev. Simon Jackson conveyed certain closes called Fernilee pastures, from which the annuity of £20 was to be paid. These premises, in 1826, were in the possession of Francis Joddrell, Esq., whose agent transmits £20 yearly to the churchwardens of Sutton. Of this sum £19 10s. per annum is paid to a schoolmaster, to instruct poor children, and 10s. for the repairs of the school. The school was built by subscription about 1735, and was enlarged and repaired in 1822 at the expense of the parish. The residue of the £20 is applied in apprentice fees, the premiums varying from £10 to £16. One apprentice is generally put out every year, the deficiency being made up by the overseers.

MORLESTON AND LITCHURCH HUNDRED.

THIS Hundred is bounded on the north by the Scarsdale hundred, on the east by the river Erewash, which separates it from Nottinghamshire, on the south by the river Trent, and the hundreds of Appletree, Repton, and Gresley; and on the west by the Appletree hundred. It comprises an area of 72,451 statute acres. It has generally a strong fertile clay soil on the eastern side, with intermixtures of sand, and a rich red loam on the western extremity. The banks of the rivers have a fine alluvial soil, the Derwent crossing the hundred for a considerable distance. The north and north east parts are rich in coal and iron, and the north west extremity extends into the lead district.

The following is an enumeration of its 27 parishes, shewing their territorial extent, the annual value, and their population, from 1801 to 1851, as returned at the five decennial periods of the Parliamentary Census.

ALLESTREE, a small well built village and parish, 2 miles N. from Derby, on the Duffield road. The parish contains 1075A. 3R. 15P. of strong rich land, and in 1851 had 109 houses and 557 inhabitants, of whom 268 were males and 289 females; rateable value £1376 2s. 5d. The principal land owners are William Mundy, Esq., M.P., Thomas Wm. Evans, Esq., and W. P. Thornhill, Esq., M.P., the former is lord of the manor. The North Midland Railway passes through this parish, and occupies 8A. 1R. 9P. of land. The Church, dedicated to St. Edmund, was formerly one of the Churches belonging to the Abbey at Darley. It is an ancient structure with a Saxon porch, a nave, chancel, side aisles, and low tower, with 3 bells. A few years ago, it was thoroughly restored and beautified, principally at the cost of the late William Evans, Esq. In 1856, a clock was put up in the Church at a cost of about £300, at the sole expense of the late W. Evans, Esq.; it is one of the finest in the county. There are several monuments to the Mundy family, and one to George Evans, aged 15, who was drowned in the river Wharf, at Thorp-Arch, May 29th, 1804. The living is a perpetual curacy, valued in the King's book at £5, now £50, and has 2 acres of glebe. Wm. Mundy, Esq., M.P., is the patron, and the Rev. John Hullett, B.A., is the incumbent. About 14 acres of land in the parish belongs to the Church, let for £30 per annum, for its reparation. The Church yard has recently been enlarged about half an acre, one half the land was given by the late Wm. Evans, Esq. In the Church yard are two yew trees, one of which is supposed to be nearly as old as the Church, and in the S.E. corner is a stone cross or pillar, with a plain shaft, twelve feet in height, with a carved head on which there was formerly a dial. The Wesleyan Methodists have a small neat brick chapel here, erected in 1821. A neat National School in the gothic style of architecture for boys and girls was erected in 1856, at a cost of about £700, aided by a grant from Government of £207, the remainder was paid by the late Wm. Evans, Esq. The school will accommodate about 150. There is also a Sick society held in the school room, which consists of about 100 members. The manor, Adelardestreu, is described in Domesday survey, as a hamlet of the manor of Markeaton, with which it is still held. The late Francis N. C. Mundy, Esq., sold a considerable portion of Allestree estate to the late Thomas Evans, Esq., Charles Upton, Esq., and Bache Thornhill, Esq. Allestree Hall, a handsome stone mansion, in a well wooded park, was for many years the residence of the late Wm. Evans, Esq., whose public career was varied and influential. He was sheriff of the county in 1829, and represented in parliament the Borough of East Retford, for three sessions; the Borough of Leicester for three sessions; and the Northern Division of this County from 1837 till 1853, when he retired from parliamentary life. As a county magistrate Mr. Evans took a leading part, occupying himself very actively in the financial and other business, as well as in the legal portion of the magisterial duties. He died on the 8th May, 1856 in the 68th year of his age. The Hall is now the seat and property of Thos. Wm. Evans, Esq.

Munday's Charity.—(See Radbourn). The annual sum of £1 4s. is received from the incumbent of Quarndon, by the perpetual curate of Allestree, who retains 2s. for himself, pays 2s. to the churchwardens, and the remaining 20s. are distributed on the Sunday fortnight after Christmas, amongst the poor of the parish.

Church Lands.—By a decree of Commissioners of Charitable Uses, &c., taken at Derby on 16th November, 30 Charles II., it was found that certain closes situate in Markeaton, in the parish of Mackworth, called Sawry Hill, had belonged to, and the rents, until the last 28 years, been employed towards the repair of the parish Church of Allestree; and it was ordered that Gilbert Mundy should deliver up possession of the said premises to the churchwardens of Allestree, &c., and that Gilbert and Edward Mundy, administrators of John Mundy, having assets, should pay thereout £64 13s. 4d. in respect of the rents of the said premises, received by him, to be employed in the repairs of the said Church. The Church lands consist of 3 closes, called Sawry Hill, containing about 9 acres, let for £19 3s. a year; 3 cottages and gardens in Allestree, let for £1 each; a small piece of uninclosed land, forming part of a field, the residue belongs to Walter Evans, Esq., let to him for 10s. per annum; and a field of arable land, containing about 5 acres, let for £8 3s. 6d., &c. These rents are paid to the churchwarden, and carried to his general account.

ASTON-UPON-TRENT, a parish, township, and large well built village, 6 miles S.E. from Derby, contains 1780A. 3R. 28P. of rich land, and in 1851, had 157 houses, and 693 inhabitants, of whom 346 were males and 347 females; rateable value £3664 15s. 11½d. The principal owners are Edward A. Holden, Esq., James Sutton, Esq., the Rev. Joseph Sikes, of Newark, Nottinghamshire, the Earl of Harrington, and Aston, and Burton poor; the former is lord of the manor. The Church, (All Saints) is an ancient gothic structure, with nave, chancel, side aisles, and embattled tower, with pinnacles, and four bells. It formerly had galleries at the west end and north side. The communion table is of black oak, handsomely carved with Exdoni Johannis Honte, 1630. Here are monuments and tablets to the Hunt, Holden, Shuttleworth, Fosbrook, and Walker families. In the year 1393, the church was appropriated to the Abbey of St. Werburgh, in Chester, notwithstanding it is now a rectory, valued in the King's books at £29 15s., now £1,000, in the patronage of E. A. Holden, Esq., and incumbency of the Rev. Francis Augustus Weekes, M.A. In 1839, the presentation was sold to the Rev. — Bromley, and in 1848, it was resold to Samuel Ashton, Esq., who presented it to the present incumbent. In 1853, the church was thoroughly restored, the chancel was fitted up with neat stalls, the galleries were removed, the arch and tower thrown open, and the windows were filled with stained glass. The rectory is a large neat residence near the church. The Wesleyan Methodists have a small brick chapel erected in 1829. National Schools for boys and girls, were erected in 1845, by voluntary contributions, aided by a grant of £54 from the National School Society. The boys room will accommodate 80, average attendance 40; and the girls room will hold 50, about 30 attend. The master is allowed £45 per annum and the use of a house adjoining the school. A grant of a market and fair was obtained in 1256, both have long been disused. The market cross was taken down in 1837. Messrs. Pegg, Harper and Co., of Derby, and Mr. Robert Meakin, of Chellaston, have extensive gypsum pits in this parish. There are several lodges of Odd Fellows, and Friendly Societies. Aston Hall is a large neat modern brick mansion, painted stone colour, situated in park like grounds of considerable extent. On the north front is a stone portico, supported by two fluted pillars; the south front overlooks a beautiful lawn, the Vale of the Trent, and Donington Woods. It is the seat and property of Edward A. Holden, Esq. Aston Lodge, a neat residence, the property of James Sutton Esq., and the residence of Mrs. C. Walker. Feast, Sunday before Nov. 5th.

CHARITIES.—Samuel Mather, in the year 1706, left £40 to the poor of Aston, £30 of which was laid out in the purchase of a house then rented by John Clarke, and the remaining £10 was in the hands of Mr. Crompton, of Derby. By the award for the Aston enclosure, dated 22nd March, 1783, land in the Nether Field, at a place called the Heath, of the yearly value of 35s., was given in exchange for the cottage above named. The land is now enclosed, and contains about 2½A., now let for £7 per annum, which is distributed on the Sunday after Christmas day, amongst poor persons. With respect to the £10 stated to have been in the hands of Mr. Crompton, it is not known how it was apppropriated, but is supposed to have been laid out in the purchase of four poor houses in the parish.

Joseph Percival, of Winchester, by will proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, October 1715, bequeathed £100 to the poor of the parish of Aston, to be laid out at interest by the minister, overseers, and churchwardens. In respect of this legacy, there is a sum of £97 9s. 3d. old South-sea annuities, part of a sum of £1180 16s. 6d. stock, standing in the name of the Accountant General of the Court of Chancery, to the credit of the cause of the Dean of Winchester against Holden. The dividends payable to the poor of this parish have not been paid for many years; the last supposed to have been paid on the 10th October, 1794. At the time of our enquiry, August, 1826, little was known in the parish as to this charity, &c. Upon enquiry at the Accountant General's office, it appears the arrears of interest may be received, on the proper application being made by the minister, churchwardens, and overseers of Aston, and this we have recommended should be done. The arrears of interest will amount to about £90, and it seems advisable they should be invested in the funds, and the dividends distributed to the poor with the yearly dividends of South sea annuities.

Elizabeth Cooper, by will, 1728, whose charity for the parish of Spondon—(See Spondon)—left lands, &c., for the poor of Aston, which consisted of one moiety of a field of about an acre, called the Green Leas, and three small parcels of land in the Common Meadow. At the time of the enclosure, there was allotted in respect of these three parcels 2A. 13P. in a field called Thornborough Field, not enclosed, and lies open to the rest of the field, which is the property of Mrs. Cock, to whom also an undivided moiety of the Green Leas belongs. The yearly rent of £2 10s. is paid by the tenant in respect of so much of the land as belongs this charity, which is distributed by the trustee amongst the poor, he retaining 5s. for his expences. We recommended the appointment of new trustees for this and the Spondon charity.

Robert Cowper, by will 1720, gave to ten of the poorest people of the town of Aston the sum of 5s. to be paid yearly for ever, out of a parcel of ground called the Green Leas. This sum has not been paid for 20 or 30 years past. The last payment was by Mrs. Cowlishaw. There are several parcels of land of that name, and we have not been able to discover which was the property so described in the will.

Jane Shepherd left, in 1734, a rent charge of 12s. a-year, to pay for two children at Aston school. It is upwards of 40 years since this was paid. The estate supposed to be charged therewith is situate at Chellaston, and was, at the time the last payment was made, in the possession of Mrs. Bayle and Mrs. Hardinge; it now belongs to Mr. T. Brown Dummelow, of Chellaston, but there does not seem sufficient evidence to prove that this is the estate liable thereto.

One of these brothers afterwards went to London, about 1780, and became Lord Mayor.

Loscoe, a small village which forms the south extremity of the parish, about 1 mile from Codnor, contains 90 houses and 451 inhabitants, of whom 233 were males, and 218 females The Butterley Compy have a colliery here, from which hard and soft coal of good quality is obtained. The Baptists have a chapel, erected in 1848, at a cost of £476, raised by subscription. It is a good brick building and will seat about 400 persons. The old chapel having become too small and much dilapidated, the present one was erected on the site; the Rev. W. J. Stuart is the pastor. Loscoe dam, when full, covers about 24 acres of ground. Loscoe Park was for several generations the seat of the Draycott family, but it has long been broken up, and the house taken down.

Charities.—Jonathan Tantum, in 1732 devised to his executors the moiety of a messuage, &c., garden, orchard, and Webster's croft, situate in Loscoe, upon trust that they should pay full two-third parts of the rents to the poor of Codnor and Loscoe, (charges for repairs deducted), and one-third part to the trustees belonging the Breach Meeting in Codnor, commonly called the Quakers, to dispose thereof as they should think proper. The property consists of a dwelling-house, which was rebuilt in 1810, at an expense of £113 18s. 4d. defrayed by reserving the rents, a small garden, a warehouse, a garden inclosure, now let for £22 per annum. One moiety of which is paid to the trustees of the charity, and one-third of such moiety is applied for the use of the Breach Meeting, and the residue is distributed at the tenant's house, on the Monday before Christmas day, amongst poor persons of Codnor and Loscoe generally, in sums varying from 2s. to 5s.

CODNOR PARK is an extra parochial liberty, in the ecclesiastical district of Ironville, situated on the Erewash valley railway, 4 miles S.E. from Alfreton, and 12 miles N.E. from Derby, and contains 1,400 acres of land, rich in ironstone, coal, and other minerals; rateable value, £2592; and in 1851, had 132 houses and 735 inhabitants, of whom 381 were males and 354 females. Fras. Wright, Esq., of Osmaston, is lord of the manor. The Butterley Iron Company are the principal owners, and have very extensive works here, for the smelting and manufacture of all descriptions of iron; four blast furnaces being constantly at work, which gives employment to the greater portion of the population. Messrs. Joseph Bourne and Son, of Denby pottery, have also a manufactory here, of stoneware, bottles, &c. Codnor Castle was situated on high ground, and commanded an extensive prospect to the East, of which a small portion of the walls remain, and a dovecote entire. From the walls and foundations, it appears to have been a place of considerable extent. On the south it had a large square court, from which were two entrances into the castle; on the east side was a broad deep moat, and on the bank grew a double row of trees, which were cut down about the year 1738. The park belonging to the Castle contained about 2,200 acres of land. In the early part of the 13th century there was a castle here; and in the reign of Henry III., it was the chief seat of Richard de Grey, whose descendants, the Barons Grey, of Codnor, possessed it for many years, the last of whom, Henry, a philosopher and alchymist, in the reign of Henry IV. obtained a license to practise the transmutation of metals; he died in or about the year 1526, when the Codnor estate passed to Sir John Zouch, who had married Elizabeth, the aunt of the last possessor. The Codnor estate was sold by Sir John Zouch and John Zouch, Esq., his heir apparent, in 1634, to Archbishop Neile, and his son, Sir Paul. Their descendent, Richard Neile, Esq. sold the manor and castle of Codnor, with its members—Heanor, Loscoe, and Langley, and the manor of Codnor Park, in 1692, to Sir Strensham Masters, who was high sheriff in 1712, and occupied Codnor Castle, but even then it was in a ruinous state, and since that period it has entirely fallen into ruins and it is said six farm houses with other convenient buildings, were raised from the materials collected from the ruins. The Cromford and Erewash canals here unite. Aldercar Hall, a pleasant mansion erected in 1668, was a seat of the Burtons. The Milnes possessed it in 1712. It is now the seat of George Jessop, Esq., Golden Valley, a small village 3 miles S.E. of Alfreton, inhabitants principally colliers. Stoneyford Colliery, 2½ miles from Codnor, is worked by the Butterley Iron Company. Hard and soft coal of good quality is got here.

CRICH, is an extensive parish containing the township of CRICH, in the Morleston and Litchurch Hundred; the township of WESSINGTON, in Scarsdale Hundred; and the township and chapelry of TANSLEY, in the Wirksworth Hundred. The entire parish contains 5,772A. 3R. 0P. of land, rich in minerals and every variety of soil, and in 1851, had 832 houses, and 3,670 inhabitants, of whom 1,861 were males and 1,809 females, rateable value £7,898 9s. 6d. This is a picturesque district of lofty hills and deep valleys. At the Norman survey, the manor belonged to Ralph Fitzhubert, from whom it passed to the Frechvilles; Sir Roger Belers, who died seized of it in 1380, left two daughters, who possessed it in moieties, but the whole ultimately devolved to the descendants of Sir Robert de Swillington, who married the elder; it afterwards passed to Ralph, Lord Cromwell, who, in the reign of Henry VI., sold the reversion to John Talbot, second Earl of Shrewsbury. On the death of Gilbert, Earl of Shrewsbury, in 1616, it was divided between his daughters and co-heiresses, the Countesses of Kent, Pembroke, and Arundel, since which time it has been sold to various persons.

CRICH, is a large well-built village and township, pleasantly situated at the cross of the roads from Alfreton to Cromford and Wirksworth; 5 miles W. by S. from Alfreton, 4 miles S.E. from Cromford, and 5 miles N. from Belper. It contains 3,367A. 3R. 0P. of land; and in 1851, had 595 houses, and 2,562 inhabitants, of whom 1,286, were males and 1,276 females; rateable value, £4,993 9s. 6d. The land is freehold, and owned by many individuals. The Earl of Thanet, F. Hurt, Esq., S. Travis, Esq., and others, are lords of the manor of the liberty of Crich, for which John Charge, Esq., is the steward of the court leet and court baron, within the manor and liberty of Crich; and holds a court at Crich, for the hearing of complaints and settling disputes relating to the mines, according to the custom of the liberty.—Mr. Luke Alsop is bar-master. The Church, which is dedicated to St. Michael, is a handsome structure, situated on a commanding eminence, has a nave, chancel, and side aisles, with a tower, surmounted by a spire, and five bells. It was built of the rough grey limestone taken from the hill on which it stands. In the reign of Stephen, Robert Ferrers, Earl of Derby, gave the Church of Crich to the Abbey at Darley, and it is supposed that it was about this time that a church was first erected there. In the forty-second year of the reign of Edward III. a chantry was founded in the church. In the north aisle of the church is a pointed arch, beneath which, is a recumbent effigy of a man in armour, resting his feet upon a dog, neither arms, inscription, nor date are visible, but it is, with some reason, supposed to be in memory of Sir William de Wakebridge, who died in the reign of Edward III. On the right-hand side of the chancel, is an altar tomb, with the effigy of a man resting his feet upon a dog. On the ledge of the slab is a latin inscription to Godfrey Beresford, Esq., son and heir to Adam Beresford, Esq., of Bentley, and servant to George, Earl of Shrewsbury. He died 29th of November, 1513. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's books at £6 10s. 10d., now £170; has been augmented with £200 benefactions, £200 Queen Anne's bounty, and £600 parliamentary grant. The patrons are Edward Radford, Esq., John Garton, Esq., Rev. M. Holmes, Henry A. Norman, and Wm. Wathey, Esqs., and Sir Henry Wilmot, Bart., impropriator, Rev. Wm. Chawner, B.A., is the incumbent. The vicarage is a neat modern residence, a little W. of the church, it was enlarged in 1856. The General Baptists, the Wesleyans, the Wesleyan Reformers, and Primitive Methodists, have each places of worship here. The Primitive Methodists have also chapels at Crich Carr, and Fritchley; the Independents have also a chapel at the latter place. The National school is a handsome stone building, erected in 1848, at a cost of about £600, raised by voluntary subscriptions, aided by a grant from Government of £250; it will accommodate about 300, the average attendance is about 50. There are several lodges of Odd-Fellows, Foresters, and Friendly societies, in the parish This was formerly a market town, and the ancient market cross still stands, opposite the Jovial Dutchman Inn. Fairs are held on the 11th October and 5th of April, and the feast is also held on the former date. The inhabitants are supported chiefly by the lead mines, lead works, lime works, limestone quarries, and in the manufacture of hosiery, here being about 100 frames. CRICH CLIFF mines, known by the names of Bacchus' Pipe, Glory, Pearson's Venture, and Wakebridge, with several others in the neighbourhood, have been the most productive of any in the county for the last 40 years. One-ninth of the produce is given to the lords of the manor; W. E. Nightingale, Esq. receives one-sixth of the ore raised at Wakebridge mine, as lessor, Messrs. Wass and Co. are the lessees; this mine is at present standing, Crich has long been noted for its mines, for we find, in the time of the Norman survey, Leuric and Levenot held a lead mine at Crice. Calamine is got at Bonsall, and in the neighbourhood, but spelter having superseded it, the mines are very little worked. The Ridgway Sough, from Crich Cliff to the river Derwent, clears the Crich Cliff mines. Meerbrook Sough, 1 mile N. from Whatstandwell bridge, runs in a westerly direction, towards the rich mining field near the town of Wirksworth. It was commenced in 1772, by a company of adventurers, and completed in 1848, at a cost of about £80,000, and is now in the hands of 400 shareholders of £50 each, which are now at a premium of £30 per share, it is about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles in length, the average height 6 feet, and 42 feet wide; its object is to draw the water from the lead mines. The proprietors are incorporated under an Act of Parliament, passed in June, 1841, which enables them to raise tolls for the maintenance thereof, and by which they are enabled to take any portion of the ore not exceeding one-sixth. The shaft draws up the material from a depth of upwards of 200 yards, by a steam engine. There are smelting furnaces at Bonsall, Lea, and Meerbrook; lead works, with red lead manufactories and rolling mills at Lea; and lead works at Bonsall. Crich Cliff, 1 mile N. of the village, is one of the highest hills in the county, with the exception of the High Peak. On its summit is an Observatory, called Crich Stand, which was erected in 1788, and rebuilt of stone in 1851, by the owner, Francis Hurt, Esq., at a cost of £210. It is seen from several points of the surrounding country, being 955 feet above the level of the sea, according to the ordnance survey, and from the top the eye is gratified with a very extensive prospect, commanding views extending over several counties; and it is said, into Wales. It is at all times free of access to the public. The village of Crich has the appearance of antiquity, and is supposed to have been known to the Romans. Some years ago, a collection of ancient coins were found in the neighbourhood, and by the inscription, it appeared that some of them were coined in the reigns of Domitian, Adrian, and Dioclesian. Crich lime is noted for its superior quality; the Clay Cross Company have extensive works near the Ambergate railway station; the stone is brought from Crich cliff, on two inclined planes, (worked by wire ropes,) one of which is supposed to be the steepest in the kingdom, it is 500 yards long, and rises about 1 in 10; waggons are let down by a break attached to a drum. The other, 600 yards long, rises 1 in 36, worked by a wire rope round an horizontal shield; about one mile of railroad; and another inclined plane, longer than either of the above. 120 men are employed, aided by a steam engine of twelve horses power. The sale of lime and stone is from 50,000 to 60,000 tons annually, and is yearly increasing. Here are 20 kilns,, between 30 and 40 feet in depth, and 11 feet in diameter, with cones 20 feet high; Chas. Binns, Esq., of Clay Cross, is the principal agent, Mr. Thomas Summerside, resident agent and manager, Mr. Robert Boag, lime burner and contractor, and Mr. James Jeffries is the contractor of the quarries. The Butterley Iron Company have also extensive lime works at Bull Bridge, where about 8000 tons of lime and 30,000 tons of stone are sold yearly. About 50 men are employed at these works, Mr. Peter Wm. Bowne is the resident manager. Messrs. Curtis and Harvey's gunpowder magazine is also situated at Bull Bridge.

Bull Bridge, 1¼ mile S.E., a small village, where there is a bridge over the Cromford canal; The North Midland railway passes close on the east. Coddington, ¾ mile W., which contains two farms. Crich Carr, 1 mile W., a small scattered village. Crich Chase, 2 miles S. where there are 3 farms. Fritchley, a small pleasant village, on a branch of the Cromford canal, 1 mile S., where there is an extensive bobbin manufactory, and general wood-turning establishment, belonging to Mr. Jph. Wightman, who employs about 40 men and boys. Many of the inhabitants are employed in framework knitting. Hat Factory, ¾ mile S., contains a few scattered houses. Here the Butterley Iron Company have extensive limestone quarries. Holloway, Nether, and Upper, 2 miles N.W. from Crich, but principally in the liberty of Lea, consists of 2 farm houses. Park Head, 1 mile S.E., a district containing five scattered farms. Plaistors Green, a few scattered houses, 1 mile N. Wakebridge Mines, 1 mile N.N.W. Whatstandwell Bridge, 1¼ miles W., sometimes called Hotstandwell, a small village, on the Cromford canal, situated in a delightful vale, with lofty eminences, rising from the Derwent, well clothed with trees, and noted for the Bull's Head Hotel, 3 miles S.E. from Matlock Bath. Here is also a small station, on the Matlock and Rowsley branch of the Midland railway, there are 5 passenger, and 2 goods trains each way daily. Wheatcroft, a small village, 2 miles N.W.

Charities.—John Kirkland, in the year 1562, left 40s. per annum, payable out of a farm called Wheat Croft, to the poor of this parish for ever. This farm is the property of Mr. James Swettenham, of Wood, and his tenant pays the rent charge. The amount is distributed on St. Thomas' day.

Rent Charge.—It is recorded on a tablet in the church, that some person unknown, gave 5s. a-year out of Sheldon Pingle, which sum is paid by the owner, on the 21st of December, one moiety thereof to the vicar, and the other the parish officers, who distribute it on St. Thomas' day. Two other rent charges are mentioned, but they have been lost before the memory of any person now living.

Francis Gisborne charity, (see Bradley.)—The yearly sum of £5 10s. is received by the vicar in respect of this, and laid out in the purchase of flannel and cloth, and given to the poor.

Ambergate, a small hamlet on the Midland railway, at the junction where the Matlock and Rowsley and Matlock branch joins the main line, is situated in the township of Heage, and parish of Duffield, 1½ miles S.E. from Crich, and 3½ miles N. from Belper, and consists principally of the railway station, with the offices and out-buildiugs attached thereto, a handsome stone building, with convenient waiting rooms, &c., from whence trains are despatched north and south several times daily, contiguous to which, is the Thatched House Tavern, a first-rate commercial, posting, and boarding hotel, fitted up with every convenience, and where post-horses, flys, &c., are in readiness at five minutes notice; Mr. Benjamin Broadhurst, proprietor. Here is also an extensive steam saw mill, built in 1856, by Mr. John Linacre.

Tansley, a township, chapelry, and scattered village in the parish of Crich and in the Wirksworth Hundred, 1½ miles E. from Matlock, 5 miles N.N.E. from Crich, in the Bakewell Union, contains 1155 acres of land, 126 houses, and 593 inhabitants, of whom 306 were males, and 287 females; rateable value, £1500. A cotton mill was erected here at an early period, and here is now an extensive smallware manufactory, and one for candlewicks. This place is noted for the extensive and thriving nursery of Mr. Joseph Smith, and for a superior grit stone for building purposes. The Duke of Portland is lord of the manor. Heathcote Unwin, Esq., Edward Radford, Esq., and the Rev John Woolley, are owners; a district Church was erected here in 1839, and opened for divine worship in 1840. It is a neat stone structure with a tower and pinnacles, contains 300 sittings, of which 120 are free. The living, a perpetual curacy, of the value of £100, having been endowed, and received a parliamentary grant. The vicar of Crich is the patron; and the Rev. Melville Holmes is the incumbent. A handsome parsonage was erected in 1847 near the church, at a cost of £1,000, of which sum £500 was furnished by the commissioners for building parsonage houses, and £200 by the society for the same purpose, the remainder was raised by subscription. A handsome Gothic National school, with a house for the master, was erected (through the exertions of E. Radford, Esq.) by the incorporated society for establishing schools, and opened in 1843; since which an Infant school has been added. The money for their erection was raised by subscription, aided by grants from government of £121. It is principally supported by the children, who pay from 2d. to 8d. per week, of whom about 85 attend, with occasionally small grants from the society. The Wesleyan Methodists have a neat chapel here. The Manor of Tansley, which belonged to the Knights Templars, and afterwards to the Hospitallers, is supposed to have been granted to George or Francis Earl of Shrewsbury. William Earl of Pembroke, who married one of the co-heiresses of Gilbert, Earl of Shrewsbury, sold to William Earl of Newcastle, from whom it passed, with Bolsover and other estates, to his Grace the Duke of Portland.

WESSINGTON or WASHINGTON, is a township and small village, scattered round an open green, pleasantly situated on high ground, in the parish of Crich, and in the Scarsdale Hundred, 3 miles N. from Crich, 3½ miles N.W. by W. from Alfreton. It contains 1,250 acres of land, 111 houses, and 515 inhabitants, of whom 269 are males, and 246 females; rateable value, £1400. Mr. George Wragg, of Road Nook Hall, which is situated in the liberty of Brackenfield, is the lord of the manor, (freehold) and principal owner. Miss Hopkinson is also a considerable owner, besides many other small feeholders. The inhabitants are principally employed in framework knitting, there being about 80 frames in the village. The Feast is held on the second Sunday in August. A Sunday school was erected by subscription in 1841, which is now licensed as an Episcopal place of worship, and the vicar of Crich officiates in it. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a small chapel here. At the Domesday survey, this manor was held by Levine, under Ralph Fitz Hubert. It was given to the monks at Derley, by Ralph Fitz Odo, and Geoffrey de Constantine. King Henry VIII. granted it in 1544 to Thomas Babington, Esq. In 1611, Gilbert Earl of Shrewsbury was lord of the manor; in 1657 it was sold by the Earl of Arundel, grandson of one of his co-heiresses.

CHARITIES.—Hunter's charity,—(see Horsley).—The yearly sum of £1 5s. is received by the township of Wessington, and distributed with 5s. from Rean's charity amongst 15 poor families of the township.

Edward Rean, in 1786, gave to the poor of this township half a house and land vested in Thomas Marsden, producing 5s. a year.

William Hill, in 1772, gave land producing 10s. per annum to widows not receiving parish relief. It is paid in respect of some lands in Wessington, and the amount given according to the donor's intention.

DALE ABBEY, an extra parochial township, chapelry, and picturesque village, seven miles E. by N. from Derby, contains 1760A. 1R. 35P. of land, partly clay, sand and marl; rateable value, £1625 4s., and in 1851, had 90 houses, and 442 inhabitants, of whom 233 were males, and 209 females. Earl Stanhope is lord of the manor and principal owner, and holds a court leet annually. The other owners are William Drury Lowe, Esq., Thomas Pares, Esq., Hugh Bateman, Esq., and Risley School, 15A. 3R. 20P. The Chapel is an ancient and curious structure, the interior being divided into two parts by a framework screen, with high backed pews and a heavy gallery, extending over three parts of the body. It has a small turret and one bell, and it is said the village inn was anciently under the same roof, and there was a door in the wall leading from the gallery into the house, through which the worshippers were accustomed to steal to refresh themselves. It is in the jurisdiction of the manor and peculiar court of Dale Abbey, of which Earl Stanhope is lord, and appoints the minister. The Rev. John Garton Howard, M.A., is the present minister. A neat marble tablet has been put up in the church bearing the following inscription: "Erected by the Parishioners of Dale Abbey, to the Memory of the Right Hon. Philip Henry, Earl of Stanhope, lord of the manor and lay Bishop of this Church, who died, March 2nd, 1855, aged 73. The village is situated in a valley, having a lofty range of hills on the south, commanding extensive views. The houses are mostly of brick and thatched. In 1845, a large room was erected for the use of the Men's Friendly Sick Club, and which is also used for the Infant School, supported by the Rev. J. G. Howard. The poor have the benefit of the school founded by Rev. John Scargill, at West Hallam, and of that at Risley, by Mrs. Elizabeth Grey, eight children being allowed to go free. Here was an Abbey of the Premonstratention Order, dedicated to the Virgin Mary. The history of its foundation, as related by Maud-de-Salicosamara, left in manuscript by a monk who belonged to it, is as follows; A man, Cornelius by name, who once lived in St. Mary's, Derby, a baker by trade, was a very devout man and gave much alms to the poor, having had a vision from the blessed Virgin to lead a solitary life in the service of her Son and herself, he left all his possessions and his native place without acquainting any one, and took up his abode at Depedale, where he had been some time, when about 1135, Sir Ralph, son of Lord Geremund, being out hunting, found his course intercepted by a morass; surveying this wild and secluded scene more closely, he at length perceived a column of smoke rising above the trees; making his way with difficulty through the plants and shrubs, he reached the place and found a rudely constructed hut, before it was a fire of sticks, and by it sat an aged man with unshorn hair and untrimmed beard. After hearing his tale, Sir Ralph procceded to Derby, where it was verified, and the next day he returned with garments and food to the Hermit of the Dale—brought him tools and endowed him with the toll of his mill at Burgh, (Borrowash,) and encouraged him to fulfill the Virgin's pleasure. The recluse immediately commenced scooping out a habitation in the rock, which after several years labour was completed, as also an oratory at the foot of the hill for his patroness the Virgin. After living in this solitude for many years, he was found by a pilgrim attracted by the fame of his sanctity, stretched upon the floor of his cell apparently asleep, but dead. At his death, Serlo-de-Grendon, a knight of eminent valour and great wealth, who married the daughter of the above Sir Ralph, gave the place of Depedale to his godmother, who had a son, whom she educated for holy orders, that he might perform divine service in her chapel there; but a short time afterwards, and with her consent, he invited canons from Calke, and gave them Depedale. These canons having been removed for their misconduct, some white canons of the Premonstratention Order repaired thither, and to them the park of Stanley was given, when the monastery obtained the name of "De Parco Stanley," by which it was at that period generally known. There is a legend that the king gave the canons as much land as they could encircle in a day, with a plough drawn by deer; and this story is represented on the windows of Morley church, which are supposed to have been removed from Dale Abbey. These canons, nevertheless, not having sufficient means for their support, returned to Tupholm, whence they came. William-de-Grendon, Lord of Ockbrook, supplied their place with canons from Welbeck, but they also soon deserted the new monastery, for want of sufficient sustenance. Geoffrey-de-Salicosa Mare, having procured an establishment of nine canons, from Newhouse, in Lincolnshire, they were admitted into the Premonstratention Order, and settled at the new monastery in Stanley park, and by their zeal and diligence a Noble Abbey reared its head, at a short distance from the humble structure of the first devotee, which for wealth and magnificence was among the first in the kingdom, and was endowed with the advowson of the churches of Heanor, Ilkestone, and Kirk Hallam. The Church was of stately dimensions, with several large windows on each side, and one large chancel window at the east end, the noble arch of which is still standing in a field on Mr. Malin's farm. It is 16 feet wide, and 40 feet from the ground to the keystone, and is in a good state of preservation, some expense having been incurred by the late Lord Stanhope, to prevent its falling into decay. Dale Abbey was founded in 1204, and surrendered to the crown, 1589, when their revenues were estimated at £144 4s. per annum. Willis says that it was surrendered by John Staunton, the last abbot, and 16 monks; but it appears by the commissioners' accounts of that date, that John Bede, the last abbot, had a pension of £26 13s. 4d., and 16 monks various smaller pensions. The whole number of abbots was 18, and the period of their government 312 years, 6 weeks, 1 day. Francis Pole, Esq., who then took possession of the site and demesnes, as lessee, probably under the crown, purchased the altar, crucifix, organ, gravestones, &c., and all the live and dead stock. In the year 1550, the abbey clock was sold for 6s.; the iron, glass, paving and grave stones, for £18. There were six bells weighing 47 cwt. In 1544, he had a grant of the abbey in fee, and the same year conveyed it to Sir John Port, one of the justices of the King's bench. Dorothy, one of his son's co-heiresses, brought it to her husband, Sir George Hastings. Sir Henry Willoughby, of Risley, purchased the estate of the representative of Sir George Hastings, who was afterwards Earl of Huntingdon, and died in 1605. Sir Henry Willoughby having left three daughters, co-heiresses, one of whom left no issue, the manor of Dale and the abbey demesnes were held in moieties by the noble family of Grey, and that of Dewes, into which the other co-heiresses married. One moiety of the estate was purchased, 1716, by the trustees of Philip, then late Earl of Chesterfield, of Sir Symon Dewes, for his son Alexander, father of the first Earl of Stanhope. The other moiety was purchased, 1778, of the Earl of Stamford. The hermitage, or cave, cut in the rock by the poor baker, is a short distance S. from the church. It is a large excavation in the rock, having a rude doorway, and two windows, which latter are of modern formation. In May, 1845, two ovens or kilns were discovered, on the premises of Mr. William Hollingworth. They were used for the baking of tesselated bricks, several of which were found in them, who has also in his possession an antique sacramental cup of singular construction. The Methodists have a chapel, which was nearly destroyed by fire in 1844, but has been rebuilt. The Feast is on the Sunday before 5th November, or that day, if Sunday.

CHARITIES.—The poor of Dale Abbey are entitled to partake of the benefit of Smedley's alms' houses, Ilkeston; of the school at West Hallam, founded by the Rev. John Scargill; and the school at Risley, founded by Elizabeth Gray; for particulars, see places named.

DENBY, is a township, extensive parish, and large scattered village, the houses of which are mostly thatched, 3 miles S.E. by E. from Belper, and 4 miles N.E. from Duffield, contains 2355A. 3R. 15P. of clay land; rateable value £2569 15s.; and in 1851 had 240 houses and 1208 inhabitants, of whom 656 were males and 552 females. The principal owners are Wm. Drury Lowe, Esq., and Strelley's Trustees, the former is lord of the manor, and patron of the living, a perpetual curacy, valued in the King's book at £9, now £118, has been endowed with £200 benefactions, £200 Queen Anne's bounty, and £1200 parliamentary grant. The Rev. Jas. Mockler, M.A., is the incumbent, and has 28A. 3R. of glebe. The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, an ancient stone edifice in the early English style, has nave, chancel, side aisles, and tower, with 4 bells, surmounted by a spire. In 1838, the Church was enlarged, by the the erection of a gallery on the north side, by which 160 additional free sittings were obtained, and on the 16th Dec., 1852, the spire was struck with lightning, the restoration of which cost £159 15s. 9d. raised by subscriptions and rate. In 1854, an organ was put up by subscription, at a cost of £60. In the chancel are several neat marble tablets to the Lowe family, one of which is to the memory of Anne, grandmother of Wm. D. Lowe, of Locko Park, Esq., who died the 13th Nov., 1848, aged 104 years. Also an ancient monument richly gilt, on which are two full length figures in the attitude of prayer, surmounted by the family arms, supposed to belong to the Zouch family. Sir Henry Wilmot, Bart., is impropriator, and the tithe has been commuted for £283. The Methodists have a neat stone chapel, erected in 1841, at a cost of £700, which will seat 400 persons. Denby is noted for its coal, considered generally not to be surpassed in the kingdom, and superior malting cokes are made. The lord of the manor works the collieries, in which several hundred persons are employed, aided by steam engines of 150 horses' power. In one part the coals are conveyed above 400 yards under ground, from the workings to the shaft. There are four miles of gangway, including that to Belper wharf, besides using $1\frac{1}{4}$ miles belonging to the Derby canal company. There is a wharf in Denby, besides which several others in the neighbourhood are well supplied. Excellent bricks, tiles, drain pipes, chimney pots, and a superior white brick, solid and hollow, are made on this estate. This parish is also noted for its manufacture of stone bottles, jars, and figured wares of all descriptions near Smithy houses, by Messrs. Joseph Bourne and Son, who have similar works at Codnor Park. From the closeness of the texture of this vitrified clay, there is no need for the pernicious mineral glazes too generally used in the manufacture of such articles. They are warranted not to absorb liquid acids. Fourteen ovens are used to burn the articles manufactured, which are sent to London, and other parts of the kingdom. A Floral and Horticultural Society was established, and their first show held here on the 22nd July, 1856, under the presidency of the Rev. James Mockler. Mr. W. J. Abel, secretary. The Ripley branch of the Midland Railway runs through the parish, and is anticipated will be of essential benefit to the district, by offering additional facilities for the disposal of large quantities of coal and ironstone, with which it abounds. It was opened for passengers Sept. 1st, 1856, and the station is at Smithy Houses; there are three passenger trains each way daily.

Denby appears to have been a place of some importance about the commencement of the 14th century, as Richard Lord Grey of Codnor in the eighth year of Edward III. obtained a charter for a market at Denby, with a fair on the eve and nativity of the blessed Virgin, these are obsolete, a feast is kept on the first Sunday in September. It disputes with Derby the honour of giving birth to that great and celebrated astronomer, John Flamstead. He was born in 1646, and died at Greenwich in 1707.—(See Eminent men.) Flamstead House is about 1 mile S.E. from the village. Mr. Joseph Shaw's residence, of Openwoodgate, is a very ancient building, and can be traced to the time of Queen Anne, and is probably much older.

Smithy Houses, on the Derby and Alfreton road, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles S.W. from Denby, where Mr. Lowe's offices are, in which is shewn a small portion of a piece of coal got in 1790, and taken by Thomas Noon, of Horsley, and put into his cellar, and of which he desired a fire might be made on the day of his funeral, which happened in 1843, and the coal then burned as cheerfully as though it had been fresh got. The old man had been in the employ of Mr. Lowe and his ancestors upwards of 70 years, with but few intermissions. A charity school was founded here by Mrs. Jane Massey, about the year 1739, with lands now producing £47 10s. per annum. The master has a house and garden.

Charities.—Jane Massie, by will, in 1728, left certain sums of money for procuring Queen Anne's bounty for the parish church of Denby, and the residue towards erecting and endowing a free school in Denby. In 1838, land consisting of 37a. 0r. 1p. were conveyed to trustees for the use of the school, let for £47 10s. The school premises consist of a dwelling-house and garden occupied by the schoolmaster, who has 30 guineas a year, and an allowance of £6 for providing a person to teach the girls to knit and sew. 36 children of the parish are taught reading and writing free, and the girls knitting and sewing. Books are provided for the scholars.

Mary Lowe, as stated by the parliamentary returns of 1786, gave to poor widows £1 per annum, arising from land then vested in Henry Greatorex, &c. William Drury Lowe, Esq., who purchased the estate about 1796, states his grandmother was one of the co-heiresses of the said estate, but that she sold her third part of it, and that he never heard of any charge for charitable purposes upon this estate.

Francis Gisborne's charity,—(See Bradley.) The yearly sum £5 10s. received by the incumbent is expended in cloth, which he distributes to the poor.

EGGINTON a pleasant but straggling village and parish, situated on a stream which flows into the river Dove, 4½ miles N.N.E. from Burton-on-Trent, and 7½ miles W.S.W. from Derby, contains 2,293A. 2R. 24P. of land, partly light and partly good rich soil, and in 1851 had 74 houses, and 374 inhabitants, of whom 187 were males, and 187 females; rateable value, £5150 8s. Sir Henry Flower Every, Bart., is lord of the manor, and owns nearly all the parish; Repton and Etwall corporation, Mr. Richard Bennett Godwin, Sir Richard Burdett, Bart., and A. N. E. Moseley, Esq., are also owners. The Trent and Mersey canal occupies 21A. 2R. 30P., and the Birmingham railway 12A., with a few other small freeholders. The river Dove passes through this parish, and is crossed by a stone bridge of four arches, called Monks Bridge, on the Derby and Burton-upon-Trent road, which is also the Ikenield Street, or Roman road, soon after which at the south extremity of the parish, the Dove has its confluence with the Trent. The Trent and Mersey canal, which was completed in 1770, crosses the Dove near Monks Bridge, by an aqueduct of 12 arches, about half-mile E., from which the Birmingham railway also crosses the Dove, by a bridge constructed of wood, with two piers to break the force of the water. The Church, dedicated to St. Wilfred, is an ancient Gothic edifice, with nave, chancel, side aisles, and handsome low tower, in which there are three bells. In the church are several monuments to the Every family, and several neat tablets to other persons. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £8 2s. 8½d., now ££450. The patrons are, Sir Henry Flower Every, Bart., E. S. C. Pole, and Joseph Leigh, Esqs.; the former has two presentations, and the latter, two conjointly. The Rev. Jno. Leigh, M.A. is the incumbent. The Hall, 4½ miles N.N.E. from Burton-upon-Trent, and 7 miles W.S.W. from Derby, is a neat brick mansion, with a stone balustrade round the parapet, and a circular centre with a dome, lighted from the top; it is pleasantly situated on the banks of the Dove, and has extensive pleasure grounds and plantations, which occupy about 10A., the lawn about 30A., the gardens 2A., and on the south front of the house is a fine fish pond covering about 10A. which runs into the river Dove. It is the seat and property of Sir Henry Flower Every, Bart., who succeeded his grandfather, the late Sir Henry Every, who died 28th December, 1855, and was interred in the church on the 11th January, 1856: this family came originally from Somersetshire; and Sir Simon, who was created a Baronet by King Charles I., in the 17th year of his reign, was born at Chard, in that county. He became possessed of the estates at Egginton by marrying the eldest daughter and co-heiress of Sir Henry Leigh, of Egginton, Knt. The estate continued in the possession of his lineal descendants till about 1760, when the Rev. John Every, the last direct heir, dying without issue, the property was claimed by Mr. Edward Every, an attorney, of Derby, a descendant of a son of the first possessor, who lived at Burton, and in his family the estate at present continues. In the year 1736, a fire consumed the greatest part of the house in which Sir S. Every then lived, and the present mansion was soon afterwards erected in its stead. The manor of Eghintune, which had belonged to Tochi, was at the Domesday survey held by Azelin, under Geoffrey Alselin: and here was a priest and a church and one mill of five shillings and six farmers, paying fourteen shillings and fourpence. William Fitz Ralph, founder of Dale Abbey, gave it to his nephew William de Grendon, in exchange for Stanley near Dale Abbey; from him it passed by marriage to Sir John Chandos, upon the death of whose descendant, Sir John Chandos, the celebrated warrior, in 1370, a moiety of the manor passed to his niece Elizabeth, daugther of Sir John Lawton, and wife of Sir Peter De La Pole, who was one of the knights of the shire in 1400. Ermetrude, the other co-heiress, married Sir William de Stafford, whose son Robert left five daughters co-heiresses; in consequence this moiety became divided into several shares. These having been re-united by purchase, were vested in the family of Lathbury. A co-heiress brought this moiety to Robert Leigh. On the death of Sir Henry Leigh, of Egginton, in the reign of James I., this estate passed to his daughter and co-heiress Anne, married to Simon Every, Esq., of Chard, in Somersetshire, who was created a Baronet in 1641. The manor of Hargate, formerly called Heath House, is supposed to be a portion not granted by William Fitz Ralph to his nephew; it was subsequently purchased by the Leighs. In March, 1644, a battle was fought on Egginton Heath, between the Royalists and Sir John Gell's forces, commanded by Major Molanus and Captain Rodes. The royalists are said to have been defeated, and driven across the Trent. It is said that Walcheline de Ferraries, and Margaret Peverel, his wife, formerly lived at Egginton. The North Staffordshire railway has a small station here, situated about three-quarters of a mile from the village on the Derby road; it is a branch from Marston junction to Willington, opened in June 1849. There are four passenger trains each way daily, except Sunday, when there are only two.

CHARITIES.—Thomas Bugbury, in 1723, devised to Thos. Middleton and his heirs, a close in Blackfordby, in the county of Leicester, called Smathorne, and all his lands there, in trust that he should lay out 52s. yearly, viz.:—1s. every Sunday in 12 penny loaves to be put upon a shelf in the parish church of Egginton, to be distributed by the parish clerk to 12 persons as the trustees should appoint, that should come to church and receive them, and to pay to the clerk 6s. yearly for his trouble, and that a stone should be set up to record the charity, &c. The Hon. M. Shirley, the owner of the estate, remits the money to Mr. Wm. Smith, of Tutbury, who transmits it to the churchwardens of the parish, and it is distributed as above.

William Newton, in 1820, being desirous to make a provision for the poor of his native town, transferred to Ashton Nicholas Moseley, and Thomas Thornewill, Esqrs., and their heirs, &c., £2,000 three per cent. bank annuities, upon trust to receive the dividends and apply the same amongst all the poor, &c., as they should consider proper objects, &c. The dividends, £60 per annum, are received half-yearly, and distributed by the trustees shortly afterwards, in sums varying from £1 to £4, preference being given to such as are aged. A sum of £10 10s. has been laid out in erecting a monumental tablet in the church to the memory of the donor.

Egginton and Rolleston Church Land, with some allotments at the enclosure, consists of 3A. 2R. 26P., let for 69s. per annum, which is divided equally between this parish and that of Rolleston, in Staffordshire.

Parish Lands.—Beside the above, there was a farm containing 47A. 1R. 7P., which lands were allotted upon the Egginton enclosure, about 1791, in lieu of lands dispersed in the common fields; the rent of which was always carried to the general account of the poor. About 1806, the farm was sold to the late Sir Henry Every, Bart., for £1,431 15s.; of which, £1,000 was lent on mortgage, and the residue, with a small addition made by the parish, on the whole £443 1s. 3d., was applied in building a school room and eight cottages for the poor, on 1A. 3R. 20P. of land belonging the parish. The interest is carried to the overseers' account.

ELVASTON is a small village and parish, pleasantly situated 4 miles S.E. by E. from Derby. It contains the hamlets of Ambaston and Thulston, and has 2,303A. 0R. 10P, of land. In 1851 there were 108 houses, and 498 souls, of whom 244 were males and 254 females; rateable value, £3,678 4s. 8d. The Earl of Harrington is lord of the manor and owner of the whole parish, except 60 acres and a small portion of glebe. Near the river it is a rich alluvial soil, and the other sandy, on a sub-stratum of strong gravel. The Church, which is nearly covered with ivy, is dedicated to St. Bartholomew, and is a large ancient structure, with nave, chancel, south aisle, lofty pinnacled tower, and four bells; a beautiful carved oak screen separates the chancel from the nave. In 1847 it underwent considerable restoration, the tower was gutted, two bells were re-cast, and the roof of one aisle had the iron bosses bolted and screwed. The east side of the tower, which is about 100 feet high, is supported by two buttresses, built from projections above, and clear from the roof of the church, The churchyard was beautifully enclosed with lofty lime trees, looked on as the poor man's monument—oft watched with tearful eye—as marking the resting place of some dear departed one, but most of which the present Earl, without authority, cut down and sold. In the church are several monuments, one to Sir John Stanhope, who died in 1610, with his effigy in armour, and that of his lady, with another to the same family; also, one to Charles, third Earl of Harrington, representing Grief, &c., which was erected by his children, in 1833; he died the 11th of September,

1829, aged 76 years. In the west end of the interior of the tower is a handsome stained glass window, by Warrington, which was placed there to the memory of Charles, fourth Earl of Harrington, by his widow, in 1851. The subjects in the three lights are, the good Samaritan, feeding the hungry, and clothing the naked. There is also a handsome carved oak screen on the east side, erected as a voluntary memorial to the same Earl. Here also is a monument restored by Nicholas Stone, in 1741, representing a reclining figure in armour, erected to the memory of Sir Charles Stanhope. In the chancel is a reclining figure, by Westmacott, erected by his mother, to Algernon Russell Stanhope, son of the present Earl. There is also a stained window by the present Earl, placed there to the memory of his mother, it is by Ballie, and represents Christ blessing little children. The living is a discharged vicarage, value £15 4s. 0d. from the time of Henry VIII., with a few small additional payments till 1852, when, after long litigation, commenced amicably, between the present incumbent and the late Earl, it was finally settled by compromise, the present Earl paying a rent charge of £235 17s. 5d., instead of £15 4s. 0d., and the other small tithe owners raised in proportion. The present value of the living is £241 17s. 5d. (rent charge) with glebe land amounting to £115, and other small payments amounting to £12 per annum; the Earl of Harrington is patron, and the Rev. Frederick Nathaniel Highmore, M.A. incumbent. In 1844 the old Vicarage was exchanged for Thulston Grange, a handsome brick residence, 5 miles S.E. from Derby, with about 3½ acres of land. The church had been to given the priory of Shelford in Nottinghamshire, by Ralph Hanselyn its founder; was granted to Michael Stanhope in 1539. The manors of Avoldestun, Emboldstun, and Torelfestune, which belonged, in the reign of Edward the Confessor, to Toschi, were held at Domesday survey by Geoffrey Alselin, whose descendent, Hanselyn, brought the manor to the Bardolfs. It afterwards belonged to the family of Blount, Lord Mountjoy, and at a later period to the Stanhopes. It was one of the seats of Sir John Stanhope. Thomas Stanhope, Esq., of Elvaston, grandson of Sir John John Stanhope the younger, had three sons; Willliam, the youngest, who succeeded to the estate on the death of his elder brothers, having been employed in many important negociations with foreign courts, was created a peer in 1729, by the title of Baron Harrington. He afterwards twice filled the office of one of the principal secretaries of state, and was in 1742, created Viscount Petersham and Earl of Harrington. A neat National school with a house for the master, was erected of brick in 1852, by the Earl of Harrington, it will accommodate about 60, and the average attendance is 50. The feast is the nearest Sunday to St. Bartholomew. Elvaston Castle is a large Gothic mansion, pleasantly situated in a well-wooded park of about 140 acres, the seat of the Earl of Harrington, who succeeded his brother on the 3rd of March, 1851. The late Earl greatly enlarged and beautified the grounds, by the addition of plantations and shrubberies, in which neat lodges in the Chinese style were erected for the domestics. On the East is an avenue of stately elms, about 1 mile in length, through which may be seen the Gotham hills. At the southern entrance from the park to the shrubberies, are the celebrated golden gates which originally belonged to Napoleon Bonaparte, and occupied a station near the royal palace at Paris. They were purchased by the late Earl, and were set up here in 1819. They are of wrought iron very ornamentally decorated with scroll work, which with the spear-headed points at the top, were richly gilt; on each side are corresponding iron gilt railings, each 48 feet long, terminated by a large pillar of Derbyshire granite spar. On these pillars is the figure of Hercules slaying the lion; he is in two attitudes, parts of these are richly gilt. The railings, supports for the gates, are about 15 feet high, and of Birmingham manufacture. Within the last few years the whole of the gilt work has been covered with blue paint, which has entirely destroyed the original beauty of these gates. In 1643, Elvaston Hall then the seat of Lady Stanhope, was plundered by Sir John Gell's soldiers, who demolished a costly monument newly made for Sir John Stanhope, and committed great outrages in the family vault. Mrs. Hutchinson speaks of this as the act of Sir John Gell himself, which outrage seems to have led to the sigular event of Sir John Gell marrying the widow. Earl

AMBASTON, a hamlet and small pleasant village, which maintains its own roads, and keeps its poor conjointly with Elvaston. It is situated 1 mile E.N.E. from Elvaston, and contains about 850 acres of land, mostly a strong clay marl. The Wesleyan Methodists have a small neat chapel here, erected in 1832. The farm now occupied by Mrs. Sarah Allestree, has been in their family for upwards of 300 years, and that, by Mr. Phillip Whyman, for more than a century. Mr. John Smith's family have been residents here for many generations. Henry, Phillip, and John, sons of the late Samuel Smith were all born at one birth, on the 13th of October, 1807, in the house now occupied by John Felton Hubbard; they are all stout healthy men, with large families, standing about 6 feet each in height, Henry resides at Thulston, Phillip at Draycott, and John in this hamlet, they each keep their birth day trienally. The feast is held the second Sunday after the 12th of Sept.

THULSTON, another hamlet and small village, which maintains its own roads, half a mile S. from Elvaston, contains about 960 acres of good land, partly a clay loam and partly a light sand. It is the largest of the 3 hamlets. Thulston Grange, a handsome brick residence, 5 miles S.E. from Derby, is now the vicarage, and has about 3½ acres of land, and other small payments amounting to £12 per year. It was exchanged in 1844 for the old vicarage and 3 acres of glebe, which stood near the castle, and is now taken down. 51 acres of land situate at Draycott belongs to the vicarage. Mr. John Soar has a loaf of bread in his possession, in good preservation, the date upon it is April 15th, 1450. It was given as a dole at the funeral of one of the Stanhope family. Feast with Elvaston. In 1762 there were 884 acres of open lands inclosed in the manors of Elvaston and Thulston. A Post Office was established here on March 1st, 1856, through the exertions of the present vicar.

CHARITIES.—William Piggin, citizen of London, by will, gave £250 to buy lands, the profits thereof to be yearly distributed amongst the poor of the 3 towns belonging to Elvaston, by the churchwardens and some of his nearest kindred therein inhabiting, and £10 more as a stock, the yearly profits thereof to remain to the disposers thereof, to be spent in a drinking at the distribution, and with the monies there was purchased a house and lands in the parish of Spondon. By the award of Spondon inclosure, 1789, several allotments were made to the trustees, &c., and it was stated the farm house was very dilapidated, and several of the closes at a considerable distance, and that the said premises were not worth more to rent than £60 per annum, but were very advantageously situated for sale, which, with the consent of the parishioners at a vestry meeting, was accordingly done, to various purchasers, amounting in the whole to £3,121 12s. 6d. John Glover, in consideration of £1,350, by virtue of a power reserved to him by indentures of lease and release, dated 13th and 14th May, 1814, and an indenture of feoffment, dated 5th September, 1821, conveyed to Lord Petersham and others, and their heirs, a farm house, &c. in Cossington, in the county of Liecester, and 14 closes thereto adjoining, and containing by survey 89A. 2R. 13P. upon trust, &c. John Glover has held the same as tenant since the sale, at the rent of £90 per annum, and with Wilcox and Osborne's charity, are carried to one account, and the application is there stated. A brass plate was put up in the church, with an inscription stating the particulars of the sale and purchase above mentioned, at a cost of £6 8s. 10d. which, with law charges for deeds, and building a new barn, amounted in the whole to £251 4s. 3d.

Wilcox Charity.—(See St. Peter's, Derby.)—The parish of Elvaston is entitled to one fourth part of the charity, which produces in the whole £47 per annum.

Jacob Osborne, by will, 1712, devised all his farm and lands, &c. in Ashton-on-Trent, to his brothers and executors, and their heirs, that they should yearly dispose of the rents, &c. amongst so many poor persons inhabiting in Elvaston, and in such manner as they should think fit, &c. The premises consist of two meadows, called the Two Gates, and the Acres, containing 14A., and a pasture, called Moor Close, containing 4A., and are let at the yearly rent of £37, carried to one fund with the above charities, and after the payment of expenses incurred on account of the two farms, &c., a distribution is made amongst the poor of the parish, as follows:—Every month from October to May, the overseers make a distribution not exceeding £10 in amount, in sums varying from 1s. to 10s. amongst the poor. By this distribution, many are relieved who would otherwise apply for parish relief, and there are also many who receive an addition to their parochial relief.

HALLAM (WEST) a parish and well built village, 7 miles N.E. by N. from Derby, contains 1334A. 0R. 36P. of land, principally a brown loam, resting on a clay subsoil, and in 1851, had 105 houses, and 637 inhabitants, of whom 346 were males, and 291 females; rateable value, £2,918 16s. 5d. Francis Newdigate, Esq., of Blackheath, Kent, is lord of the manor, patron of the church, and sole owner, except the glebe, 51A. 2R. 32P. The Church, dedicated to St. Wilfred, is an ancient stone edifice, with nave, chancel, side aisles, tower, and three bells. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £8, now £300. The tithes were commuted in 1840, for £256 10s. 8d. The Rev. Charles John Newdigate, M.A., incumbent. The church has recently undergone extensive restorations and repairs, and is now a very handsome edifice. This work has been carried out at an expense of nearly £1,000, under the direction of Mr. G. G. Place, architect, Nottingham. Previous to the restoration, the edifice contained high backed unpainted pews, flat ceilings, and other incongruities. These have been entirely removed, and the nave and aisles are now fitted throughout with open seats of English oak, and oak stalls have also been erected in the chancel, which is divided from the vestry by an ornamental screen. The sacrarium has been laid down in beautiful encaustic tiles, and the altar steps are of white alabaster, the material having been found under the floor of the church. The font, which is supposed to have originally formed the base of the village cross, has been completely renovated, and is now placed at the west end of the south aisle. Not the least striking feature of the restoration is the stained glass which has been principally supplied by Messrs. M. and A. O'Connor, London. The east window of the chancel, the gift of the patron, has for its subject the Crucifixion, the tracery being filled with figures of angels with censors in their hands. The first window on the south side of the chancel is the old one restored, and contains small figures of saints under canopies. The next window containing the emblems of the four evangelists, is similar to the general arrangement, and is the work of an amateur. A two-light window on the N. side, contains the shields of the former and present patrons of the church. All the windows of the new south aisle are filled with stained glass, the gift of the parishioners. That at the west end is a memorial to the Rev. John Scargill, who died in 1662, and founded the Free school in the village, which is perpetuated by the following lines on a stone in the chancel:

"He built a school free for twelve children poore,
"Six of this towne, and six of three townes more,
"To whome he gave—besides their learning free,
"Nine-pence a week to each boy paid to bee."

On the north side of the chancel is a handsome marble altar-tomb, with the effigy of a man in plate armour,—Walter Powtrill, Esq., lord of this manor, also of Cassandra, his wife. At each end of the monument, and in two compartments in the front are the figures of three sons and four daughters; round the base of the tomb are ths arms of the Powtrill family. He died September 16th, 1598. There is also an incised altar tomb, having the following inscription:—

"Hic jacet Tomas Powtrell armiger,
"Quondam dominus istius villæ et patronius,
"Istius Ecclesiæ qui obiit 24 die Augusti,
"Anno Domino 1484, cujus anima misereatur Deus."

The rectory is a well built handsome mansion, on an eminence near the church, and commands extensive and beautiful views to the south-east, and in the garden is one of the finest lime trees in the county. In 1832, a good brick school room, 48 feet by 21 feet, was erected; there are 66 children who receive their instruction free, and 9d. per week, viz.:—33 from West Hallam, and 11 each from Stanley, Dale Abbey, and Mapperley. The master has a salary of £60 per annum, with a residence. In 1852, a handsome brick school for girls and infants, with residence for the teacher, was built by the trustees of Scargill's charity, at a cost of £300, out of the surplus funds of that charity, exclusive of the bricks which were given by the lord of the manor; about 80 children attend. The Nutbrook canal passes the east side of the parish, and coals are brought from a colliery in the parish by a tram road to a wharf on its banks. There is also an extensive blue brick and tile manufactory belonging to the lord of the manor, of which George Adamson is foreman. Here is a mineral spring, the water of which is similar in its qualities to Harrogate water. The feast, first Sunday after St. Luke, and in the village are 3 male and 1 female benefit societies.

Charities.—William Hickling, by will gave to his son, Richard Hickling, a cottage in Mapperley, and directed that 20s. a year should be paid to the poor of the parish of West Hallam, on St. Thomas's day. By a deed, 1673, Richard Hickling, in consideration of £50 enfeoffed to Francis Handley and his heirs, a cottage at Mapperley, in the parish of Kirk Hallam, subject to a rent of 5s. 4d., to the lord of the fee, and a payment of 20s. to the poor of West Hallam, upon the feast of St. Thomas the Apostle. The Handley family paid this 20s. annually until 1786, but Mr. Handley refused to pay in 1787. It appears in 1714 that Francis Handley, for the sum of £17 conveyed a close lying in Mapperley for the use of Risley school, to certain persons, except the sum of 20s. yearly, to be paid to the poor of West Hallam. He also, for the consideration aforesaid, granted to the said parties a yearly rent charge of 20s. out of the long close lying at Mapperley, with a power of distress if the same should be unpaid. Various applications have been made to Mr. Handley and the chapelry of Risley for payment, without effect; but it appears to us that this annual sum ought to be paid by them in future, out of the rents of the field.

Margaret Hodges, in 1749, gave to William Handley £20, in trust, to distribute the interest amongst the poor persons in West Hallam or any neighbouring town. It is in the hands of William Hodgkinson, and 12s. interest is paid for it to the rector, and is distributed about Christmas, in sums of 1s. amongst the poor.

William Holbrook, a labouring man of this parish, who died in 1794, by his will directed that the produce of his property should be given to poor widows of the parish, at the discretion of Mr. William Barton. The clear produce of his property amounted to £11, which has remained in Mr. Barton's hands, for which he has paid 11s. per annum, which has been given to 11 poor widows on St. Thomas's day. Mr. Barton states that he is ready to invest that sum on good security.

Francis Gisborne's charity.—(See Bradley.)—The annual sum of £7 5s. received by the rector. is laid out in flannel, given to the poor men and women. The Rev. John Scargill built a school, and endowed it with a sum of £540. This sum was laid out in land at Eastwood, in 1666. The trustees, in 1682, purchased a messuage and lands, for £360, at Greasley, which sum is supposed to have arisen from the residuary bequest in the donor's will. On the enclosure of Eastwood, 1797, 5A. 2R. 23P. of land was awarded to the trustees. Various exchanges and partitions have taken place, by one of which, a close called the Moor Bridge was purchased for £25 10s., and surrendered to the trustees at a court for the manor of Ilkeston. The property now consists of a farm at Eastwood of 48A. 3R. 5P., let for £80 per annum; a messuage and land at Newthorpe, 26A. 2R. 39., at the yearly rent of £44; and a cottage and land at Newthorpe, 2A. 3R. 39P., at a rent of £9. A field at Ilkeston, let for £4 per annum, exclusive of 7s. 6d. paid by the Nutbrook canal company, for a small portion taken for that canal, and from whom a sum of £32 was received as arrears from 1794 to 1826. The school premises consist of a large school room, with a house adjoining for the schoolmaster, built in 1782. In 1797 an addition was made to the school room, at an expense of £109 12s. 9d, and in 1832 it was entirely rebuilt. The annual income is about £169, exclusive of the coal. The schoolmaster's salary was in 1820, fixed at £60, and the scholars then increased to 58, viz.: nineteen of Hallam, and thirteen each from Dale, Stanley, and Mapperley. They have each a pension allowed them of 9d. per week, paid at the end of every half-year. In 1787 this charity was returned to Parliament at only £19 16s. per annum, and the master had originally £10 per annum for teaching twelve children.

Mrs. Ann Powtrell bequeathed to the free school £50, the interest thereof to apprentice one of the poorest scholars of West Hallam. The will being concealed by Mr. James Willoughby till 1699, when it was proved, &c., and Edward Willoughby and his son became bound for the payment of £73 17s. with interest at five per cent. This sum is supposed to have been laid out in the purchase of three acres of copyhold land at Ilkeston, now let for £10 a year. There is also a sum of £250 which is stated to have arisen from the surplus income of this charity, and which was in 1817 lent by the Rev. John Morewood, to Mr. William Parkinson, on mortgage, and still remains on interest at 5 per cent. The premium allowed for such apprentice is £10. It is required that each boy should have been educated in the school six years, and should be a parishioner of West Hallam. The accounts are kept by the Rev. John Morewood, (1825,) in whose hands was a balance of £52 13s. 2d.

Poor's Lands.—Mr. Stansfeld gave £100 to the poor of this parish, which was laid out in land, producing £3 18s. per annum in 1786, situated at Ilkeston, viz.: the Thatch Holme close, 4A. 3R. 30P., let for £10 per annum; the Bardoe flat, now Hovel Nook, 2A. 0R. 1P., let for £4 10s. per annum. There is also an annual sum of 7s. 5d. paid by the proprietors of the Erewash canal, for damage done to one of the fields in making the canal. The rents are received by two of the trustees, and are distributed on the Sunday before Christmas, and the Sunday before Easter, amongst the oldest and most indigent persons of the parish, in sums varying from 2s. 6d. to 8s.

George Thompson, in 1704, gave to the poor of this parish £42, vested in the overseers. It appears by an entry in a book, that £15, in the hands of Robert Richardson, was lost, and that the remaining £27 was in the hands of the parish, at 4½ per cent. interest, but which was discontinued from 1807 to 1815, when it was again paid. The annual sum of £1 4s. 6d. is now paid by the overseer, and distributed on the Sunday before Christmas.

HEANOR, an extensive parish, containing the townships of Heanor and Shipley, which together have 3603A. 0R. 36P. of land; rateable value, £7870 18s. 10d.; and in 1851 had 794 houses, and 4092 inhabitants, of whom 2079 were males, and 2013 females.

HEANOR, a township and large improving village, pleasantly situated on an eminence near the eastern verge of the county, on the Derby and Mansfield road, 9 miles N. E. from Derby, 10 miles N.W. from Nottingham, and 1 mile W. from Langley Mill station; contains 1533A. 2R. 16P. of land; rateable value, £3764 10s. 10d.; and in 1851 had 684 houses, and 3427 inhabitants, of whom 1742 were males, and 1685 females. The boundry of Heanor on the East is the river Erewash, which also divides this county from Nottingham. A market on Wednesday, was formerly held here; an attempt was made to revive it some few years since, but without effect. A fair and a hiring for servants is now held on the third Thursday in November. Some of the houses are very ancient, but the town has been greatly improved by new buildings within a few years. Charles Leigh Hoskins Masters, Esq., is lord of the manor, but the soil, which is rather clayey, is freehold. John Ray, Esq., A. M. Mundy, Esq., Mc Allum and Allen, Mrs. Ann Gregory, Henry Geo. Gregory, Geo. Whysall, Francis T. Howitt, and Joseph Smith, are owners. There was a church here in the Conqueror's time, and from the history of the foundation of Dale Abbey, it seems there was a chapel as well as a church here in the reign of Henry II., and that they belonged to the parish of St. Mary, in the town of Derby. In the 13th year of Edward IV., it was appropriated to the abbey at Dale, from which it was separated in 1473, and a mansion and a croft given to the vicar of the value of 10s., but there is no tithe paid. The Church, dedicated to St. Lawrence, is an ancient stone edifice, with nave, chancel, south aisle, and tower with 5 bells, and a clock. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £9 10s., now £149, and has been augmented with £200 benefaction, £400 Queen Anne's bounty, and £1,800 parliamentay grant. The Crown patron, and the Rev. Richard Whinfield, M.A., incumbent. In the church are several monuments of the Mundy family, and one to Samuel Watson, the celebrated sculptor, who was born at Heanor, where he died on the 26th March, 1715, aged 55 years, and was buried in the chancel of the church. On a very handsome mural monument in statuary marble, with cherubs and the family arms, is inscribed the following lines—

"Watson is gone, whose skilful art display'd
To the very life whatever Nature made;
View but his wondrous works in Chatsworth hall,
Which are so gazed at, and admir'd by all,
You'll say 'tis pity he should hidden lie,
And nothing said to revive his memory.—
My mournful friends, forbear your tears,
For I shall rise when Christ appears."

Also, a very handsome memorial window of stained glass, has been put up in the north aisle, to Mr. James Woolley, of Loscoe, who died in 1855. The subjects are—the Baptism of our Saviour, and the Last Supper. The Vicarage is a neat house near the church. The Wesleyan Methodists have a neat chapel, erected in 1839, at a cost of £900, to seat 600 persons. The Primitive Methodists have a small chapel, built in 1819. The Friends, also, have a meeting-house, erected in 1834; and the General Baptists a small chapel, erected in 1849, a plain brick building. A National school, with residence for the teacher, was erected in 1848, at a cost of £600, raised by subscriptions and a grant of £220 from the National society. Average attendance, boys and girls, 60; infants, 80.

Artizan and Mechanics' Library, established in 1842, contains about 670 vols, and is supplied with the usual periodicals. A. M. Mundy, Esq., honorary member, and 25 other members, who pay an entrance fee of 4s. each, and a subscription of 1s. per quarter. Mr. Francis T. Howitt, president; and Mr. Geo. Burton, secretary and librarian.

Local Board of Health, was established in 1854, when their first public act was the erection of Water Works, to supply a deficiency which had been long and severely felt; for which purpose a suitable site was purchased of Lawrence Hall, Esq., about one mile S.W. from the town, where a good supply of fine water has been obtained at a depth of about 300 feet, which is raised by a steam engine into a reservoir, on the highest point of land in the neighbourhood, capable of holding 600,000 gallons of water, or about a week's consumption; from whence it is conveyed to the town through pipes. The Board have power to borrow £3,700, the anticipated cost of the works, the repayment of which is spread over a term of 30 years. A. M. Mundy, Esq., is the chairman, and Mr. Geo. B. Spencer, clerk. Gas Works were erected by Mr. King in 1855, from which he supplies the shops and warehouses; the gasometer has been recently enlarged, and is now capable of holding about 5,000 cubic feet of gas. A navigable part of the Erewash river, being a continuation of the Erewash canal, passes along the eastern boundry of the parish, from which a railway proceeds to the collieries, south of the town. Hosiery and silk blond lace are manufactured here to a considerable extent. There are also several extensive collieries, and brickyards in the parish. Heanor Hall, the residence of John Ray, Esq., is a handsome mansion with pleasant grounds adjoining the village.

Langley, a small village, quarter of a mile E. from Heanor. The General Baptists have a chapel here, built in 1839, at a cost of £300, to which was added a good school room in 1854, at a cost of £120. The Primitive Methodists have also a chapel, built in 1852; it is a small brick building, used as a school room during the week.

LANGLEY MILL, a considerable village, principally situated in the parish of Eastwood, Nottinghamshire, one mile E. from Heanor, and 4 miles S.E. from Ripley, where there is a station on the Erewash branch of the Midland railway. Here is a bridge over the Erewash, built in 1830. The Erewash canal from hence to the Trent, here forms a junction with the Cromford, Derby, and Nottingham canals. Here are large coal wharfs, a steam corn mill, and extensive brickyards, and lime kilns. The Post town is Eastwood, Nottinghamshire.

MARLPOOL, a pleasantly situated and improving village, on the Ilkeston road, quarter of a mile S.E. from Heanor. The Independents have a chapel here, erected in 1821, at a cost of £522, and was enlarged in 1833, at a cost of £308; it will now seat 500 persons, to which are attached capacious school rooms. The Rev. Edward Leighton is the pastor.

SHIPLEY, a township and small village, 2 miles S. from Heanor, and 2 miles N.W. from Ilkeston; contains 2,069A. 2R. 20P. of land, a strong cold soil abounding in coal; rateable value £4,106 8s. 0d.; and in 1851 had 110 houses and 665 inhabitants, of whom, 337 were males, and 328 females. Alfred Miller Mundy, Esq., is lord of the manor, and sole owner. The Nutbrook canal and several railroads communicate with the collieries, which are worked by the lord of the manor. Here are three seams of coal, the pits are deep, and the quality of the coal very good. Steam power equal to 500 horses are employed at these collieries. A school room was built in 1842 by the lord of the manor; it is supported by subscriptions and a small weekly payment from the children, of whom about 180 attend. A district church was erected at Cotmonhay, in 1848, to which the Rev. Edwin Wm. Symons, M.A., has been appointed. The Erewash branch of the Midland Railway runs through the township and has a small station at Shipley Gate. The Nutbrook Canal Company occupy 75 acres of land here. Shipley Hall, 1½ miles S. from Heanor, and 8 miles E. from Derby, a handsome stone mansion beautifully situated on an acclivity in the centre of a well wooded park, is the seat and property of Alfred Miller Mundy, Esq. Owlgrave is an ancient farm house, once the seat of a branch of the Lowe's; also Abbotsford, Johnson House, Purdy House, Park Cottage, The Lodge, &c., and several other scattered farms. The manor of Shipley (Sapeloi) at the time of Domesday survey, was held by Malger under Gilbert de Gand, by whom it was given to Sir Robert de Muskham, whose great grandson of the same name conveyed it to Sir Robert de Vavasour, whose heiress conveyed it to the Strelleys, who were in the possession of it in 1330. Sir Anthony died, seized of it, in 1591. Sir Phillip Strelley, his son, devised Shipley to be sold for the payment of his debts. Nicholas, son of Sir Philip, was the last of this elder branch of the Strelleys. In the reign of Charles the II. Shipley was the property of Sir Edward Lèche, Kt., a Master in Chancery, from whom it passed by successive female heirs to the family of Miller and Mundy.

CHARITIES.—John Clark in 1681 gave £60 to poor widows of Heanor not receiving parochial relief. The annual produce was in 1786 stated to be £2 8s., arising from land vested in Thomas Newton. Thomas Howitt, in 1793, purchased the premises, subject to the above payment; 16s. thereof he distributed to poor persons in Heanor, and 32s. to the poor of Codnor and Loscoe.

Christopher Colclough, in 1754, gave to the poor of Heanor, Langley, Mill Hay, Codnor, Loscoe, and Codnor Park, 20s. yearly, to be distributed to the most needful persons of those places in threepenny loaves, in Heanor church porch, 10s. on every Whitsunday, and 10s. on every Sunday before Christmas-day.

Samuel Colclough, in 1813, devised a messuage and the closes called Godkin House Farm, 19½ acres, to his grand grandfather, William Brough, and his heirs, subject to the annual payment of £2. This sum is laid out in bread, and distributed at the vestry-room on the 5th of June, the anniversary of the donor's death.

Rev. Francis Gisbourne's charity.—(See Bradley.) The yearly sum of £7 10s. is received on account of this charity, and distributed to the poor, in cloth and flannel as under: viz., £2 to the inhabitants of the township of Codnor and Loscoe; £1 to the inhabitants of the township of Shipley; and the remainder to those of the township of Heanor. Smalley School, founded by John and Samuel Richardson, (see Smalley Morley parish,) 8 boys of Heanor township are appointed to this school. Samuel Richardson's charity for poor colliers, (see Smalley.) In case there are not 10 poor colliers in Smalley, this township is entiled to partake of the charity.

HORSLEY parish contains the townships of Horsley, Horsley-Woodhouse, and Kilbourne, 2,747A. 1R. 13P. of land; rateable value £5,904 7s.; and in 1851 had 445 houses and 2,161 inhabitants of whom 1,111 were males and 1,050 females. At the Domesday survey it belonged to Ralph de Burun, who had a castle here.

HORSLEY, a township and village, on the Derby and Alfreton road, 6 miles N.N.E. from Derby, and 3 miles S.S.E. from Belper, contains 1,233A. 2R. 27P. of fertile land, partly clay and sand, of which 70A. 3R. 23P. are in woods and plantations; rateable value £2,159 18s.; and in 1851 had 105 houses and 507 inhabitants, of whom 257 were males and 250 females. E. D. Sitwell, Esq., of Stainsby Hall, is principal owner, and lord of the manor. The Church, dedicated to St. Clements, was given by Hugh de Burun to the priory of Lenton, in Nottinghamshire; it is a handsome stone edifice in the early English style, and consists of nave, chancel, north and south aisles, with a lofty spire of curious workmanship, and 4 bells. Over the south door is a very antique crucifix. It stands on an eminence, and is a conspicuous object around. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's books at £7 5s. 5d., now £175, has been augmented with £200 Queen Anne's bounty, and £800 parliamentary grant. E. D. Sitwell, Esq., is patron; the Rev. Samuel Fox, M.A., the vicar; and the Rev. G. Thompson, M.A., the officiating curate, who resides at the vicarage house. Small tithe is taken on every thing except corn, grain, and hay. A National school for both sexes was erected in 1828, and is supported by voluntary contributions; the average attendance is about 50. A court leet is held in May. The Little Eaton Railway runs through this township, as does also the Derby Canal Company's tram road. The Wesleyans have a chapel here built in 1845. Horsley Castle formerly called Horesten or Horestan, stood about 1 mile S. of the village, on the summit of a hill. It was built as early as the beginning of the thirteeth century, for in the sixteenth year of King John, William Ferrer, Earl of Derby, was constituted governor of it. In the thirty-fifth year of the following reign, Peter de Montfort, and five years afterwards Hugh Despencer, enjoyed this honor. In the thirteenth year of Edward I. John Pipard had a grant of it for life. In the eighth year of Edward II. Sir Ralph Shirley was governor; and in the twenty-first year of the succeeding reign, Henry nephew to Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, created Earl of Derby, obtained a grant to himself and the heirs male of his body, of this fortress with the annual rent of £40, issuing out of the town of Derby. John de Holland, third son of Thomas, Earl of Kent, in the fifteenth year of Richard II. had a grant of this castle for life. In the thirty-fifth year of Heny VI. Edmund Hallam, Earl of Richmond, died possessed of the castle and lordship of Horesten. In the year 1514, the castle of Horesten and manor of Horsley were granted in special tail, to be held by the service of one knight's fee, by Henry VIII., to the Duke of Norfolk, as part of the reward bestowed upon him for the very important service which he had rendered the king during his expedition into France, having prevented the incursion of the Scotts, and defeated them at Flodden, near the Cheviot hills. On this remarkable occasion, one archbishop, two bishops, four abbots, James IV., King of Scotland, and about ten thousand men were slain, and their whole artillery taken. Upon the attainder of the son of the Duke of Norfolk, these possessions probably escheated to the crown, and were granted to some of the Stanhope family, for Thomas Stanhope was possessed of the castle in the 10th year of Elizabeth. It is not known when it was destroyed. A very small part of the ruins only are now visible.

Horsley Woodhouse, a township and small village 4 miles S.S.E. of Belper, and 6½ N.N.E. from Derby, contains 609A. 1R. 24P. of strong clay land, 178 houses and 840 inhabitants, of whom 434 were males and 406 females; rateable value £1532 9s. The principal owner and lord of the manor is E. D. Sitwell, Esq., of Stainsby Hall, but Mr. Henry Richardson, Mr. Joseph Potter, and Mr. John Weston are also owners. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of hosiery and nails. The Wesleyans have a chapel erected in 1799, and rebuilt a few years ago, and will now seat about 200 hearers. The Wesleyan Reformers chapel was built by Mr. Bardill, in 1856, at a cost of £100 exclusive of the site, which was given. It is a neat brick building with sittings for about 200 persons, 180 of which are free. The Primitive Methodists have also a small chapel, built in 1851, will seat about 200. Stainsby House, a handsome modern mansion on a bold eminence, 6 miles N. from Derby, is the seat and property of E. D. Sitwell, Esq.

Kilbourne is a township and village pleasantly situated on the Derby and Alfreton road, 7 miles N.E. from Derby, and 3 miles S.E. from Belper, contains 904A. 1R. 2P. of land, a mixture of sand and clay, and in 1851 had 162 houses and 814 inhabitants, of whom 420 were males and 394 females; rateable value £2212. Charles Vicars Hunter, Esq., is the principal owner. Wm. D. Lowe, Esq., Geo. Strutt, Esq., Mr. John B. Woolley, Thomas Smith, Joseph Middleton, and Grace Walker, are also owners. The feast is on the Sunday after St. Clement's day. Kilbourne Hall, the beautiful and picturesque seat and property of Charles V. Hunter, Esq., is a very ancient mansion. The garden is adorned with a splendid collection of yews, supposed to be above 300 years old. These trees are cut in a variety of figures, which the owner is anxious they should retain, and to the curious, present a sight perhaps not equalled in the kingdom. Near the village is an extensive colliery, 6 miles from Derby, on the Alfreton road, of which John Ray, Esq., of Heanor Hall, is the proprietor and lessee. About 150 men are employed, aided by a steam engine of 58 horses' power. The coal is of a superior quality for all purposes, and is much in demand at Derby, as well as the neighbourhood. The Wesleyan chapel was built in 1830, and enlarged in 1840. The General Baptists have a good stone chapel, built 1832. Here is an infant school. The Ripley Branch of the Midland Railway passes through the village, and occupies 6A. 0. 4P. of land, and the Derby Canal Company, 2A. 2R. 23P. for a tram road.

Charities.—Thomas Hunter, of Swanwick, in 1735, granted a cottage near Windmill Hill, in the parish of Alfreton, and two parcels of ground called the Windmill closes, about 9 acres, upon trust, to the poor inhabitants of the following places,—to the poor of Alfreton, £1 10s.; Kilbourne, £1.; Horsley, 5s.; Horsley Woodhouse, 5s.; Ripley, £1.; Wessington, 10s.; and to the vicar of Alfreton, 10s., for preaching a sermon on the day of the month upon which the said donor should happen to be buried. The property consists of two small cottages and three closes, with an allotment set out on the Alfreton inclosure, making in the whole 10A. 3P. let for £12, which appears to be under the value. The poor of Alfreton now receive £3. 15s.; Kilbourne, £2 10s.; Horsley, 12s. 6d.; Horsley Woodhouse, 12s. 6d.; Ripley, £2 10s.; Wessington, £1 5s.; 10s. is reserved for the vicar, to preach the sermon, and 5s. for the collecting of the rents, which has been reserved since the appointment of new trustees in 1823, and is now in the hands of Mr. Walker, which, it appears to us, if the sermon should not be preached, ought to be appropriated to the poor of the said places.

Ann Ball is supposed to have given the yearly sum of 10s. Mr. Francis Ball pays the sum, as a charge on an estate belonging to him in Horsley Woodhouse, which is distributed amongst the poor of that township at Christmas.

Smalley School.—Six boys of this township are appointed as scholars and pensioners. (See Smalley).

John Lockoe's Charity.—(See Belper), of the produce of which the poor of this parish are entitled to five-ninths—viz., the townships of Horsley and Horsley Woodhouse, to two-ninths each, and Kilburn to one-nith. The sum of £3 6s. 8d. is distributed amongst the poor of Horsley, in sums from 1s. to 4s. on or about St. Thomas's day. The respective sums of £3 6s. 8d., and £1 13s. 4d., are distributed in Horsley, Woodhouse, and Kilburn, at Christmas.

Rev. Francis Gisborne's Charity, (See Bradley).—The sum of £5 10s. received by the incumbent, is laid out in cloth and flannel, and distributed to the poor of the whole parish.

Thomas Shaw, in 1718, gave to the poor in Horsley £12, the interest to buy 20 sixpenny loaves, to be dealt yearly for ever on the 3rd of February. The yearly sum was paid up to Candlemas 1819, by Mr. Samuel Roberts. It was supposed some lands held by him in the parish of Crich were subject to this payment, but in 1819 the property was sold, and nothing has since been paid.

Samuel Richardson's Charity.—In case there are not 10 poor colliers in Smalley, the township of Horsley Woodhouse claims to have a share. At present, two have a quarterly pension of 14s. (See Smalley.)

ILKESTON, a parish and rapidly improving market town, beautifully situated on a bold eminence near the river Erewash, 9 miles E.N.E. from Derby, and 8 miles W. by N. from Nottingham. It contains, with the hamlets of Cotmonhay and Little Hallam, 2,456A. 3R. 33P. of land, and in 1851 had 1,241 houses, and 6,122 inhabitants, of whom 3,087 were males and 3,035 females; rateable value £9,486 10s. 0d. The Duke of Rutland is lord of the manor and principal owner, and holds a court leet on Easter Tuesday, at the Old Hall; Lord Belper, Messrs. Samuel and Philip Potter, Mr. Matthew Hobson, Messrs. Isaac and Mark Attenborough, Mr. Richard Evans, Mr. Joseph Bailey, with others, are small owners. This Manor (Tilchestune), at Domesday survey, was held by one Malger, under Gilbert de Gand, nephew to William the Conqueror. On the attainder of John, Lord Zouch, as a partizan of Richard III., King Henry VII. granted it in 1485 to Sir John Savage, of whose descendent, Sir Thomas Savage, it was purchased, in 1608, by Sir John Manners, ancestor of his Grace the Duke of Rutland. Its ancient importance may be inferred from a tradition that formerly the assizes were held here, having been transferred from Nottingham on account of the plague, in consequence of which the inhabitants were privileged to pay but half toll at fairs and markets, on condition of their keeping in repair a gallows for the execution of criminals, which stands at the southern extremity of the parish, and known by the name of "Gallows Inn." The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient structure, with nave, chancel, side aisles, and handsome pinnacled tower, 90 feet high, with 5 bells. In 1855 the church was thoroughly restored and enlarged, at a cost of £3,500, raised by subscription. The restoration is most simple, but tasteful; and every feature of the ancient building has been faithfully copied; even the additional portion has been built upon the foundation of a chantry, which by a record, appears to have been originally erected in 1330, to Nicholas Cantilupe, by his widow Joan. Portions of the ancient windows and doorways were discovered, which enabled the architect to reproduce even the ornamental work after the old model. The church now contains 650 sittings, of which number 515 are free. In the interior is a stone screen in the decorated style, together with some interesting ancient monuments, one of which, in the chancel, is an altar tomb with the effigy of a Crusader sculptured in stone, with a dog at his feet, he wears a hood of mail, and is armed with a dagger and heater-shaped shield, which is charged with a coat-of-arms, denoting the figure to be intended to represent Nicholas Cantilupe, Lord of Ilkeston. The stone is from Malta, where he is supposed to have died in 1355, of disease, during a crusade. Tradition assigns to him the erection of the chancel, in which there are heads of Henry III. and of his Queen, at the termination of three remarkable sedilia. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's books at £5 7s. 9d., but recently augmented by the Duke of Rutland, and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, so that its annual gross value is now £230. The Duke of Rutland is patron and impropriator; the Rev. George Searl Ebsworth, M.A., incumbent, who resides at the vicarage, a handsome stone mansion, erected in 1847, near the church. A National School for boys is held in a large room over the Butter Cross, the average attendance is about 80. John Gadsby, master. In 1851 a large girl's school with residence for the teacher, was built in front of the church, by subscriptions and grants. It is a handsome brick building; will accommodate about 130, and the average attendance is about 70, Miss Evans, mistress. British Schools, Bath street, erected 1845, at a cost, including the land, of £780, raised by voluntary subscription, aided by a government grant of £200. It is a large brick building with projecting wings. The schools are divided by folding doors, the room being 60 feet long by 25, and 15 feet high, lighted by 8 large windows. A new Ecclesiastical district was formed in 1845 from the hamlet of Cotmanhay, and from Shipley in the parish of Heanor. In 1851 it contained a population of 2,129 inhabitants, for whom a church, parsonage, and schools have been erected. The Independent Chapel, Pimlico, with house adjoining for the minister, erected in 1781, was taken down and a new one built in 1849, at a cost of about £900; it is a neat brick building, and will seat about 300 hearers; with Sunday schools attached. The Wesleyan Reformers have a handsome brick chapel in South street, with stone dressings, erected in 1845, at a cost of £1,200. The old chapel is used as a Sunday school. The Wesleyans have a chapel in Market street, erected in 1855, at a cost of £500, with sittings for about 250 persons. It is neat Gothic building. Primitive Methodist Chapel, Bath street, built in 1852, at a cost of £1,300, is a good brick building, capable of seating 600 hearers, to which are attached excellent school rooms for the Sunday scholars. The old chapel in Chapel street, having become too small, was converted into cottages when the present edifice was erected. The General Baptist Chapel, South street, erected in 1784, was enlarged in 1842, will seat 500. Rev. Thomas Stevenson, pastor. There is also a small Unitarian Chapel. The Artizans' and Mechanics' Library, Bath street, established in 1834, contains 800 volumes; open on Wednesday evening, from 7 to 9 o'clock, Thos. Walton, librarian. A floral and horticultural society was established July, 1841, for promoting the cultivation of cottage gardens, patron, the Duke of Rutland; members pay 1s. annually; none but members allowed to compete for prizes. A Sacred Choral Society was established in 1842, and a Philharmonic Society, in 1844. In 1838, his grace the Duke of Rutland gave 2½ acres of land for a cricket ground, and half an acre in front of the church to enlarge the market place. From the latter an old farm house and cottage were taken down, and the refuse soil taken to level the Cricket Ground, which is allowed to be equal to any in the kingdom. The Market, which is for butter, cheese, poultry, vegetables, and fruit, is held on Thursdays and Saturdays. Fairs: March 5th, Whit-Thursday, and Thursday but one before Christmas, for cattle, horses. &c.; and a hiring and statute for servants the the last Thursday in October. Here are six lodges of Odd-Fellows, and three Benefit Societies. It is said there is a subterranean passage from the park to the Warren Arms Inn.

Gas Works, the Common, erected in 1848 at a cost of £2,500 in 400 shares of £6 5s. each. The present gasholder will contain about 12,000 cubic feet of gas, but is too small for the consumption, it is therefore intended to put up another to hold about 14,000 cubic feet, and otherwise enlarge and improve the premises at an outlay of £500. Mr. B. Wilson, secretary.

Water Works, situated in the centre of the town, were established in 1856, for the purpose of furnishing the inhabitants with a continuous supply of pure water, it having been very deficient and uncertain for a lengthened period, in consequence of the numerous collieries in the vicinity. The outlay was raised in 3000 shares of £1 each. The works consist of a steam engine and two filter beds. The engine is capable of lifting 5000 gallons of water a minute, into a large cistern, which will hold about 80,000 gallons, equal to ten days consumption. Mr. B. Wilson, secretary.

Baths.—A warm mineral spring was discovered here some years ago, the properties of which are said to be different from those of any other spa in the kingdom, and resembling the Seltzer water in Germany, since which extensive Baths have been erected and fitted up with every convenience for plunge, shower, slipper, and vapour baths, as also the practice of the Homœopathic system. The water is an alkaline, and its analysis contains the following ingredients, as given by Dr. Thompson, of Edinburgh, and others.

Constituents in a Pint:—

Carbonate Acid	4,189	grains
Sulphuric Acid	1,300	,,
Muriatic Acid	11,678	,,
Lime	13,323	,,
Magnesia	5,700	,,
Soda	5,860	,,

These Baths are gaining great notoriety for their usefulness in the cure of severe and aggravated rheumatism, gout, modosity, and other chronic affections of the joints, as also paralytic affections, muscular contractions, lumbago, sciatica, and stone in the bladder, scrofula, scurvy, leprosy, liver complaints, and spinal affections. The Grounds attached to the Baths are tastefully laid out in walks, bowling green, archery ground, &c., and afford every facility for a variety of amusements. The Railway and Commercial Hotel, adjoining the Baths and Gardens, and directly facing the Railway station, is a neat erection and was built a few years ago, to afford additional convenience to visitors and commercial gentlemen. Railway communication and the rapidly increasing trade and population of the town, together with the widely extending celebrity of the baths, having rendered still further accommodation requisite, the proprietor has just erected another spacious and beautiful hotel on the same grounds, which embraces elegantly furnished sitting, dining, and bed rooms, and is admirably adapted to promote the convenience and comfort of families, and ladies or gentlemen requiring private apartments. Mr. Thomas Hives, proprietor. The Erewash Valley Branch of the Midland Railway, passes through the parish, and has a small station at the bottom of Bath street. The Erewash canal also crosses the parish, and occupies 29A. 2R. 7P. of land, on which is the Rutland Wharf, to which coals are brought by a tram railway, from Messrs. Samuel and Philip Potter's collieries, opposite which, coals are brought by a tram road from the Babbington and Cinder hill collieries of Mr. Thomas North. Here is a large manufactory of stone bottles and fire bricks, and one for chimney pipes, garden pots, and common earthenware. Here are also several brick yards and lime kilns. The Nutbrook canal occupies 12A. 3R. 16P. of land, passing on the western side of the parish. The hosiery and lace manufacture are extensively carried on here, and in 1856, Messrs. Bailey, Son and Co., lace manufacturers, erected a large factory, at a cost of upwards of £4,000. It is a noble building 100 feet long, 34 feet wide, and four stories in height, with steam engine of 12 horse power, and upwards of 40 machines, suitable offices. and every other convenience, arranged and fitted up in accordance with the most recent improvements. The number of hands employed is 350 to 400. Ilkeston Common, which contained 739A. 2R. 8P. of land, was enclosed in 1794, over which 268 cottage houses are now scattered, having small gardens attached, giving a rural and pleasing appearance, on which several frames are employed, but colliers are the principal occupants. The Old Workhouse is occupied by several poor persons belonging the parish, which is in the Basford Poor Law Union. Lead ore, in small quantities, is found on this Common. The Wesleyan Reformers have a chapel here, erected in 1852. Ilkeston Park, a neat modern house, 9 miles E. from Derby, is the property of the Duke of Rutland, and the residence of Samuel Potter, Esq. Larklands, 9 miles S.E. by E. from Derby, a pleasantly situated residence, the property of Mr. John Lowe, and in the occupation of Philip Potter, Esq. Field House, 10 miles N.E. from Derby, a handsome stuccoed house, pleasantly situated on a good elevation from whence beautiful views of Bramcote hills, Nottingamshire, and Charnwood Forest, Leicestershire, may be obtained. It is the residence and property of Mr. Matthew Hobson.

COTMANHAY, hamlet and scattered village, 1½ miles W. from Ilkeston, being more than a mile in length, is principally occupied by colliers and framework knitters. A district Church dedicated to Christ, was erected here in 1848, at a cost of £2,600, raised by subscriptions and government grants, towards which the Duke of Rutland contributed £200, and the site, and A. M. Mundy, Esq., £200. It is a neat stone building in the early English style, and contains nave, chancel, side aisles, and turret with one bell. It will seat 600 persons, all of which are free. In 1852, a good parsonage was built near the church, at the cost of £750. The Duke of Rutland gave £100 and the site, and A. M. Mundy, Esq., £250 towards it. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £150, in the patronage of the crown, and Bishop of Lichfield alternately. Rev. Edwin Wm. Symons, M.A., incumbent. The Wesleyan Reformers and the Primitive Methodists have each a chapel here. Granby Colliery, the property of the Duke of Rutland, recently opened, is leased to the Butterley Company.

LITTLE HALLAM, a hamlet and small rural village, containing 19 houses, one mile S. by W. from Ilkeston. The Nutbrook canal separates this village from Kirk Hallam. The Old Hall is an ancient building of wood and plaster, in the occupation of Mr. E. S. Whitehead.

CHARITIES.—John Flamstead, of Little Hallam, by will 1684, which recites that as trustee for a gift made by Francis Willoughby, he gave a residue at his disposal of 10s. yearly for ever, to be paid to the vicar of Ilkeston at Easter, to be distributed amongst the poor of the said parish. The Rev. R. D. Flamstead formerly paid this sum, and the property being conveyed to Mr. Edwards, a solicitor of Derby, as trustee of William Dodsley Flamstead, he paid the said sum, but that since Mr. W. D. Flamstead came in possession, no payment had been made. And we (in 1826) have not received sufficient information to identify the land.

Thomas Hunt, in 1683, gave a close to the heirs of his body, and in default of such issue he gave the said close to the use of the poor widows of Ilkeston, and directed the rent thereof should be dealt amongst them upon the feast day of St. Thomas. At the inclosure in 1794, a field called the north field meadow 2A. 2R. 1P. was awarded in lieu of the Tinker's croft, and in lieu of a piece of land in the mill field supposed to have been given by the Rev. Mr. Courtman. It also appears to have included a small portion of land given in respect of a payment of 5s. a year, previously made by the Duke of Rutland's tenants. The meadow is now let for £4 12s. 6d. per annum, which is distributed shortly before St. Thomas's day.

William Gregg, in 1690, gave 20s. yearly to eight of the poorest people of the town of Ilkeston, and directed that his executrix should lay out £20 to purchase land for the payment thereof. The Carr close 4A. 0R. 1P. let for £7 per annum, and the Bull balk close 2A. 1R. 35P. let for £5 a year, are supposed to have been purchased with this money, but no deed can be found relating to them. The Erewash canal crosses the Bull balk close, and the canal company pay for land taken from Roe's charity, and Courtman's charity £1 1s. per annum. A sum of £67 10s was received for coal got under the Bull balk close, by the Rev. Richard Dodsley Flamstead, in 1759, for which he paid interest at 3½ per cent. until 1816, since which no interest or distribution in bread has been made. (1826.) About 1815 another agreement was made for working the coal, and from the money received a copyhold close called the Nether close at Ilkeston, containing 1A. 3R. 20P. was surrendered to the Rev. R. D. Flamstead and two others and their heirs, upon the payment of £7 12s. fine to the court, but no notice was taken in the court rolls of the purchase being made for the poor. £80 due for this coal is in the hands of Thomas Potter, at five per cent. interest. The nether court close is let for £7 per annum, and the sum of £1 5s. is also received from a railway which passes the Bull balk close to the coal pits.

Samuel Roe, in 1775, gave £100 upon trust, the interest to be distributed amongst the necessitous poor of Ilkeston. He also gave £20 to be placed out at interest, to be applied to the use of the minister of a dissenting congregation at Ilkeston, so long as that society should subsist there. The above sums were invested by the minister and churchwardens in a close called the Knotty meadow, in Eastwood, 3A. 0R. 35P. upon trust, as to five parts in six of the rent, to pay the same to the necessitous poor of Ilkeston, and the remaining sixth part to the use of a Protestant society of dissenters. The close is let for £4 12s. 3d. per annum. A small part of the close was taken for the use of the Erewash canal, for which the company pay 18s. a year; of which sums 18s. 4½d. is paid to one of the Presbyterian congregations for the use of the minister, and the remainder distributed to the poor.

Mr. Courtman, in 1704, gave land producing 7s. per annum for the benefit of poor widows, and also land producing 15s. per annum, for teaching three poor children, and the land was vested in Dr. Flamstead. Searches have been made for the will but it cannot be found. The land is supposed to consist of a field containing 1A. 1R. 15P. through which the Erewash canal was cut, and has divided 29P. from the residue of it. It is let for £2 per annum. A sum of £14, produced by the sale of some trees which stood upon the field, is in the hands of the Rev. Jervase Brown the vicar, who pays 14s. per annum interest. The rent and interest are paid to support a Sunday school.

John Fouljamb of Little Hallam, in 1794, left 3 leys of land, and money owing to him amounting to £28, and a bond of £5, which he designed should make the whole 40s. per annum, to the use of the poor. One of the leys appears to us to be the land valued 5s. mentioned in Hunt's charity; the other two, described as lying in the Far Doles close, were in possession of a family of the name of England, who paid the annual sum of 8s. for it till the time of inclosure, since which nothing has been paid. Mr. Gauntley, a commissioner under the inclosure, states that, at the time he set out the allotment to Mr. England, he was not aware that his estate was charged with any dole, and that therefore the estate was not exonerated from the payment by the allotment made to the trustees of the poor. We apprehend, therefore, that these two leys ought to be considered as still belonging to the poor. With respect to the pecuniary bequests, it appears to have been agreed by the parishioners, at a vestry meeting, 25th March, 1741, that the principal sum of £32 left by John Fouljamb, and the sum of £10 left by John Matthews, should remain in the hands of the parish, and that the interest should be distributed to the poor; and that the overseers and churchwardens should give bond for themselves and successors that the interest might be paid for ever. It appears the annual sum of £2 2s. was paid on or about Good-Friday, until the year 1781, since which no payment has been made.

Richard Smedley, in 1744, left a rent charge of £60, out of a messuage and tenement situate at Crown Bank, in the county of Stafford, and out of a messuage at Windy Arbour, upon trust to build six almshouses upon a piece of land at Ilkeston, for six of the poorest men and women of a pious and good reputation, inhabitants of Risley, Old Awsworth in the county of Nottingham, Newthorpe in the same county, and Dale and Ilkeston; two out of Risley, and one out of each of the other places; to pay quarterly to each of such inhabitants £5 a year for their support; and that they should pay for the instruction of poor children,—viz: £10 yearly for the teaching of 36 or 40 poor children of Ilkeston; £5 yearly for the teaching 18 or 20 of Heanor; £5 for a like number of Old and New Awsworth; £5 for a like number of Newthorpe, and £5 more to the parishes of Strelley and Bilborough. The almshouses so erected are each repaired at the expense of the place to which it is appropriated. The premises, at Crown Bank, Talk-on-the-Hill, charged with the rent charge are the property of Smith Child, Esq., by whose agent it is paid to the steward of the Earl of Stamford, and applied in the manner above stated. About 30 boys are instructed in reading at Ilkeston.

John Day, in 1749 devised 5s. to be paid out of his estates, to five poor widows of Ilkeston. This charge was void by the statue of 9, Geo. II. But Catherine Day, the daughter of Robert Day, devised the above land to Joseph Wilson, by whom the field was exchanged, and then sold the field so exchanged subject to the said annual payment of 5s., which is annually distributed on St. Thomas's day. Rev. Thomas Gisborne's charity, (See Bradley.) The share £5 10s. for this parish is received by the minister and expended in cloth and flannel, which he distributes amongst poor men and women of the parish.

Francis Newdigate, Esq., is lord of the manor, principal owner, and patron of the living. The Church, All Saints, is a vicarage, valued in the King's books at £4 9s. 7d., now £313. It has been endowed with £600 Queen Anne's bounty invested in land. The Rev. Alfred Newdigate, M.A., incumbent. It is a small structure with nave, chancel, low embattled tower, and 3 bells. It was repaired in 1844, and new roofed in 1848. The value of the tithe is £140, with 18A. 3R. of glebe in Chilwell, Nottinghamshire, and 9A. 25P. in Sandiacre, 40s. is also paid by Her Majesty's receiver of fee farm rents, to the vicar. The Nutbrook canal passes near the village, and occupies 4A. 3R. 16P. of land, and Lord Belper is a small owner. Feast, first Sunday after All Hallows day. The manor of Kirk Hallam, at the Domesday survey, belonged to Ralph de Burun. It was in the Greys of Codnor in the reign of Edward I. The large estate of the Leake family, with the impropriate rectory and advowson of church, which had belonged to Dale Abbey, and granted to Francis Leake, Esq., in 1562, were sold after the death of Nicholas Leake, to the Earl of Scarsdale in 1736, since which they have been in the Newdigate family. In 1762, Fras. Newdigate, Esq., of Nottingham, bequeathed it to his nephew Francis Parker, Esq., who took the name of Newdigate.

MAPPERLEY, a township and small village in the Appletree Hundred, 7½ miles N.E. from Derby, and 2 miles N.W. from Ilkeston station, contains 972A. 2R. 13P. of land, mostly a strong cold clay, 76 houses and 359 inhabitants, of whom 181 were males and 178 females; rateable value £1552 10s. A M. Mundy, Esq., W. D. Lowe, Esq., and Mr. John Fletcher are the principal owners, the former is lord of the manor. The Nutbrook canal crosses the eastern side of the township, and occupies 20A. 1R. 20P. of land, and 4A. 2R. 4P. belongs to Risley school. Francis Newdigate Esq., is a small owner and impropriator of the great tithe, commuted for £84, and the vicarial for £130 per annum. A Chapel of Ease dedicated to the Holy Trinity, was erected in 1851, at a cost of about £750, towards which the patron gave £100 and the bricks, the lord of the manor £50 and the site, W. D. Lowe, Esq., £50 and the stone, and the Rev. Chas. J. Newdigate, £50 and the communion plate. It is a neat edifice in the early English style, with nave, chancel, porch, and turret with 2 bells, has 164 sittings all free. The Methodists have a small chapel. In 1791, Henry Leaper left £6 a year for the support of a Sunday school, established 1792; but it has not been paid for the last 30 years. Feast Sunday after November 13th. The Manor House, an ancient half-timbered building with gables, now in three tenements, near which formerly was a bowling green, taken up about 20 years ago. Park Hall, a small hamlet half a mile N.W. from the village, near which, in a wood of about 7 acres, is a moated site, on which formerly stood a large mansion, of which nothing remains. At the Domesday survey, Wm. Peverel held Mapperley for the king. Richard Sandiacre held this manor in 1235, for the service of providing a dog kennel. In the year 1266, a market on Mondays, and a fair at the festival of the Holy Trinity, were granted to Simon de Arden, in which he was succeeded by Thomas de Luche. Sir Richard Willoughby, the judge, acquired this manor by marriage with the heiress of Morteyne, and had a large park at Mapperley. Afterwards it belonged to the Gilberts of Locko. Sir Anthony Strelley who died seized of Park Hall, in Kirk Hallam, in 1691, which has since passed with Shipley to the Mundy family.

CHARITIES.—Francis Gisborne's Charity.—(See Bradley).—The annual sum of £5 10s is received by the vicar of this parish, and laid out in the purchase of flannel or coarse cloth and distributed alternately to the poor of Kirk Hallam and Mapperley.

Richardson's Charity.—(See Smalley.)—This township is one of those entitled to the benefit of this charity, in case there should not be 10 poor colliers in Smalley. At present a quarterly pension of 14s. is paid to two.

Henry Leaper, in 1791, gave £100 upon trust, that in case a Sunday school should be established at Mapperley, within two years after his decease, the yearly proceeds of the said sum should be applied in support of such school; if not established, or discontinued, then it should be considered as part of the residue of his personal estate. The legacy remained with Mr. Cater and his widow, who died 1825. At the time of our investigation, Mr. Edward Fox, of Derby, had undertaken to pay the above-mentioned sum when Mrs. Cater's property was disposed of, and it was to be placed on good security for the support of a Sunday school, the master of which to receive £6 per annum for instructing poor children.

West Hallam School.—The inhabitants of Mapperley are now entitled to send 11 children to the school, founded by the Rev. John Scargill. (See West Hallam.)

KIRK LANGLEY is a considerable but scattered village and parish, in which are several good houses, situated on the Derby and Ashbourn road, 4½ miles N.W. from Derby, it contains together with MEYNELL LANGLEY hamlet, 2,441A. 1R. 32P. of land, and in 1851 had 130 houses, and 657 inhabitants, of whom 340 were males and 317 females; rateable value £2,788 16s. 0d. Godfrey Franceys Meynell, Esq., (now a minor) is lord of the manor, and also a small owner, E. S. C. Pole, Esq., T. G. Copestake, Esq., Thos. Peach, Esq., M.D., the Rev. Phillip Gell, Mr. James Brough, W. Cox, Esq., Mr. John Brough, John Morley, and Thomas Campion are the principal owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, is an ancient structure, with nave, chancel, side aisles, and low embattled tower in which there are three bells. In the east window a small portion of stained glass remains. In 1824, the late patron erected a new vestry, and in 1840, the church was thoroughly repaired, re-pewed, and a gallery erected on the south side, at a cost of £600. at the same time the remains of an ancient chapel were discovered, and some tesselated bricks on the north side. A new organ was placed at the east end of the south aisle, at a cost of about £70, in June, 1854; the money was raised by subscription. In the church are several neat monuments to various rectors, of which the last is to the Rev. Edward S. Wilmot. There also several to the Meynell family, one of which, a handsome marble tablet, was erected in 1855, by the Officers of the 75th regiment, to the memory of their brother officer, the late Lieut. Wm. Meynell, who was killed at Guergivo, on the Danube, on the 7th day of July, 1854, he was 28 years of age; also a very neat tablet to the memory of John Meynell, Esq., of Tapton, in this county, who was suddenly deprived of life by a collision in the Clay-cross tunnel, on the Midland railway, May 29th, 1851, aged 44 years. The living is a rectory valued in the King's book at £12 2s. 1d., now £318; Godfrey Franceys Meynell, Esq., (now a minor) is the patron, and the Rev. Henry James Feilden, M.A., rector. The Rectory is a good residence, a little N. of the church. The tithes were commuted in 1842 for £213. The rector has 90 acres of glebe, a considerable portion of which was awarded to him at the enclosure of Meynell Langley, in lieu of tithes. The commons were enclosed in 1834, by an act then obtained. In 1845, the rector erected a large school room, to be used as a day and Sunday school, since which, a house for the master has been added; about 80 scholars attend, who pay from 3d. to 6d. per week each, except twelve poor children who are taught free in consideration of land amounting to 3A. 2R. 21P., which is let for £12 per annum. An infant school was established in 1849, which is attended by about 40 children, who pay 1d. each, per week. The Primitive Methodists have a small chapel here, erected in 1832. Brun House, a good substantial building, 1 mile S.E. of the village, is the residence of Mr. John Aulton, and property of Thos. Goodall Copestake, Esq.

MEYNELL LANGLEY, a small but straggling hamlet, consisting of a few houses principally built of brick, with blue tiles, and forming the east side of the parish. The Flagshaw, a small brook, separates it from Kirk Langley. It contains 1,146A. 3R. 16P. of land, of the rateable value of £1,324 10s. 4d. Godfrey Franceys Meynell, Esq., is lord of the manor and principal owner. The school land mentioned above, is situated in this hamlet. Langley Park, a handsome stone mansion, 1 mile E.N.E. from the village, situated in a well-wooded park of about 60 acres, and commanding a fine view of Derby; it is the seat of Godfrey Meynell, Esq. The manor of Langley Meynell took its name from an ancient family who possessed it as early as the reign of Edward III.; from them it passed by successive female heirs to the families of Basset and Cavendish. William Cavendish, Duke of Newcastle, sold it in the year 1669, to Isaac Meynell, citizen of London, who left an only daughter and heir, whose second husband, Robert Cecil a younger brother of James, Earl of Salisbury, sold Church Langley and Meynell Langley to Godfrey Meynell, Esq., another branch of the family. Mr. Meynell having no issue, he bequeathed the estate to his cousins, and the manor and estate was divided; of which the shares in the manor were all sold to the late Godfrey Meynell, Esq.

CHARITIES.—Rev. John Bailey and Isabella, his wife, in 1750, erected a school house at Langley; and in 1753, left a rent charge of £5 yearly, out of a messuage and lands at Boylstone, for teaching poor children of the parish. Frances Bayley, in 1768, for a nominal consideration, sold to certain trustees a close called the Upper Cunnery, for teaching two poor children at the school; and if the said close, 3½ acres, with the annuity, should exceed £10 a year, the surplus to be used in repairing or altering the school. The schoolmaster occupies the land, at the value of £6 16s., and receives the rent charge, £5, allowing to the rector £1 for repairs, and he appoints 12 children to be taught free.

Hough's Charity.—(See Dalbury.)—In respect of which, £1 a year has been hitherto paid for the poor of this parish, and given amongst 20 of the poorest persons.

Rev. Mr. Bailey gave the interest of £10, to be paid on the four sacrament days, agreeable to the will of the donor. This has been in the hands of the Cheney family, and 5 per cent for many years paid; but the son of the late General Robert Cheney has sold his estate in this parish, so that it is desirable that the money should be called in, or a fresh security given.

Mrs. Cheney, in 1821, placed the sum of £20 in the savings' bank, at Derby, under the name of "the poor of Langley, by Mrs. Cheney," and directed the interest to be paid to the minister for the time being, for the use of the poor who should attend the sacrament. Owing to some inadvertence, this sum has never been demanded, so that there is now (1826) £25 in the savings' bank.

MACKWORTH parish, contains the townships of Mackworth and Markeaton, which together contain 3246A. 2R. 4P. of strong land, principally grazing, and had in 1851, 98 houses and 510 inhabitants, of whom 256 were males, and 254 females; rateable value, £5601 5s. 0d.

MACKWORTH, is a township and scattered village, with a few modern houses on the Derby and Ashbourn road, $2\frac{3}{4}$ miles W.N.W. from Derby. It contains 1344A. 0R. 4P. of land, and in 1851, had 57 houses, and 306 inhabitants, of whom 158 were males, and 148 females; rateable value, £2170 5s. 0d. Wm. Mundy, Esq., M.P. is lord of the manor and principal owner. Lord Scarsdale, Godfrey F. Meynell, Esq., (a minor), and E. S. C. Pole, Esq., are also owners. A Court-leet is held occasionally at the Mundy Arms. The Church, dedicated to All Saints, is an ancient edifice, partly in the decorated style, with a nave, chancel, and fine tower, with an octagonal spire, and three bells. In the church are two marble tablets, to Wm. Forrester, of Broadfield, Herts, and Ann his wife, with several others. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £9 3s., now £161, has been endowed with £200 Queen Anne's bounty. Wm. Mundy, Esq., M.P., is the patron, and the Rev. Geo. Pickering, B.A., incumbent, who resides at the vicarage, a neat house near the church. In 1835, the patron erected a school room, which is available for both the townships; all classes are eligible on payment of 3d. per week to the master, who also receives £9 per annum from Mr. Mundy; about 40 attend. The schoolmaster has also £5 per annum, for teaching a Sunday school. An Odd Fellows' lodge (Manchester Unity), is held at the Mundy Arms, and consists of about 80 members. The open lands of both townships (amounting to 2440A.), were enclosed in 1763. Mackworth in Domesday book, is called Machenorde, and is a place of some antiquity. The manor, in the time of Henry VI. belonged to a family of the name of Mackworth, one of whom in the third or fourth years of that King's reign, represented the county of Derby in parliament. Here was formerly a castle; anciently the seat of the De Mackworth's; the only portion of it now visible is the Southgate; the time of its erection is uncertain, but the site is now the property of Lord Scarsdale: in the fourth of Phillip and Mary, it was held under the Crown, in the same manner as the honour of Tutbury, by socage and fealty, according to tradition, it was demolished during the civil wars, between Charles I. and the parliament, and some high ground in the neighbourhood, is still called Cannon Hills, because it is said that ordnance were planted there when the castle was destroyed. The manor of Mackworth has always been held with that of Markeaton.

MARKEATON, a scattered township and small ancient village, in which are several good houses, one mile and three-quarters W.N.W. from Derby, contains 1902A. 2R. of rich land, and in 1851 had 41 houses, and 204 inhabitants, of whom 98 were males, and 106 females; rateable value, £3,431. William Mundy, Esq., M.P., is lord of the manor and principal owner. Lord Scarsdale, Miss E. Trowell, and T. W. Evans, Esq., are also owners, and the corporation of Derby have 118 acres. In 1826 the late Mrs. Mundy established a free school here for girls of both townships; it is now used for both sexes, who pay 3d. per week, each; about 50 attend. The Hall, which was erected about the year 1750, is a large brick mansion, with a spacious park in front, is the seat of Wm. Mundy, Esq., M.P. The Old Hall, was of wood and plaster. A neat Gothic lodge and handsome iron entrance gate were erected in 1844, on the Derby and Ashbourn road. Thornhill, the seat and property of Miss E. Trowell, is a neat modern residence, commanding a fine view of Derby, from which it is distant one and a half miles W. by S.

This manor, Marchetone, is described in Domesday book as having been the property of Siward, and then held by Gozelin, under Hugh Lupus Earl of Chester. In the year 1251, Thomas, son of Robert Tuschet, had a charter of free warren here. They also claimed a park and a gallows for the execution of criminals in 1330. About the year 1516 John Tuchet, Lord Audley, sold the manors of Markeaton and Mackworth to John Mundy, citizen of London, from whom they have descended to the present possessor. The late Francis Noel Clarke Mundy, Esq., was for many years the much respected chairman of the quarter sessions at Derby, and author of the admirable poems of "Needwood Forest," and the "Fall of Needwood."

CHARITIES.—Richard Croshaw's Charity.—(See Derby).—In consideration of a legacy, the corporation pay £28 yearly for a weekly distribution amongst eight poor inhabitants of Markeaton and Mackworth in bread and money. Eight tenpenny loaves are sent every Sunday to the church at Mackworth; eight sixpences are also sent weekly, and distributed to four poor persons of each place. The residue, 5s. 4d., is paid to the parish clerk.

In respect of the same donor's gift of £100 for loans to poor householders and tradesmen of Markeaton and Mackworth,—(See Derby.)

Munday's Charity.—(See Radbourn).—The annual sum of £2 8s. is received from the minister of Quarndon by the incumbent of the parish, who retains 4s. for himself, and pays 2s. a-piece to the respective churchwardens of Markeaton and Mackworth, and the remaining 40s. are distributed to the poor of the said places on St. Thomas's day.

Peter Hough's Charity.—(See Dalbury).—The sum of £1 10s. received from Edwd. Cooper of Ashbourn, is distributed, with others, on St. Thomas's day.

Henry Stanley, in 1715, gave for the use of the poor of Markeaton and Mackworth, £100 to be applied as his trustees should appoint. Much suit had arisen by Hester Stanley, the testator's daughter, concerning the said will, whereby the estate was greatly diminished. Only £73 could be gotten. The trustees agreed that £52 2s. should be applied for the poor of Markeaton as their share of the legacy, and that £30 should be applied to the poor of Mackworth. The said £52 2s. was laid out in purchasing two closes in 1724. John Bennett, the last surviving trustee, purchased, in 1762, 2A. 36P. of land in Garrowsitch Furlong for £40, for the use of the poor of Mackworth. The two closes belonging to Markeaton now form one field, let for £5 per annum, which is received by the churchwarden. The Mackworth land now form one field called the Poor's Land, let for £6 6s. per annum, and is distributed on St. Thomas's day.

Pole's Charity.—(See Radbourn,) where it is fully described.

The Wesleyan Methodists have a small chapel here, built in 1820, which will give accommodation to about 200 persons. The Primitive Methodists erected a small neat brick chapel in 1852, at a cost of about £100. It will seat about 100 persons. In 1852, a National school was erected for boys and girls, by Mrs. Newton of the Leylands, Derby, it is a neat brick building, and will accommodate about 100 children; the average attendance is about 80, nine of which are educated free, in consideration of £9, the interest of the £200 left by Robert Newton, Esq. The Manor House, the ancient seat of the Newtons, is a large handsome brick mansion, situated close to the church, and contains upwards of 70 windows, it is now the residence of Chas. E. Newton, Esq. The Cedars, an ancient house in the Elizabethan style of architecture, on the entrance porch is Nisi Dĕus Frustra, 1648. It is supposed to have been built by a Captain in Cromwell's army, Mr. William Harvey is the present occupier. Mickleover House, the seat and property of Moses Harvey, Esq., is a neat residence, having beautiful pleasure grounds attached, from which may be had extensive views into the counties of Leicester and Stafford. The Limes, a handsome modern mansion, commanding some fine views, is the residence and property of Mrs. Amelia Wright. The Pastures, situated a short distance from the Derby and Burton road, 3 miles S.W. from Derby. It is a large handsome mansion, erected about 50 years ago, the seat and property of Sir Hugh Seymour Blane, Bart. The Feast is held Sunday after December 6th. The manor of Mickleover was given with Findern, Littleover, and Potlock, by William the Conqueror, to Burton Abbey. King Henry VIII. granted them to William Pigot, in 1648. Sir Edward Wilmot purchased two shares of them, the remaining part was sold the same year, by the heiress of Sir William Withepol, who married the elder of Sir William Read's granddaughters, to Sir John Curzon, which was purchased by John Leaper Newton, Esq. The Derbyshire Lunatic Asylum is situated in this parish, for which see History of Derby, page 80.

FINDERN, township, chapelry, and pleasant village, 5 miles S.W. by S. from Derby, extends round a green of about 1 rood. The parishioners attend a court leet at Litchurch held by the crown. It contains 1,628A. 2R. 22P. of land, 89 houses and 467 inhabitants, of whom 248 were males and 219 females; rateable value £3711 5s. 11½d. Sir J. H. Crewe, Bart., Rev. F. W. Spilsbury, Robert Erpe, and John Drury are owners. The parish is intersected by the Trent and Mersey canal, and the Birmingham and Derby Railway. The Chapel, dedicated to All Saints, is an ancient structure, with a low wooden turret and two bells. It was new pewed in 1796. It is a chapel of ease to Mickleover. The Rev. Geo. Fritche is the curate. About 60 acres of glebe belong to the vicar. The Wesleyan Methodists have a neat chapel, erected in 1835; and the Unitarians an ancient brick chapel, with pointed gables. It is said traditionally that this place belonged to Lord Findern, in the time of Richard III., and was confiscated after the battle of Bosworth Field. There are about twelve velvet and silk looms here. Feast Sunday after Nov. 5th.

Potlock, an estate and manor in Findern township, which contains about 350 acres of land and 2 houses, which are all included in the Findern return. Sir J. H. Crewe, Bart. is the owner. Here was anciently a chapel, dedicated to St. Leonard, of which there are now no remains, though portions of the foundations are continually being dug up. John de Toke or Touke, whose family resided here for several generations, gave 14 acres of meadow, and 60s. rent to the support of this chapel. The old mansion was taken down about 50 years ago, by the late Mr. Glover, who erected the present farm houses. Potlock House is a large white cemented building, 6 miles W. of Derby, the residence of Mr. John Jowett Glover.

Littleover, township, chapelry, and long straggling village, 2 miles S.W. by S. from Derby, contain 1491a. 3r. 3p. of strong marl land, and in 1851 had 121 houses and 551 inhabitants, of whom 264 were males and 287 females; rateable value £1204 12s. E. S C. Pole, Esq., Cockshutt Heathcote, Esq., John Harrison, Esq., Sir Hugh Seymour Blane, Bart., Mr. Joseph Middleton, (of Horsley) Wm. Wilson, and Thomas Lowe are owners, the former is lord of the manor. The Chapel, is a small ancient edifice, with nave, chancel, turret, and 1 bell. It is about to be thorougly repaired and repewed, and to have a north aisle added, by which means 73 additional sittings will be obtained for the poor. In the chapel is a handsome monument to Sir Richard Harpur, also a neat tablet to the memory of Elizabeth, the wife of Cockshutt Heathcote, Esq. It is a chapel of ease to Mickleover, the Rev. Geo. Fritche, curate. The vicar has 74a. 2r. 1p. of glebe and a portion of the hay tithe, commuted for £20. The Old Hall, now a farm house, stands on an elevation at the west end of the village. It is a large brick building embowered with trees, the property of C. Heathcote, Esq., and residence of Mr. T. Topham. Fairfield House, on the Derby and Burton road, $1\frac{1}{4}$ miles S.W. by S. from Derby, is a large handsome mansion, the residence of John Tempest Morley, Esq., near which is Littleover House a large and commodious mansion the residence of James Allport, Esq. In 1845 a National school was erected for boys and girls, with a house for the master; it is a neat small brick building, and will hold about 100 children, the cost was about £120, raised by subscriptions, aided by a grant from government of £70, about 70 attend. The Wesleyan Methodists and Baptists have each a place of worship here. The Feast is held the Sunday after St. Peter.

Charities.—Poor's Land.—There are two fields of land within the chapelry of Littleover, said to have been given for the benefit of the poor, but by whom, or at what period, is unknown. One of the fields contains 2 acres, let for £7 per annum. The other rather more, lets for £6 per annum. Cockshutt Heathcote, Esq., states that he has found no papers concerning these charities, or how the trust devolved upon his father, but he proposes to continue the distribution in the same manner as heretofore made. A part of another field was mentioned to us as belonging to the poor, but we have met with no evidence of its having been so appropriated.

Thomas Wade, in 1678, gave to the poor of Mickleover 12s. a-year, to be paid by his executor on every St. Thomas's day. Mr. George Wade, the owner of a farm in this parish, distributes 12s. annually to poor widows.

Joyce Harpur, by her will, gave land to poor widows of Mickleover, then vested in Mrs. Fowler, and producing 5s. per annum. A rent charge of 5s. is paid from land belonging to Mr. William Tancred Fowler, and distributed in sums of 6d.

Poor's Money.—There is a sum of £60 belonging to the poor of Mickleover, secured by promissory note dated April 26th, 1819, of Paul Spencer, and Paul Spencer, junr. Of this sum, £20 appears to have been given by Robert Newton, and £40 by William Botham. The interest, at 3 per cent., is paid to the overseer, and distributed by him.

Robert Newton, Esq., in 1784 left £200 on trust, the interest to be applied to the old and infirm poor of the parish of Mickleover on 4th November yearly, the first year in money and the next in clothes, and so alternately. He also gave £200 in trust to apply the produce thereof to the use of a school at Mickleover. Mr. John Leaper, one of the trustees took the name of Newton, and gave by his will, all his trusts to his second son, Mr. Wm. Newton, of Derby, and the above sums of £200 each are in his hands, for which he pays interest at 4½ per cent.

Gisborne's Charity, (See Bradley.)—The vicar receives £5 10s. on account of this charity, which is applied in the purchase of flannel and cloth, and distributed by him at Christmas amongst the poor of the parish.

Poles Charity, (See Radbourn,) for apprenticing poor children.

John Allsop, in 1714, gave all his lands and tenements, situate in the parish of Skirbeck, county of Lincoln, to his wife, Sarah, for life, and after her decease to his son, provided that, if he should die under the age of 21, and without issue, the said lands and premises should be to the use of a schoolmaster to teach the children of poor people of Findern, Willington, and Stenson. The property consists of a small thatched cottage with outbuildings, near the town of Boston, with two closes of good pasture adjoining, containing 12A. 3R. 17P., and an allotment in the fen, 5A. 3R. 32P., let at £50. The money is paid to a schoolmaster, who keeps a school at Findern. All the poor children, boys and girls, of the said places, are admitted. The number varies from 30 to 60, according to the time of the year.

John Erpe devised land, called Lesser Crow Nest, in Findern, from the Middle Hedge to Findern Hays, and directed his heirs to pay yearly 20s. at Michaelmas and Lady-day, viz. 12s. for schooling some poor children, and 8s. in buying poor families religious books. 12s. is paid to the schoolmaster, and 8s. laid out in books for the poor, the donor's name being written on them.

Bread Charity.—An acre of land in Findern, let by the overseers of the poor (the donor unknown) for £1 a-year to a very old tenant, but said to be worth £3, which is distributed amongst the poor in shilling and sixpenny loaves.

MORLEY, a parish and township, with the township of Smalley, contains 3264A. 31P. of land, exclusive of 125A. 0R. 7P. woods and roads; rateable value, £5405 18s. 2d., and in 1851 had 232 houses, and 1090 inhabitants, of whom 541 were males, and 549 females.

MORLEY, a scattered village and township, 4 miles N.E. from Derby, contains 1685A. 3R. 32P. of land, partly clay and sand, and 125A. 0R. 7P. of woods and roads, and in 1851 had 57 houses, and 286 inhabitants, of whom 144 were males, and 142 females; rateable value, £2667 9s. The executors of the late Sir Hugh Bateman, Bart., with Edward Degge Sitwell, Esq., are joint lords of the manor, and alternate patrons of the rectory. The principal owners are, Thos. O. Bateman, Henry Boden, James Boden, and Robert S. Sitwell, Esqrs.; with a few smaller owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Matthew, is a large structure, with nave, chancel, side aisles, tower, and lofty spire with 3 bells. In 1850, the church was thoroughly restored and new seated, with open seats of carved oak, and the spire was heightened 2ft. 7in. at the same time. The whole was done at an expense of of £426, raised by subscriptions. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £13 6s. 8d., now £679. The Rev. Samuel Fox, M.A., incumbent. Ralph Stathum, Esq., who died in 1380, built a small chapel here; his surviving widow Goditha, pulled down the chapel and built the present church in 1403. In the north aisle are four windows occupying nearly the whole of the north side, and one at the east end of the same aisle, filled with painted glass, supposed to have been brought from Dale Abbey, at the time of the dissolution of the monasteries. Both the figures and legends are a great deal mutilated, but the subjects of several of them may still be made out. They relate to a tradition, that on a dispute between the canons of Depedale and the keepers of the forest, the King granted to the canons as much land, as between two suns could be encircled with a plough drawn by stags, which were to be caught from the forest. In the chancel is a stone inlaid with brass plates, on which are engraved the effigies of a man in plate armour, bare headed, kneeling on his helmet, and armed with a dagger; and of his lady, in a long gown and mitred head-dress. It is to the memory of John Stathum, and Cecily, his wife; the former of whom died in 1454, and the latter in 1444. Under an ornamented arch, on the south side of the chancel, is an altar-tomb with brass plates, on which are engraved the effigies of Henry Stathum, who died in 1481, and his three wives. He is cased in an elegant suit of armour of the period, with globular breast-plate, and reclines upon his helmet; he is armed with sword and dagger, and has a lion under his feet. Here is also another altar-tomb, with brass figures, to the memory of Henry Sacheverell and Isabella his wife; he died in 1458. There are also brasses to John Sacheverell and Joan, his wife, who are represented as kneeling on cushions opposite to each other, having between them their coat of arms. The male is bare-headed and clad in plate armour, followed by three sons; the female is clad in a tight fitting gown with ermine cuffs, and wears an embroided head-dress; she is followed by five daughters. The Rectory is a neat mansion, near the church, with 111A. of glebe. The tithes were commuted in 1844 for £324 14s. 4d. Near the west end of the church are the remains of an old gateway said to have been the entrance to the court of an ancient hall apparently of large dimensions, and was occupied in 1755. A little to the south of the village is a Tumulus planted with Firs, and near the approach to the church stands on a basement of five steps, an octagonal shaft, having a square carved head, on which has been a dial plate, said to have been a market cross. Near the cross is Crosswell and Critchley spring, which never freezes over.

At Morley Moor, is a mixed school, endowed with £11 per annum, left principally by Miss E. G. C. Darwin in 1816. The average attendance of scholars is about 40, who pay from 1d. to 2d. per week each.

In Domesday survey, it is described as one of the manors of Henry de Ferrars. In 1235, the manors of Morley and Smalley were held by the Abbot of Chester, as of the fee of Hugh Earl of Chester, afterwards it was held by a family who took their name from the place. Goditha, the heiress, brought it to Ralph Stathum, who died in 1380. The heiress of Stathum brought it to John Sacheverell, who was slain at the battle of Bosworth field, in 1485. The last male heir of this family died in 1714. The Feast, Sunday before Sept. 21st, or that day, if Sunday.

SMALLEY, a pleasant, well-built village, chapelry, and township, six miles N.E. from Derby, and four miles W. from Duffield station, contains 1578A. 1R. 9P. of land, and in 1851 had 175 houses, and 804 inhabitants, of whom 397 were males, and 407 females; rateable value, £2,738 9s. 2d. Edward Degge Sitwell, Esq., is lord of the manor, and considerable owner. John Radford, Esq., Robert Holden, Esq., A. M. Mundy, executors of Sir H. Bateman, Bart, and Henry Richardson, Esq., are also owners. The Chapel, dedicated to St. John Baptist, was erected in 1793, and considerably enlarged in 1844, at a cost of upwards of £350, defrayed by voluntary subscriptions. It is a neat stone edifice in the form of a cross, well pewed, with a turret and one bell. Here are two neat tablets, to the memory of the late Jno. Radford, Esq., and his lady. It is dependent on Morley, and the Rev. Augustus F. Smith, B.A., curate, officiates. The tithes were commuted in 1845 for £343 12s., and there are 28A. of glebe. A National school for girls was built in 1848, near the church, at a cost of £700, raised by contributions, and a grant of £188. It is a neat building of brick and stone, with residence for the teacher, Miss Thomas: the average attendance is about 30. The Richardson family had a good house and estate here formerly, now the property of John Radford, Esq. Here is a Baptist chapel, erected in 1780, and enlarged in 1820. A Benefit society and Odd Fellows' lodge is held in the village. A petty sessions is held every Monday. Feast, Sunday after St. John.

Kidsley, or Kiddersley Park, one and a half mile N.E. from Smlley, and in that township was a manor, which in the year 1235 belonged to the abbot of Chester, and was divided among the co-heiresses of Robert Sacheverell, Esq. It is now the property of Wm. Drury Lowe, Esq. Christopher Johnson, M.D., an eminent medical writer in 1597, was a native of this place.

CHARITIES.—Jacinth Sacheverell, who died in London in 1656, is said to have founded some almshouses here, but we have not found a copy of will or any authentic document relating thereto. On a tablet in the church the following account is given:—"Six hospital houses given by Jacinth Sacheverell, Esq., and £5 a year to each house, to be paid quarterly, half to Morley and half to Smalley, issuing out of land at Raunson, in the county of Leicester, and £5 a year out of the same land, half to the poor of Morley and half to the poor of Smalley, to be paid by 12s. 6d. per quarter to each." The almshouses consist of six dwellings under one roof, each containing two rooms with small gardens in front, three being appropriated to each place, and three almsmen are appointed from each township. The annual sum of £35 is paid by Leonard Fosbrooke, Esq., of Shardlow, as the owner of the estate at Raunson. Of this sum £2 10s. is paid every half year to the almsmen. The money is sometimes given to persons not resident in the houses. It appear to us that the almsmen who may be in future appointed, should be persons residing therein. The sum of £5 is also distributed from the same source on the first Sunday in the year, amongst the poor of the above-named places.

Poor's Land, consists of near 8 acres, let for £12 per annum, and distributed with other charities on the first Sunday in the new year. John Mapples. in 1674, gave £12; William Potter gave £10; and Widow Dakin, £5; which were laid out in land. At the Morley enclosure, in 1784, these lands, containing about 4¼A., were exchanged with Richd. Lowe, Esq., for the present two fields. The original title deeds were burnt in the parsonage house, about 1739.

Katharine Hibbert, by will, left 10s. a year, out of a house in the Willows, Nuns Green, Derby.

Lady Sleigh left £10 to the poor of Morley, the use of it to be paid yearly.

Samuel Hibbert left £5 to the poor of Morley for ever.

Dame Goodale's Dole left 20s. yearly, one half to Morley, and one half to Smalley. At the Morley enclosure, land was allotted to E. S. Sitwell, Esq., subject to this payment.

Michael Abbot left £20 to the poor of Morley, the interest to be paid yearly for ever on the 4th of August. These, with others, are carried to one fund, and distributed amongst the poor, the first Sunday after Christmas.

TOWNSHIP OF SMALLEY.—John and Samuel Richardson, in 1712, conveyed to Wm. Woolley and others, a messuage in Horsley Woodhouse and several closes of land, on trust, that the said Wm. Woolley and others should purchase a piece of land and build a school house. The yearly sum of £10 to be paid to a schoolmaster for teaching 12 poor boys to read, write, and cast accounts; and that they should pay to 12 poor boys 8d. per week a-piece, for every week they should come to school, to be paid at the end of every 13 weeks; the residue of the rents to be given as follows. viz.:—one-third to the schoolmaster, and two-thirds amongst the 12 poor scholars, pensioners; 7 poor boys might be of Smalley, and the rest of Heanor and Horsley Woodhouse, to be scholars and pensioners. New trustees were appointed in 1826, for whom John Radford, Esq., is actuary. The property is situated in Horsley Woodhouse, and out of the rents, now £88 per annum, there is paid to a schoolmaster a salary of £40, £6 of which is for teaching a Sunday school. About 65 scholars attend, of which number 28 are on the foundation, viz.:—16 boys of Smalley, 7 of Heanor, and 5 of Horsley Wooodhouse, the others pay,—1st class, 4d., and the other classes, 2d. per week each, but boys from any other parish than those above-named, pay 6d. and 4d. per week respectively. There is a school house with residence for the master adjoining, built in 1721. Mr. Wm. Johnson is the master.

Samuel Richardson, in 1711, gave to his executors £400 in trust, to be laid out in land. He directed the rents should yearly be paid, and divided on the feasts of Christmas, Lady-day, St. John the Baptist, and Michaelmas, in equal portions, amongst 10 poor colliers, disabled or infirm by accident, old age or otherwise, and inhabitants of Smalley, Horsley Woodhouse, Heanor, or Mapperley; and he directed that no such colliers of the last named three places should be sharers of the said profits, if there should be the number of 10 poor colliers in Smalley. The property is situate in Horsley Woodhouse township, and consists of a farm house and 28A. of land, let at £40 a year, to which it was raised in 1811.

James and others' charities.—The sums of 10s., 10s., and £2 10s., received by the overseer of Smalley, in respect of Edward James, Dame Goodales, and Jacinth Sacheverell, mentioned at Morley, are distributed by him amongst the poorest families, at Christmas, in sums varying from 1s. to 2s.

Rev. Francis Gisborne's charity,—(See Bradley).—The sum of £6 10s. is distributed by the rector or his curate, in flannel and warm clothing every year.

OCKBROOK, a parish and large well built village, containing several handsome modern residences, and the hamlets of Borrowash and Shacklecross, 5½ miles E. from Derby, and 1 mile N from Borrowash station, contains 1562A. 3R. 18P. of strong clay land, and in 1851 had 394 houses and 1763 inhabitants, of whom 814 were males and 949 females; rateable value £5176 12s. The principal owners are Wm. D. Lowe, Esq., Thomas Pares, Esq., H. Flower, Esq., Thos. Batelle, Esq., and Mrs. Murray. The manor is divided into 12 shares, of which Mr. Pares holds 5. The Church, All Saints, is a perpetual curacy, returned at £154; has been endowed with £800 benefactions, £600 Queen Anne's bounty, and £1300 parliamentary grant. There are 49A. 3R. 21P. of glebe, and an allotment of 17A. 3R. 22P., purchased with bounty. Thomas Pares, Esq., is patron and impropriator; Rev. Melville H. Scott, B.A., incumbent. The Church, is an ancient structure, partly in the Norman style, with nave and chancel, divided by a beautiful open work screen, has a spacious gallery and small organ, a low tower, 3 bells and an octagonal spire. In 1835 it was enlarged on the south side, and thorougly repaired, at a cost of £700. The east window is of beautiful stained glass, with representations of the four evangelists, said to have been brought from Wigston's Hospital at Leicester. There are several neat tablets to the Pares family. A national school for boys and girls was erected in 1848 by voluntary subscription, about 70 attend; and in 1843, a neat infant school was erected by subscription, about 60 attend. An establishment of Moravians was founded here in 1750. The principal buildings stand in a regular line, and consist of the single sister's house. Two boarding schools for about 50 boys and 30 young ladies, and in the centre a neat commodious chapel of brick, with galleries at each end, and will seat about 400 persons, near to which is a range of houses for the ministers, with several other houses, and a commodious lodging-house. The congregation meet for divine service every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings. The Rev. Samuel Wilson is director of the boarding schools and Miss Robinson, governess. There is also a private establishment here for the education of young ladies, in the Sister's house, under the management of Miss Jenkins, which is distinct from the boarding school for young ladies, though contigious to it, and is regulated on the same principles. Behind the chapel is the burial ground divided into squares, the gravestones all small, flat, and uniform, inscribed only with names and dates. The Methodist chapel, opened in 1808, will seat 400 persons; and the Primitive Methodist's chapel, built 1824, and enlarged 1842, are both neat brick buildings. About 70 frames are employed in the village, and here are 3 benefit societies. Feast, nearest Sunday to November 13. The manor of Ockbrook, at Domesday survey, belonged to Geoffrey Alselin. In 1583, Frederick Lord Windsor conveyed it to the principal freeholders. The Church was appropriated to the Priory of Shelford—no doubt given by the founder, Thomas Hanselyn. The Bardolfs had a park here, and the Abbot of Dale had another, which had been made by the Grendons in the thirteenth century.

Borrowash, a large well built village on the Derby and Nottingham road, 4 miles E. from Derby, 1 mile S. from Ockbrook. Principal owner John E. Swindell, Esq., with some smaller owners, of whom the Earl of Harrington is one, and owns the cotton mills, in the occupation of Messrs. John Towle & Co., at which 250 persons are employed, it occupies the site of a corn mill which formerly belonged to Dale Abbey. The river Derwent, the Derby canal, and the Nottingham Branch of the Midland Railway pass through the village, and the latter has a neat station here. There are 7 houses at the west extremity of this village, in the parish of Spondon. The Wesleyan Methodist's chapel is a handsome brick building, erected 1825, will seat about 450 persons, attached to which is a large school-room; and the Primitive Methodists, one erected in 1851. In 1840, the late Rev. Samuel Hey erected a school-room here at his own expense; about 75 children attend. There are also about 30 children who are employed at Messrs. Towle's factory, who attend half a day daily. There is Church service held in the school-room, every other Sunday evening, by the vicar.

Shacklecross, a small hamlet on the Nottingham road, $\frac{1}{4}$ mile E. from Borrowash. Here is a corn mill worked by a steam engine 12 horse power.

Charities.—Robert Piggin, in 1706, gave 40s. per annum to the poor of the parish, out of a farm in Chaddesden, which is distributed on Good Friday.

Anne Potter, in 1709, gave 20s. per annum to the poor of this parish, out of a dwelling-house, orchard, and 2 crofts adjoining. Mr. Edward Hunt, the owner, pays the money to the churchwarden, and it is distributed on Whit-Monday, at his house.

Edward James, in 1709, gave 20s. per annum to the poor. This sum is paid from Bartlewood Lodge in Ockbrook, the property of William Drury Lowe, Esq., and distributed by the churchwarden.

William James, in 1732, devised a close called the Moor Close, upon trust, to pay the yearly rent thereof to the poor of this parish. At the inclosure, a parcel of land containing 1A. 3R. 1P. was allotted to the overseers of the poor, in satisfaction for the Moor Close, and is now called the Poor's Close, and let for £4 4s. per annum, and distributed to the poor in sums of 1s. each.

James Johnson, is stated to have formerly given £10 to this parish, the interest to be distributed to poor widows on Christmas day. The principal having been appropriated to the use of the parish, 10s. is distributed by the parish officers according to the donor's intention.

Francis Gisborne's Charity.—The share, £6 10s., received by this parish, is applied by the vicar in the purchase of woollen cloth and flannel, which he distributes amongst the poor of the parish. (See Bradley.)

Church Lands.—By the award of the commissioners under the inclosure act, land containing 2A. 1. R. 2P. was allotted to the churchwardens, in satisfaction of all their lands and common rights, intended to be inclosed, and also in satisfaction of an old inclosure called Burrow Wood Close. This allotment, now called the Church Close, together with a house called the Church House, a small garden and orchard, containing about half an acre, are let for £15 per annum, used in aid of the church rates.

PENTRICH parish and township, with the township and chapelry of Ripley annexed, contains 3,839A. 2R. 4½P of land (which formed part of the endowments of Derley Abbey, given by Hubert Fitz Ralph), and in 1851 had 750 houses and 3,557 inhabitants, of whom 1,811 were males and 1,746 females; rateable value £9,811 1s. 6d.

PENTRICH, a township and well built village, 2¾ miles S. by W. from Alfreton, and 1½ miles N. by W. from Ripley, contains 1,678A. 0R. 38P. of land, and in 1851 had 94 houses, 486 inhabitants, of whom 247 were males and 239 females; rateable value £2,821 12s. 6d.; the Duke of Devonshire is lord of the manor, and owner of about three-parts of the township; the Butterley Company are also owners, The Nottingham Canal Company have a reservoir of 70 acres, 30 acres of which are in this parish, and the Cromford Canal Company have also a reservoir at Butterley Park, 7 acres of which are in Pentrich. The Midland Railway Company have lately purchased both these reservoirs. The Church, dedicated to St. Matthew, formerly belonged to Derley Abbey, it is a handsome ancient structure, and stands on a gentle eminence, has nave, chancel, side aisles, and square embattled tower, in which are three bells; the Font is very old, the date upon it being 1662. In the chest in the church, is preserved an old relic, said to be a petition got up on or about the year 1635, on which are the names of several parishioners, but owing to the then bad state of education, were only able to affix their marks, which are very curiously made, and all differently formed. Here are several monuments, one to Edmund Horne, whose family for many years resided at Butterley Hall, also one to Lieut. Wood, who was killed in action, at Meeanee, 17th of February, 1843, whilst cheering on his men in that unequal and dreadful conflict, he was son of the Rev. John Wood, late vicar of this parish, there is is also one to Madame Mawer, who died in 1776, she was the wife of the Rev. George Mawer, chaplain to the 2nd. battalion of the 1st royal regiment of foot, and youngest son of the Rev. John Mawer, D.D., who descended from the ancient and illustrious house of that name; here are also others to the Bradley and Jessop families. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's books at £6, now £165, has been augmented with £600 Queen Anne's bounty, and £1000 Parliamentary grant; the Duke of Devonshire is patron, and the Rev. George Pocock, incumbent. The vicarage a large handsome mansion near the church, was rebuilt of stone in in 1851, at a cost of about £1,000. The Independents have a small chapel here, it is a plain stone building with thatched roof, endowed with land at Ripley amounting to about £8 per year. In 1819, the Duke of Devonshire erected a National school for both sexes, and allows the master £5 per annum, besides which he receives £17 per annum, raised by subscriptions, for which he teaches 22 children. The school will hold about 150, and 70 attend. A library for the use of the parish is held at the school-room, which is supported by subscriptions, the number of volumes is about 300. The Cromford canal intersects this parish, and separates Pentrich from Ripley. In 1817, a riot broke out at this village. The general peace not having brought its expected plenty, numerous political meetings had been held, and parliamentary reform called for. In this state of public distress, Government sent spies to gain information from the disturbed districts, and one of these emissaries, a fellow of the name of Oliver, visited Nottinghamshire and the border of Derbyshire. On the 9th of June, at night, about 200 persons assembled, threatening all who would not join them with death. A servant man in Wingfield Park was shot, and after visiting Ripley, Codnor, and Eastwood, they were met by the military and dispersed, many of them being taken prisoners and afterwards tried at Derby, three of whom were executed, about twelve transported, and many imprisoned for different periods. Though Oliver's principal exertions were in Yorkshire, where many were arraigned for high treason, yet none were executed in that county. In 1643, when the royalists under the Marquis of Newcastle, attacked Wingfield Manor-house, and took it by storm—Sir John Gell, of Hopton, shortly afterwards commenced a vigorous assault on it with cannon planted on Pentrich common, which was eventually successful, and the besieged were compelled to surrender. On this common was a Roman encampment, it was nearly square and consisted of a double vallum.

Wainguiff, in this parish, was given by Ralph Fitz-Stephen to the Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem, for the erection of a house of that Order at this place.

Ripley, a township, chapelry, and improving market town, 10 miles N. from Derby, and 4 miles E. from Ambergate station, contains 2,161A. 1R. 6½P. of good land, of which 43A. 2R. 8P. are in roads; and in 1851 had 656 houses and 3,071 inhabitants, of whom 1,564 were males and 1,507 females; rateable value £6,989 9s. 0d. The principal owners are the Butterley Company, Wm. Drury Lowe, Esq., Rev. Wm. Peach, Thos. Peach, Esq., Jno. Sant, Esq., Jno. Topham, Esq., Fras. Wright, Esq., Jonathan Woolley, Esq., Rev. Jno. Wood, and Robert Wood, Esq., with several smaller owners. At Domesday survey it was the property of Ralph Fitz-Hubert, and afterwards given by him to the abbot and convent of Darley. The Church, dedicated to All-Saints, is a neat commodious structure, erected in 1820, and consecrated in 1821. Cost, £1,600, raised by voluntary subscription, towards which the patron gave £210, and the Rev. Jno. Wood, £100, aided with £375 from the Incorporated Society, for which 400 seats remain free and unappropriated for ever, besides which, there are 200 reserved seats. The living is a perpetual curacy of the value of £100, and was augmented in 1822 with £2,200 parliamentary grant. The Duke of Devonshire is the patron, Rev. James Clark, B.A., incumbent. New National schools for boys and girls were erected in 1856, at a cost of about £2,400, raised partly by subscriptions and partly by grants, as under: viz,, the National Society £100; the Committee of Council on Education, £800; and the Butterley Company the principal part of the remainder. The schools are substantial brick buildings with residences for the teachers, and will accommodate 300 pupils, the average attendance of boys is 140, and girls 75. The old National School, it is purposed to use as an Infant school. The Wesleyan Chapel, in Chapel street, was built in 1847, at a cost of £2,000. It is a handsome brick building of the mixed order, capable of seating 800 persons, with large sunday schools and minister's house attached. The Wesleyan Reformers Chapel, Wood street, formerly a lecture hall, but was purchased by them in 1854, and converted into a chapel at a cost of £300. It is a neat brick building with gallery at the north end, and will seat about 400 persons, there are school rooms attached in which an Infant's school is held; about 50 attend. General Baptist Chapel, Church street, erected in 1846, at a cost of £900, is a handsome brick building, with stone dressings in the Grecian style, with a small burying ground attached; will seat about 250 persons, and the same number of sunday school children can be accommodated in a portion of the building fitted up expressly for that purpose. Rev. William Gray, pastor. Primitive Methodist Chapel, Grosvenor place, erected in 1850, is about to be enlarged and schools added at an outlay of £200. Unitarian Chapel, Butterley Hill, a large handsome stone building capable of seating 400 hearers. The Rev. E. O. Jones, of Duffield, is the minister. The market, formerly on Wednesday, was chartered about the reign of Henry III, is now held by consent on a Saturday, and is well attended. Fairs are held on the Wednesday in Easter Week, and October 23rd, also a Statute for hiring servants November 5th. This is a very busy district, the Cromford canal passing its northern verge near Harthsay, where there are several large collieries, and where many of the inhabitants find employment; and also at the extensive works of the Butterley Company, for the manufacture of bar and sheet iron, steam engines, &c. Ripley is supplied with gas from the works of Mr. James Crossley, of the Derby road, who has here an extensive establishment for the manufacture of silk and cotton, and also for the patent candle wicks which require no snuffing, at which about 120 persons are employed. A branch of the Midland railway has been made from this town to Derby, joining the main line at Little Eaton; it was opened to the public for passenger traffic on the 1st September, 1856. The terminus is at the Green Hillocks, where there is a neat station with suitable offices. There are three trains each way, daily.

Butterley, a hamlet at the N.E. extremity of the township on the Alfreton and Derby road, 3 miles S. by W. from Alfreton. The extensive iron works of the Butterley Company were established about 1793. They consist of three blast furnaces, foundry, and steam engine manufactory, and give employment to a great number of persons. They have also extensive works at Codnor Park, and large collieries in the neighbourhood. The Cromford canal is conducted underneath these works through a tunnel of 2,966 yards in length, and in the neighbourhood is a reservoir covering 70 acres for supplying the Nottingham canal. The Erewash valley railway has a branch from Codnor Park to these works. Butterley Hall, a handsome mansion three quarters of a mile S.E. from Ripley, is the seat of Major John Jessop.

Harthsay, or Harthay, is a tithe-free lordship, where Messrs. J. & C. Mold have an extensive colliery, and wharf on the Cromford canal, one mile N.W. from Ripley; also the zinc and spelter works of Mr. E. A. Attwood.

Greenwich, a small village half a mile E. by N. from Ripley, on the Nottingham road, and 10 miles N. from Derby, where is Greenwich House, a large handsome mansion, the residence of W. H. Fletcher, Esq.

Marehay, a small village on the Derby road, 1 mile S.W. from Ripley, 8 miles N.N.E. from Derby. The Marehay and Whiteley Colliery Company have collieries here, and a wharf on the Little Eaton canal. Waingroves Hall, 1 mile S. E. of Ripley, is the property of Thomas Peach, Esq., M.D.

QUARNDON, a parish and scattered village, about 1 mile in length, in which are some neat and good houses, 3 miles N.N.W. from Derby, contains 962 acres of fertile land, a sandy peat, 121 houses and 529 inhabitants, of whom 251 were males and 278 females; rateable value, £2220. The Bishop of Lichfield is lord of the manor, which is a member of Little Chester, and a small owner; the Duke of Devonshire and Lord Scarsdale are principal owners. Miss Sitwell in 1845 erected a handsome mansion here, at a cost of about £3000. The Church is a small structure, with a turret, tower, and 2 bells; living, a perpetual curacy of the value of £63; Lord Scarsdale patron, Rev. Wm. Henry Barber, incumbent. The Church was erected in 1790, and was endowed with £3 per annum by Mr. Francis Radford. Lord Scarsdale gave the land and £100 towards the building. The late Joseph Humpstone, Esq., of Derby, gave £1,000 3 per cent. consols for the support of a resident minister, on condition that the Church Building Society would erect a parsonage house, in consequence of which the society, in 1844, erected a neat house, with suitable offices, near the Church, at a cost of about £850. This was formerly in the parish of St. Alkmund, Derby. Here is a free school for 20 poor children of Kedleston, Quarndon Weston, and Ravensdale park, (See Charities). Upwards of 30 years ago, the late William Evans, Esq., of Allestree, established 2 schools here, of which one is for infants; about 60 attend the two schools, which are supported by Mr. T. W. Evans, except the weekly pence. Kedleston Inn, on the Wirksworth road, 1 mile west of, and in Quarndon parish, is a large respectable posting establishment, commercial and family hotel, Mr. Wm. Gallimore, proprietor. The open lands were enclosed in 1808. Near the village, are sulphur baths, which are in great celebrity, and are now considered the most efficacious in the county.

CHARITIES.—Sir John Curzon, of Kedleston, in 1725, gave £20 per annum for instructing 20 poor children of Kedleston, Quarndon, Weston, and Ravensdale park—the master to have £16 per annum, and £4 to buy books, &c.—and he gave £10 per annum to the master to read prayers and to preach in Quarndon chapel, and further stated that he would have a rent charge of £30 per annum, issuing out of sum lands in Quarndon, settled for ever for the uses above named. It does not appear that a rent charge was ever settled upon the trusts in pursuance of the directions of the testator, so that the estates he devised to Nathaniel Curzon, the father of the first Lord Scarsdale, still remain subject to such charge. The premises appropriated to the use of the schoolmaster, consist of a good house and garden, with a croft and play-ground, altogether more than an acre of land. The master takes 20 poor children, who are appointed by Lord Scarsdale, but he is not in orders, and therefore has no claim to the £10 for reading prayers in the chapel.

Adrian Mundy's Charity.—The sum of £5 2s.; £3 thereof for the minister of Quarndon, £1 for the clerk, £1 for the poor, and 2s. for the person who distributes the same, are noticed with Radbourn.

Post Office, at John Walston's; letters arrive by foot post at 8.30 a.m., and are despatched to Derby at 6 p.m.

SANDIACRE, a parish, township, and large improving village, having several neat villa residences, is 9½ miles E. from Derby, with part of the township and chapelry of Risley, contains 1,191A. 1R. 6P. of fertile strong clay land, except 1 acre, the site of the Church, which is sand, from which arises the name. In 1851 it had 219 houses and 1,065 inhabitants, of whom 548 were males and 517 females; rateable value £3,050. The principal owners are John Streets, John Stevens, and L. Hall, Esqrs., Larges Hospital, Derby, and several smaller owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Giles', is a perpetual curacy, of the value of £120. Prebendary of Sandiacre, patron, and appropriator, Rev. Joseph L. Longmire, M.A., incumbent. The living has been augmented with £400 Queen Anne's bounty, and £1,000 parliamentary grant. The Church is a handsome structure, with a nave and chancel, a neat spire, and 3 bells. In 1855 it was repewed with open seats, the porch rebuilt, and repaired throughout, at an expense of about £500, when 56 additional sittings were obtained. It is a mixture of various, styles, from the Norman downwards, though the decorated predominates, with some little remains of stained glass in the windows, and 3 elegant stone stalls. It is at the north extremity of the village, on a commanding eminence. There are 20A. 3R. 15P. of glebe, and Mrs. Foxcroft, the lessee of the prebendal land, (247A.) pays the resident clergyman £25 per annum A parochial school was built in 1848, by subscription, at which about 60 children attend. Methodist chapel, erected 1826, a neat brick building, cost £580, will seat 700 persons; Primitive Methodist chapel, erected 1833, will seat 200; the Wesleyan Reformers chapel, a small brick building, erected in 1851. The Erewash canal and the Erewash Branch of the Midland Railway runs close to the south end of the village, and has a small station here; and the Derby and Nottingham road also passes at that end, a little to the south of which the Derby canal forms its junction with the Erewash. Here is an extensive starch manufactory. Sandiacre clouds are some white rocks, which at a distance have the appearance of clouds. Here are two Odd Fellows' lodges, and one benefit society. Feast, Sunday after September 12. Springfield House, 9 miles E. from Derby, a handsome brick mansion, pleasantly situated on a gentle eminence, commanding some delightful views; is the seat and property of John Streets, Esq. This manor was held at Domesday survey by Toli and Osmund; in Henry III.'s reign, it was the property of William de Grey, and in 1268 had the grant of a market and fair. Is was carried by co-heiresses to the Leakes, but was sold after the death of Nicholas Leake, Earl of Scarsdale.

RISLEY, partly in this parish. (See Risley, in Wilne parish).

CHARITIES.—Catharine Charlton, in 1720, gave to the poor £60 vested in 1786, in 4 trustees, and producing £2 8s.

Elizabeth Grey, in 1721, gave £10 to be distributed to the poor. It appears that till 1802, 10s. a-year was paid by the overseers as the interest of Mrs. Grey's legacy, but there is no account of any further payment. It is considered that, probably, the principal sum formed part of the consideration, £36 4s., paid for the purchase of 5 cottages, which were conveyed by indenture, 20th April 1803; if so, it appears the interest ought to have been continued by the overseers, who have the use of the cottages for parish paupers.

Risley School, (See Risley, Wilne parish).—This parish is entiled to the benefits of this school.

Post Office, at Samuel Lakins'; letters arrive from Derby at 7.30 a.m.; and from Nottingham at 6.0 p.m.; are despatched to Derby at 6.0 p.m.; and to Nottingham at 7.30 a.m.

Railway Conveyance.

Midland Railway Co. Station, (Erewash Valley Branch) ¼ mile S. of the village; trains to Derby, Nottingham and Mansfield, 3 each way daily; on Sundays 2 each way; Chs. Grundy, Station master.

SAWLEY parish, with the hamlet of Wilsthorpe, and the township and chapelry of Long Eaton, contains 3,926A. 0R 13P. of land, mostly a light fertile sand and loam; and in 1851 had 469 houses, and 1,934 inhabitants, of whom 950 were males, and 984 females; rateable value, £5,290 15s. 6d.

SAWLEY, is a large village and township, on the Leicestershire border, 8½ miles S.S.E. from Derby, and 4 miles N. by W. from Kegworth, contains, with the hamlet of Wilsthorpe, 1,915A. 1R. of sandy land, and in 1851 had 249 houses, and 1001 inhabitants, of whom 472 were males, and 529 females; rateable value, £2,290 15s. 6d. The Earl of Harrington, and Wm. Bennett, Esq., are the principal owners: the former is the lord of the manor. The widow of the late Rev. Spencer Madin, is owner of the prebendal manor and appropriate rectory, with 245A. of land. The tithes at the expiration of 20 years from the death of Dr. Gardner, will lapse into the hands of the ecclesiastical commissioners. The Church, dedicated to All Saints, is a large venerable edifice, with nave, chancel, side aisles, embattled tower, surmounted by a lofty spire, and three bells. An ancient carved oak screen separates the nave and chancel. In 1838, a large gallery was erected, and an organ added at a cost of about £400. There are several ancient monuments of ecclesiastics, without inscriptions, one to Lawrence Bothe, Bishop of Durham, afterwards Archbishop of York, and of John Bothe, Bishop of Exeter, and that of Robert Bothe, Archdeacon of Durham, afterwards Bishop of Exeter, who died 1478, and Ralph Bothe, Archdeacon of York. In the south aisle is an altar tomb in memory of Richard Shylton, merchant of the staple at Calais, 1510, with various other neat tablets. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £266, has been augmented with £400, benefactions, and £2000 parliamentary grant, is in the peculiar jurisdiction of the prebendary of Lichfield. The Bishop of Lichfield is patron, and the Rev. Samuel Hey, M.A., incumbent. The Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and Baptists, have each places of worship here. The latter, a neat and handsome building, was rebuilt on the site of the old one in 1843. In connection with this chapel is a day school, endowed by Mr. Wm. Parkinson with £15 per annum, and partly supported by subscription; average attendance, 70. A National school was erected in 1771, for boys and girls, will accommodate 100; about 80 attend. Bishop Longespee, in 1258, had a charter for a market on Tuesdays, and a fair for three days at Michaelmas, which have long been discontinued. Twenty warp lace machines, and 6 hosiery frames, are employed in the village. Here are three Sick societies. A Feast is held Sunday after St. Martin. The river Derwent unites its waters with the Trent, in this parish, and is crossed by the Erewash canal. Harrington Bridge, across the Trent, on the Nottingham and Ashby-de-la-Zouch road, was completed in 1790. The first stone was laid 1786. It consists of 6 arches of stone, which, with the approaches, is about 100 yards long, and it is 15 feet wide, with a toll house. The first bridge was washed down by the great flood before it was completed, previous to which here was a ford. The present bridge was erected by shareholders, at a cost of about £20,000. The Midland railway intersects the parish, and has a small station about one mile distant. Cliff Farm, containing 106A. 0R. 37P., the property of Mrs. Madin, in this township, is locally situated in the county of Leicester.

WILSTHORPE is a small village and hamlet, 8 miles E.S.E. from Derby 1½ miles N. from Sawley, near the Nottinghamshire border, contains 600A. 0R. 8P. of fertile land, of the rateable value of £561 10s. 6d. Earl of Harrington lord of the manor and principal owner. Mrs. Trowell is also a small owner. The Derby and Erewash canal passes through the hamlet. Mrs. Madin is lessee of the tithe, which amounts to £109 6s.

The prebendary of Sawley in Lichfield cathedral, contains the following places, viz.: Sawley, Breaston, Long Eaton, Risley, Wilne, Draycott, Hopwell, and Wilsthorpe, which contain together 8162A. 3R. 16P. of land, 850 houses, and 4,028 inhabitants, of the rateable value of £17222 1s. 5d. At Domesday survey, the manor of Sawley belonged to the Bishop of Chester. His successors, the Bishops of Lichfield and Coventry, have ever since possessed it. The Earl of Harrington is the present lessee of the manor of Sawley, including Little Wilne, Long Eaton, Wilsthorpe, and Draycott.

LONG EATON, 10 miles E.S.E. from Derby, and 7½ miles S.W. from Nottingham, is an extensive and thriving village, township, and chapelry, in which many new houses have been erected within the last ten years. It is situated on the Ashby-de-la-Zouch and Nottingham road, where the river Erewash has its confluence with the Trent, at the north-east extremity of the township. It contains 2010A. 3R. 13P. of sandy land, and in 1851 had 220 houses, and 933 inhabitants, of whom 478 were males, and 455 females; rateable value, £3,000. The freeholders are lords of the manor, the Earl of Harrington having received an allotment of 8A. of land at the inclosure, in lieu of his manorial rights. The principal owners are, Wm. Hopkins, Esq., Miss Trowell, John Curzon, Esq., Henry Howitt, Esq., the Rev. A. Williams, John Holbrooke, and Samuel Bennett. The Church, dedicated to St. Lawrence, is a small neat edifice, with nave, chancel, and gallery at the west end, a tower with short spire, and three bells. It was repewed and repaired in 1831, at a cost of £300, and will seat 250 persons, of which 190 are free. In 1838, it was made a parochial chapelry, which only pays to the reparation of its own church. An organ was put up in 1841. In the church are two marble tablets, one to the Rev. P. W. Tallents, who was curate of this place several years and much respected by the inhabitants; the other to John C. Hopkins, Esq., of Kegworth. The living is a perpetual curacy, within the peculiar jurisdiction of Sawley, in the cathedral of Lichfield. The prebendary of Sawley having fallen into the hands of the ecclesiastical commissioners, they are now the patrons and impropriators. The Rev. S. Hey, M.A., incumbent, for whom the Rev. J. Parker, B.A., officiates. 249A. 3R. 33P. of glebe and common was allotted to the prebendary in lieu of tithe. In 1826, a neat National school for boys, girls, and infants, was erected of brick, at a cost of £250; it will accommodate 150; about 110 attend. In 1830, the Wesleyan Methodists erected a large brick chapel here, to seat about 500 persons, which has since passed into the hands of the Reformers, since which the Wesleyans have built a new chapel, at a cost of £300, a plain building, will seat about 200 hearers. The Primitive Methodists have also a small chapel here which will hold 200, erected in 1854. This place has become a great railway station, as four lines meet here, those to London, Derby, Nottingham; and the main line, which is the principal line for the traffic in coal and other minerals, and is capable of extension to the north. The Midland railway have stores in Long Eaton Field, for the manufacture of railway sheets, &c. The chief trade is lace making, there being 50 lace machines employed here. The Feast is nearest Sunday to St. Bartholomew. Fairs, last Thursday in March, and first Thursday in November, established 1856. Gas Works were established in 1853, at the sole expense of Mr. William Bush. Here are several Odd Fellows' lodges and Friendly Societies.

CHARITIES.—Thomas Hollingworth, in 1675, gave a close adjoining to Bramcote, to the poor of Sawley, Long Eaton, and Bramcote. 17s. per annum to each place was paid from Pilkington Close. This close was exchanged by the poor-law commissioners, in 1842, for a piece of land called the Clays, 6 acres, which is now let for £21 a year, which is equally divided between the above-named parishes.

Francis Hacker, in 1676, gave to the town of Sawley £200, to be lodged in trust with the Company of Salters of London, until they find a convenient purchase to lay out the same; for the first five years only 40s. to be distributed to the poorest women and men of the town, and that £50 be added to the stock. This sum was laid out in 19 acres of land and barn in Barrow-on Soar, Leicestershire, now let for £25 yearly, and an allotment of Charnwood Forest, about 1819, of rather less than half an acre, which the first occupant had for seven years rent free, but now pays £1 per annum, About 20 tons of coals are provided and distributed by half a ton to each person at Christmas. Four coats and six gowns of coarse cloth are provided every other year, and given to poor persons. 40s. is paid towards the salaries of a schoolmaster and mistress of the National school.

Joseph Towle, in 1721, left Lucy Butt close charged with the payment ef 20s. a year for ever to the poor of Sawley. It forms a part of a home close attached to a house the property of Mr. John Smith, purchased by his father of Richard Towle. The 20s. has not been paid for upwards of 30 years.

Bread Money.—One Fosbrooke gave for bread for the poor of Sawley, 10s. per annum. which was paid out of an estate of Mr. Parkinson's till about 15 years ago. In consequence of the minister of Sawley then requiring the distribution to be made at the church, it was withdrawn. The late Mr. Parkinson on examining his title deeds, found no mention of the gift, nor have we any evidence to shew that his estate is liable to this charge. Mr. Wm. Bennett, successor to Mr. Parkinson, still continues this charity, and gives 20s. yearly to the poorest widows and widowers of Sawley.

Risley School—(See Risley, Wilne parish.)—The hamlet of Wilsthorpe, in Sawley township, is entitled to partake of the benefit of this school.

Township of Long Eaton Poor's Close.—About two acres, in the parliamentary returns, 1786, is mentioned as given by some person unknown, and vested in the hands of the freeholders. It is now in the occupation of James Huss, who pays £5 to the poor, and 6s. 8d. to the perpetual curate of Sawley, for preaching a sermon on the first Sunday in lent in Long Eaton chapel. Many years ago some timber was sold from the estate for £21, which, together with £20 supposed to be Howitt's donation, is now vested in the hands of Mr. John Burton. It appears to us these sums ought not to remain on personal security, and that an account should be kept distinct from the poor's rate. The whole should be given in coals about Christmas, but we understand it has not been paid for several years. John Howitt gave £20 to the poor of this township, in 1786, producing 20s. per annum.

E. from Derby, and on which Derby races were formerly held, contains 835A. 1R. 35P. of land, including 2A. 2R. 34P. of roads, and 12A. 3R. 15P. in drains; rateable value £1,388 3s. 6d. The Grand Stand formerly stood in a field opposite to Mrs. Eliz., Bancroft's, but has been taken down several years. This moor was enclosed in 1802, when the parishes and townships of Alvaston, Arleston, and Sinfin, Barrow, Boulton, Chellaston, Normanton, Osmaston, and Swarkeston, had right of stray upon it, and each had an allotment awarded, according to their respective size and claim. Sir J. H. Crewe, Bart., Richard Sale, Esq., Sir Robt. Wilmot, Bart., Messrs. Wright, James Sutton, Esq., Rev. Henry Des Vœux, Mrs. Eliz. Bancroft, and Mrs. Goodall, are the principal owners; with several smaller owners. The Derby canal crosses it, and occupies 8A. 3R. 23P. There are two farm houses and five cottages scattered on the common. The resident farmers are Elizabeth Bancroft and James Sherratt. The other land is occupied by farmers in the neighbouring parishes.

SHARDLOW AND GREAT WILNE form a joint township, and was made a new ecclesiastical district or parish in October, 1839.

SHARDLOW, is a considerable village on the Derby and Loughborough turnpike road, and the north bank of the river Trent, from 6 to 7 miles S.E. by E. from Derby; it contains 1,207A. 3R. 27P. of land, and in 1851 had 213 houses and 1,121 inhabitants, of whom 520 were males and 601 females; rateable value £3,393 18s. 6d. Edward A. Holden, Esq., is lord of the manor, and with James Sutton, Esq., Mr. Thos. Cowlishaw, Messrs. Soresby, the Earl of Harrington, Rev. Wm. Roby Burgin, Mr. James Hardy, and James and Charles Every Swindell, Esqs., are owners. The Trent and Mersey canal runs through the village, and joins the river Trent about half a mile below. On its banks and branches are several extensive coal and timber wharfs, with a large warehouse for iron, another for cheese, corn, and salt, and other warehouses belonging to three large carrying establishments; for many years this was an improving place, but since the opening of the Midland and other railways, the business of this place has been gradually declining. Cavendish Bridge, over the Trent, about a quarter of a mile S.E. from the village, is a substantial stone bridge of five elliptical arches, erected in 1771, at a cost of £3,333, It is 6 yards wide, and with the approaches 82 yards long, The Church, a handsome Gothic stone structure, with nave, chancel, a pinnacled tower and 6 bells; it is partly pewed, and a part open seats, has a gallery at the west end with an organ, was erected by voluntary contibutions, at a cost of £6,000. The living is a rectory, value £300, in the patronage of James Sutton, Esq., and incumbency of the Rev. John Eaton, M.A. 82A. 0R. 8P. of glebe belong to the rector. The Baptists have a small chapel here. A school, with a residence for the master, was erected by voluntary subscriptions in 1810; in 1838 it was taken down, and a handsome parochial school, with a good house in the centre for the master, was erected of brick, at a cost of about £900, raised by voluntary subscriptions. The boys' room will accommodate 60, average attendance 46, and the girls' room 60, about 40 attend. Besides the childrens' pence, the master receives £40 per annum, and the mistress £22 1s. There are 40 to each school who pay 1d. each per week, and the rest pay 2d. and 4d. The school is taught on the National plan. The Hall, a large handsome stone mansion, is the seat and property of James Sutton, Esq. Here are two Odd-Fellows' Lodges, and a Female Benefit Society, and an extensive Poor-law Union. Feast, third Sunday after November 5th.

SHARDLOW POOR-LAW UNION was formed in 1837, and consists of 49 parishes and townships, having 57 guardians, who meet every Monday, at 10 o'clock, at the Union Workhouse. The population comprised in the union, in 1851 was 32,322, of whom 15,787 were males, and 16,535 females, and had 6,851 inhabited houses, 270 uninhabited and 19 building. 34 townships are in Derbyshire, 8 in Leicestershire, and 7 in Nottinghamshire. It is divided into two districts with relieving officers, nine medical and five registration districts. The workhouse is a large handsome brick building, in the form of the letter L, situated on the London road, 6 miles S.E. by E. from Derby, calculated to accommodate 280. The gardens and other premises occupy 2A. 2R. 10P. of land. The cost of the structure and land was £6,000.

STANTON-BY-DALE, a township, parish, and well built village, pleasantly situated on an eminence, 9 miles E. by N. from Derby, contains 1,491A. 1R. 17P. of land, rateable value £3,250 14s., and in 1851 had 122 houses and 689 inhabitants, of whom 366 were males and 323 females. Earl Stanhope is lord of the manor and sole owner, except of 11 acres of glebe, and 1 acre which belongs to Lord Middleton. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, is a neat edifice, with nave, chancel, north aisle, low pinnacled tower with 4 bells, and a gallery at the west end. The altar-piece is a painting of the entombing of Christ. There are several monumental tablets of the Pilkington family, one of which is to Matthew Pilkington, L.L.B., prebendary of Lichfield, who is buried in the chancel with several of his relatives; he died November 4th, 1765. The living is an endowed rectory. The great tithes have been commuted into an annual payment of £300 per annum, the Rev. John Garton Howard, M.A., is the incumbent, and chaplain to Earl Stanhope and, resides at the rectory house, a neat mansion, nearly rebuilt by the present incumbent. A National school for girls and infants was erected in 1855, at a cost of about £500, towards which the late Lord Stanhope gave the site and £100. It is a handsome brick building containing 2 school rooms, and a residence for the teacher, the average attendance is about 45 girls and 30 infants. The Erewash and Nutbrook canal, which belongs to Earl Stanhope runs through the parish, as does also the Erewash Branch of the Midland Railway, and has a small station at Stanton Gate, about 1 mile N. from the village. Here is a colliery, and some very extensive iron works are being carried on near the canal. Near the centre of the village, on a pedestal with four steps, stands a stone cross, having a plain octagonal shaft about 9 feet high, with a fleur de lis at the top, bearing date 1632. In 1789, a club room was erected by subscription for the use of the male and female benefit societies. Feast, Sunday before Michaelmas day. The manor was purchased in the reign of Queen Elizabeth by Michael Willoughby, Esq., from the Babingtons. The Church of Stanton belonged to the Dale Abbey, to which monastery three bovats of land had been given. Sir Henry Willoughby gave the tithes of hay to the minister, reserving a rent of 5s. yearly to himself and his heirs.

CHARITIES.—Alms Houses were built at Stanton, in 1711, by Mrs. Winifrid Middlemore, in pursuance to the will of her husband, Joseph Middlemore, for four persons. In 1720, Mrs. W. Middlemore conveyed, on trust, certain lands to apply the yearly profits towards building alms houses, keeping them in repair, and to support such poor persons as from time to time should be placed in the said alms houses. Two others were built in 1735, by Mr. Greogry Gregory. The property conists of an estate at Sutton-in-Ashfield of 61A. 0R. 25P. of land, let for £63 16s.; and an estate in Long Bennington of 32A. 0R. 28P. of land, with a barn erected thereon, let for £41 15s. per annum. In 1825 there was a balance in the hands of Geregory Gregory, Esq., being the only surviving trustee, a new trust was created, and two additional alms houses have been built. The present trustees are Sir Robt. H. Bromley, Bart., Stoke Hall; J. S. Sherwin, Esq., Bramcote Hills; the Right Hon. Earl Stanhope; and the Rev. J. G. Howard, Stanton rectory.

Poor's Lands.—In 1706, Matthew Smith, Esq., in consideration of £35 4s., conveyed on trust a close at Kilbourne, in the parish of Horsley, called the Blackwalls or Netherhagg; the rents of the said close to be within 10 days from the time of payment delivered to the overseers of Stanton, to be by them distributed to the poor. The property consists of three parcels of land, together about 4 acres, and a cottage built by the tenant, who for a great length of time held the same at the yearly rent of £4. Michael Baguley the acting trustee, appointed with three others in November, 1820, distributes the proceeds amongst the poor. It is not known whence the money arose with which the purchase was made.

Risley School.—The inhabitants of this parish are entitled to the benefit of this school, of which the incumbent of Stanton is ex-officio, and two parishioners are by election trustees.—(See Risley.)

Midland Railway Co. Station, Erewash Valley Branch, 1 mile N. from the village; trains between Derby, Nottingham, and Mansfield, 3 each way daily; on Sundays, 2 each way, Samuel Buxton, station mst

WESTON-UPON-TRENT is a small rural village and parish, 7 miles S.E. by S. from Derby, contains about 2,000 acres of strong fertile clay land, 77 houses, and 399 inhabitants, of whom 202 were males, and 197 females; rateable value, £3,832 3s. 5d. Sir Robert Wilmot Bart., is lord of the manor and principal owner. Thomas Pares, Esq., and E. A. Holden, Esq., are also owners. The Trent and Mersey Canal passes through the parish, and occupies 24A. 1R. 28P. of land, for which it is rated at the valne of £600. The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a rectory, valued in the King's book £11 16s. 3d., now £594. Lawrence Hall, Esq., patron, Rev. Robert N. French, incumbent, for whom the Rev. F. W. Moore, officiates. It is a venerable stone edifice, embosomed in trees near the cliff, and has nave, chancel, side aisles, and embattled tower, surmounted by a spire with three bells. The seats are principally open. In the chancel is a splendid monument of Richard Sale, L.L.B., prebendary of Lichfield and rector of Weston, who died in 1625, and of Dorothy his wife. It is in three compartments, occupied by a male and female figures, and eight children, all kneeling. There is also one to the Rev. Robert Holden, rector, who died in 1739. The rector has 307A. of glebe and tithe allotment. The Baptists and Wesleyans have small chapels here, the former erected in 1845, and the latter in 1846. A school was established in 1844, and Sir Robert Wilmot, Bart., pays for 6 boys. The Hall, a large old brick mansion with stone dressings, is now occupied as a farm-house. It was formerly a seat of the Roper family, by whom it was built in the early part of the 17th century. It was afterwards in the family of Lee; of whom it was purchased by Thomas Pares, Esq., about the year 1790. The house and about 6A. of land was surrounded by a deep moat. We understand that only one third of the house was built; had the original plan been carried out, it would have been an immense pile of buildings. In 1847, Mr. George Towle, the present occupier, found three handsome carved oak shields amongst the rubbish, in one of the lumber rooms, all of which were painted blue; upon having them cleaned they were found to contain respectively the arms of Charles II, Sir Thomas Fairfax, and Lord Huntingtower. They are still in Mr. Towle's possession. Cliff Inn, a noted place, half a mile west, stands on a cliff, near which the canal and river Trent pass. At this cliff is an excellent quarry of good building stone, occupied by Mr. Wm. Shreeve, and a ferry to King's Newton. The scenery round Weston is very picturesque, and particularly from Weston Hill Farm. At Domesday survey this manor was in the hands of the Crown, it was given afterwards to Hugh Lupus, and by him to the abbot and convent of Chester. After the Reformation it was granted to Sir William Paget, it afterwards came into the Holden family; about the year 1649, an ancestor of Sir Robert Wilmot purchased the greatest part of the estate.

CHARITIES.—Ann Holden, in 1766, gave to the rector and churchwardens of Weston £50, to be disposed of by them in such proportions towards the relief and maintenance of the poor, as they should deem most proper. This legacy, with the sum of £10 given by some person unknown, is in the Derby Savings' bank.

WILLINGTON, is a pleasant well-built village and parish, situated on the north bank of the Trent, 6½ miles S.W. from Derby, and 4½ N.E. from Burton-upon-Trent. Here are several neat mansions, occupied by the Rev. Francis Ward Spilsbury, George Smallwood, Esq., and Mrs. Francis Allsopp. The two first named are the property of the Rev. F. W. Spilsbury. The parish contains, 1,193A. 0R. 38P. of light fertile land, and in 1851 had 109 houses, and 442 inhabitants, of whom 227 were males, and 215 females; rateable value, £3,743 6s. Sir Robert Burdett, Bart., is lord of the manor and principal owner. Etwall and Repton corporation and the Rev. F. W. Spilsbury, are also owners. The Grand Trunk canal passes near the north side of the village, on which Messrs. Bass and Smith, of Horninglow, have a large warehouse and coal wharf. The Birmingham and Derby railway (West branch of the Midland) passes through the village, and occupies 15A. of land, and has a neat station. The booking office is a small brick building, the roof of which is just level with the rails, on account of the height of the embankment, and the line crossing two of the streets, by stone bridges, the means of approach from the booking office to the platform, is by a flight of 31 stone steps, near which are two good inns, with stabling and every other convenience, viz.: the Rising Sun and Green Man. In 1839, a good substantial bridge of 5 arches was erected across the Trent to Repton, on which there is a toll house; it was built by subscription, at a cost of £9,000, and the approaches to it about £3,000, for the construction of which the public are much indebted to Mr. Stephen Glover, of Derby. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, is an ancient stone edifice, with nave, chancel, and pinnacled tower, in which are three bells, and contains several neat tablets. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £4 17s. 3d., now £82, has been augmented with £800 Queen Anne's bounty, vested in land at Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Leicestershire. The corporation of Etwall and Repton are patrons, and the Rev. Wm. Findlay, incumbent, for whom a vicarage is about to be erected. The Baptists and Wesleyan Methodists have each places of worship here. A small school was erected in 1831, by the Rev. F. W. Spilsbury, who principally supports the same. The Odd Fellows have a lodge, and there is also a Sick society here. The feast is held first Sunday after the 19th Sept.

The manor at Domesday survey belonged partly to the King and partly to Ralph Fitzhubert. King Henry II. gave a manor to Burton Abbey. The other manor appears to have been given with the church by the family of Willington, to the prior and convent of Repton, to whom the tithes were appropriated in 1223. Wm. Westcote conveyed this manor, about the year 1554, to Sir John Porte, founder of Repton school.

CHARITIES.—Sudbury Rent Charge.—The yearly sum of £2 is paid by the agent of Lord Vernon, as a rent charge on some part of the Sudbury estate, which is distributed on St. Thomas's day.

In the Parliamentary Returns of 1786, 10s. per annum is mentioned, supposed to be a charge on some property at Barrow. The sum is paid through the Burton bank and distributed on St. Thomas's day. There is also mention of a donation of land by some person unknown, producing £1 per annum. The sum is now paid by Mr. Holbrooke, tanner, at Repton, and distributed as above.

Benjamin Spilsbury, in 1815, left a rent charge of £5, out of a building in Willington and a piece of land used as a wharf, upon trust that they should distribute the same to poor men and women belonging to the parish of Willington. This sum is given to 20 poor men or women about February.

John Gisborne's Charity.—(See St. Werburgh, Derby.)—The portion applicable to this parish is for buying coats or gowns, and a distribution of money, Findern School.—(See Mickleover.)—The poor of this parish are entitled to send their children to this school.

CHARITIES.—Church Land.—The rent of a piece of land in the manor of Draycott, in this parish, comprising 60 yards in length, and 20 yards 1 foot in breadth, is situated at the south east corner of the Wycrofts. The owner pays 6s. to the churchwardens for this land. The boundaries are to be ascertained by proper marks and a fair rent procured.

BREASTON is a large village and parochial chapelry 7¾ miles E.S.E. from Derby, contains about 1,447 acres of fertile land, enclosed in 1757, 156 houses and 680 inhabitants, of whom 329 were males and 351 females; rateable value £3,317 10s. 9d. The Rev. John Hancock Hall, executors of John Attenborough, M.D., J. W. Chapel, gent., William Charlton, Esq., Mr. Thomas Harrison, Mr. John Stevens, Risley school, Burton school, and the Earl of Harrington are owners, the former, lord of the manor.

This manor, BRAIDESTUNE, at Domesday survey was held with Risley, by Roger de Busli. The chapel, dedicated to St. Michael, is a perpetual curacy, annexed to Risley, value £119, has been augmented with £200 benefactions, £600 Queen Anne's bounty, and £1,000 parliamentary grant. Bishop of Lichfield, patron; Rev. Henry Banks Hall, LL.B., of Risley, incumbent; Rev. J. C. Jones, curate. The chapel, a venerable edifice, has nave, chancel, south aisle, a low tower surmounted by a lofty spire with three bells, was new pewed and a gallery erected and repaired in 1840, at a cost of £200. The font is a rich specimen of Derbyshire spar, dated 1750, with a fluted column and bowl. The chapel yard was enclosed with a neat iron railing in 1823, when it was consecrated for a burial ground. The tithes were commuted in 1842, for £368, and will lapse into the hands of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners in 20 years, from the death of the late Dr. Gardener. Here are 22A. of glebe land. The New Connexion Methodists have a chapel built 1803, and enlarged 1816, and the Primitive Methodists have one built 1852. Twenty lace machines and 40 hosiery frames are employed in the village. Feast, nearest Sunday to Old Michaelmas day.

John Charleton, in 1711, gave £100 to purchase lands, the rents thereof to be distributed on Christmas day, to the poor of Breaston. In 1715, £88 was invested in two closes in East Bridgford, called the Pingle close, and Kirkhill close. In the same year a further sum of £15 was laid out in lands lying in the open fields, which were enclosed in 1796. The property now consists of two fields, each containing 4A., now let for £16 per annum, and the rents are distributed amongst the poor, in sums varying from 2s. to 7s. in clothing.

Draycott is a large and well-built village and joint township with Church or Little Wilne, 7 miles E.S.E. from Derby, contains 1,397a. 3r. 3p. of land mostly a light sand, 245 houses, and 1,161 inhabitants, of whom 568 were males, and 593 females; rateable value, £5,163 5s. 2d. Earl of Harrington, Admiral Sir G. Mundy, Mrs. Sarah Scott, the Prebendary of Sawley (216a.), the Rev. F. N. Highmore, John Curzon, Esq., Messrs. Towle, and Mr. James Nutt, are owners. The former is lord of the manor. The Nottingham railway runs on the north side of the village, and occupies 11a. 3r. 18p. of land, and the Canal, 58a. 2r. 9p. A part of the township pays a tithe rent charge of £9 13s. 6d. to Thos. Pares, Esq. In 1800, the late Mr. Towle established a cotton mill here. The present factory was erected in 1814, and enlarged in 1818, and a steam engine of 16 horse power added. In 1842, a lace factory was erected in which about 40 machines are worked, since which time a doubling shed has been built, which gives employment to thrice the number of hands employed before; another mill near the Canal, with a steam engine of 16 horses power is at present unoccupied. The Wesleyan Methodists have a large handsome chapel, built 1830, at a cost of £700, to seat 300 persons. The former chapel, built in 1800, of which John Nelson laid the first stone, is now used as a Sunday school; 100 attend, and a day school for poor children is supported by subscription. In 1854, the Parochial schools were erected for boys and girls, at a cost of £900, raised by subscriptions, aided by a grant from Government of £386. They are large and commodious buildings of brick and stone, and afford accommodation for 180 children; about 120 attend, of which number sixty are educated at the expense of Messrs. Towle. Here are two Odd Fellows' lodges, and two Sick societies. Feast, nearest Sunday to St. Michael.

Poor's Money.—A sum of £9 was left by some donor unknown: 9s. interest is paid for it, distributed on St. Thomas's day, in sums of 3d. and 6d. to poor widows and others of the township.

Hopwell township, 7 miles E. from Derby, contains 4 houses, and 42 inhabitants, of whom 20 were males, and 22 females, and 610a. of strong clay land; rateable value, £950. Thos. Pares, Esq. is the owner, and resides at the hall, a handsome brick mansion, seated on an eminence, within a well-wooded park of about 90a., from which extensive views into Nottinghamshire, Leicestershire, Northamptonshire, and Staffordshire, are obtained. The tithe is paid by a modus of £10 per annum, to the incumbent of Wilne.

The manor (Opewelle) was held by Ralph Fitz Hubert, at Domesday survey, under the Bishop of Chester. In 1296, it was held by Ralph de Shirley, under the Earl of Lancaster. It passed to the Sacheverells, and in 1661 Ferdinando Sacheverell bequeathed it to his cousin Henry Hayes, gent., who sold it in 1731, to Bache Thornhill, Esq., who, in 1734, alienated it to Sir Bibye Lake, Bart., whose grandson Sir Jas. Winter Lake, Bart., sold it in 1784, to the father of the present owner.

Risley parochial chapelry and neat rural village and township, situated 8 miles E. by S. from Derby, contains 836a. of rich strong clay land, and in 1851 had 49 houses, and 211 inhabitants, of whom 105 were males, and 106 females; rateable value, £2,500 10s. 0d. Rev. John Hancock Hall, Mr. Thos. Harrison, Thos. Pares, Esq., Mrs. Mary Fellows, Mr. Henry Porter, Rev. Samuel Hey, Mr. Joseph Fletcher, Mr. Thos. Cooper, and others are also owners. The former is lord of the manor. A tithe rent charge of £226 1s. is paid to the lessee for the Wilne part, and a rent charge and modusses of £4, amounting to £30 15s. 7d., is paid to the lessee of the prebendary of Sandiacre. Here are 7a. of glebe. The Chapel, dedicated to All Saints, was built by Michael Willoughby, Esq., in 1593. It is a neat edifice, with nave, chancel, handsome pinnacled tower and three bells. It was thoroughly repaired, repewed, and a north aisle added in 1841, at a cost of £545, defrayed by a subscription of the patron and inhabitants, aided by a grant from the Derby Diocesan Church Building society. The font is of beautiful Derbyshire marble, richly ornamented. There is a small gallery at the west end, and the east window is composed of beautiful stained glass, representing St. Peter and Paul. The chancel is divided from the nave by a neat screen, and here are two marble tablets to the memory of the Hall family. The living is a perpetual curacy, now valued at £160, has been augmented with £200 benefactions, £400 Queen Anne's bounty, and £200 parliamentary grant. The Bishop of Lichfield, patron, Rev. Henry Banks Hall, LL.B., incumbent. Risley Park, which centains 24A. 3R. 36P. of land, is a tithe-free estate, in Sandiacre parish. The poor of Risley have free access to a library suppported at the sole expense of the Rev. H. B. Hall. Feast, Sunday before November 5th.

Sir Hugh Willoughby, a native of this place, was employed to discover the North West Passage, in the reign of Henry VI., but was frozen to death with his crew, in 1554. At the Domesday survey, Roger de Busli held this manor, but Levinus possessed one-third in the reign of Edward I. William Morteyne held it under the Paveley family. The heiress of his son Roger, brought it to Sir Richard de Willoughby, one of the justices, and some time chief justice of the common pleas. His younger son Hugh settled at Risley, where his descendants continued for several generations. Henry Willoughby, Esq., was created a Baronet in 1611. It became the property of Sir Thos. Ashton, Bart., who married Anne, one of the co-heiresses. The manor was purchased of Sir Willoughby Aston, Bart., by John Hancock, Esq.

Risley School.—Michael Willoughby, and Catharine his wife, gave 20 nobles (£6 13s. 4d. per annum, which was increased by Sir Henry Willoughby, their grandson, to 20 marks, (£13 6s. 8d.,) towards maintaining a schoolmaster at Risley. Mrs Elizabeth Gray, their descendant, having built a school-house, with a habitation for the master and usher, in the year 1718, endowed the schools with lands, then worth £50 per annum, for teaching all the children of Risley, and the sons only of the inhabitants of Breaston, Sandiacre, Dale Abbey, Stanton near Dale, Wilsthorp, Draycott, and Hopwell, to read, write, and cast accounts, and the head master to teach grammar and the classics to such boys as are qualified and desirous to learn—both masters to be constantly resident in the school house. The said Elizabeth Gray, in 1720, gave the sum of £200 to be laid out in lands, and the profits thereof applied to the use of a schoolmistress, who should teach all the girls in Risley, and an equal number of girls of the other townships whose male children were free, as should be appointed by the trustees. She also gave £100 to purchase lands for the maintenance of an assistant to teach all the girls to write and cast accounts, and £100 to purchase lands, to pay the fines off, or for enfranchising a copyhold estate at Irdridge Hay. By a codocil to her will, dated March 2, 1721, she devised her messuage and lands in Long Clawson, and Hose, in the county of Leicester, upon trust to John White, that, upon the payment of £400 to him by the governors of Queen Anne's bounty, £40 yearly, part of the said premises, should be settled as an augmentation to the chapelries of Risley and Breaston—£20 each. In 1722, John White, and the governors of Queen Anne's bounty, who paid £400, conveyed the estates at Long Clawson and Hose to the above-named chapelries, reserving £6 16s. to the schools, in lieu of a legacy in her will of £6 13s. 4d. The school premises consist of a good house, with gardens and croft, containing 1A. 1R. 28P., for the head master; a house for the under master, with garden and croft, 1A. 2R. 21P. Two schools, forming distinct buildings, one of which is divided into two parts—one part being the grammar school and the other the girl's school—with two rooms over, in which the schoolmistress resides; the other school is used as the English school for boys. The following is a summary of the annual income of the estates:—Rent charge out of the manor of Wilsthorpe, £13 6s. 8d.; rents of the premises conveyed by Mrs. Gray's deed of 1718, £171 17s. 5d; dividends on £100 3 per cent. consols, £3; rent of the estate of Long Clawson and Hose, £190, which contains 126A., making a total of £378 4s. 1d. The number of scholars is now limited to 100, divided according to the population, except Risley, which has no limit. The present numbers are, 20 boys and 10 girls from Sandiacre, 17 boys and 8 girls from Breaston; 17 boys and 8 girls from Dale Abbey, 28 boys and 14 girls from Draycott, 7 boys and 4 girls from Risley, 1 boy and 1 girl from Hopwell, 12 boys and 6 girls from Great Stainton, and 1 boy and 1 girl from Wilsthorpe. The English master has a salary of £85. £15 is divided betwixt the head boy and the monitors of the school, and the schoolmistress' salary is £15.

CHARITIES.—Sir Henry Willoughby, Bart., Anchitel Gray, Esq., Willoughby Gray, Esq., and Elizabeth Gray, had given sums of money amounting to £71, for which sum, in 1714, Francis Handley conveyed to trustees a close of 6A., except 20s. paid out of the said close to the poor of West Hallam, for the payment of which he granted a rent charge of 20s., to be paid out of Long Close, in Mapperley; one third of the rent to be applied for the reparation of Risley school, the remaining two-thirds to the poor of Risley. The rent charge of 20s. on the Long close has been many years unpaid to the poor of West Hallam.

There is a sum of £8 left to the poor of Risley, issuing out of a field at Mapperley, two thirds of which are distributed to the poor, and the remainder applied for the repairs of the schoolhouse.

Risley is also entitled to two of the almshouses, at Ilkeston, left by John Smedley, and built and endowed by Richard Smedley, in 1744, with a rent charge of £60. (See Ilkeston.)

REPTON AND GRESLEY HUNDRED.

This Hundred forms the south extremity of the county, and is bounded on the north and west by the river Trent, on the south and east by Leicestershire, having at the south-east extremity a considerable portion detached and completely surrounded by Leicestershire, where No Man's Heath, in the chapelry of Chilcote, connects the four counties of Leicester, Derby, Stafford, and Warwick. It contains 65,677 statute acres, generally a rich red loamy soil, considered the finest agricultural district in the county.

The following is an enumeration of its 27 parishes, showing their territorial extent, the annual value, and their population, from 1801 to 1851, as returned at the five decennial periods of the Parliamentary census.

* The letters after the names signify P for Parish, C for Chapelry, and T for Township.

APPLEBY is a large and pleasant village and parish, partly situated in Leicestershire, $5\frac{3}{4}$ miles S.W. by S. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, 10 miles S.E. by S. from Burton-upon-Trent, and 20 miles S.W. from Derby, forms the south extremity of that county, and of a detached portion of Derbyshire, containing Chilcote, Measham, Oakthorpe, and Willesley, and a part of Donisthorpe and Stretton-en-le-Field, parishes locally situated in the West Goscote Hundred of the county of Leicester. The entire parish of Appleby contains 2748A. 3R. 11P. of fertile clay land, and had in 1851, 270 houses, and 1181 inhabitants, of whom 576 were males, and 605 females; rateable value £4,858 11s. Market Bosworth Grammar School owns the estate and manor of the Derbyshire part, to whom it was given by the son of Sir Wolstan Dixie, who had purchased it from the co-heirs of the last of the Appleby family, who died in 1636. George Moor, Esq., is the principal owner and lord of the manor of the Leicestershire part. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, is a large handsome structure, has nave, chancel, side aisles, tower and spire with 6 bells, was thoroughly restored in 1830, at a cost of £5,000, towards which the late Mrs. John Moor had left £1,000, the remainder was raised by subscription. The chancel was restored at the rector's own expense. All the windows are ornamented with beautiful stained glass, and the pews are oak. It is situated in Leicestershire, in which county the south end of the village mostly stands. In 1837, a handsome organ was put up in the church, the gift of the Misses Moor, who also presented a clock, with two dials. In the church, under an arch by the side of the chancel, is an altar tomb, now much defaced, bearing effigies of a knight and lady, representing according to "Burton," Sir Edmund de Appleby and his wife, who flourished in the reign of Edward III. The male figure is in armour, having his helmet surmounted by his crest, placed beneath his head, and at his feet a lion. Here are also several neat tablets to the late rectors and patrons of the church, and also one to George Moor, Esq., who died in 1751, and was of an ancient family belonging to this place. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £20, 9s. $4\frac{1}{2}$d., now £1000. George Moor, Esq., patron, and the Rev. J. M. Echalaz, M.A., incumbent. The houses are considerably intermixed; each division keeps its own poor, but in all other respect one township, and are generally distinguished by Appleby Magna, (the Derbyshire end,) and Parva, (the Leicestershire end.) The rectory is a handsome brick mansion, $\frac{1}{4}$ of a mile west, with 435A. 0R. 10P. of glebe. The Hall, a handsome modern structure, $\frac{1}{2}$ mile south from the village, in Leicestershire, was enlarged about 21 years ago; it is the seat and property of George Moor, Esq. White House, $\frac{3}{4}$ of a mile north of the church, is the seat of the Misses and John Moor, Esq. Moat House, in the village and in Leicestershire, now a farmhouse, is an ancient half-timbered building, formerly the seat of the Appleby family, who held this manor as early as 1166. The Moore family became possessors of the estate early in the 17th century. The Grammar School, ¼ of a mile south from the church, is situated in both counties. It was founded and endowed by Sir John Moore, Knt., in 1697, he was some time lord mayor of London, and died in 1702. The school was designed by Sir Christopher Wren, and is 100 feet in length, 50 in breadth, and 30 in height, with an extensive playground in front. It was originally intended for the children of Appleby and this detached part of Derbyshire, and certain parishes in Leicestershire, but by the statutes of 1706 it was made free to all England, and is under the control of 13 governors. The General and Particular Baptists, and the Wesleyan Methodists have each places of worship here, situated in the Leicestershire part. In 1845, a National School was erected for boys, girls, and infants, situated a little W. of the church; it is in the Elizabethan style, was built and is supported by subscription, will hold about 200, average attendance 170. Feast on the 11th of October. In 1839, the Misses Moor erected 5 dwellings, to be let at low rents to poor persons; the rents are applied to the improvement of the premises.

BONDARY, or Burton Road, 2 miles N.W. from Ashby, is an extra parochial liberty, consisting of 9 cottage houses on the Ashby-de-la-Zouch and Burton road. The estate is partly in the parish of Blackfordby, Leicestershire, but has 49 inhabitants in Derbyshire, all of whom are labourers.

BRETBY is a pleasant rural village and parish, 3 miles E. from Burton-upon-Trent, contains 1,760 acres of fertile land, including 679 acres of woods and plantations in the Park, and in 1851 had 66 houses, and 369 inhabitants, of whom 188 were males, and 181 females; rateable value, £2,400. The Earl of Chesterfield is the sole owner, lord of the manor—(which formerly was a portion of that of Repton)—impropriator of the tithes, and patron of the Church, of which the living is a donative, value £80; Rev. John Tetley Smith, B.A., incumbent. It is a small structure, with a low tower and 2 bells, and is very neatly fitted up. At Domesday survey, the manor, which had belonged to Earl Algar, was part of the royal demesne. It afterwards belonged to the Earl of Chester, and passed to the Seagraves with a part of the manor of Repton. John de Seagrave, who was the King's lieutenant in Scotland, and taken prisoner at the battle of Bannockburn, was summoned to parliament as a baron in 1295. In 1300 he had the King's license to castellate his mansion at Bretby. Bretby castle passed with the manors to the Mowbrays—Lords Mowbray and Dukes of Norfolk. One of the co-heiresses of this noble family brought Bretby to the Lords Berkley. In 1585, the castle and manor of Bretby was purchased of the Berkeley family by Sir Thomas Stanhope, grandfather of Philip the first Earl of Chesterfield. In the month of November, 1642, the Earl of Chesterfield fortified his house at Bretby, and garrisoned it with 40 musketeers and 60 horse. Sir John Gell having intelligence of it, sent 400 foot, with a party of dragoons, under the command of Major Molanus. After a short defence, the Earl and his party fled through the park towards Lichfield, and the house was plundered. The Countess, who was the daughter of the loyal Sir John Packington, refusing to pay any composition to prevent it, declaring she would not give them one penny; but the officers saved her own chamber with all her goods. Philip, the second earl, resided much at Bretby. Bretby Castle, the site of which is discernable near the church, is said to have been a building of great strength, and consisted of two courts, and was standing in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The first Earl of Chesterfield is supposed to have erected a noble mansion at Bretby, of stone, with a curious chapel, in the midst of a large well wooded park, with gardens, fountains, labyrinths, groves, &c., all said to have been peculiarly curious and pleasant, suitable to the genius of the owner, who was the chief contriver of them. This mansion was taken down in the year 1780. The present Hall is a quadrangular castellated stone mansion, which had been several years in building, and was left unfinished at the death of its noble owner, in 1815. The building has since been discontinued, and remains unfinished. It has extensive pleasure grounds, terraces, gardens, &c., situated in the midst of a park containing upwards of 600 acres of land, well wooded, with varied and picturesque scenery, here are about 400 heads of deer. On the east side of the house is preserved a venerable cedar of Lebanon, which, as appears by the gardener's bill, in the Earl's possession, was planted in the month of February, 1676-7. It is probably the oldest cedar in England, for, according to Evelyn, the cedar had not been brought into this country in 1664. It is the seat of its noble owner, George Augustus Frederick, Earl of Chesterfield. The late Earl resided wholly at Bretby during the latter part of his life, and dedicated a considerable portion of his time to agriculture, having one of the most complete farming establishments in this part of England. The chapel of Bretby with the tithes were parcel of the rectory of Repton, which belonged to the priory of that place. It passed with one of the co-heiresses of Porte to the family of Hastings, and appears to have been brought to the Stanhope family by the marriage of the first Earl of Chesterfield, with a daughter of Francis, Lord Hastings. The Earl supports a free school for 24 boys and 24 girls, which had been established in 1806. Bretby Colliery, 2½ miles S.E. from Burton-on-Trent, commenced in 1855, by the Earl of Chesterfield; gives employment to about 60 men and boys. Bretby Steam and Water Corn Mill, 1 mile E. of the church, on the Repton and Hartshorn road, is occupied by Mr. George Bradford, who in 1855, erected a steam engine, of twelve horses power, having previously erected two others (1848 and 1852,) both of which were found too small. It is the property of the Earl of Chesterfield, and has been in the occupation of Mr. Bradford's family for upwards of one hundred years.

BURTON-UPON-TRENT is an extensive parish, principally in the Offlow Hundred, Staffordshire, and partly in Repton and Gresley Hundred, Derbyshire. The entire parish comprises 7 townships, viz.:—Burton-upon-Trent, Burton Extra, Branstone, Horninglow, and Stretton, in Staffordshire, with Winshill, and part of Stapenhill, which are in Derbyshire, with about 10,000 acres of land, and in 1851 had 2,250 houses, and 12,373 inhabitants, of whom 6,189 were males, and 6,184 females. The manor of Burton-upon-Trent, with several hamlets, was granted in the 37th Henry VIII. to an ancestor of the present Marquis of Anglesey, who is lord of the manor, principal owner of the soil, and impropriator of the great tithes of the whole parish. The east and west sides of the parish swell gradually into hills, and have a strong red loamy soil, suitable for the growth of barley and wheat, the former of which is extensively cultivated, and sold to the numerous malting establishments at Burton. The rest of the land is chiefly meadow, forming rich loamly pastures, which are often flooded by the waters of the Trent and Dove, which latter flows on the north side of the parish.

BURTON-UPON-TRENT, a well-built market town of considerable antiquity, is pleasantly situated on the west bank of the Trent, which here flows in two broad streams, and is crossed by an ancient stone bridge of 36 arches, in the centre of which is a stone which marks the boundaries between the counties of Derby and Stafford. It is in 52° 53' north latitude, and 1° 35' west longitude, and is distant 11 miles S.W. of Derby, 13 miles N.E. of Lichfield, 24 E. of Stafford, and 125 N.W. of London by the road, and 129 by the railway. The town of Burton has been considerably improved during the last 25 years, several new streets have been made, many old buildings removed, and handsome houses erected on the sites. The principal streets are, High street, Horninglow street, New street, Station street, Lichfield street, and Bridge street; the former is the principal thoroughfare, been well flagged and paved, and contains many handsome houses, shops, and excellent inns; it is of considerable length, and runs paralell with the river from north to south. In 1851, it had (including Burton Extra and part of Horninglow) 1604 inhabited houses, 50 uninhabited, and 22 building; with 7,934 inhabitants, of whom 3,943 were males, and 3,991 females. Burton has long been celebrated for the excellence of its ale, and immense quantities are sent to all parts of Great Britain, to many foreign countries, the East and West Indies, Australia, and to all parts of the world. During the reign of the second Catherine of Russia, great quantities were exported to the Continent, it being the favourite beverage of that queen, but this trade was extinguished by the Berlin Decree, which shut out our manufactures from the Continent, but the taste for pale ale has greatly increased in this country, and most of the brewers are now employed in supplying the home market. The first Brewery established here was in 1610, but 30 years ago the number was only 5, it is now 19; and a greater extent of business is done at some of the older establishments than was done by the whole town at that time. The superior properties of Burton ale is partly attributable to the excellent hard water which is obtained from the neighbouring hills; and Dr. Darwin ingeniously supposes "that some of the saccharine acid in the malt combines with the calcareous earth of hard water, and forms a sort of mineral sugar, which is convertible into spirits." Most of the breweries have also very extensive malting establishments, the consumption of which during the season, 1855-56, amounted to 1,216,000 bushels, of which quantity 704,000 bushels were made in the town. The cotton spinning and power-loom weaving were carried on to a considerable extent by Messrs. Peel & Co. till within the last few years. One of the factories is now occupied by Mr. John Taverner, tape manufacturer; another is used as stores by the brewers, and the others are unoccupied. There are also three Iron foundries, and an Engineer and Millwright's establishments here. The river Trent is Navigable for barges up to the town, and the canal, which connects that river with the Mersey, opens a water communication with all the principal towns in the kingdom. The town has several times been inundated by the Trent, particularly in the years 1771, 1792, 1795, and 1798, when most of the streets were laid under water.

The New Sewer, formed in 1843, is a very great improvement to the town of Burton, and has effectually removed those continual nuisances so detrimental to the health and comfort of the inhabitants. Previous to the year 1788, High street was not paved, nor had it a sewer of any kind, and the centre of the street was so low that it formed a general receptacle for the refuse water from all the houses. At intervals, stepping stones were placed to enable persons to cross. In that year, an act of parliament was obtained for paving, repairing, cleansing, and lighting the town, and for removing and preventing nuisances, soon after which, a sewer of about two feet diameter was formed from the Bridge to High street, but not being properly constructed, was continually stopping up for want of a regular fall. In 1843, however, it was determined to employ an engineer to see how far it was practicable to carry out the sewerage, so as effectually to drain the town; the result was satisfactory, and the Feoffees liberally responded to the wants of the town, by a grant of £400. The sewerage extends a distance of 2,159 yards, and the most sanguine expectations of the projectors have been fully realized. Each time a boat passes into the lock, which may be estimated at 12 times a day, the lock full of water is turned down the sewer, from Bond-end Wharf to the Bridge, by which means no filth can possibly accumulate, or offensive effluvia be emitted.

The Town Hall, in the Market place, is a commodious structure, erected in 1772, by the late Lord Paget, father of the Marquis of Anglesey, the present owner of the manor, to whose ancestors it was granted in the reign of Henry VIII., and all such privileges, liberties, and franchises belonging to the same, as had heretofore been enjoyed by the abbots of Burton. In the exercise of these privileges, the lord of the manor appoints a steward and a bailiff, who retain their office during his pleasure. The steward presides as judge in a court for the recovery of debts under 40s., called the Genter's Court. This court was judicially acknowledged by the Court of King's Bench, on an information in the nature of a quo warranto, brought by the attorney-general in the reign of Queen Elizabeth against Thomas, then Lord Paget, who claimed the same as a prescriptive right in the abbots of Burton beyond the memory of man. The Genter's court is held in the Town hall every third Friday, and has exclusive jurisdiction over the manor. The bailiff, John Richardson, Esq., in right of his office, is coroner; he has also a concurrent jurisdiction with the county magistrates as a justice of the peace, but being a practising attorney, he does not act in that capacity. In addition to the Genter's court, the lord of the manor annually holds a Court leet and view of frank-pledge, at which the election of officers takes place, among whom are six decimers, and three constables. The Market is on Thursday. Here are four annual Fairs—held on Candlemas day, April 5, Holy Thursday, and October 22 to 29. The latter was granted by King John, and is noted for the sale of horses and cheese. A Hiring for servants is held on the Monday after New Michaelmas day, and a Feast on the nearest Sunday to St. Modeven's day. Races were formerly held here, but have been discontinued some years.

The Gas Works, in Station street, were erected in 1832 by a proprietary of £20 shareholders, at a cost of £2,500, and were leased at that time for a period of 21 years, to Mr. Samuel Sanders, since which period they have, by an act of parliament, come into the hands of the Town commissioners, who, in 1854, erected New works, in Anderstaff lane, the original works having become too small for the requirements of the town. The Birmingham and Derby branch of the Midland railway has a convenient Station on the west side of the town, and communicates with the North and South Staffordshire, the Burton and Leicester and other lines.

The Bridge is the most interesting object of antiquity which the town possesses, and is supposed to have been erected by Bernard, Abbott of Burton, about the year 1174; others assign the erection to a much earlier period. Its zig-zag form stretches across the two steams of the Trent, and the adjoining low meadows, which are subject to inundation, a distance of 1,545 feet, and has 36 arches, three of which are entirely blocked up, and five more of them are only visited by the water in the time of floods. From its extreme narrowness and unnecessary length, many serious accidents have occurred, and it is a matter of consideration with the inhabitants how the danger shall be obviated. A battle was fought upon the bridge in 1322, when Edward III. obtained a decisive victory over the Earl of Lancaster; and it is supposed that the chapel which formerly stood at the end of the bridge was built to commemorate this victory. Mass was frequently said, in order to raise funds to defray the expenses of the bridge.

The Abbey appears to have been a place of some magnitude, from the few vestiges that are still to be seen. Tanner says—"Ulfric Spot, finished and endowed, A.D. 1004, an abbey here for monks of the order of St. Benedict. It was dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary and St. Modeven, and valued 26th Henry VIII., at £267 14s. 5d. per annum." But on the record in the first fruit's office, the yearly valuation of this monastery is given at £501 7s. The Abbey and its dependencies were exempt from all exactions, duties, and services, except trinodas necessitas, the erection of fortresses and bridges, the repairing of highways, and the repelling of invasions. The abbot and convent surrendered this house Nov. 14th, 1539, and in 1541, Henry VIII, who, after robbing it of part of its estates, refounded it as a Collegiate Church, dedicated to Jesus Christ and his mother Mary; and granted for their support, the manor of Burton, and thirteen other manors, &c., belonging to the monastery. This Church was but of short continuance, for it was dissolved in 1545, when all the lands and endowments of the same then worth £356 16s. 3d. per annum were conveyed by the said king to Sir William Paget, an ancestor of their present owner, the Marquis of Anglesey. The seal of this college is one of the most beautiful specimens of that style of engraving now extant. It represents our Saviour and his disciples at the last supper, with the arms of Ulfric, the founder, at the bottom. On the margin is a Latin inscription, signifying it to be "The common seal of the dean and chapter of the collegiate church of Christ, at Burton-upon-Trent." Several abbots, at different periods, were returned as members of parliament, and they were empowered to hold a weekly market, collect tolls, and institute fairs. The Church was a handsome structure, 228 feet long and 52 feet wide, ornamented with an elegant tower at each end. The cloisters measured 100 feet square. Portions of the walls are still visible near the present Church, and the dormitory, fraytor, and all the other buildings, were on a scale of proportionable magnitude. The ancient mansion called the Abbey House is said to have been that part of the building which formed the private residence of the abbot, it is now occupied and held on lease by Thos. Thornewill, Esq., who has, at great expense nearly restored it to its pristine beauty, which had been destroyed by modern additions and repairs. The porter's lodge is now converted into a blacksmith's shop, and fragments of the wall which surrounded the abbey and its extensive gardens may still be seen. There are two other houses in the grounds, called the Priory and the Manor; the latter is occupied by the Marquis of Anglesey's agent.

The Parish Church, dedicated to St. Modwen, is a handsome structure with a fine tower, and was built in 1720, on the site of the ancient Church, which had been greatly dilapidated during the parliamentary war. It has 8 bells, a set of musical chimes, and a good organ, erected in 1771. The Church yard is now very spacious, 1½ acres of land on the margin of the Trent being added in 1830, by the Marquis of Anglesey. Several stone coffins have been dug up; one of which is placed in an upright position, on the margin of the Trent, and a lid ornamented with rude sculpture is placed against the wall on the south side of the Church. The Marquis of Anglesey is impropriator and patron of the living, which is a perpetual curacy, but is now called a vicarage, value £192; the Rev. Samuel Stead, M.A., incumbent.

Holy Trinity Church, Horninglow street, is a beautiful edifice, in the florid Gothic style of architecture. It is partly built of brick cemented so as to correspond with the stone buttresses, pinnacles, and other ornamental portions of the building. The interior is exceedingly neat and has a richly foliated Gothic window of stained glass, with representations of St. Peter and the four evangelists. It was built in 1824, by the executors of the late Isaac Hawkins, Esq., at a cost of £7,000, and will accommodate about 1,000 hearers; 700 sittings are free. There is an endowment of about £80 per annum from Queen Anne's bounty, and from a small sum in the funds from other sources. The Marquis of Anglesey is the patron, and the Rev. Peter French, M.A., is the incumbent.

Christ Church, New street, is an elegant cruciform structure in the early English style, with a tower surmounted by an elegant spire. It was consecrated in September, 1844, and was built at a cost of £2,750, raised by private subscriptions and a grant from the Incorporated Society for building churches. It has 600 sittings on the ground floor, and 400 in the galleries, and the whole of the sittings both free and appropriated, have carved stall ends; but the latter have small low doors. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £200 in the patronage of the vicar, and the incumbency of the Rev. Wm. Morgan, B.A., who resides at the parsonage, a neat house in the Tudor style, erected between the church and its schools. Catholic Chapel, Guild street, is a neat brick building, erected a few years ago, the Rev. Thos. Telford is the priest.

Independent Chapel, High street, occupies the site of a nonconformist meeting-house, built in 1661, when the Rev. Thos. Bakewell was ejected from the rectory of Rolleston. This chapel, however, was rebuilt about 80 years ago. The present edifice is in the Gothic style, and was rebuilt in 1842, at a cost of £2,200. The front is of hewn stone, and has a large window of beautiful proportions, filled with Gothic tracery which gives it a chaste and noble appearance. The interior fittings are all of oak, and it will seat 600 persons. The Rev. Daniel Horscraft is the pastor. The Wesleyan Chapel, Horninglow street is a neat brick building, rebuilt in 1813; it is neatly fitted up with galleries, and the body of the chapel has been recently pewed; attached to it are two neat houses for the ministers. The Particular Baptist Chapel, Station street, was erected in 1793, and was considerably enlarged and beautified with a Grecian portico, in 1842, at a cost of £1,150. The General Baptist Chapel, Burton Extra, was opened in 1825; Zion Chapel, (General Baptists) Union street, was erected 1855; it is a handsome brick building, capable of seating 600 persons. The Primitive Methodist Chapel, Station street, is a neat brick building, erected in 1829. And the Wesleyan Reformers have a small chapel in George street, erected in 1852.

Sunday Schools are attached to all the churches and chapels, and are numerously attended.

The Free Grammar School, Friar's walk, adjoining the church-yard, was founded in 1520, by Wm. Bean, abbot of Burton, who built a school house on ground belonging to the Abbey. The endowment consists of a farm of 120 acres at Orton-on-the-Hill, in Leicestershire, let for £250 a year, and 111 acres of land at Breaston, let for £202 per annum. The head masteter receives two-thirds of the rents arising from the lands, and the second master one-third. The former has also £3, and the latter £6 a year, from the bequest of Elizabeth Paulett. The school is free to sons of parishioners, with preference to those who apply for classical instruction. The number is limited to 65. The present school was built in 1834, at the cost of £600. It contains an ancient carved oak desk, supposed to have been in use ever since the foundation of the school. The Rev. Henry Day is Head master, and Mr. Henry Hodson, second master.

Allsopp's Charity School is endowed with land now let for £24 per annum; left by Rd. Allsopp, in 1728, for the instruction of 30 poor boys. Six of the scholars are clothed out of the rents of the land now let for £6 a year, left by Francis Astle, in 1735. The feofees of the Town Lands are trustees of this school and the 30 poor boys are now instructed at the large and handsome National Schools, (Christ Church) Church street, erected in 1844, at the cost of about £1000. They form a handsome building in the Tudor style, and will accommodate about 400 children; the average attendance is 130 boys, and about the same number of girls, and 100 infants.

The National Schools, (Holy Trinity) Horninglow street, were built by subscription, in 1827, and are supported by voluntary contributions; about 100 boys and 70 girls receive instruction; and an Infant school was erected in 1846, by subscriptions, and a grant of £100 from the National Society, in Anderstaff lane, the average attendance is about 95.

The British Schools, Guild street, were built in 1843, on land given by the Marquis of Anglesey, at the cost of about £900, raised by subscriptions, and a Parliamentry grant of £274 12s. 19d. STAPENHILL township.—(See Stapenhill Parish.)

WINSHILL township and small village, upon a declivity 1½ miles E. by N. from Burton-upon-Trent. to which parish it belongs, contains 1,150 acres of fertile land, 88 houses and 405 inhabitants, of whom 196 were males and 209 females, in 1851; rateable value, £2,313. The Marquis of Anglesey is lord of the manor and principal owner. There is an extensive corn mill on the Trent bank, and a factory for manufacturing tape, occupied by Mr. John Taverner; also Bladon House, a respectable boarding school. This manor belonged to the monastery of Burton, and having been granted after the dissolution to the first Lord Paget, is now the property of his descendant. The Anglesey Coal Company, established in 1856, have extensive collieries here, situated on the Burton and Ashby-de-la-Zouch road, 1¾ miles E. from the former, and 7¼ miles N.W. from the latter. The coal obtained here is of a superior quality for making coke for malting, and also for steel converting; it is likewise in great demand for household purposes. The men employed are assisted by a steam engine of 20 horses power. Messrs. Bond, Brailsford, Hunt, & Wigfall are the proprietors. In 1846, a small National school was built by subscription; it a neat brick building, and is licensed for divine service, as a Chapel of Ease to Holy Trinity. The Wesleyans have also a chapel here. (For Directory, see end of Burton.)

The Towns Lands consist of about 40 acres in small detached parcels, with several tenements, producing an income of £190 a year, including the rent of Finney's close and the Workhouse garden. For a long period they have from time to time been conveyed together to trustees or feoffees, for the common benefit of the inhabitants of Burton. The feoffees are also entitled to the sum of £1,800, which has been accumulated from fines received on different renewals of leases for lives. The interest of this money, £84 a year, is applied with the other income. The rents of the town lands are collected by the town masters, (to whose office the constables of the preceding year, appointed at the Court-leet, succeed as a matter of course,) and are paid by them to the treasurer of the feoffees, at their general annual meeting, held annually on the 21st December.

CHARITIES,—(under the management of the feoffees of the Town Lands).—Mr. Finney gave a close in Anderstaff lane, and directed the rents to be given in apprenticing yearly some poor boy. The close is let for £11 18s. 8d.

The Workouse Garden, in Anderstaff lane, is let for £5 8s. a year, in respect of which it had long been customary to furnish annually six coats for poor men, but the practice was discontinued about 30 years ago. The rent is carried to the general account of the town lands.

The Pavement House consists of a messuage, shop, two cottages, and 36 perches of land, the rents of which are appropriated by ancient usage to the reparation of the pavement of the inferior inhabitants in High street.

The New Close is a piece of lands of about 20 acres, formerly part of the town moors. It is now let in leys or gates for depasturing cows, and the clear profits have been applied since 1815 for repairing the pavements in Burton and Bond End.

Daniel Watson, in 1779, left a stable, coach house, and stable yard, in Cat street, and directed the rents to be given to the poor on Whit-Monday.

Isaac Hawkins, in 1712, left £100 to be laid out in land, for the maintenance of some poor man in Burton. This legacy was expended in land called the Low Gate Piece, now let for £7 7s. a year.

Mrs. Almond's gift.—There appears to be no original writings respecting this charity. It consists of a farmhouse and 30A. of land at Aston, a close 6A. 2R. called Blackwells, at Rolleston, and an allotment in Horninglow of 1A. 1R. 19P. The rents amount to £71 18s. 8d. In addition to the above, there belongs to this charity a part of certain lands in Rolleston, which were received in exchange from Sir Oswald Mosley, Bart., for land belonging to this charity. The annual value of this land was £2 2s. a year, but through mistake the rents have been carried since the enclosure to the account of Parker's almshouses. Of the above rents, £5 17s. is paid for weekly distribution of bread; £6 6s. to the poor of Horninglow, Stretton and Branston, in sums of 3s. each and under; and £29 17s. to the poor of Burton and Burton Extra, chosen by the feoffees in sums of 5s. each.

William Hawkins, in 1724, left a rent charge of £5 a year to be distributed in bread. This amount has for some time been paid towards furnishing 12 poor women of Burton with gowns.

Richard Caldwell, M.D., in 1582, left in trust with the bailiff of Lichfield £160, to be lent free of interest to clothiers of small wealth and ability, or else to other handicraftmen, dwelling in Burton-upon-Trent. The sum of £40 is lent from five years to five years, and the sum of £120 alternately, in four sums of £30, and twenty of £6 for five years. The bailiffs of Lichfield go over to Burton at the time when the securities are to be renewed, and they receive applications for, and advance the loans.

The Almshouses in the Swine market, for five poor women, were founded by Elizabeth Paulett, in 1591. The endowment consists of 25A. 1R. 22P. of land at Fenny Bentley, and several dwellings and shops adjoining the almshouses, producing an annual sum of £81 17s. The same donor also bequeathed a rent charge of £10 a year, of which £1 is given to the almswomen, and the remainder as noticed, with the Grammar school. The rent charge was exchanged in 1795, for £333 6s. 8d., three-per cent. consols. Each of the inmates receive 6s. per week, paid quarterly, and a supply of coals out of the rents of the town lands.

Parker's Almshouses, High street, were founded in 1634, by Ellen Parker, who left £800 in trust to build 6 almshouses for 6 poor widows or old maids of Burton and Stretton. The property consists of buildings and land in Anderstaff lane, Horninglow, and Rolleston, let for £54 5s. 3d. per annum. The inmates have each 4s. weekly, and about £6 added from the funds of the town lands.

CALKE, a small village and parish, 5 miles N. by E. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and 10 miles S. from Derby, contains 720 acres of fertile land, 11 houses and 79 inhabitants, of whom 32 are males and 47 females; rateable value £1,200. Sir John Harpur Crewe is lord of the manor, sole owner, impropriator, and patron of the church, St. Giles's, a perpetual curacy valued at £34. Rev. Richardson Cox, M.A., incumbent. The Church is a neat structure, on a rising ground a little north from the abbey, it was built by Sir George Crewe, Bart., in 1826, it has an embattled tower and one bell, is neatly pewed and has an organ. There is a neat marble monument to Sir John and Lady Catharine Harpur. The Church yard is surrounded with fine elm trees on three sides. A convent of Augustine friars was formed here before 1161, and afterwards removed to Rependon. The Abbey is a large stone mansion situated in a valley surrounded by a well wooded park of about 300 acres, well stocked with fallow deer. The south front is very handsome, two flights of stone steps lead to the portico, the pediment of which is supported by four large stone columns. The stables and out-offices are very extensive. There are two entrance lodges in Ticknall parish from the Ashby road. It was built by Sir John Harpur, in the early part of the last century, and is now the seat of Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart. The parish is joined to no Poor Law Union, as the noble owner undertakes to keep the poor from being chargeable. The poor inhabitants are eligible to the Hospital at Ticknall.

CHELLASTON, is a scattered village and parish, 4 miles S.E. by S. from Derby, contains several good houses, 816A. 0R. 39P. of rich strong clay freehold land, abounding in gypsum, and had in 1851, 113 houses, and 499 inhabitants, of whom 257 were males, and 242 females; rateable value £1,250 8s. 5d. The principal owners are Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., George Wooton, Esq., Robert Meakin, George Trussell, Mrs. Sarah Pym, Robert Thrutchley, Joseph Rose, T. B. Domelo, Ann Newton, Rev. Joseph Sikes, Henry Forman, Captain Manfull, Thomas Cooper, John Stevens, and many smaller owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Peter is an ancient stone edifice, with nave, chancel, south aisle, and handsome pinnacled tower, with three bells and a good clock with two dials. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £80, in the patronage of the Bishop of Carlisle, and incumbency of the Rev. Joseph Deans. In 1841 the Church was repaired, and 125 free sittings were added; a new stone tower was erected at a cost of £600, raised by subscription, aided by grants from the Church Building and Diocesan Societies. In 1819 it was repewed at considerable expense, when a great number of alabaster slabs were destroyed. Here is an alabaster monument to Ralph Bancroft and Alice his wife, also one to Bawredon, minister of the Church, who died 1523, with memorials to the Whenyatts and others. Chellaston was parcel of the rectory at Melbourne, which belonged to the Bishops of Carlisle, and was for a considerable time on lease to the family of Coke, when it was enfranchised under an act of Parliament passed in 1704. Lord Melbourne, representative of the Coke family, sold the tithes to the several land owners. The parish was enclosed in 1802, when land was awarded to the curate in lieu of tithes. The Baptists, Wesleyan Methodists, and Reformers have places of worship here. Many of the inhabitants are employed in the gypsum mines, George Wooton, Esq., has extensive mines covering about 70 acres of ground; Robert Meakin & Co. and Joseph F. Rose have also extensive mines in the neighbourhood, about 2,500 tons are got annually, which is sent to all parts of the kingdom, and to the continent in large quantities. Here is an Odd Fellows lodge and a female benefit society. Feast is held on the Sunday before St. Peter. It is supposed that Robin Hood was born at the Manor house here.

CHARITIES.—Mr. Herrick, it is stated in the parliamentary returns of 1786, gave a rent charge of 13s. for bread to the poor of Chellaston, then vested in Thomas Brown. Mr. Thomas Brown Domelo was (1826), the owner, but we cannot obtain any further information as to this charity.

Post Office, at Thomas Bailey's, Letters arrive from Derby at 5.45 a.m., and are despatched at 6.30 p.m.

The living is a perpetual curacy, value £140, in the patronage of the Bishop of Lichfield, and incumbency of the Rev. Francis Jickling. The parsonage is a neat brick residence, west of the church. The Primitive Methodists have a small neat brick chapel here. A National school was erected in 1840, at the sole expense of Lady Cave. In 1852, this school was converted into an infant school, and is supported principally by that lady, the children paying a small trifle weekly. The inhabitants are principally employed at the collieries and limeworks, on Ashby Wolds.

DRAKELOW, is a township and scattered district, from 2 to 4 miles S.S.W from Burton-on-Trent, and the same distance N. by W. from Church Gresley. It contains the Hall, three farms, and 8 cottage houses, and had in 1851, 86 inhabitants, of whom 47 were males and 39 females; 1,287 acres of sandy land; rateable value £1,933. The Hall, a handsome stone mansion, pleasantly situated in a fine park of 120 acres, well stocked with deer, was erected by the late Sir Nigel Gresley, but is now the seat and property of Henry William des Vœux, Esq., who is the sole owner and lord of the manor. This manor in the Domesday book, is described as belonging to Nigel de Stafford, ancestor of the Gresley family, by the ervice of rendering a bow, a quiver, and twelve arrows, which in 1200 was due to William Earl Ferrars. Geoffrey de Gresley in 1330 claimed the right of having a gallows at Gresley and at Drakelow. The Gresley family have at various times, from the reign of Edward I., represented the county in parliament. George Gresley was installed a knight of the bath at the coronation of Anne Boleyn, in 1534. His grandson, of the same name was created a baronet in 1611. Sir George Gresley was an active officer during the civil war, and was lieutenant-colonel to Sir John Gell.

LINTON, is a small scattered village and township, 5 miles E. S. E. from Burton-on-Trent, contains 859A. 3R. 33P. of fertile land, and in 1851, had 65 houses, and 279 inhabitants, of whom 138 were males, and 141 females; rateable value £1,620 18s. 6d. John Brown, Robert Beard, Wm. Burton, and Henry Clay, Esqrs., are the principal owners. The former is lord of the manor; there are also several small owners. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists have each places of worship here.

OAKTHORPE, a village, and joint township with Donisthorpe, situated in the parishes of Measham and Stretton-en-le-Field, 3 miles S.S.W. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch. The joint township contains 1,112 acres of land, and in 1851, had 241 houses and 983 inhabitants, of whom 477 were males, and 506 females; rateable value £1,458. This hamlet contains 745A. 3R. 5P. of land, and in 1851, had 149 houses, and 591 inhabitants, of whom 288 were males and 303 females; rateable value £864 6s. The principal owners are Sir Chas. Abney Hastings, Bart., John Peddocke, Esq., executors of the Marquis of Hastings, Edward Stevenson, Esq., and Repton school. Here is a National school for boys, girls and infants, with a house for the master. The Methodists and Primitive Methodists have each places of worship here. Here is a lodge of the ancient order of Druids. The tithes of the whole township were purchased in 1838, by Messrs. Browne and Kidge, of Astley, for about £800, from the executors of the late Thomas Elton, Esq.

SWADLINCOTE, is a large well built village and township, 4½ miles S.E. by E. from Burton-on-Trent, contains 607 acres of land, and in 1851, had 179 houses, and 1007 inhabitants, of whom 514 were males, and 493 females; rateable value £2,833 17s. 1d. The principal owners are the executors of Court Granville, Esq., Thomas Francis, Esq., and the Earl of Chesterfield, with many other small freeholders. Here are collieries, and extensive potteries, for the manufacture of Rockingham and yellow ware, the largest of which is Messrs. Sharpe Brothers and Co., who are also patentees, and manufacturers of the improvements in the construction of closet pans. Here are also several extensive fire brick manufactories, the largest of which is Mr. James Woodward's. The Church, is a small neat stone edifice, erected in 1847 by subscription, at a cost of about £200. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £50, in the patronage of the incumbent of Church Gresley, and the Rev. John B. Stevens, perpetual curate. A neat National school was erected near the church, in 1850. The Wesleyan Methodists have a small chapel here. The Swadlincote branch of the Midland Railway has a small station here, opened in 1849, where there are two trains each way daily for goods only.

CHARITIES.—John Adams, by will, 1682, gave 40s. a year, to be paid out of his lands in Gresley Park, to various places, but it does not appear any such payments were ever made. The greater part of these lands now belong to Miss Worthington, whose agent states that the testator was tenant in tail only, that the estate had become the subject of partition in 1737 and in 1767. Under the circumstances above stated, it would be extremely difficult to substantiate a claim in behalf of the charity.

Gresley Township.—In the parliamentary returns of 1786 it is stated, that the sum of £10 then vested in Richard Smith, and producing 8s. per annum, had been given to the poor of Gresley, by some person unknown. In 1819 it was expended, with the addition of £1 advanced by the township, in the purchase of a piece of land called the Bottom Croft, containing 400 square yards or thereabouts. The land is let for 8s. a year, the overseer receives the rent and distributes it to the poor; at the time of our enquiry, August 1826, he had 16s. in hand, but it was proposed to distribute this sum, with another year's rent which had not been paid, at Christmas.

Linton Township.—In the parliamentary returns of 1786, it is mentioned under the head of Gresley, a donation of £16 to the poor, then vested in Joseph and Thomas Wilkes, and producing 13s. per annum—donor unknown. This sum, which is supposed was given to this township, is now in the hands of Edward Smith, of Burton, the owner of an estate in this township, but it does not appear he has given any security for it. The sum of 16s. is paid as interest by the tenant amongst the poor of Linton, at his own discretion, not annually or at any fixed period. It appears desirable that Mr. Edward Smith should give acknowledgment for the money, and that the distribution should take place at stated periods and publicly. There was formerly a further sum of £10 for the poor, but it appears to have been lost by the insolvency of a farmer in whose hands it was placed.

Swadlincote Township.—Dorothy Taylor, in 1760, gave £10, the interest to be paid to the poor. The sum of £10 is in the hands of Mr. John Brown, who has given to the overseers a promissory note for the amount, and pays 10s. a year interest, which is distributed at Christmas.

CROXALL parish and township, with the township of Catton, together contain 3299A. 3R. 17P. of land, partly situated in the North Offlow Hundred of Staffordshire, and in 1851 had 47 houses, and 234 inhabitants, of whom 120 were males, and 114 females; rateable value, £7069.

CROXALL township and small village, intermixed with the village of Edingale in Staffordshire, 8 miles S. by W. from Burton-upon-Trent, contains 2,154 acres of strong marl soil, fine wheat land, 30 houses and 137 inhabitants, in Derbyshire, and 6 houses, and 20 inhabitants in the village of Oakley in Staffordshire, with which it forms a joint township; rateable value, £4,779. The principal owners are the trustees of the late Thomas Levett Prinsep, Esq., Executors of the late John Pimm, Lady Horton, and the Hon. Mrs. Howard. The former are lords of the manor, and impropriators. The Church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is an ancient Gothic building, with low tower and one bell, covered with ivy, situated about 1 mile N.W. from the village; it was thoroughly restored and beautified, a handsome stained glass window put up at the east end of the chancel, and a new south porch was also added about 6 years ago at the expense of the vicar. The interior contains many ancient monuments to the Curzon and Horton families, of which two are particularly deserving of notice. One to the late Sir Robert Wilmot Horton, Bart., who died 31st May, 1841, and was interred in the family vault here. He represented the borough of Newcastle-under-Lyne in three successive parliaments, was under Secretary of state for the colonies seven years, and governor of Ceylon from 1831 to 1837. Another to the late Eusebius Horton, Esq., and Phœbe his wife, of Catton Hall; the former died April 18th, 1823, the latter 23rd May, 1814. The churchyard of Edingale, Staffordshire, is partly situated in Derbyshire. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £5, now £520. The Crown is patron, and Rev. James Gisborne, M.A., incumbent. The living is endowed with the rectorial tithes of Oakley, which have been commuted for £194. Those of Croxall vicarial for £180. The Hall, now a farm house, forming three sides of a square, and originally surrounded with a moat, is an ancient brick building with pointed gables, situated a little W. of the church; it was formerly the residence of the Earls of Dorset, is now occupied by Mr. Samuel Ward. Here is a good day school supported principally by Lady Horton, and the Rev. James Gisborne.

Oakley, hamlet and village within the Staffordshire border, 1 mile W. from Croxall Church, contains about 770A. of land, tithe free. The Birmingham and Derby branch of the Midland railway passes for a mile through this hamlet, and Oakley station is about a quarter of a mile from Croxall church.

This manor, Crocheshalle, was at the Domesday survey held under Henry de Ferrars, by one Roger, ancestor probably of the Curzons, and it continued to be the property and seat of that ancient family till the reign of Charles I., when Mary, only daughter, and heiress of Sir George Curzon, brought it to Sir Edward Sackville, K.B., afterwards the fourth Earl of Dorset. This lady, who had been appointed by the king governess to some of his children, conducted herself in that situation with so much prudence, notwithstanding the earl was a zealous royalist, that a public funeral was voted for her by both Houses of parliament, and she was buried with great pomp at Westminster Abbey, on the 3rd of September, 1645. Tradition speaks of Dryden being a visitor to the Dorset family at Croxall. The manor was purchased of John Frederick, Duke of Dorset, by John Prinsep, Esq., well known as an agriculturist, particularly for his fine breed of cattle. After the death of his son, Thomas Prinsep, Esq., it devolved under his will to his nephew, Thomas Prinsep, the son of Theophilus Levett, Esq., of Wichnor, in Staffordshire.

Catton, township and small scattered village on the Trent, 6½ miles S. from Burton-on-Trent, and 1½ N.W. from Croxall, contains 1145A. 3R. 17P. of strong good wheat land, 11 houses, and 77 inhabitants, of whom 40 were males, and 33 females; rateable value, £2,290. Lady Wilmot Horton is the owner, who pays all the tithe and rates. By the commutation of tithe, the rent charge to the vicar amounts to £91 15s., and the full value of the whole parish is £365. The Hall is a noble brick mansion, pleasantly situated in a fine park on the east bank of the Trent; it is the seat and property of Lady Wilmot Horton; also three other farms, in most pleasant situations, viz: the Catton farm and the Donkill Pitt farm, 2 miles N.W. from Croxall Church, and the Mansditch, a little more north. The late Eusebus Horton, Esq., was a lineal descendant of Roger Horton, Esq., who died seized of the manor in 1421.

Charities.—Edmund Allson, it is stated in the returns of 1786, gave £5 to the poor, and Francis Horton, in 1785, gave £5 to the poor of Croxall and £5 to the poor of Catton in this parish, all of which sums are stated to have been vested in Eusebius Horton, Esq., and to have produced 15s. per annum. It does not appear that the interest of these sums was ever paid to the parish officers, and distributed as a permanent charity. It is stated, however, that the late E. Horton, Esq., occasionally gave away money to the poor of Croxall and Catton—in which, possibly the interest of these sums may have been included.

DERBY HILLS, an extra parochial liberty, 9 miles S. from Derby, and 1 mile E. from Ticknall, contains 310A. 2R. 19P. of clay land, 10 houses, and 42 inhabitants, of whom 24 were males, and 18 females; rateable value, £351 16s. 9d. Lady Palmerston is principal owner and lady of the manor. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., owns 50 acres of land and two cottages in this liberty, which forms a part of Calke park. The resident farmers are, Henry Barrs, Derby Hills house; Richard Dexter, and Miss H. Tomlinson.

FOREMARK parish, contains the townships of Foremark and Ingleby, which together, contain 1991A. 1R. 8P. of land, and had in 1851, 45 houses, and 238 inhabitants, of whom 115 were males, and 123 females; rateable value, £2,901.

FOREMARK township, 6½ miles S.S.W. from Derby, contains 1135A. 1R. 15P. of land, principally red loam; the Hall, 3 farms and 6 cottages: and in 1851 had 89 inhabitants, of whom 47 were males, and 42 females; rateable value, £1574 10s. Sir Robt. Burdett, Bart., is owner, impropriator, and patron of the church, St. Saviour, a perpetual curacy valued at £31, augmented with £400 Queen Anne's bounty, and £200 Parliamentary grant; Rev J. B. Stevens, incumbent. The Church, a small structure with nave, chancel, low tower and four bells, was erected in 1662, by Sir Francis Burdett, Bart., and in 1819 a gallery was erected at the west end. A handsome carved oak screen separates the nave and chancel. Many of the Burdett family are interred here. The ancient church, which was an appendage to the priory of Repton, stood in Ingleby. The Hall is a large ancient stone mansion, 7 miles S.S.W. from Derby, the seat of Henry Clay, Esq., it was erected about the year 1762. Anchor Church, near the Trent, is a singular rocky bank, which presents the appearance of an edifice in ruins, and consists of five rooms, which tradition asserts to have been the abode of an anchorite, but some suppose it to have been a summer-house for the amusement of fishing.

The manor, Fernewerche, at Domesday survey belonged to Nigel de Stafford. In the reign of Henry II. it was given by Robert de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, to Bertram de Verdon in marriage with one of his daughters. It was purchased of the Verdons before the year 1387, by Sir Robert Francis, who obtained a confirmation of free warren from the crown in 1397. The heiress of Francis married Thomas Burdett, Esq., of Bramcote, in Warwickshire, who was created a Baronet in 1618.

INGLEBY, a township and small scattered village, situated at the foot of a sandy cliff, on the south bank, and overlooking the vale of the Trent, 7 miles south from Derby, contains 855A. 3R. 33P. of sandy land, including 98A. of woods, 27 houses, and 149 inhabitants, of whom 68 were males and 81 females; rateable value, £1,326 10s. Sir Robert Burdett is sole owner. Ingleby Hill House, a neat modern mansion, on a lofty eminence 7½ miles S.W. from Derby, is the seat of Sampson Massey, jun., Esq. In the village is a remarkable Elm tree, said to be upwards of 600 years old, but is now fast decaying. Feast, Sunday before old Michaelmas day.

CHARITIES.—Mary Burdett, by will, in 1697, desired that her executor, Sir Robert Burdett, and his heirs, should dispose of £10 yearly until he or they should lay out the sum of £200, so that the interest or profit thereof might yearly be disposed of to the poor of Foremark, Ingleby, Milton or Repton, or any of them, in clothing poor women, distributing bread on Sundays, schooling of girls, buying Bibles, and Common Prayer Books, or in such other way as they should think to be the greatest charity.

Dorothy Burdett, in 1717, desired that her brothers, and, after their decease, that her kinsman, Sir Robert Burdett, and his heirs, should dispose of £10 yearly out of the rents of Hogs Hill farm, until he or they should lay out the sum of £200, so that the yearly interest or profit thereof might be laid out or disposed of to the poor of Foremark, Ingleby, Repton, Milton (a hamlet in Repton), and Ticknall. The above sums have never been laid out in pursuance of the above will. Sir Francis Burdett, is the owner of Hogs Hill farm, and under the direction of his agent a quantity of beef and clothing, to a much greater amount than the interest, is provided annually at Christmas, and the poor of the several places interested with the respective overseers, attend at Foremark Hall, where the meat and clothing are distributed.

HARTSHORN is a large straggling village and parish, pleasantly situated on the Derby and Leicester road, 3½ miles N.W. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and 11 miles S. by W. from Derby, it contains with the hamlet of Woodville or Wooden Box 3,500 acres of land principally strong clay, and had in 1851, 294 houses and 1,350 inhabitants, of whom 679 were males and 671 females; rateable value £5,465 18s. The Earl of Chesterfield is lord of the manor and principal owner. The Rev. Henry Wm. Buckley, the executors of the late Joseph Thompson, Samuel Biddulph, Hugh Brookes, James Watts, and Wm, Wilder, Esqrs., are also owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Peter, is an ancient structure, with tower and five bells, rebuilt in 1735, except the chancel and tower at a cost of £1,400, and the seats are all free and unappropriated. In the Church is an incised slab, representing the figures of a knight, in the armour of the fifteenth century, and his lady. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £3 2s. 1d., now £540, in the patronage of the Earl of Chesterfield and W. Blake, Esq., and incumbency of the Rev. Henry Wm. Buckley, M.A. The rectory is a handsome residence, a little east of the Church, it was rebuilt by the present incumbent in 1835. At the inclosure in 1766, 394 acres of land were awarded in lieu of tithes. This manor, Heorteshorne, at Domesday survey belonged to Earl Ferrars. The priory and convent at Repton had lands and a moiety of a park in Hartshorn. In 1504, John Ireland held the manor of Hartshorn Upperhall, under William Abell, and Netherhall under the Earl of Shrewsbury. Sir William Compton died seized of it in 1528. The Comptons were succeeded by the Cantrells. The heiress of Cantrell married the grandfather of William Bailey Cant, Esq., who, dying in 1800, bequeathed this manor and other estates to Lord Erskine, (then at the bar), for his able defence of John Horne Tooke and other persons, who were tried for high treason, in 1794. In consequence of the omission of certain legal processes, the intention of the testator was defeated, and Miss Partridge, one of the cousins and co-heiress of Mr. Cant, carried this manor to John Murcot, Esq. On the borders of Leicestershire was a small manor called Short Hazles, which belonged to the Royles, and was divided into severalties. The learned and eloquent George Stanhope, D.D., Dean of Canterbury, was born at Hartshorn, in March, 1661, his father, the Rev. Thomas Stanhope, being then rector. The Rev. Stebbing Shaw, the historian of Staffordshire, succeeding his father in the rectory of Hartshorn. He died in London in 1802, and was buried at Hartshorn. Coal and iron stone abound here, but are not worked at present. Fire clay is obtained here in large quantities, which is sent to Birmingham and Sheffield; and an extensive screw manufactory which gave employment to a number of hands has been discontinued, part of which has been converted into a saw mill. Nether Hall, a handsome mansion $1\frac{1}{4}$ mile W. from the village, is the seat of Mrs. Worthington. Short Hazle Farm, 1 mile S. by W. has been occupied by Mr. Elias Glover's family for upwards of three centuries. The General Baptists, and Wesleyan Methodists have each places of worship here, the former was built in 1845, and the latter about 60 years ago. Here are several male and female sick societies. Old Midway is a small hamlet, partly in Swadlincote township, situated as its name denotes between Burton-on-Trent and Ashby-de-la-Zouch.

Charities.—Rev. Wm. Dethick, in 1624, bequeathed to his executors the sum of £100, or more if need be, to purchase land, tenements, or rents, of the yearly value of £7, to be conveyed to the lord or owner of Newhall, in the county of Derby, and the incumbent of the parish church of Hartshorn for the time being, and to two other persons, and their heirs, in trust, to employ the rents to the uses declared in a schedule under his hand. The property of the charity consists of a good house and about 32 acres of land in the parish of Ticknall, let for £50 per annum. These lands were set out to the trustees of the charity about 1776, upon an inclosure in lieu of several small pieces of land, dispersed in the open fields; and the house was rebuilt by the tenant at an expense of £200, towards which he cut a few growing trees on the farm, worth about £25. Two houses, with small gardens, in the High street of Burton-upon-Trent, now let for £15 a-year each. In 1813 the school was re-built, under the management of the Rev. Francis Tunnicliffe, the rector, at a cost of nearly £170; it is capable of holding 70 scholars; in order to defray this, the schoolmaster's salary was limited to £30. The master now receives £60 per annum salary, and £2 12s. is expended in bread to the poor. It is free to all the boys of the parish, and the girls pay a small trifle weekly, and are taught reading, writing, and accounts, and provided with books without any charge.

John Hazard, in 1724, gave a rent charge, then vested in Joseph Toon, for bread to the poor of this parish, paid from a farm called the Brick House, now the property of the Earl of Chesterfield; and £5 4s. is paid as the rent charge, which, with £2 12s. from Dethick's charity, three shillings worth of bread is provided every Sunday, and distributed amongst poor widows.

George Stanhope, D.D., by deed in 1723, gave to five poor householders of this parish, the sum of £20, then in the hands of the rector, and producing annually £1. This money came into the hands of the Rev. Stebbing Shaw the younger, who died in 1802, as well as a balance of £63 10s. due from him on account of Dethick's charity remains still unpaid, (1826). The yearly sum of £1 was paid as the interest thereof by the Rev. F. Tunnicliffe, his executor, under the expectation, as he states, that sufficient assets would have been found for the discharge of all his debts. There seems to be no doubt that Mr. Tunnicliffe is himself liable to make good so much of the debts due to this and Dethick's charity, as would have been paid if the assets he received had been applied proportionably towards the payment of all debts of the same degree.

Poor's Land.—There are two pieces of land, one of which contains about 1A. 3R. and the other about 3R., and also a small garden. These premises are supposed to have been purchased for the benfit of the poor by the contributions of the Countess of Dorset and others, but we could not discover any documents. In the parliamentary returns of 1786, a donation of some land is mentioned, by some person unknown, vested in the churchwardens and overseers, and two benefactions of £5 each, one of which is ascribed to the will of Samuel Coulson, 1705, the other being unknown. The above mentioned premises are let for £4 11s. per annum, which is distributed at Midsummer and Christmas, after divine service, at the Church, by the rector and parish officers.

Rev. Francis Gisborne's Charity, (See Bradley.)—The yearly sum of £5 10s. received on account of this is distributed to the poor by the minister in cloth and flannel.

The parsonage is a neat brick residence near the Church, erected in 1850. The Wesleyan Methodists have a small chapel here. In 1848 a handsome and spacious National School with a house for the master, was erected of brick which will accommodate 100, average 65. The population in 1851 of the entire New Ecclesiastical district of Woodville contained 210 houses and 986 inhabitants, of whom 581 were males and 485 females.

LULLINGTON parish, contains the townships of Lullington, and Coton-in-the-Elms, 2,911 acres of land, and in 1851, had 145 houses, and 679 inhabitants, of whom 337 were males, and 342 females; rateable value £4,926 15s.

LULLINGTON, a township and well built pleasant village, 7½ miles S. from Burton-upon-Trent, contains 1,756 acres of light but rich land, particularly celebrated for the excellent quality of its cheese, 67 houses, and 303 inhabitants, of whom 153 were males, and 150 females; rateable value £2,824. Charles Robert Colville, Esq., M.P., is sole owner, lord of the manor and impropriator. The Church, dedicated to All Saints, was presented by Edward III. to the priory of Gresley, it is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £4 11s. 10d., now £140, in the patronage of the Crown. Rev. Theodore Echalaz, M.A., is incumbent. It is an ancient structure, with nave, chancel, tower and spire, with 6 bells. The vicarage is a handsome mansion west of the church, with 60 acres of glebe. A handsome school was erected near the east end of the church, by the lord of the manor, in 1843, which he partly supports, the average attendance about 40. The village has been considerably improved within the last few years. The lordship adjoins several preserved manors, and forms part of the Atherstone Hunt. It is a salubrious and picturesque district of productive forward land. The village is 5¼ miles from Walton Railway station, and 4¼ miles from Oakley station. The manor of Lulletune was in the Gresley family in the reign of Edward I., and the church was given by that family to the priory of Gresley, and appropriated to that monastery in the reign of the second Edward. Lullington, written in Domesday book Lullitune, had a priest, a church, and a mill, at the time of the Norman survey.

Coton-in-the-Elms, township and pleasant compact village, 6 miles S. by W. from Burton-upon Trent, and 1½ N. N. W. from Lullington, contains 1,163 acres of fertile land, 78 houses, and 376 inhabitants, of whom 184 were males, and 192 females; rateable value £2,102 15s. Lady Wilmot Horton is the principal owner and lady of the manor. The executors of the late Charles Arkwright, Esq., John Curzon, Esq., Mrs. Sarah Bach, and Mr. Edwin Mallaber, have also estates here. The tithe was commuted in 1841. The rectorial belong principally to the landowners, but £165 is payable from the vicarial to the trustees of the late Sir Roger Gresley, Bart. A Church, dedicated to St. Mary, was erected at a cost of £1,200, raised by subscriptions towards which Lady Horton gave £500, and the late Charles Arkwright and Thomas Matthew Gisborne, Esqrs., were liberal contributors. The manor house, an ancient building, is now used as a school which the lady of the manor endows with £30 per annum; 60 boys and girls attend. In 1773, Thomas Wagstaff left £50, the interest on which is paid for instructing 5 children out of the largest and poorest families in the village. At Domesday survey this manor was held by the Abbot of Burton by the service of presenting a hound in a leash to the King whenever he came into Derbyshire, but it soon passed into lay hands; for in the year 1328, it was purchased by Stephens de Segrave, of the co-heiresses of Stephen de Beauchamp. Henry, Lord Berkley, a descendant of the Segraves, sold it in 1570, to Sir Wm. Gresley, Knight.

Charities.—Henry Boylstone, in 1661, gave £10 to the poor of Lullington. In 1664, Catharine Gresley gave £10. John Ramsor alias Milner, in 1667, gave £10. Harrington Drayton, in 1703, gave £20, of which only £2 19s. was received. Thomas Darby, in 1713, gave £10, and Sarah Darby £4. Of these benefactions £43 only remained in 1750, which was placed in the hands of Sir Thomas Gresley, Bart. On the death of Sir Nigel Bowyer Gresley, Bart., in the year 1808, the total sum due to the charity, £54 5s., was paid by the executor. The sum of £4 5s. was distributed to the poor in bread in the ensuing December The sum of £50, left in the hands of Mr. Henry Cooper, who had received it from the executor, was paid to C. R. Colville, Esq., who placed it in the bank, the interest on which was not received for some years but added to the principal, thereby making it about £70, the interest on which is distributed to the poor every Christmas.

George Clarke, gave by will, in 1659, £20 to the poor of Coton. The annual sum of £1 is paid in respect of this charity, from land called Walton Ways, belonging to Walter Bach, and is distributed soon after St. Thomas's day.

Thomas Wagstaffe, in 1773, left £25 to be placed out at interest and the proceeds distributed to the poor on St. Thomas's day. He also gave the sum of £50 to be placed out at interest, to be applied to putting poor children of Coton to read. The sum of £75 is in the hands of John Stratton, on bond dated 30th October, 1815, at four per cent. interest, amounting to £3, of which £1 is distributed to the poor, with Clarke's charity; and £2 is paid to a schoolmaster for instructing 5 poor boys or girls of Coton.

MEASHAM parish contains the townships of Measham, and part of the hamlets of Donisthorpe and Oakthorpe, locally situated in the West Goscote Hundred, Leicestershire, which form a joint township, principally in Church Gresley parish, and contains 1792A. 3R. 28R. of land, a rich brown soil, and in 1851 had 365 houses, and 1663 inhabitants, of whom 830 were males, and 833 females; rateable value £4,653.

MEASHAM is a large and well built village and township, on the Ashby-de-la-Zouch and Tamworth road, 3 miles S.S.W. from Ashby, and 16 miles S. from Derby, contains 1578 acres of land, and in 1851 had 352 houses, and 1607 inhabitants, of whom 804 were males, and 803 females; rateable value £4,096. The executors of the Marquis of Hastings, are lords of the manor and owners. George Moore, Edward Stevenson, Wm. W. Abney, Joseph Simmonds, G. Hunt, and John Eames, Esqrs., with several others, are also owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Lawrence, was given to Repton priory, but afterwards belonged the priory at Gresley. It is a handsome stone structure, with a tower and 4 bells, was repewed and a gallery erected in 1842, at a cost of £1,600, raised by subscriptions, aided by a grant. It is very tastefully fitted up, and the windows are all adorned with stained glass, it contains 616 sittings, of which 316 are free. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £97, has been augmented with £1,600 Parliamentary grant. The executors of the Marquis of Hastings are patrons and impropriators; and the Rev. John Hewetson, M.A., incumbent. The parsonage is a neat residence, situated a little west of the church. The Ashby-de-la-Zouch canal passes through the village at the south end. Measham Mills the property of Mr. George Hunt, have been greatly enlarged, and consists of two factories, for the manufacture of gimp, fancy cords, silk bindings, &c., one of which is worked by a steam engine of 40 horse power, and the other by water; they give employment to upwards of 250 persons. Gas Works have recently been added. In the front of the premises is a neat garden tastefully laid out and ornamented with a small sheet of water, containing a pleasure boat, and in different parts of the grounds are grottos, one of which contains an ancient stone, with the word "Water M.A. 1636," engraved on it. On the 30th of November, 1836, a tape factory was burnt down, and on the front of an adjoining corn mill, which was preserved, is a tablet in remembrance of Sir George Rowland Beaumont, Bart., of Cole Orton Hall, in Leicestershire, who brought his own fire engine and servants and assisted in extinguishing the fire. In 1310, a market on Tuesday, and a fair for three days at the festival of the translation of St. Thomas, the martyr, were granted to William de-Beresford, who then possessed a manor in Measham. A Market House was built some years ago by Joseph Wilks, which was afterwards converted into a dwelling house, and the market discontinued. Fairs are still held here on the 1st of May, and the 1st Monday in November. The General Baptists and Wesleyan Methodists have each places of worship here, the former is a handsome building, which was rebuilt in 1841 at a cost of about £1,000. A National school for boys and girls, was built in 1829, and an infant school in 1833, at a cost of £800, of which £300 was realized from the proceeds of a bazaar, under the patronage of the Countess of Howe, and the Marchioness of Hastings; upwards of 200 children attend. In 1846, a substantial house in the Gothic style was erected for the master. A British school was established in 1844, and is held in the General Baptist school room, about 60 boys and girls attend. In 1852, a Temperance Hall was erected, at a cost of £100, towards which the Earl of Howe gave £10, on condition that it should not be used for religious services. Here are several Odd Fellows Lodges and Sick Societies in the village. The Union Inn, built by Joseph Wilkes, was formerly a great posting house, and the stables which were very extensive, have since been converted into dwelling houses, shopping, &c. Measham Hall, a neat brick mansion, which stands on a lawn of 30 acres, 1½ mile east, is the seat of William Wootten Abney, Esq. Measham Field House, 1 mile N.E., is a handsome residence, erected in 1812, by Joseph Jones, Esq., and is now the seat and property of Joseph Simmonds, Esq.

Donisthorpe and Oakthorpe, township—(For) See Church Gresley parish.

Charities.—Thomas Monk, in 1713, devised all his measuages, lands, &c., situate in the liberties of Austrey, in the counties of Warwick, and Blaby and Countesthorpe, in the county of Leicester. Of this charity, of which the income is about £271 19s. 9d., Measham is entitled to a residue; and in 1856, £5 was paid for the poor, and £30 to Measham school.

Susanna and Deborah Hall, in 1660, gave James Abney and two others £200 in trust for their use during their lives, and afterwards to the poor of Measham, from which eventually, Waltonway close, in Donisthorpe, and three poles of Mease Meadow, and the outdrift every fourth year, and two beast gates in the said meadow, were conveyed, in 1682, to the poor of Measham; and in 1688, Pockey close, in Waltonway, and two leys and a rood of land in a close, called the vale of Belvoir, and four poles in Mease Meadow, and two beast gates in Branbury Meadow, and one beast gate in the Peat Leys pasture, in Donisthorpe, were conveyed for the use of the poor. The above premises let for £36 6s. 11d. per annum. This, with other charities, is distributed to the poor on St. Thomas's day.

Henry Hullock, Dean of Rochester, in 1704, gave to the poor of Measham, £6 a year, issuing out of his lands at Ringwold, near Dover. In 1805, the estate was sold, and this rent charge secured on a part of it purchased by Mr. John Upton. The yearly sum of £5 4s. is received, the residue, 16s. being deducted for land tax.

In a book containing the account of the charities of this parish, there is an entry dated 23rd December, 1805, stating that the trustees of Mr. Wilkes' estate paid that day £50, (save £1 to the executor of William Hill,) as the bequest of the late William Hill, of Leicester, to the poor of Measham, with interest amounting to £22 15s., and also £20 for "principal money lodged in his hands," with 20s. for one year's interest thereon, making together £92 15s, Of this sum, £90 was, in 1805, placed in the Ashby and Measham bank, and in 1806. £10 was added thereto from the general fund of the charities. In 1818, the sum of £45 was placed in the same bank, the amount of a legacy given by the will of Sarah Hill. The interest on the above sums £7 5s. per annum, is distributed on St. Thomas's day. In the parliamentary returns of 1786, a donation of £30 to the poor is mentioned, in the hands of the minister and inhabitants. This sum is lent to the trustees of the Hinckley turnpike road, at 5 per cent., which is regularly paid, and distributed with the others.

Mrs. Salisbury is supposed to have left £60 for a school, but we have not been able to obtain any information to assist us in tracing the gift.

MELBOURNE parish, with the hamlet of King's Newton, contains 3,463A. 3R. 5P. of land, including 62 acres of public roads, and 37A. 2R. 27P. of the river Trent, and had in 1851, 596 houses and 2,680 inhabitants, of whom 1,288 were males and 1,392 females

rateable value £7,606 16s. The executors of the Marquis of Hastings, Lady Palmerston, Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., and Mr. Thomas Hemsley are the principal owners, the former are lords of the manor; there are also many other small freeholders. Melbourne, is a small, pleasant, and well built market town, 8½ miles S.S.E. from Derby, and 6 miles N.W. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, is noted for market gardeners, the largest of whom is Mr. Samuel Robinson, of Shaw house. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, is a large venerable edifice, with nave, chancel, side aisles, a low embattled tower, and four bells, has a gallery at the west end, and an organ. Here are some ancient monuments to the Hardinge family, particularly that to Sir Robert Hardinge, Knight, who died in 1760, and of his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Richard Sprignall, of Highgate, who died in 1673, with their effigies cut on white marble slabs. The Church is open to the road on all sides, the churchyard being at some distance, in which about the year 1550 was a handsome Gothic structure, but which has long been demolished. King John granted the Church of Melbourne to Benedict de Ramsay, about 1203, and afterwards to Simon de Waltham, after whose death Walter Maclere, Bishop of Carlisle, either by grant or purchase, annexed the Church with the parsonage manor to that See. In 1229 the Bishop had the grant of a fair. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's books at £9 13s. 4d., now £179. Bishop of Carlisle patron and appropriator, and the Rev. Joseph Dean, M.A., incumbent. The vicarage is a neat stone residence near the south side of the Church, and has 72A. 0R. 22P. of glebe land. The chantry of St. Catherine was founded by William Bars, in 1379, and was a detached building near the Church; that of St. Michael by Simon de Melbourne, clerk, and others, in 1400. The chantry roll speaks also of one founded by Lee Hunte. The General Baptists have a handsome chapel to seat about 700 persons. The Independent chapel, built in 1779 and enlarged in 1841, is a stone building with brick front and stone dressings, will seat 280. The Wesleyan Methodists have a neat brick chapel, erected in 1826, at a cost of £600, to seat 200. The Swedenborgian chapel was opened in 1825, will accommodate 120 persons. The National Schools, which consist of a large brick building of two stories, were erected in 1821, through the exertions of the Rev. Mr. Bagge, the curate; when a house, in which the master of Lady Elizabeth Hastings' school had been permitted to reside, was in part pulled down, and the present school built on the site, the remainder of the old building being fitted up for the master's residence. Towards the expense, which amounted to £550, the sum of £250 was given by the National School society, and nearly £100 was raised by private subscriptions and such part of the master's salary as accrued during the progress of the building; the rest was advanced by the Rev. Mr. Bagge, and the schools were opened December, 1822. £19 10s. is paid to this school from Lady Hastings' charity, for which 12 boys are educated free. A market is held on Saturday, for butter, poultry, vegetables, &c. In 1836, a neat post for a lamp was erected in the centre of the Market place. The Feast is held Sunday after 11th of October, or, that day when Sunday, and a statute for hiring servants on the Monday. The Odd Fellows, Druids, and Forresters have lodges here, and here are also 1 male and 2 female benefit societies. The Athenæum is a handsome brick building with stone dressings, erected by subscription in 1853, at a cost of about £1,200, exclusive of the land, which was the gift of Lady Palmerstone. It contains the Savings' bank and the Mechanics' Institution, which was established in 1841, by subscription, to which the late Joseph Strutt, Esq., gave 150 volumes of books and £5, and the late Lord Melbourne £10. It has upwards of 400 volumes, 16 honorary and 80 other members. Mr. John Holland is treasurer and Mr. Wm. Salsbury. secretary and librarian. The Gas works, Castle street, erected in 1853, by Mr. Thos. Atkins, civil engineer, of Oxford, at a cost of £2,200, raised by a company of £10 shareholders; the gasometer will hold 9,000 cubic feet, there are 5 retorts; Mr. Stephen Smith, manager, Mr. Chas. Stuart Barker, secretary, and Mr. John Earp, treasurer. Here are about 160 lace machines, principally used for manufacturing silk gloves. The manor of Melbourne was part of the ancient demesne of the crown. Henry, Earl of Lancaster, had in 1327, a charter for a market on Wednesdays, and a fair for 3 days at the festival of St.

Michael, long disused. The castle and manor continued attached to the Earldom and Duchy of Lancaster till the year 1604, when King James granted them to Charles, Earl of Nottingham. The Earl soon afterwards conveyed them to Henry, Earl of Huntingdon; from whom they have descended to the present proprietor. Melbourne castle was for many years the prison of John, Duke of Bourbon, taken at the battle of Agincourt, in 1415. Leyland, about 1550, describes it then in "meteley repair." A survey of the manor made in 1602, describes it as a "faire ancient castle which her Majesty keepeth in her own hands." The Earls of Huntingdon suffered it to go to decay. About 50 yards of the outer wall of the castle, which enclosed an area of about 10 acres of land, still remains. A few years ago, on its site, some floors and rooms were discovered of beautifully chiselled stone, with curious ornamented mouldings. The Bishops of Carlisle had a place here with a park, at which they occasionally resided. Bishop Kirkby is recorded to have held his ordination here on account of the Border wars. It was long held on lease under the see of Carlisle, together with the impropriate rectory. The first of the Coke family who settled at Melbourne as lessee under the Bishop of Carlisle, was Sir John Coke, secretary of state to King Charles I. In 1701 an agreement was made between Bishop Nicholson and Thomas Coke, Esq., that in consequence of an increase of the annual rent from £45 to £70, and of the vicar's stipend from £20 to £35, the fee should be vested in perpetuity in Mr. Coke, his heirs and assigns. This agreement was confirmed by an act of parliament in 1704. The sister and heiress of George Lewis Coke, Esq., who died in 1750, brought Melbourne Hall and the parsonage manor to Sir Matthew Lamb, Bart. Sir Penistone Lamb, Bart., his son, was created an Irish peer, by the title of Lord Melbourne, in 1770, and in 1780 he was advanced to the dignity of a Viscount. The palace was taken down about 1830, when many ancient reliques, coins, earthenware vessels, &c., were found. It was a large building with pointed gables, and the park had long been converted into tillage. The Hall, situated near the Church, is a large modern stone mansion, commanding some fine views, having in front a sheet of water covering 28 acres. In the gardens and shrubberies, which are extensive, is a walk of yew trees supposed to be several centuries old. It is the seat of Geo. Briscoe, Esq., and the property of Lady Palmerston. Shaw Hill House, a neat brick residence, 1 mile S.W. is the seat and property of Wm. M. Briggs, Esq. Lodge Hill House, ¾ mile S.E. situated on a commanding eminence, and having extensive views is occupied by Mr. Joseph Hasard, farmer.

King's Newton, is a small well built pleasant village, and joint township with Melbourne, 8 miles S.S.E. from Derby, and 1 mile N. from the parish Church. It contains about 795 acres of land; the rateable value, population, &c., is given with Melbourne. The executors of the Marquis of Hastings are lords of the manor, and the principal owners are Lady Palmerston, Joseph Thomas Cantrell, Esq., Joseph Earp, Esq., Mr. Henry Orton, Mr. John Sims, Rev. Wm. Hy. Cantrell, and Mr. John Briggs. The manor was granted in 1322, with that of Melbourne to Sir Robert Holland. The Hall is an ancient stone mansion, in the Elizabethan style, was erected by one of the Hardingé's, and was for many generations the residence of that family. It is now the property of Lady Palmerston, and the seat of Robert Green, Esq. King Charles II. was entertained here by Sir Robt. Hardinge, Knight., when, after His Majesty's departure, some writing was discovered on a pane of stained glass, signed Carlos Newton Regis, hence the name, Newton Regis. Holy Well, a spring formerly much in repute, over which a stone arch was constructed in 1660, with a latin inscription upon it. In the 16th century here was a weekly market and a yearly fair. At the south end of the village is a stone cross on the top of which is a lime tree planted by Mr. Thos. Scott, about 80 years ago, which is very thriving. Near the cross a golden spur was found on removing a mound of earth, about 30 years ago. The manor house was situated near the Trent, of which there are no remains, its site is called the Hall Close. In 1852 a house belonging to Joseph Thomas Cantrell, Esq., was licensed and fitted up by subscription as a chapel of ease, in which the vicar of Melbourne performs divine service every Sunday evening. Mr. Hy. Orton has extensive works here, for the manufacture of superior front, floor, paving, and common bricks, quarries, drainage pipes, and every description of ware, suitable for the garden, hothouse, or conservatory.

CHARITIES.—Melbourne School.—Lady Elizabeth Hastings, by indenture, 1738, among many other charities principally in the county of York, appointed the yearly sum of £10 to a charity school in this parish, to be paid to the vicar there; and a provision for enabling the vicars of Ledsham, Thorp Arch, and Cottingham, in the county of York, to advance the sums to each as the rents increased. In pursuance of this power, this school now receives £19 10s.

Henry Greene, in 1679, charged all his estates with the payment of four green waistcoates lined with green galloon lace, to be delivered to four poor women on or before 21st December, yearly. The premises now belong to Lady Palmerston, and in lieu of the four waistcoats, which have not been provided for many years, the yearly sum of £2 is disposed of, part in clothing and part in bread.

Thomas Gray, in 1691, directed his executors to lay out £200 in the purchase of lands, out of the rents or profits thereof six nobles to be given yearly, to buy six waistcoats of grey cloth edged with blue galloon lace, and 40s. to buy three coats of grey cloth to be faced with baize or some other blue stuff; four waistcoats to be given yearly to four poor widows of Castle Donnington, and the other to poor widows of Melbourne, and the coats to be given to two men of each of the said places. He directed copies of his will should be entered in the town's books of the said parishes and hung up in the Churches, and should be read yearly on St. Thomas's day or the following Sunday, after prayers; for the performance of which, he directed the ministers should have 5s. a-piece; and also that 15 dozen of bread should be given to the poor of Castle Donnington, and 10 dozen to the poor of Melbourne yearly, on St. Andrew's day; and he further directed, that whatever surplus should remain of the rents and profits of the said premises should be distributed, two parts thereof for apprenticing poor children of Castle Donnington, and the third part to the poor children of Melbourne. The yearly sum of £10 15s. 4d. is transmitted to Melbourne, as the proportion due; of this, 5s. is paid to the minister for reading the will. The sum of £1 6s. 8d., together with £1 10s. part of Greene's charity above-mentioned, is applied towards purchasing 3 coats and 3 gowns for poor men and women who are nominated at a vestry. 10s., with 10s. of Greene's charity is laid out in the purchase of sixpenny loaves, and given away about Christmas; and with the residue of the rent apprentices are placed out, with premiums varying from £5 to £10. In August, 1826, there was a balance in hand of £48 10s. 5d.

NEWTON SOLNEY is a small pleasant village and parish, 3 miles N.E. from Burton-on-Trent, and 9 miles S.W. from Derby, contains 1,440 acres of rich land, and in 1851 had 80 houses and 366 inhabitants, of whom 188 were males and 178 females; rateable value £3,090. Sir Henry Flower Every, Bart., the Earl of Chesterfield, Mr. John Higgott, Mr. Samuel Higgott, Mr. Wm. Morley, Mrs. Sarah Wayte, Mrs. Eliz. Somers, Mr. Wm. Smedley, and Mr. John Marbrow, are the principal owners; the former is lord of the manor. The Church, dedicated to St Mary, is an ancient edifice, with nave, chancel, and low tower surmounted by a short spire, was appropriated to Repton Priory. Here are two ancient monuments of the Solney family, one of them is a statue carved in stone, of a Knight in mail and surcoat, his feet resting upon two foilated brackets, with his left hand on his breast and his right hand upon his sword; this interesting old sculpture has been removed from the nave, into a receptacle for lumber, on the north side of the chancel. The other is under an arch in the north wall of the chancel, it is the effigy of a Knight in plate armour, with gorget of mail, the pillow on which his head reclines is supported by angels, and his feet are placed upon a lion. This statue is much more modern than the other, and is carved in alabaster, a material seldom used for sculptures of a very early date. Here is also a neat tablet to Abraham Hoskins, Esq., who died March 13th, 1841, aged 83, also a handsome monument to Sir Henry Every, of Egginton, who died September 1st, 1709. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £20; Sir Henry Flower Every, Bart., is patron and impropriator, who pays a modus of 4s. 10½d. to the church, and £30 to the perpetual cutate, the Rev. John Hare, B.A. The Castle, a handsome mansion on a lofty eminence commanding extensive views, 1 mile W. from the village, was erected by Abraham Hoskins, Esq., now the property of the Earl of Chesterfield, at present unoccupied. The Park, a large handsome mansion, situated near the west end of the village, having a fine view of the Trent, is the residence of Thos. Worthington, Esq. The Mount, a neat pleasant house on rising ground, amidst shrubberies and plantations, 1 mile E. from the village, is the residence of James Drewery, Esq. The Rock House, a neat residence on the north bank of the Trent, and near to which the river Dove has its confluence with the Trent, is occupied by James Mitchell, Esq. Hargate pasture, formerly containing 60 acres, and which is supposed to have belonged to the poor. Some time ago, 24 acres were let off, and the remaining 36 acres the poor have the liberty of grazing a cow, on payment of £3 10s. per annum to the owner, Sir Henry Flower Every, Bart. The manor was held at an early period, under the Earls of Chester, by the ancient equestrian family of Solney, whose co-heiress married Sir Nicholas Longford, and Sir Thomas Strafford, and was inhabited by the Longfords, of whom it was purchased by the Leighs, about the reign of Henry VIII. The heiress of Leigh brought it to the Every family. About 1795, Abraham Hoskins, Esq., purchased the principal landed estates. The Wesleyan Methodists have a small chapel, erected in 1851. A few years ago, the old stocks were taken down, and a Lock-up erected in the centre of the village. Mr. John Marbrow has an extensive brick, tile, drain-pipe, and kiln-tile manufactory here, established in 1811, by the present proprietor's father-in-law, Mr. Wm. Hopkins. Feast, first Sunday after September 19th.

PACKINGTON parish, mostly situated in the West Goscote Hundred, Leicertershire, contains the township of Packington and the chapelry of Snibston, 3,093 acres of land, and in 1851 had 269 houses and 1,294 inhabitants, of whom 633 were males and 661 females; rateable value £5,118.

PACKINGTON, a pleasant village and township 1½ miles S.E. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and 16 miles S. from Derby, contains 502 acres of good fertile land, in Derbyshire, 57 houses and 277 inhabitants, of whom 116 were males and 161 females; rateable value £923 3s. 6d. Sir Charles Abney Hastings, Bart., is lord of the manor and principal owner of the township, which abounds in coal, not worked at present. The Derbyshire part is completely surrounded by Leicestershire, from which, in the direction of S.E., are several other similarly isolated tracts of land belonging to the county of Derby, which probably have been allotments on some extensive inclosure. The Church, St. Michael's, a vicarage valued in the King's book at £5 15s. 10d., now £265 with Snibston. Sir Cha. Abney Hastings, Bart., is patron and impropriator, and Rev. C. Pratt, junr., B.A., incumbent. The Church is in Leicestershire; it is a neat stone structure with a tower and four bells, was repaired and enlarged in 1844, at a cost of £170, and has now 120 free sittings. The vicarage is a commodious residence a little north of the Church; here are 62 acres of glebe land. The Methodists and Baptists have neat chapels. A school was erected near the Church by the patron in 1833; about 60 scholars attend, and in 1849 another school was erected in connection with the Baptist Chapel.

CHARITIES.—Robert Bredon gave a cottage in Packington and certain lands, containing 17A. 2R. 38P. of land (which has since been inclosed) for the use of the parish for ever, for repairing the highways, bridges, and causeways.

One of the Earls of Huntington at the inclosure, gave a piece of land called Allowance Close, containing 16A. 1R. 12P. of land, for the use of nine poor widows of this parish for ever. This is now in the occupation of Mr. Wm. Walker, who pays a rent charge of £24 yearly.

Susannah Kiddier left 10s. a-year for ever, to issue out of lands in Donisthorpe, for the use of the poor in this parish, to be distributed on St. Thomas's day. The sum of 40s. was left by some person unknown, to be lent for three years to some poor tradesman of this parish without interest.

Smibton Chapelry is altogether in Leicestershire.

Post Office, at John Hatton's, letters arrive from Ashby-de-la-Zouch at 7 a.m., and are despatched at 6.30 p.m.

RAVENSTONE parish and well built village, pleasantly situated 4 miles S. E. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, partly in West Goscote Hundred, Leicestershire, contains 1086A. 2R. 2P. of rich land, principally occupied as dairy farms, of which, about 580 are in Derbyshire, completely surrounded by Leicestershire, and in 1851 had 66 houses in Derbyshire, and 58 houses in Leicestershire, 396 inhabitants, of whom 186 were in Derbyshire, and 210 in Leicestershire; rateable value £1,866. Of the County rate, one part is paid to Derby and two parts to Leicester. Leonard Fosbrooke, Esq., lord of the manor and principal owner; Robert Green Cresswell, Esq., also an owner. The Church, St. Michael's, is a rectory, valued in the King's book £5 1s. 1½d., now £300, in the patronage of the Crown, and incumbency of the Rev. James Thomas Alderson. It is an ancient structure, with nave, chancel, side aisle, tower and 3 bells, was thoroughly repaired in 1838, and an organ was put up in 1832. In the chancel are several marble tablets to the Fosbrooke family. The rectory, west of the church, is at present being greatly enlarged. The open fields were inclosed in 1770, when 165A. including ancient glebe land, were awarded in lieu of the tithe. The Methodist chapel, erected in 1838, a neat brick building, cost £150, is in Leicestershire. Here is a National school. The Hall, at the west end of the village, is a handsome mansion which has of late been much improved, the seat of Leonard Fosbrooke, Esq. John Wilkins, Esq., who was possessed of this estate before the year 1689, built a noble mansion, which after his death was sold with the manor to Roger Cave, Esq., after whose death it was purchased by an ancestor of Mr. Fosbrooke, who pulled down the large house and erected a smaller for his own residence. An hospital for 29 aged women was built and endowed by John Wilkins. Esq., and Rebecca his wife, in 1712, to have three able-bodied women as nurses; since which, 2 more houses have been provided for the nurses. The women are to be of the parishes of Ravenstone, Swanington, and Cole-Orton, or, in default of proper objects, of other neighbouring parishes, to be 50 years of age at the least, unless blind or impotent, of good fame, and members of the church of England. Mrs. Wilkins, by her will, endowed it after the death of her husband with all her lands in Thorpe-Ernald, Higham, and Sutton Cheney in Leicestershire, and states that the foundation was in memory of her son, Francis Wollaston Wilkins, who died in 1711. The endowment consists of about 800 acres of land, producing an annual income of £940. Each of the inmates now receives 5s. per week, besides a liberal allowance of coal and clothing. There is a master or chaplain who has a salary of £60 per annum. The present chapel and house for the master were built in 1784, from the accumulatod funds of the charity. It is in Derbyshire. Here was formerly a castle, a little north of the church, which was dismantled in the reign of Henry II.. of which no traces remain. The Ancient Druids have a lodge here, held at the Plough Inn.

REPTON, is a large pleasant well built village and parish, consisting principally of one long street, and many scattered farm houses. It is 4½ miles N. E. from Burton-upon-Trent, and 7½ miles S.S.W. from Derby, contains 4797A. 1R. 6P. of strong clay land, which was enclosed in 1766., 398 houses, and 1863 inhabitants, of whom 930 were males, and 933 females; rateable value £8,091 8s. Sir Robert Burdett and Sir John Harpur Crewe, Barts., are joint lords of the manor and principal owners. Mr. Francis Holbrook, Rev. J. T. Smith, William Prince, Esq., Mr. James Marples, Mrs. Eliza Somers, Mr. James Smith, and Mr. John Marbrow, are also considerable owners. 3A. 2R. 10P. of land, let for £10 10s., belongs to, and is let for the reparation of the Church, dedicated to St. Wyston, which is a perpetual curacy, certified at £123, and has been endowed with £200 Queen Anne's bounty. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., is patron, and Rev. Joseph Jones, M.A., incumbent. The Church is a large ancient edifice, with nave, chancel, side aisles and tower, surmounted by a handsome spire 210 feet high. It was repewed in 1795, and galleries on the south side and west end were erected in 1842, and an organ added in 1844, at a cost of £320. The crypt beneath the chancel is perhaps the most perfect specimen existing in the Anglo-Saxon style. It is supported by four pillars of singular character, with a spiral band or moulding round each, and was entered from the church by means of two winding passages. It doubtless formed a part of the conventual church, destroyed by the Danes. The church contains many ancient monuments to the masters of Etwall hospital and Repton grammar school. The school is a large stone building covered with flat tiles. The scholars on the foundation are reduced to 8 poor scholars, who are appointed by the governors in rotation; 4 of which receive £40 per annum for their board and education, and the other 4 have £45 each for the same purpose. The head master's salary is £360; first usher, £180; second usher, £150 per annum. There are two exhibitions of £50 per annum to either university. The mansion in which the head master resides belongs to Sir R. Burdett, Bart. (For particulars of this charity see Sir John Port's charity, Etwall.) The church school-rooms erected in 1833, for which Sir George Crewe, Bart., gave the land, were defrayed by subscription; they were enlarged in 1844, and form a neat ornamental building. Each room will accommodate 100, average attendance 50 boys and 90 girls. The Independent chapel was built in 1836, at a cost of £460, and enlarged in 1839, at a cost of £177, and will seat 400 persons. A house and garden for the minister cost £476; and in 1845 a school-room was added at a cost of £200, in which a day and Sunday school are kept; about 60 children attend. The Wesleyan Methodists have a neat brick chapel, erected in 1815, to seat about 200 persons. In the village is an ancient stone cross, approached by eight steps; it has a plain round shaft with a ball on the top, and formerly had a market, long disused, but fairs are held for cattle on the third Monday in April, and the third Monday in November, and a statute for hiring servants on Tuesday before Old Michaelmas Day. A troop of Yeomanry cavalry was raised here in 1833, under the command of C. R. Colville, Esq., M.P. The Freemasons and Odd Fellows have lodges here, besides several societies. The Mechanics' Institute, Reading Room and Library, were established in March, 1853. The library contains about 370 volumes; Mr. Thomas Kirk, is the secretary, and Mr. Robert Drewe, librarian. Here is also a Saving's bank, a branch of the Burton-upon-Trent bank, open every Saturday night, from 6 to 8 o'clock. Repton Park is a large ancient mansion, one mile S.E., the property of Sir J. H. Crewe, Bart., and seat of Edmund Lewis Crewe, Esq. Norbury Hays is another ancient mansion, 1¼ miles S.E. by S., the property of Sir J. H. Crewe, Bart., and seat of Charles H. Crewe, Esq.

DANIEL HAY, a large farm in the Southwood division, 6 miles S.E. from Repton, contains about 260 acres of land, the property of Sir J. H. Crewe, Bart., and is occupied by Mr. John Newbold. In 1839, a good stone bridge of five arches, was erected across the Trent to Willington, on which there is a toll-house, It was built by subscription, at a cost of £9,000, and the approaches to it about £3,000 more, for which the public are much indebted to Mr. Stephen Glover, of Derby.

MILTON, a hamlet and small village, 1 mile S.E. from Repton, contains 1,330A. of land. In 1821, an exchange was made between Sir Francis Burdett and Sir George Crewe; Sir George giving his portion of the hamlet in exchange for Sir Francis's portion of Southwood hamlet and the Hays of 65A. 3R. 9R. in Repton.

SKADOWS, a district of 4 cottages, belongs to Sir J. H. Crewe, Bart.

SOUTHWOOD, in Repton, a hamlet of scattered farms and cottages, $5\frac{3}{4}$ miles S.E. from Repton.

SICKNALL, in Repton, adjoins the lower extremity of Ticknall. Here are some extensive lime works, and a brick yard.

REPTON, anciently called Repington, is supposed to have been the Roman station Repandunum. Under the Saxon dominion it was called Repandum, and was the capital of the kingdom of Mercia. Before the year 660, here was a nunnery, in which Ethelbald and others, of the Mercian kings, were interred. A priory of black canons removed hither in 1172 from Calke.

CHARITIES.—Repton Free School.—Sir John Port, Knight, in 1556, devised certain lands to Sir Thomas Gifford, Knight, and four others, his executors, for the foundation of an almhouse at Etwall, and a grammar school at Etwall or Repton. (See Etwall.)

Thomas Whitehead, second master of the free school at Repton, in 1654 devised the Ferry Acres to his Executors, and directed them to permit the head master of Repton school for the time being, to hold and take the rents and profits of the said meadow, under the yearly rent of 30s., payable at Michaelmas and Lady-day, to be distributed to 30 poor people of Repton. The land, consisting of 4 acres on the Trent, is held by the head master, and the rent 30s. is regularly distributed by him to 30 poor persons.

Ralph Hough, citizen of London, by will, gave £100 to the inhabitants of Repton, for raising a rent-charge of £5 for the poor of the said place. In 1657, two closes, containing 2A., called the Further Hough Woods, on Nun Irons, situated in Oslaston, in the parish of Sutton-on-the-Hill, were conveyed on trust, and £5 yearly is paid by the tenant, which is given to the poor.

William Gilbert, in 1706, gave lands at Repton, upon trust, yearly, at Christmas and Easter, to distribute the profits to the poor of Repton who should be at church, not exceeding 12. In lieu of the land devised, the commissioners for the Repton inclosure, by their award, dated 11th May, 1796. allotted a parcel of land in the "Good Field," containing 2A. 0R. 8P., to Thomas Gilbert, as trustee for the parish of Repton. The land forms a part of a close called the Upper Newton Brook Close, which in August, 1826, was in the occupation of George Gilbert, who, in respect thereof, paid 12s. on Christmas day, and 12s. on Trinity Sunday, which he distributed to 12 poor widows. It appears the whole rents were given to the poor. We apprehend that there is no doubt that a fair rent ought to be paid by the occupier for their benefit. Since our enquiry took place, Mr. Gilbert has agreed to take the land at £5 per annum. It is to be observed he is bound to make a fence between his own property and the land belonging to the charity, when required to do so.

William Hunt, in 1736, bequeathed to the vicar and churchwardens of Repton the sum of £20, the interest to be distributed by them to eight of the poorest parishioners. The above sum is in the hands of Richard Somers; originally placed in his father's hands at $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. The yearly sum of 18s. is paid to the vicar, and distributed to the poor.

Richard Comings, of Cambridge, deposited £70 with Robert Wedd, to be by him invested in the purchase of £100 three per cent. consols, upon trust. By indenture dated 22nd July, 1801, the sum of £60, part of the said & 70, was invested in the purchase of £100 three per cent. consols, in the name of the vicar of Repton and churchwardens, on trust, to expend the dividends annually in bread, and distribute it on the day before Christmas day. The dividends are distributed and laid out according to the donor's intention.

Mary and Dorothy Burdett's Charities.—(See Foremark.)

Church Lands.—By the award of the commissioners for inclosing the open fields in Repton, 3A. 1R. 21P. on Repton Marsh was set out to the churchwardens, and is now let for £12 per annum, and expended in the repairs of the church.

SMISBY OR SMITHSBY, 1½ miles N.N.E. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, is a picturesque, pleasant, and well-built village and parish, contains besides the village, three small hamlets; viz.:—The Forty, consisting of 6 cottages, 1¼ mile N.E. The Fifty, containing 2 cottages, 1 mile N.W.; and the Wicked Nook, which has 6 cottages, 1¼ mile N.E. The parish contains 972A. 1R. 17P. of fine corn land, with a good proportion of excellent dairy land, and had in 1851 73 houses and 293 inhabitants, of whom 149 were males, and 144 females; rateable value, £1351 14s. 0d. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., is the principal owner and lord of the manor, which is subject to a chief rent of 27s. to the Crown. Here are also several small freeholders. The Marquis of Hastings is lay impropriator and patron of the Church, St. James's, which is a perpetual curacy, value £58, has been augmented with £400 Queen Anne's bounty, and was appropriated to Darley Abbey. The Rev. Marmaduke Vavasour, M.A., is the incumbent. At the old enclosure, 140 acres of land were appropriated to the Marquis of Hastings, in lieu of tithes. The Church is a neat edifice, situated on an eminence, was repaired in 1838, at a cost of £450. It is endowed with 20A. of land, producing £42 per annum, for its reparation and maintenance of high and bye roads, or any other object that the trustees may think proper to benefit the parish. In the church is an incised alabaster monument to Wm. Kendall, Esq., of the date of 1500. About quarter-mile S. of the village, a tournament is said to have taken place, which is recorded in Sir Walter Scott's Ivanhoe. The Wesleyan Methodists have a small chapel here, erected in 1845, and a National, and Infant school in the same year. The Town-well is situated in the centre of the village, and is an excellent spring of pure water. Smisby House, a little W. of the church, is a large ancient stone mansion, enclosed by a thick heavy wall; it is supposed to have been strongly fortified, and was built by Sir John Kendall, in the year 1300, it was unoccupied for 50 years, when the present occupier, Mr. J. E. Hassall, came to it in 1848, it is the property of Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart. Pistern Hills, ½ mile N. of the village, is a neat residence, the seat and property of Wm. Wilder, Esq.

This manor, at the Domesday survey, was the property of Nigel de Stafford. It afterwards belonged to the family of Coming, whose heiress married Shepey. In 1330, John Shepey, in answer to a quo warranto, stated that his ancestors had from time immemorial had a park within their manor there. The heiress of Shepey married Kendall, of whose family it was purchased by an ancestor of the present proprietor. In the parliamentary returns of 1786, it is stated, that some person unknown had given to 7 poor widows land then vested in John Tims, and producing 7s. a year. A house and garden and an acre of land near Smisby church, is now held by Miss Eliz. Tims, daughter of the late John Tims, who in respect thereof ought to distribute 7s. a year to the poor widows of Smisby, but it has not been distributed for many years.

STANTON-BY-BRIDGE is a pleasant village and parish, situated on an eminence overlooking the vale of the Trent and surrounding country, 6 miles S.S.E. from Derby, contains 1,273A. 0R. 34P. of rich land, 35 houses and 215 inhabitants, of whom 100 were males and 115 females; rateable value £1,811. Sir Robt. Burdett, Bart., Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., and the Rev. Thomas Wright Whitaker, are the principal owners; the two former are joint lords of the manor. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £6 12s. 8d., now £345. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., patron, and the Rev. Thomas Wright Whitaker, M.A., incumbent. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, is a small ancient structure covered with ivy, and has nave, chancel, north aisle, and wooden turret with two bells. It was rebuilt by Augustine Jackson, rector, in 1683. Here is an ancient monument, with male and female figures of William Sacheverel, Esq., and Mary, his wife; also one to Katharine, wife of William Francis, Esq., who died in 1530. The rectory is a neat mansion, with 180A. 1R. 13P. of glebe and common allotment. Near the Church are the remains of a chimney, said to have belonged to a large mansion, of which this is the only part left. The late Sir George Crewe, Bart., gave land near the Church for a school, and with the rector, defrayed the expense of its erection. The children pay 2d. per week. A moiety of the manor, which had belonged to Burton Abbey, was in the Francis family in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, now of their descendants the Burdetts. The other moiety probably descended from the Finderns. In the parish very good building stone is got, with which the greater part of the stone work on the Derby canal was constructed. Feast, the day after Michaelmas day.

CHARITIES.—Richard Shepperd, by will, in 1727, left all his lands and tenements subject to the payment of 20s. a year to the poor of Stanton, 12s. thereof having been left by the will of his late father. The annual sum of 20s. is now paid in respect of some land in Chellaston, and laid out in sixpenny loaves, which are distributed at the Church on Christmas-day.

Rev. John Clarke, in 1716, granted all the great and small tithes in Shuttington, in the county of Warwick, to trustees after the death of his wife, to employ the profits for the maintenance of a minister at the Church of Shuttington, provided he was appointed by the consent of his trustees for the time being; but if placed there without their consent, the profits during such time should be disposed of for the putting to apprentice poor children whose parents should not be reputed worth £10 a piece, resident in Stanton-by-Bridge, and Shuttington. In lieu of the tithes and glebe conveyed to the trustees two farms were allotted about the year 1806, under the Edingale inclosure act, which together contain 144A. 3R. 25P. of land, let for £232 3s. From the year 1745 to 1792, two successive ministers were appointed without such consent, and in consequence only small payments were made to them, and of the residue premiums were paid for apprenticing poor children but which did not exhaust the income; and the trustees are possessed (1827) of £1,525 3 per cent. consols, and £314 16s. 3 per cent. reduced annuities, producing together £54 5s. 10d., which is applied in placing out apprentices. The trustees meet annually at Wichnor Bridge, on the third Wednesday in June, when all children who apply are placed out with premiums varying from £9 to £15 15s.

STAPENHILL parish contains the township of Stapenhill, the township and chapelry of Caldwell, and the joint township and chapelry of Stanton and Newhall, which together contain 4388A. 1R. 38P. of land, and in 1851, had 565 houses and 2,604 inhabitants, of whom 1,327 were males and 1,277 females; rateable value £10,685 5s.

STAPENHILL, a well built, pleasant village, and township, 1 mile E. by S. from Burton-upon-Trent, on the east bank of that river, contains 1,647A. 2R. 30P. of land, soil various, and in 1851 had 153 houses and 635 inhabitants, of whom 319 were males and 316 females; rateable value £3,749 1s. The Marquis of Anglesey, the Earl of Chesterfield, and Henry Clay, Esq., are the principal owners, the former is also lord of the manor, impropriator, and patron of the Church, (St. Peter) a neat stone edifice in the early English style of architecture, with a square tower. It is situated on an eminence, and was erected in 1838, on the site of a dilapidated edifice at the sole expense of the vicar. The old chancel still remains; an organ was placed in the church in 1854, at a cost of about £150, raised by subscription. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's books at £5 6s 0½d, now £373, in the incumbency of the Rev. John Clay, M.A., for whom the Rev. Charles Hind, B.A., officiates. The vicarage, a good residence near the Church, was rebuilt at the same time as the Church, by the vicar who resides in a large handsome mansion at the north end of the village. The tithes were commuted in 1841 for £147, to the impropriator and the small to the vicar, who has also 85A. 2R. 17P. of glebe, situate at Stanton. The parish of Burton, which extends to the east side of the Trent, is much intermixed with this parish and village, about one-fourth part of the township being in Burton parish, with part of the village. The Church was appropriated to the monastery of Burton, to which it had been given by Abbot Briteric, along with the manor. Henry VIII gave these to the collegiate Church he had founded on the site of the dissolved monastery, which being soon afterwards dissolved, the manors of Stapenhill and Caldwell were granted in 1545 to Sir Wm. Paget. The Rev. John Hieron, an eminent nonconformist divine and critic, who made collections towards a history of Derbyshire, was born at Stapenhill, in 1608. The Wesleyans and Reformers have each places of worship here. In 1833 the vicar erected a small, neat National school for boys and girls, which will hold about 200, about 60 boys and 40 girls attend. In 1837 an infant school was built, about 400 yards from the National school, it will hold about 60, and 30 attend. Brizlincote Hall, now a farm house, 1 mile E. from the Church, is an ancient mansion, in a commanding situation with a fine avenue of trees, over the front door is inscribed "Non Ignara Mali Miseris succurrere disco, A.D. 1714," and over the back door is "Homo. Homini. Lupus." It contains 281A. 2R. 12P. of land, the property of the Earl of Chesterfield. About half a mile N.W. from the village, on the banks of the Trent, are the gardens and pleasure grounds of Mr. Edw. Cliff, where parties usually resort during the summer season; they are tastefully laid out, and reflect much credit on the proprietor, for their general arrangement and the good taste displayed. Heath Cottage half a mile W. from the Church, is a handsome mansion, the seat and property of Thomas Myatt, Esq. Here is a ferry across the river Trent to Burton.

CALDWELL is a small neat retired village, township, and chapelry, 4 miles S. b. E. from Burton-upon-Trent, contains 1,040 acres of land, 30 houses and 157 inhabitants, of whom 83 were males and 74 females; rateable value £1,783. Miss R. Evans is lady of the manor and considerable owner. Lady Sophia des Voeux, Mr. Edward Pratt, with the Etwall and Repton corporation, Misses Hamp, Mr. Henry Clay, and Mr. John Hopkins, are owners. The Chapel of Ease is a small structure, with a tower and two bells, and was completely renovated in 1843, with funds partly given by the vicar, and partly by subscription. The tithes have been commuted for £140, paid to the vicar. The Baptists have a small chapel here. The manor of Caldwell was sold by William Lord Paget, in 1565, to Peter Collingwood, Esq., from whose family it passed by successive marriages to those of Sanders and Mortimer. Hans Winthorpe Mortimer, son of Dr. Cromwell Mortimer, secretary to the Royal Society, sold it to Henry Evans, Esq., of Burton-upon-Trent. The Hall is a large ancient brick mansion, the seat and property of Miss Rebecca Evans.

STANTON AND NEWHALL form a joint township and chapelry, which together contain 1,700A. 3R. 8P. of land, and in 1851 had 382 houses and 1,812 inhabitants, of whom 925 were males and 887 females; rateable value £5,153 4s. Stanton, a small hamlet forming the western side of the township, in which the Earl of Chesterfield and Wm. Blake, Esq. are the principal owners. Newhall, a large and populous village, 3 miles S. by E. from Burton-upon-Trent, Earl of Chesterfield, Wm. Blake, Esq., and Jph. and Nathaniel Nadin, Esqrs., are joint lords of the manors and owners. Here are also several smaller owners. The Church, dedicated to St. John, is a handsome Gothic structure, with pinnacled tower, built of brick. It was erected at the sole expense of the Rev. John Clay, the vicar of Stapenhill, at a cost of £7,000, including a neat parsonage house, and commodious National schools, for boys, girls, and infants, which will hold about 400, and 150 attend. The Church was opened for Divine service 9th July, 1832, and will seat 600 persons. The living is a perpetual curacy, valued at £100, and is endowed with £2,000, in the patronage of trustees, and incumbency of the Rev. Roger Taylor Burton, M.A. The Wesleyans and Wesleyan Reformers have each chapels here, the former built in 1816, and enlarged in 1844, and the latter in 1855. A Literary Institute was established here in 1854, for the surrounding neighbourhood. It is held in a large club room adjoining the George Inn, lent by Mr. Wm. Brunt. The library contains 350 vols. and the news room is furnished with several daily and weekly papers; the Rev. R. T. Burton, treasurer and honorary secretary, Wm. Brunt, president, and Hy. Staley, librarian. An Horticultural society in connection with the above was also established the same year, and the exhibition is held about the middle of July. Here is a bed of coal of superior quality, extending over 2,000 acres, and 24 feet thick, which generally fetches the highest price in the market. Messrs. Joseph and Nathaniel Nadin work the collieries. A superior clay is found in the coal mines, from which a neat straw or cane-coloured earthenware is manufactured, of which great quantities are exported to America and other parts. The manors of Newhall, Stanton-Ward, and Heathcote Ward, belonged, in the reign of Edward I., to the family of Ward, from whom they passed to the Meynells, Dethicks, Darcys, Phillips, and others, by marriage. The Earl of Chesterfield purchased two shares, and the remainder having passed into the Stanhope family, Earl Stanhope and his son sold their portion in parcels. There was formerly a chapel at Newhall, which was given by William the Conqueror to Burton Abbey.

CHARITIES.—Daniel Robinson, by will, gave to the poor of this parish land in 1786, vested in Mrs. Henshaw, producing £1 per annum. Mrs. Ayre, lately deceased, daughter of Mrs. Henshaw, paid the £1 to the parish officers, but now it is paid by Mr. Clay to the churchwardens, by whom it is distributed at Easter.

—— Cox, by will, gave to the poor, land in 1786, vested in Thomas Sellick Brome, producing £1 10s. per annum. Lady Horton is now the owner of lands sold with this charge; and the yearly sum of 30s. is paid half-yearly by her tenant to the parish officers, and distributed at Easter and Christmas.

Francis Jackson, by will, gave to the poor, land and a house, in 1786, vested to Jph. Watson and J. Wakelin, and producing the annual sum of £1 5s. The annual sum of £1 1s. 8d. is now paid by Thomas Wright; and Joseph Warren pays 3s. 4d. to the overseers, which is, with others, distributed at Easter and Christmas.

Elizabeth Rhodes, as stated on a tablet in the Church, gave £15 to the poor, the interest to be distributed yearly. This sum is now in the hands of the freeholders, and 12s. is paid annually by the overseers for the time being, and distributed at Easter with several others.

Joyce Cox, sister of the said Elizabeth Rhodes, it is stated on a tablet in the Church, also gave £15 to the poor. We could obtain no further information as to this charity.

STRETTON-EN-LE-FIELD parish, locally situated in the Hundred of Goscote, Leicestershire, contains, besides its own township, a part of the hamlet of Oakthorpe, which forms a joint township with Donisthorpe, described with Church Gresley parish.

STRETTON-EN-LE-FIELD, is a small pleasant village and township, 5 miles S.W. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, contains 1008A. 3R. 19P. of land, 19 houses, and 105 inhabitants, of whom 53 were males, and 52 females; rateable value £1977 7s. Sir Mylles Cave Browne Cave, Bart., is owner, lord of the manor, and patron of the church, St. Michael's, a rectory, valued in the King's book £9 10s. 5d., now £285. The Rev. William Astley Cave Browne Cave, is rector. The Church is an ancient stone structure, with a lofty spire, and two bells. In 1851, a small organ was placed in the church, the gift of Miss Colville. It has lately been repaired, in which are some ancient tombs of ecclesiastics, and memorials of the Browne family, also one to the Rev. George Gretton, M.A., 44 years rector of this parish. The rectory is a good residence, east of the church, was rebuilt in 1845; it has 50 acres of glebe and the tithe, amounting to £217, is paid by commutation. Here is a small National school, situate at No Man's Heath, about ½ mile S.W. The Hall, a handsome mansion, is a little west of the church, in a very romantic and picturesque situation. This manor was for several centuries held by a family of its own name, under the Earls of Derby. Charles Browne, Esq., possessed it as early as the year 1600, and rebuilt the manor house. William Brown, Esq., the last heir male of this family, died in 1744; his co-heiresses married — Cave, and Chambers John Cave, Esq.; who (possessing this estate by inheritance from his maternal grandfather,) took the name of Brown. On the death of the Rev. Sir Charles Cave, Bart., in 1806, William Cave Browne, Esq., succeeded to the title.

OAKTHORPE hamlet contains 66 houses and 235 inhabitants in this parish.—(See Church Gresley parish.)

CHARITIES.—Thomas Allin gave to the poor of Stretton the sum of 30s. yearly out of his lands, to be divided by his next relations. John Bakewell, and Elizabeth his wife were entitled to the said lands for their lives, therefore they entered into a bond, in 1750, whereby John Bakewell became bound to Thomas Richards and James Goode in the penal sum of £50; and it was declared that if the said John Bakewell and Elizabeth, and all future owners of a close called the Heath, in Stretton, should yearly, on the feast of St. Thomas, pay the sum of 30s. to such of the poor in Stretton as should be appointed the obligation should be void. Mr. James Moxon, the occupier of the Heath close, distributes 30s. annually.

Lost Charities.—The returns made to parliament, 1786, state — Hancock, gave £5, vested in John Smith, and that a person unknown gave a rent charge of 8s. per annum, vested in John Cave Browne, and that another unknown person gave a donation to the poor, which was vested with the Rev. Thomas Moore, and produced 10s. per annum;—all which were stated to have been directed to be distributed in bread; but we have not been able to procure any further information respecting them.

DIRECTORY.—Rev. Wm. Astley Cave Browne Cave, M.A., rector; Captain Lewis Conran, Stretton Hall; James Shaw, gamekeeper. The farmers are Thomas Thomas Goodall, Harriet Mousley, James Moxon, Hill Farm, and George Smith, (and miller.)

contains 853 acres of land, 59 houses and 229 inhabitants, of whom 145 were males, and 144 females; rateable value £1,113 11s. 8d. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., is sole owner and patron of the church, St. James's, a rectory, valued in the King's books £5, now £182. The Rev. Thomas Wright Whitaker, M.A., incumbent, has 110 acres of glebe and common allotment. Rev. John Moss Webb, B.A., is the officiating curate. The Church, a small Norman edifice, with nave, chancel, a pinnacled tower and 3 bells. In 1828, it received an addition of 100 sittings, of which 70 are free. The Incorporated Society for the enlargement of churches, having granted £35 towards the expense. Here are some handsome monuments to the Harpur family. The Hall is a large ancient stone building, with pointed gables, near the Trent, now a farm house; near which, on the north side of a walled enclosure, supposed to have been a bowling green, are the ruins of a banquetting house, and those of the old castle, which appear of great extent. About the beginning of the year 1643, Col. Hastings fortified Sir John Harpur's house, and threw up some works at the bridge. Sir John Gell marched thither with Sir George Gresley's troops, when the garrison at the bridge offered a determined resistance on the part of the royalists, but the men were at length drawn from their works with considerable loss. The Trent bridge was built in 1796-7. It is a neat stone erection of 5 arches, and cost £3,000, and is so constructed as to secure a passage over the low grounds, which are often flooded in winter, where, in the parish of Stanton, the roadway is raised from 3 feet to 15 feet for an extent of three-quarters of a mile, which is supported by 21 large and 14 small arches, principally of stone. The old bridge was washed down by a flood in 1795. There being a timber yard above on the south side, the timber floating against the arches, obstructed the passage, and the bridge was carried down. It had 6 arches; part of the piers still remain. The Trent and Mersey canal passes through the parish, and is here joined by the Derby canal, on which are two wharfs. At Domesday survey, the manor Sorchestan belonged to Henry-de-Ferrars, and Suerchestune was in the crown. The manor of Swarkeston was granted Robert de Holand, in 1307. Joan, late the wife of John de Beke, died seized of it in 1322, leaving it to her son, John Roleston, Esq., who died seized of it in 1482. Richard Harpur, Esq., one of the justices of the common pleas, who died in 1576, had purchased this estate, from whom it has descended to the present possessor. Mr. Francis Ashmore, of Cuttles bridge, is in the 92nd year of his age, can see to read and write without the aid of glasses, and his memory is very good. Mr. John Stevens, builder, is in his 83rd year, and Mary Fisher is in her 84th year, both of whom are very active. Petty Sessions are held every other Tuesday, at the Crewe and Harpur's Arms. Here are several sick societies. Feast, nearest Sunday to St. James. The Lowes a large neat brick residence, pleasantly situated on an eminence overlooking the Trent, ¾ miles N. W. from the church, is occupied by Mr. Richard Gibson, farmer.

CHARITIES.—John Jennings, in 1657, devised all his lands in Hilton to trustees, to pay 20s. yearly to the poor of Etwall, and 20s. yearly to the poor of Swarkeston for ever, and the rest he gave to his wife. 20s. is paid out of premises at Hilton to the poor of Etwall, by William Martin, but no payment has been made for many years to this parish. John Massey paid it till about the year 1810, when certain premises belonging to him at Wilton were sold to different persons; by the returns of 1786, it appears as though some arrangement had taken place, by which John Massey, who purchased part of the estate, was to pay the 20s. to Swarkeston; but we apprehend such agreement would not exonerate any part of the premises charged, if there were sufficient proof of the lands in Martin's possession having been part of Jennings' property.

TICKNALL parish, and large well built village, extends nearly 2 miles on the Derby and Ashby-de-la-Zouch road, 9 miles south from the former, and 5 miles north from the latter, contains 1767 acres of fertile land, a clay soil on the south side, on the north and north west a light loam, with limestone of a superior quality on the east side, 284 houses, 1241 inhabitants, of whom 582 were males, and 659 females; rateable value, £3,200. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., is lord of the manor and principal owner. Sir Robert Burdett, Bart., and the trustees of Hartshorn school, are also owners. The Church, St. Thomas-a-Becket's, is a perpetual curacy, valued at £250, has been augmented with £200 Queen Anne's bounty, and £1,200 parliamentary grant. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., is patron and impropriator, and the Rev. Richardson Cox, M.A., incumbent. The Church is a handsome Gothic structure, was rebuilt in 1843, at a cost of £4,500, partly raised by subscription aided by a grant from the Incorporated Society, but principally by the late Sir George Crewe, Bart. It consists of a nave, chancel, side aisles, tower, and handsome spire, has 667 sittings, of which 374 are free and unappropriated. It has a gallery at the west end, and the beautiful east window of stained glass cost £100. The parsonage is a handsome residence S.W. of the church, and here is 53A. 2R. 7P. of glebe; the small tithes were commuted in 1844, for £47. About 80 acres of meadow land is detached from the parish, near Barrow-on-Trent. The manor was given by Wulfric Spott, in the reign of King Etheldred, to the abbott and convent of Burton, under whom it was held by William Francis, Esq., in 1528. Edward Abell died seized of it in 1597. About 1652, it was purchased of his son Ralph Abell, by an ancestor of the present proprietor. The parish pays a chief rent of 27s. to Her Majesty, of £13 10s. to the Marquis of Anglesey, and the Corporation of Etwall and Repton have various sums. It extends into the manors of Stanton-by-Bridge and Donnington. A tram railroad from the lime works on the east side of the parish, extends to Ashby-de-la-Zouch and Leicester. These quarries are the property of the lord of the manor. Sir John Harpur Crewe, Bart., has extensive brick and tile works here, and the lime is in great repute for agricultural purposes, and is worked by Mr. William Garrard. The railroad now belongs to the Midland Railway Company. About three-quarters of a mile south from the village is a manufactory of brown earthenware. The Wesleyan Methodists and General Baptists have each chapels. A school for 40 girls was erected in 1822, and is supported by the lady of the late Sir G. Crewe, Bart. Feast, second Sunday in July. At the east extremity of the village, is a handsome entrance lodge to Calke Abbey, and another half-a-mile more south, near the boundary of the parish.

TATSHALL FEE, 1 mile south from Ticknall, is an extra parochial estate of 60 acres of rich land, the property of Earl Stamford and Warrington, and in the occupation of Wm. Wilder, Esq., but has no house.

CHARITIES.—Ticknall School.—Sir Henry Harpur, Bart., and his mother the Hon. Dame Catharine Harpur, conveyed to trustees, in 1744, a piece of land on which a school had been built by the said Dame Catharine, to teach such of the inhabitants of Calke and Ticknall as should be nominated by her heirs; and also sold two closes called the Hurky Cliffs, at Tissington, with a barn and cow-house thereon, upon trust that the rents thereof should go to keep the school in repair, and the residue to the person who should teach the said school. The old school being very dilapidated, was lately taken down by Sir George Crewe, who has built, at his own expense, on the site, a dwelling house for the master, and a school room adjoining thereto, on his own land. The master has for many years received £11 1s., as the rent of the land, but in 1825 Sir George Crewe agreed to pay them £25 per annum, and to make that sum £30 if he did not make £10 more by the scholars, who should pay for their instruction. 40 boys are appointed from the parishes of Ticknall and Calke, to be taught free. The above school is now taught on the National plan. Lady Crewe supports a school for girls.

Dame Catharine Harpur, in 1741, gave £100 on trust, to be laid out in a convenient purchase, and till then to be put to interest, and the profits therefrom to be given for the instruction of 6 poor boys and 6 poor girls of Ticknall. In 1767, an extract from this deed was transmitted by Wm. Cartwright, Esq., the executor of the Countess of Arran; and out of the personal estate, to which Lady Harpur became entitled on the death of her sister, the sum of £100 with 7 years' interest thereon, amounting to £128, was transmitted to the Rev. Walter Fletcher, the curate of Calke and Ticknall. This sum was placed out at interest, but in consequence of the failure of the party to whom it was sent, was reduced to £80. In the year 1814 this money came into the hands of the Rev. Walter Fletcher, of Dalston, in Cumberland. Until 1821, £4 a year was paid to the master of the school at Ticknall, through the hands of a tradesman in Derby. Since that time it has not been demanded, so that in 1826, the principal and interest amounted to £100. Mr. Fletcher is anxious to be relieved from any further trouble, and we have therefore recommended him to invest the sum of £100 in the funds in the names of Sir George Crewe, and some other person having property in Ticknall, so that the dividends arising therefrom should be applied to the education of 12 poor children.

HOSPITAL.—Charles Harpur, Esq., in 1770, directed that his brother, Sir Henry Harpur, his executor, should, out of a sum of £9,500 then owing to him by his said brother lay out £500 in building an hospital in or near Ticknall, for poor decayed men and women of Ticknall and Calke; and that the sum of £2,000 should be laid out in the names of his said brother, and James Gisbourne, and — Wilmot, Esqrs., upon mortgage or government security, upon trust, that the interest arising therefrom should be applied to the maintenance of as many poor men and women in the said hospital as his brother should appoint. In pursuance of the above-named will, an hospital was erected in Ticknall, in 1772, with the particulars on an inscription thereon. This hospital contains 7 tenements, each of which comprises a room on the ground floor, a chamber over it, with a small kitchen, and a plot of garden ground, and is kept in repair by Sir J. H. Crewe Bart. It does not appear in what manner the legacy of £2,000 was laid out, but it is understood that the interest of that sum at the rate of 4 per cent. is payable by Sir J. H. Crewe. He accordingly pays £10 a year to each of the 7 inmates, and the remaining £10 is reserved for the expenses of the repairs. 4 poor men or women of the parish of Ticknall, and three of the parish of Calke, are appointed.

WALTON-UPON-TRENT, a parish and large handsome village, pleasantly situated on the east bank of the river Trent, which is here crossed by a handsome iron bridge, erected in 1834, at a cost of £5,500. It is 4½ miles S.W. from Burton-upon-Trent, and contains 2253A. 0R. 5P. of fertile land, and in 1851 had 99 houses, and 445 inhabitants, of whom 220 were males, and 225 females; rateable, £4659 11s. 9d. The principal owners are the Executors of the late Marquis of Townsend; the representatives of the late Sir Edward Disbrowe, Lady Wilmot Horton, and the Rev. Thos. Arden; the former are lords of the manor. The Church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is an ancient Gothic structure, with a very beautiful east window and tower with three bells, was repaired at considerable expense, in 1827, by subscription. The living is a rectory, with Rosliston annexed, valued in the King's book at £17 2s. 8½d, now £862. The executors of the late Marquis of Townsend are patrons, and the Rev. Thos. Perrott, incumbent. It contains many ancient monuments of rectors and others, particularly one to Lady Charlotte, daughter of George, Earl of Buckinghamshire, and wife of Edward Disbrowe, Esq., who died 1798; also a remarkable brass, representing a priest, his right hand raised in the act of benediction, and in his left, holding a chalice, with an ornamented foot. The rectory is a handsome mansion, S.W. of the church, has 69A. 36P. of glebe; the tithes were commuted in 1840 for £597 10s. 0d. King Edward II. is said to have forded the Trent at this place, when in pursuit of Thomas Earl of Lancaster, and the rebellious Barons. The Hall, a handsome house in the village, is the seat of Thomas Matthew Gisborne, Esq. The Birmingham and Derby Railway have a station half a mile west from the village. Borough Field, 1½ mile, Hill Farm, one mile, Oaklands, 1½ mile, are farms, S.E. from the village. At Domesday survey, this manor was in the crown, and had a church, a priest, and a mill of 6s. 8d., and forty acres of meadow, value £10. It was afterwards given to Hugh Lupus. Queen Isabella in 1337 granted it to Henry de Ferrars of Chartley, from whom it passed by descent to the present possessor.

CHARITIES.—Mrs. Levett and Mrs. Bailey gave £260 for the use of a schoolmaster, with which a close called the Sherrard Heath, at Linton, containing 11A., was purchased in 1760, and vested in trustees, to pay the rent to a person they should appoint, to teach poor children. The close is now divided into two parts, and let for £20 per annum. There is also a good dwelling-house, with a garden, in the occupation of the schoolmaster, supposed also to have been given by Mrs. Levett and Mrs. Bailey, and a school room with a small play ground in front. The premises were thoroughly repaired in 1825, partly by the sale of timber from the estate, amounting to £30, and the sale of a small allotment of land at the Linton enclosure, for £13 10s. About 1824, the National system was introduced into the school, and the master instructs all the children of the parish in reading and writing, including the chapelry of Rosliston, every child, (except those of the poorest description) paying from 1d. to 3d. a week, if any additional instruction is required. The rent of the land is appropriated to the master, with the yearly sum of 25s. which is derived from the gifts of William and Bridget Bedford, the residue of the expense being defrayed by voluntary contributions.

The Rev. William Bedford, rector of Walton, in 1659, bequeathed to the poor £10, the interest thereof to buy bread, to be distributed at the church; and he also gave £20 for the maintenance of a school in Walton, as his wife Bridget should think fit. The said Bridget, in 1672, gave £5 to the uses above mentioned. By indenture, 1674, the above sums, amounting to £35, were laid out in a close at Lullington, called Walton Way, for a yearly rent charge of 35s., to be issuing thereout. The premises are now (1826) the property of Mr. Walter Bach. His tenant pays 25s. to the rector, which is applied towards the support of a school, and 10s. is expended in bread.

Mrs. Abigail Bailey, in 1782, gave £37 to be laid out in land, the produce thereof to be given to the poor of Walton, yearly. In the year 1820, this sum was lent to the trustees of the school, and in 1825 was repaid, with the arrears of interest, amounting to £13, which was given to the poor at Christmas, 1825. In 1826, £37 was in the hands of the incumbent, the Rev. Edw. Blick; but it had been agreed that it should be laid out in erecting some new pews in the church, and the rents distributed to the poor.

Rent-Charge.—A yearly sum of 30s. has for many years been distributed at Christmas, in respect of a field called Birch Close, the property of the late Edw. Cromwell Disbrowe, Esq., but the origin is unknown.

The Rev. Thomas Bearcroft, in 1680, gave his little tenement and close in Walton, the rents to be distributed in bread at Easter and Michaelmas, during the term of his lease, which was for 2,000 years, at a peppercorn-rent. These premises consist of a cottage and garden, with a small piece of waste land adjoining. The cottage was pulled down and two new ones built about 10 years ago, for which purpose £80 was borrowed, but which is now nearly repaid. The property now lets for £11 10s. 0d. per annum, £2 of which only is now distributed in bread, until the whole of the debt is liquidated. They are now in possession of D. Durant and John Sabin.

Robert Tomlinson gave £10, the interest to be distributed to the poor. Richard Tomlinson and Christopher Nevill, having in their hands the above sum, agreed to give £10 each for the same purpose. In 1700, the £30 was invested in a rent-charge of 30s., payable out of land called the Moor Furlong, in Walton. Mr. Hamp was the proprietor of certain lands known by the name of Moor Furlong, and paid 20s. yearly till 1814, when he sold these lands to the late Edward Disbrowe, Esq. It appears Mr. Disbrowe was not aware of these lands being charged with any payment to charitable uses, but if, on ex-

WILLESLEY is a scattered village and parish, locally situated in West Goscote Hundred, Leicestershire, two miles S.W. by S. from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, contains 788A. 0R. 37P. of strong clay land, 9 houses, and 48 inhabitants, of whom 24 were males and 24 females; rateable value, £934. Sir Charles Abney Hastings, Bart., is sole owner, lord of the manor, impropriator, and patron of the church, St. Thomas's, a perpetual curacy, valued in the King's book at £12, now £62. Rev. George Lloyd, incumbent. The Church, a small ancient structure, with tower and two bells, was repaired by the parishioners in 1844. Here is no parsonage. Thos. Abney, Esq., about 1782, settled £20 per annum on the curate, and the living has been augmented with £400 Queen Anne's bounty. In the church are several handsome marble tablets to the Abney family. The Hall an ancient brick building, on the north side of the church, appears to have been built about the time of Charles I. It has lately been enlarged and repaired. It is situated in a park of 147 acres, and is the seat of the proprietor. In the front of the Hall is a fine sheet of water of 24 acres, covering the site of what was formerly the village; in the centre of which is an old corn mill, which may still be seen when the water is low. This manor was given by Wulfric Spott to the Abbey of Burton, under which it was held by the family of Ingwardby, whose heiress married Abney early in the fifteenth century. The Abneys resided here for many generations, and became eventually possessed of the manor, which after the Reformation had been granted to the Sheffield family. General Sir Charles Hastings, Bart., married the daughter and heir of Thos. Abney, Esq., and granddaughter of Sir Thos. Abney, one of the justices of the common pleas. Sir Thos. Abney, of Stoke Newington, in Middlesex, sometime lord mayor of London, and one of the first founders of the Bank of England, was born at Willesley, in 1639. Directory:—Sir Charles Abney Hastings, Bart., The Hall; William Bowler, gamekeeper; Thomas Bradley, brick, tile, and drain-pipe maker, Blackfordby, Leicestershire; Thomas Hensor, gardener, and John Smith, bailiff; and the farmers are, Bryan Dewes, The Hill, George Earp, Wood farm, and William Knight, The Park.

WIRKSWORTH HUNDRED.

This Hundred is bounded on the north and north-east by the High Peak Hundred, on the east by the Scarsdale Hundred, on the south and south-east, by the Appletree Hundred, and on the west by the river Dove, which separates it from Staffordshire, where at the north-west extremity, the Middle and Upper quarters of the parish of Hartington bound the south-west portion of the High Peak Hundred for ten miles, to the source of the rivers Dove and Goyt. This portion was, by order of Quarter Sessions of 28th June, 1831, annexed to the Bakewell division of Petty Sessions, and is now comprised in the north division of the county, the remainder of the Hundred being in the south division, with the Appletree, Morleston and Litchurch, and Repton and Gresley Hundreds, for which the polling places are Derby, Heanor, Ashbourn, Wirksworth, Melbourn, Belper, and Swadlincote; and those for the north division, Buxton, Alfreton, Bakewell, Castleton, Chapel-en-le-Frith, Chesterfield, Glossop, Tideswell, and Eckington. This Hundred contains 77,659 statute acres of land. The northern side of this Hundred partakes of the same features as the High Peak, though not quite so mountainous, and is often designated the Low Peak. It is noted as being almost the first seat of the cotton manufacture, (See Cromford,) for its warm baths at Matlock, its numerous caverns and picturesque dales—particularly Dovedale,—and the rich mineral field at its northern extremity. The southern side is more an agricultural district of fertile land with a variety of soils, principally a red loam on various substrata, and chiefly occupied in dairy farms, many of which are large. Cheese is made to a very considerable extent, and is in great repute for its excellent quality. The houses have been much improved during the last thirty years, and it contains many handsome mansions and neat villa residencies. The old thatched farm houses have in many instances been replaced by handsome modern structures, with convenient and well arranged farm yards. The cottages are also principally built of stone, and roofed with slate.

* The letters after the names signify P for Parish, C for Chapelry, and T for Township.

ASHBOURN parish contains the township and market town of Ashbourn; the townships of Alsop-le-Dale and Eaton, Newton Grange and Offcote Underwood, in the hundred of Wirksworth; the townships of Hulland, Hulland Ward, Hulland Ward Intakes, Sturston and Yeldersley, in the Appletree Hundred; and Clifton and Compton township, in the Morleston and Litchurch hundred. The entire parish contains 10,167 acres of land, and in 1851 had 1,049 inhabited houses, and 72 uninhabited; 5087 inhabitants, of whom 2,409 were males and 2,678 females; rateable value £23,284 4s. 0d.

Ashbourn, Ashburne, or Ashborne, is a township, and well-built improving Market town, beautifully situated in a deep, rich, well wooded valley, on the eastern bank of the river Dove, over which there is a stone bridge. It is 13 miles N.W. from Derby, 47 from Manchester, and 146¾ miles from London by railway, and 139 miles N.W. by road. The township comprises only 57 acres of land, nearly all of which is built upon, and in 1851, had 500 houses and 2,154 inhabitants, of whom 951 were males and 1,203 females; rateable value £5,000. The houses in general are built of red brick, roofed with slate, and the streets are paved, and lighted with gas; one main street runs though the town from E. to W., and an open space to the N.E. forms the Market-place. It is one of the polling places for the southern division of the county, and it is said that not less than 30,000 persons pass through the town every summer, to visit the celebrated Dovedale. The scenery in the immediate neighbourhood of Ashbourn is beautifully diversified with hill and dale. The soil is fertile, and generally covered with a rich herbage, chiefly used as grazing land for dairy purposes—large quantities of cheese being made in the surrounding district. The chief support of the town is derived from its well reputed markets and fairs, although many of the inhabitants find employment at the cotton mills in the immediate neighbourhood. At the south-western extremity of the town is the Ashbourn branch of the North Staffordshire railway, 6¾ miles in length, (a single line) and was opened for traffic in May, 1852. The Station consists of booking offices, warehouse, and engine shed, built of white stone found in the excavation of the railway, at a cost of £25,000 to £28,000; this station is the nearest point by which railway excursionists can approach the far-famed and romantic Dovedale, of which thousands annually avail themselves. Adjoining the railway station is "Godwin's Rosarium," which is open to the public, free of charge; and as it affords perhaps the most beautiful view of the picturesque town of Ashbourn, and the surrounding country, independent of its own beauty from its extensive collection of roses, trees, shrubs, &c., it has become a very popular place of resort, and is considered by its numerous visitors as a very attractive feature in this delightful locality. The proprietor, having been celebrated for the growth of roses for about 30 years, which have been transmitted to nearly all parts of the United Kingdom, it was thought, by the establishment of the above Rosarium, a selection of all the choicest varieties might be exhibited on its elevated slopes, to the greatest advantage, and prove a very desirable adjunct to the town and neighbourhood. Probably Arboretum might be considered a more appropriate designation than Rosarium, as a great variety of trees and shrubs are grown, as well as roses, but the latter feature has been introduced gradually since its establishment by the present proprietor, in 1852. At the time of the Norman conquest this place was held in royal demesne, and is called in Domesday book, Esseburn. King John granted it to William-de-Ferrars, Earl of Derby, but on the rebellion of his grandson, in the succeeding reign, it was seized by the crown, and given to Edmund, son of Henry III. It afterwards became the property of the Cokaynes, a very ancient family, whose principal residence was at Ashbourn Hall, for several generations; from this family it was purchased in 1671 by Sir Wm. Boothby, Bart., in the possession of whose family it remained until the death of the late Sir Wm. Boothby, Bart., in 1847, when it was divided and passed into other hands; the manor being purchased by a Mr. Craddock, in 1853, and the Hall, with about 90 acres of land, by Capt. Fredk. Holland, R.N., in 1852, whose residence it now is. It is situated at the eastern extremity of the town, on a gentle declivity overlooking the park and gardens, which are laid out with great taste. The house underwent extensive repairs, and a few alterations were then made, but the old part of the house, that in which the Pretender and suite (in 1745,) are said to have lodged, on the occasion of his memorable march to Derby, still remains. On one of the doors is the name of one the officers (Sir Thos. Sheridan) written in chalk, and overlaid with white paint, still preserved as a relic. The Church, dedicated to St. Oswald, is a very fine cruciform structure, exhibiting good specimens of the first, second, and third periods of Pointed architecture. The greater portion of it was built in 1241, as is shown by an ancient brass inscription in the church. At the intersection rises the tower, which is surmounted by a lofty octagonal spire, ribbed, and pierced with twenty lights, and attaining the height of 212 feet from the ground; its proportions are truly beautiful, and it is very justly styled "the pride of the Peak." The chancel is the oldest portion of the fabric, and contains twelve lancet windows of rare proportions and beauty. The interior of the church, which is 180 feet in length, is very spacious, and will accommodate 1,400 persons. It was re-pewed and renovated in 1840, at a cost of £4,568, raised by subscription, except £400 granted by the Incorporated society for building and repairing churches. The tower contains a peal of eight fine-toned bells, and an ancient sanctus bell in the spire. There are several good monuments to the families of Bradburne, Boothby, Errington, &c., and the Cokayne chapel, which is lighted by two triple lancet windows of remarkable beauty, contains four altar tombs of much interest, two of which are surmounted by effigies in alabaster, the sides are much enriched with gothic tracery and figures of angels, oddly enough employed in holding shields charged with armorial bearings. Here is also a much admired monument by Banks, R.A., to the memory of Penelope, only child of Sir Brooke Boothby, Bart., who died in 1791, aged five years; the figure, which is recumbent, is exquisitely chiselled in Carrara marble; it is said that Chantry took his design for his well-known group in Lichfield Cathedral, from this monument. The Rev. — Langton, Dean of Clogher, is interred here, he lost his life by falling with his horse down a precipice at Dovedale, in 1761, Miss Laroche was riding behind him on the same horse, but was providentially preserved, being caught in a bush in her descent. The circumstance of King Charles attending divine service in this church in 1645, is recorded in the parish register. The Churchyard is spacious, and has a fine broad walk running from end to end, between an avenue of Limes; it was enlarged in 1845, by G. H. Errington, Esq. The living is a discharged vicarage, consolidated with the rectory of Mappleton annexed, rated at £5 4s. 7d., in the parliamentary returns at £65; gross income, £300. The Bishop of Lichfield is patron; Geo. H. Errington, Esq., lay impropriator, and Rev. John Richd. Errington, M.A., vicar. The curates are the Revs. Launcelot Errington, Athur Duckworth, and John Worthington. The Old Vicarage House, which was close to the church, and in a ruinous condition, was taken down in 1854, and a new site having been given by G. H. Errington, Esq., a good residence has just been erected at a considerable cost by the present vicar. It is prettily situated on an eminence at a short distance from the church, and commands some beautiful views; it is built of stone in the Jacobœan style of architecture, and when the grounds are completed, itwill form a very pleasing object on approaching the town. Sion Independent Chapel, on the Derby road, is a neat and substantial building, with a minister's residence and six alms-houses attached, (see Charities) were erected and endowed in the year 1800, by Mr. John Cooper, a native of Ashbourn. In early life Mr. Cooper followed the laborious occupation of a brick maker, but being disgusted with the employment, he removed to London, and by frugality and persevering industry, acquired a considerable property. In 1816, a gallery was added to the chapel, at a cost of £150; and in 1854, an organ, at a cost of £100, raised by subscriptions; it will seat about 500 hearers. At the south end is a neat marble tablet to the memory of the donor, who died March 2nd, 1808, aged 76 years. The Rev. John Hollis is the pastor. The Wesleyan Methodists have a commodious chapel, situated in Compton; it is a neat brick building, erected in 1822, contains a good organ, and will seat about 700 hearers. Primitive Methodist's Chapel, Union street, is a neat brick building, erected 1846, and will seat about 200 persons. Free Grammar School, in Church street, is an ancient stone building, which was founded in 1585, under a charter of Elizabeth. It is endowed with estates producing £213 15s. 4d. per annum; two-thirds of which, with a residence and garden, are given to the head master, and the remainder, with a house, to the second master. The Rev. Geo. Edward Gepp, M.A., is the head master. The Free School, Church street, is a small inconvenient building, endowed by Nicholas Spalden, in 1710, with £10 per annum, for the instruction of 30 boys, and a like sum for the instruction of 30 girls. The endowment of these institutions will be seen on referring to the charities. National School, for boys and girls, is a substantial stone edifice, situated on an eminence N. of the church, the average attendance is 85 boys and 72 girls. Infant School, Back lane, formerly used as a chapel, is a large brick building, at which about 100 children receive instruction.

The News and Reading Room, and Literary Institute, Market-place, established in 1838, has for its object the encouragement of the pursuit of literature and science among the inhabitants of Ashbourn and its neighbourhood, by means of a library, occasional lectures, and discussions; the News Room is open from 9 o'clock in the morning, until 10 o'clock in the evening, and is well supplied with the London daily and Provincial newspapers and periodicals, and the Library comprises upwards of 1,600 volumes. Jno. Bamford and Alfred Osborne, secretaries.

The Savings' Bank, was commenced in 1818, and a handsome stone structure appropriated to its use, was erected in Church street, in 1843. The building cost upwards £2,000, which was paid out of the surplus fund. The amount of deposits in Nov., 1855, was £44,365 14s. 9d., and the number of depositors 1,394; amongst which are 16 friendly and 8 charitable institutions. Of this number, 91 were depositors whose respective balances did not exceed £1, 266 not exceeding £5, 204 not exceeding £10, 153 not exceeding £15, 78 not exceeding £20, 138 not exceeding £30, 111 not exceeding £40, 66 not exceeding £50, 105 not exceeding £75, 54 not exceeding £100, 47 not exceeding £125, 17 not exceeding £150, 35 not exceeding £200, and 5 which exceeded that amount. Mr. Thos. Jas. Jones, actuary.

The Gas Works, on the Manchester road, about a ¼ mile S. from the town, were established in 1840, at a cost of £2,200, by a company of £10 shareholders. They were enlarged in 1852, at a cost of £200, half of which was raised by the issue of new shares, making the paid-up capital £2,300. The gasometer will hold about 10,000 cubic feet of gas, which is distributed to the consumers at 7s. per 1,000 cubic feet. Mr. Wm. Shipley, secretary, Geo. Wildsmith, working manager.

Compton is a populous suburb of the town, partly in the township of Sturston, and partly in the township of Clifton with Compton. The east side of Compton extending from the bridge, including all the dwellings in Sturston lane, and on the Derby new road, being in Sturston township; while the south west side of Compton, from the bridge to Clifton lane, are in the township of Clifton with Compton. Belle Vue, consists of about a dozen houses, which form the northern suburb of the town, but situated in the township of Offcote Underwood. These houses, from their elevated position, command some very pleasing and picturesque views of the surrounding neighbourhood.

ALSOP-LE-DALE AND EATON, a township, chapelry, and secluded village, on the Bakewell road, 5½ miles N.N.W. from Ashbourn, contains 1467A. 2R. 28P. of land, and in 1851 had 12 houses, and 80 inhabitants, of whom 47 were males, and 33 females; rateable value, £1,551; The Duke of Rutland is lord of the manor and principal owner, but Rev. J. E. Carr, Messrs. Curzon, Hope and Smart, Anthony Beresford, Esq., John Charles Burton Borough, Esq., Mr. John Mart, and Mr. Wm. Calladine, are also owners. The tithes were commuted in 1847, the rectorial for £175, and the vicarial for £9. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, is an ancient Norman structure, and was re-pewed about 1850. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £49. The inhabitants and freeholders are the patrons, and the Rev. William Fisher, M.A., incumbent. In this village Thomas Becon, one of the most laborious and useful preachers and writers among the British reformers, took refuge from the furious persecution of Bonner, in 1544. In 1086, Alsop, which had been parcel of the ancient demesnes of the crown, was granted to William-de-Ferrers, Earl of Derby, who in the reign of King John, granted Alsop to Gweno, son of Gamel-de-Alsop. His descendants enjoyed the manor for seventeen generations, until the close of the seventeenth century, when Anthony Alsop, Esq., sold the estates to John Borrow, Esq., of Derby, and Sir Philip Gell, Bart. The Beresfords and Milwards afterwards held it, and having since passed by sale through various hands, it is now the property of the Duke of Rutland.

Cold Eaton, 1½ miles N.W. from Alsop-le-Dale, consists of two farms, the largest of which is occupied by Mr. Thomas Wild. Cold Eaton is said to have belonged to the Vernons of Haddon, and a fourth part was many years in the Boothby family, it is now the property of the Duke of Rutland.

CLIFTON AND COMPTON township, in the Morleston and Litchurch Hundred, contains 1025 acres of rich land, and in 1851, had 203 houses, and 887 inhabitants, of whom 421 were males, and 466 females; rateable value, £2966 12s. Miss Frances E. Hayne is lady of the manor and principal owner.

CLIFTON, is a chapelry and small well built village, near the confluence of the Ashbourn brook with the river Dove, about 1½ miles S.W. from Ashbourn. The Church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, was erected in 1845, at the cost of upwards of £1,200 raised chiefly by subscriptions through the exertions of the Rev. Samuel Shipley, the then vicar of Ashbourn, Philip Cupiss, Esq., and William Smith, Esq., aided by grants from the Incorporated and Diocesan Societies. It consists of a nave, south porch, and vestry, and has a stone pulpit, semi-hexagonal in form, resting upon a low inverted pyramid; at the west gable, an octagonal turret, with one bell, and at the east, a floriated cross, with a high pitched roof, covered with Newcastle tiles; the style being a transition from early English to the decorated. The church has been enclosed by a stone wall, and the village greatly improved by the taking down some old buildings which obstructed the view of it on the south. The tithes were commuted in 1846, the rectorial for £168 10s., and the vicarial for £12. The ancient chapel at Clifton, was taken down about the year 1750, and part of the materials were used to repair the chancel of Ashbourn church. The manors of Great and Little Clifton belonged to the Cokaynes, of Ashbourn, in the reigns of Henry VII., Henry VIII., and Queen Elizabeth, they are said to have held them under the Fitzherberts of Norbury. The manors afterwards came to the family of Hayne, in whose possession they still remain. In the accounts of the churchwardens of Uttoxeter, the following item occurs; 1645, August 26th, paid to the inhabitants of Clifton when the plague was there, £5. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £80, has been augmented with £800 Queen Anne's bounty. The Vicar of Ashbourn is the patron, and the Rev. H. Gamble, B.A., incumbent, who resides at the parsonage house, which was provided at the cost of about £1,000, raised by subscriptions, aided by a grant of £200 from the Diocesan Church Extension Fund, and £200 from the Curates' Aid Society Fund. A commodious school with teacher's residence, was erected in 1855, at the cost of about £350, exclusive of the site, which was given by Wm. Smith, Esq. It is a mixed school, and capable of accommodating about 50 children, and the average attendance is 40. The Independents have a small chapel, erected by Mr. Dunnicliff. Two persons unknown gave 6s. 8d. each per annum, to the poor of this township for bread. This sum is now paid by the steward of the manor of Clifton, and distributed by the churchwardens on Christmas day. The poor also partake of Shaw and Denton's charity.—(See Ashbourn.)

HULLAND township, chapelry, and village, delightfully situated on an eminence, 4½ miles E. by N. from Ashbourn, in the Appletree hundred, contains 898A. 2R. 37P., of land, and in 1851 had 51 houses, and 219 inhabitants, of whom 113 were males, and 106 females; rateable value £985 3s. The principal owners are John Charles Burton Borough, Esq., Osborn Bateman, Esq., John Rooth, Esq., Mr. George Copestake, Mr. William Webster, and Mr. John Bowley, the former is lord of the manor. Here was formerly a chapel of ease, it was standing and was used for divine worship in 1712. A new district Church, dedicated to Christ, was erected in 1837, at the cost of £2,300 raised by subscriptions, aided by a grant of £245 from the Diocesan Church Building Society. It is a plain stone gothic edifice, having a tower at the west end. The interior contains about 300 sittings, of which 183 are free. The district assigned to this church is Hulland, Hulland Ward, Ward Gate, and Biggin. The living is a perpetual curacy in the alternate patronage of J. C. B. Borough, Esq., and the representative of the late John Blackwall, Esq., of Blackwall. The Rev. Charles Evans, is the incumbent. The tithes were commuted in 1847, the rectorial for £122, and the vicarial for £9. Here is a National school, situated near the church, with a

HULLAND, or HOLLAND, anciently Hoilant, at the Domesday survey was in the possession of Geoffrey Alselin. In 1485, John Bradburne and Anne, his wife, founded a chantry chapel at Hough, in this township, and endowed it with lands then valued at £5 0s. 10d. per annum, near which they had a large moated mansion, which in the seventeenth century came into possession of a branch of the ancient family of Borough or Borrow, originally De Burgh. The old moated house, which stood in the valley below the hall, was battered down in the time of the Commonwealth, two of its numerous ponds still remain. The present Old Hall was built out of the ruins, but stands on a much higher and healthier site; it is now a farm house, but still contains an old oak wainscotted room, and other signs of having seen better days. It has lately been re-roofed and restored by J. Wright, Esq. The New Hall of brick was built about 80 years ago, and has also undergone very considerable improvement and enlargement by the present occupier, John Wright, Esq., it is beautifully situated and commands some extensive views. Hulland is about 1000 feet above the level of the sea; its name is a corruption from, and signifies Highland, as in the island of Yell, Shetland, there is a village bearing the same name, it is situated on a high hill, and high is in those parts pronounced hull to this day. On a very clear day the Wrekin, in Shropshire, distant between 40 and 50 miles, is visible from the high ground near the church. The old pack horse and mule road between Manchester and London passed along these hills.

HULLAND WARD, township and district of scattered houses, in the Appletree hundred 5 miles E. from Ashbourn, contains 1,400 acres of land, and in 1851, had 84 houses, and 369 inhabitants, of whom 202 were males, and 167 females. This formerly comprised an extensive open, and partly extra-parochial district, which, at the enclosure, was allotted to 8 parishes. The principal owners are Lord Scarsdale, and the Rev. Charles Evans.

HULLAND WARD INTAKES, a township and small village, in the Appletree hundred, $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles E. by S. from Ashbourn, contains 454A. 1R. 39P. of land, of which John Groves, Esq., owns 396 acres; Lord Scarsdale, 40 acres; and 18 acres belongs to an ancient chapel situated on land occupied by Mr. George Jepson, in Ravensdale Park. The chapel was built and the land left for the endowment of it, by Francis Brown, on condition that Divine service should be held there once a month. The occupier of the land has the power to appoint the minister. It is a small building capable of seating about 30 persons. The population in 1851, was 8 houses, and 44 inhabitants, of whom 23 were males, and 21 females; rateable value, £700. Directory.—John Charles Norton, Esq., Smith Hall; and George Jepson, farmer.

NEWTON GRANGE, a township, consisting of four scattered farms, 5 miles N. N. W. from Ashbourn, contains 743A. 3R. 32P. of land, and in 1851 had 6 houses, and 42 inhabitants, of whom 23 were males, and 19 females; rateable value £1,091 14s. The principal owners are Thomas William Evans, Esq., Lord Denman, William Hunter Bailey, Esq., George Goodwin Brittlebank, Esq., John Goodwin Johnson, Esq., and Mr. Wm. Fletcher; the former is lord of the manor. The tithes are paid by a modus amounting to 13s. 4d. At Domesday survey this was one of the manors of Henry de Ferrars. His descendant, Robert, Earl of Ferrars, gave it to the Abbey of Combermere, in Cheshire. King Henry VIII. granted it, with other possessions of that abbey, to George Cotton, Esq., from whose family it passed to that of Bentley. A moiety of it was forfeited on the attainder of Edward Bentley, Esq., in 1586; the other moiety had previously been sold to the Beresfords, who eventually became possessed of the whole, having purchased the forfeited moiety of Sir William Withipole, son-in-law of Sir Michael Stanhope, to whom it had been granted by Queen Elizabeth. After the death of Richard Beresford, Esq, of Ashbourn, in 1790, it was sold in severalties; the late Thomas Evans, Esq., of Derby, being the principal purchaser. Directory:—Sarah and Francis Buxton, Boston Grange; Jph. Clewes, Broad Close; Richard Mountney, Grange; and Joseph Redfern, Moot Low, farmers.

Offcote Underwood, a township and scattered district, adjoins the town of Ashbourn on the north, and extends to Kniveton; it contains the pleasant and well-built village of Ashbourn Green, ¾ miles N.E. from Ashbourn, and Sandy Brook, a village near Buxton road, 1¼ mile N. from Ashbourn, 1748A. of fertile land occupied in dairy farms, and in 1851 had 77 houses, and 429 inhabitants, of whom 198 were males, and 231 females; rateable value, £4,894 19s. 7d. Miss Frances Eliz. Hayne is lady of the manor and principal owner. Sir Matthew Blakiston, Bart., Executor of the late John Radford, Esq., John Harrison, Esq., Capt. Frederick Holland, R.N., Mr. Simms, Mr. John Smith, Mrs. Gleave, Mrs. Stoddart, and others, are also owners. The tithes were commuted in 1848, the rectorial for £277, and the vicarial for £15. Ashbourn Green Hall, a handsome mansion, situated on a gentle acclivity, formerly the seat of the Hayne family, is now occupied as a ladies' boarding school. Sandy Brook Hall, one mile N. of Ashbourn, a beautiful modern mansion, near the Buxton road, with fine lawn and delightful pleasure grounds, is the seat and property of Sir Matthew Blakiston, Bart. The manor, Ophidicotes, of Domesday survey, and Underwood, which is not mentioned in that survey, were anciently separate manors and townships, but have long been considered one. In the reign of Charles I., they were granted away from the Crown. This estate was afterwards possessed by the Newtons of Ashbourn Green, one of whose co-heiresses brought them to the family of Hayne.

Sturston, a township and scattered village, pleasantly situated in the vale of the Compton Brook, one mile east from Ashbourn, of which town in connection with Compton, it forms a suburb. It contains 916A. 2R. 16P. of land, and in 1851 had 145 houses, and 664 inhabitants, of whom 330 were males, and 334 females; rateable value, £2539 7s. 10d. Mrs. Eliz. Stoddart is lady of the manor, which is freehold, and also a considerable owner. Sir Edmund Antrobus, Bart., Executors of the late Mrs. Mary Bamford, Robert Hartshorn, Esq., and others, are also owners. The tithe was commuted in 1847; the rectorial for £147, and the vicarial for £10. Sturston Hall, an ancient mansion, now a farm house, where the Tomlinson family, have been occupants for nearly three centuries. This manor was inherited at an early period by the Knivetons, from the Grendons. In the year 1655, Sir Andrew Kniveton sold it to Francis Meynell, of London, from whom it has descended to Mrs. Stoddart. Ashbourn Grove, a neat well-built mansion, picturesquely seated on a gentle acclivity, one mile N.E. from Ashbourn, is now unoccupied.

Yeldersley, a township and small scattered village, 3 miles E.S.E. from Ashbourn, contains 1455A. 2R. 34P. of fertile land, one half of which is arable, and in 1851 had 35 houses, and 199 inhabitants, of whom 101 were males, and 98 females; rateable value, £1805 6s. 10d. The principal owners are the executors of the late Mrs. Meynell, Francis Wright, Esq., John Harrison, Esq., and Charles Sprengle Greves, Esq., Q.C. The tithes were commuted in 1841, the rectorial for £198, and the vicarial for £10. Yeldersley House, a neat mansion, 2½ miles S.S.E. from Ashbourn, is the property of John Harrison, Esq., and the residence of the Rev. Roger Ryland Vaughton. Painter's Lane, a district of scattered houses, on the Derby road, 2½ miles S.E. from Ashbourn. At the Domesday survey, this manor, (Geldeslei) was held under Henry de Ferrars, by Cole, whose son Robert conveyed it to Sewal de Monjoy. This family possessed it for several generations, and from them it passed to the Irelands, who held it in the reign of Henry VII. The Montgomerys soon afterwards possessed the manor, from whom it passed to the Vernons, and then to the Meynells. The Shirleys at a remote period held this as a mesne manor, under its early lords. The families of Whitehall, Pegge, and Lee, of Lady Hole, (all extinct,) held considerable estates in this township. Paul Kirkland, in 1714, gave his estates in Wyaston, in trust, one moiety for the poor of Edlaston and Wyaston, and the other moiety to Yeldersley and Painter's Lane. £12 13s. 9d. being the amount of each half year's rent belonging to this township, it is distributed at Midsummer and Christmas, in sums varying from 5s. to 30s.

CHARITIES.—A Free Grammar school was founded in the 27th year of the reign of Elizabeth, and is endowed with the following benefactions, viz.:—a farm at Shirebrook, in 1613, now let for £88 per annum; £70 left by Roger Oldfield in 1610; £91 12s. per annum, out of lands left by Christopher Pegg, in 1669; upwards of £20 a year from tenements in the Middle Cale, left by an unknown donor; an annual sum of £5 received from the Duke of Norfolk; £6 13s. 4d. per annum left by John Hanson in 1678; and small sums to the amount of £4 per annum left by various donors. The gross income of the school is £213 15s. 4d.: it was ordered by the statute in 1798, that all children who should come from their parents' place of abode and return the same evening, being able to read, should be admitted as free scholars.

Robert Bateman, Esq., and divers other charitable persons, in 1631, by voluntary contributions, raised a sum of money and purchased a rent charge of £40 per annum for the maintenance of an able and orthodox preacher, who should weekly preach two sermons in the town of Ashbourn; but if divine service shonld be discontinued, then the said rent charge was to be distributed amongst the poor inhabitants of the parish.

Owfield Almshouses, founded in 1630, consist of eight dwellings for poor widows or widowers, who have a weekly allowance of 2s. 6d. each from the bequest of Roger Owfield, Thomasine Owfield, his widow, and the rents of land left by Nicholas Spalden in 1710. They also receive 5s. per annum, the gift of Jane James, in 1669; 10s. from Richard Peters, in 1706; 2s. 6d. from Paul Taylor; and 1s. a year from George Taylor.

Pegg's Almshouses, situated in Church street, was founded by Christopher Pegg, in 1669 for six poor old persons. German Pole, in 1685, gave land to augment their weekly income, which, till 1822, was 10s. per week, but on account of the diminution of the rents, was at that time reduced to its present amount, 8s. An annual sum of £4 1s. 8d., also left by Mr. Christopher Pegg, is distributed to the poor on St. Thomas's day.

Bread to the amount of 2s. per week is given to the poor from the bequest of Nicholas Hurt, in 1637.

Edward Shaw and Joan Denton, in 1625, left £5 per annum, of which 30s. is paid to the vicar, 10s. to the master of the Grammar school, and £3 to poor widows of the township.

Paul Taylor, in 1640, gave £2 4s. a year to be divided among the inmates of Owfield almshouses, and 1s. to be given in bread to the poor every Sunday.

George Taylor, in 1668, left £100 to be lent on sufficient security to 10 young tradesmen, from time to time, at £5 per annum. We are not aware in what manner the £100 given by this donor was disposed of; but an annual sum of £5 is now paid on land called the Sole Meadow; and £2 10s. is paid for a weekly distribution of bread, 20s. is given to 40 poor housekeepers, 20s. is paid to the vicar, and the remainder is given to the inmates of Owfield's almshouses.

The poor have bread to the amount of £2 12s. per annum, from the bequest of Edward Pegg, in 1666.

Catharine Port, in 1722, left £5 per annum to the poor, out of an estate at Ilam, but that sum has not been paid since 1809, when the estate was sold.

In 1730, Elizabeth Buxton, left £2 5s. a year, to be distributed as follows, viz.: 10s. to the vicar, 4s. to the singers, 20s. to the poor, and 10s. to be laid out in Bibles for children of the Free school.

Nicholas Spalden, in 1710, left his estate, upon trust, to build 10 almshouses for as many poor people, each to receive 2s. 6d. per week, and clothing to the amount of 20s. annually. He also directed neat houses to be built for four clergymen's widows, to whom he bequeathed £10 per annum. An annual sum of £10 a year each is paid to a schoolmaster and schoolmistress, from the bequest of the same donor, for the instruction of 30 boys and 30 girls, in a school-room which he erected. A distribution of bread is also made from the funds of this charity every Sunday. An annuity of £8 a year was also left to the vicar for reading divine service every Wednesday and Friday, the same amount to be given to a lecturer, and 20s. yearly to the bell-ringers. This latter charity is disposed of in the following manner, viz.:—40s. is given to the poor of Snelston, 20s. to the poor of Clifton, 40s. to the poor of Mayfield, 20s. to the poor of Mappleton, and the remaining £11 is expended in coal, and given to the poor of Ashbourn.

In 1801, John Cooper, erected a place of worship, called Zion Chapel, with a residence for the minister, and founded six almshouses adjoining the chapel, for the same number of poor men or women. The endowment consists of £4,350 reduced three per cents., out of the dividends of which £10 10s. is paid to each inmate, and upwards of £70 a year is given to the minister.

In 1811, Thomas Chatterton, left £80, and a public subscription was made in addition to that sum, by means of which £500 was vested in the 3½ per cent. reduced annuities, and the dividends given to the residents in Spalden's almshouses.

Isaac Hawkins, of Burton-upon-Trent, left £400, now in the three-and-a-half per cents., the dividends of which are distributed to the clergymen's widows endowed by Nicholas Spalden.

In 1817, the Rev. Francis Gisborne left a large sum of money in the public funds, vested in trustees, to pay the dividends thereof to 100 rectories, vicarages, curacies, and chapelries, in the county of Derby. £5 10s. being the share hitherto appropriated to each place entitled to partake of this charity, is expended in flannel, and given to the most deserving poor of the parish of Ashbourn.

Jesse Watts Russell, Esq., in 1841, gave £1,178 6s. 8d., which was laid out in £1,333 6s. 8d. stock, three per cent consols. The dividends, amounting to £40 per annum, are paid, according to his direction, in equal shares to the four inhabitants of Spalden's Clergymen's Widows' Almshouses.

Humphrey Calvert, in 1841, left a rent charge of 6s. 8d. a year, out of land called Littlewood, to be given to the poor of the township of Clifton in this parish.

In 1843, Edward Corden, of Clifton, of his free will, and in performance of his brother, Uriah Corden's last will, transferred £4,720 in the three per cent. consols, into the names of the governors and assistants of the Ashbourn Grammar school, upon trust, £48 thereof to be paid annually to the four occupants of the Widows' almshouses, £52 yearly to be paid to the ten occupants of Spalden's almshouses, and £41 12s., to the inmates of Owfield's almshouses, in weekly sums of 2s. each. The said Edward Corden, in 1844, invested £500 in the three per cents., in the names of the said governor and assistants, to pay the dividends for the benefit of the Ashbourn National and Church Sunday schools. He also left by will, £50 a year to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, on account of of which sum the society is to supply Bibles and Prayer Books to that amount, to the poor of Ashbourn, Clifton, Compton, Sturston, and Offcote, to be distributed by the vicar.

David Bradley, of London, and Septimus Bradley, of Ashbourn, merchants, in 1844, invested £300 in the three per cents., in the names of the aforesaid governors and assistants, the dividends to be laid out in coals, potatoes, bread, flour, meal, provisions, and clothing, or any of them, to be distributed in March every year to such poor of the town of Ashbourn, Compton, Sturston, and Clifton Lanes adjoining, as the said governors shall think fit, in sums varying from 1s. 6d. to 4s.

BENTLEY, (FENNY) a township, parish, and village, situated in a valley watered by a small brook to which it gives name, and which is here crossed by a stone bridge of two arches, 2¼ miles N. from Ashbourn, and 7 miles S.W. from Wirksworth. It contains 976A. 2R. 30P. of land, and in 1851, had 62 houses and 290 inhabitants, of whom 144 were males and 146 females; rateable value £1,745 12s. 0d. The principal owners are Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart., Rev. Jeremiah Barnes, John Goodwin Johnson, Esq., Lord Denman, Wm. Hunt, Esq., Miss Van Tuyl, and Mr. Bailey. The Church, dedicated to St. Mary Magdelen, a small ancient structure, with nave, chancel, north aisle, and low tower with three bells. A handsome oak screen separates the nave and chancel. In 1850, the church underwent some repairs at the cost of Sir Hy. Fitz-Herbert, Bart. On the north side of the chancel is a curious altar tomb for Thos. Beresford, and Agnes his wife. On the upper surface are extended two alabaster effigies completely enveloped in shrouds, and on the sides and end are twenty-one similar ones for their children. The inscriptions are in English and Latin, by which it appears that this gentleman must have lived to a great age, as he is said to have distinguished himself at the battle of Agincourt. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £6 12s. 0d., now £124; the Bishop of Lichfield is patron, and the Rev. Garton Howard, incumbent, who has 30 acres of glebe. Here is a National school, at which about 65 children attend. The Hall, a neat secluded mansion, embowered with fine trees, ¼ mile N. from the village, is the residence of the Rev. Alleyne Fitz-Herbert, M.A., and the property of Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart. The Old Hall, now a farm house, formerly the property of Sir Simon Degge, is now the property of Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart. The family of the present occupier have resided at it for upwards of two centuries. Bank Top Farm, was purchased about four ago, by the Rev. J. Barnes, M.A., by whom, a new house with very convenient out-buildings, has been erected on a new site, better adapted for the benefit of the farm, and commanding an extensive view of very beautiful scenery. The old house has since been converted into a neat cottage, and is used by him as a place of occasional residence. The Methodists have a neat brick chapel, erected in 1832. Here is an Odd Fellows' Lodge. This parish partakes of the Rev. Francis Gisborne's charity, and £5 10s. is annually sent to the incumbent, which is expended in warm clothing and given to the poor. (See Bradley.) The poor also receive 10s. annually, left by the Port family, which is paid by Jesse Russell, Esq. The manor of Bentley was part of the crown lands at the time of the Domesday survey; and in the reign of Edward I., was held by Edmund, Earl of Lancaster. In the reign of Henry VI., a younger branch of the ancient family of Beresford settled here, and their descendants for many generations held the manor. In the 13th year of Henry VII., William Basset, Esq., of Meynell Langley, died possessed of lands here. In the time of Henry VIII.. two families of Beresford owned estates in this parish, and the Bradburnes had also property here.

BONSALL, a township, parish, and considerable village, 3½ miles N.N.W., from Wirksworth, 17 miles N.W, from Derby, and 8 miles N.W. from Ambergate, comprises Bonsall Dale, Upper Bonsall, and the hamlet of Slaley, which together contain 2288A. 3R.

24P. of strong land, partly grazing, and partly arable, and in 1851, had 337 houses, and 1,449 inhabitants, of whom 670 were males, and 779 females; rateable value £3,040 17s. The principal owners are William Pole Thornhill, Esq., M.P., Samuel Prince, Esq., Robert Clay, Esq., and Miss Mary Woodiwiss, with several smaller owners; the former lord of the manor. The Church, dedicated to St. James, is a handsome embattled stone edifice, having a tower, terminating in pinnacles, and supporting an octagonal spire, with six bells. It has a nave, chancel, and side aisles, and in the centre, over the pulpit, is a painting representing Moses and Aaron holding the ten commandments. In the north west aisle is an ancient stone font. There are also several neat marble tablets to the family of Evans, and a brass one to Henry Hopkinson, who died 4th of December, 1635, containing the following lines:—

"A Barrester a Batchellor of Arte,
"A Practiser, that chose the better Parte,
"That pleaded more For Ivste Defence then Gaine,
"That For The Poore and common good Tooke Paine;
"That covnsel'd Peace For Hee Did Plaainely See,
"Too much Decrease By Svites That Triviall Bee;
"That knewe $\frac{E}{Y}$ Lawe, Yes Soe Lov'd Neighbovrhood
"Noe man Did know Him Sve Or To Bee Sved,
"Hee's Bvried Heere, His Sovle in Heaven Does Rest
"Withovt All Feare For Peace makers Are Blest."

The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £9 16s. 0½d., now £201, in the patronage of the Bishop of Lichfield, and incumbency of the Rev. Eden S. Greville, B.A., who resides at the rectory, a substantial stone building in the Elizabethan style, situated a little S.E. from the church. The tithes were commuted in 1849 for £131, and here are 68 acres of glebe. The Baptists have a small chapel here. In 1852, John Smedley, Esq., erected a handsome chapel for the Wesleyan Reformers, at a cost of £350, it will seat about 200 persons; and in the same year the Primitive Methodists built one of stone, at a cost of about £200, exclusive of £65 for the site; it will seat about 150. Here is a lodge of Odd Fellows, at the Queen's Head, who hold their anniversary on the Wednesday near St. James's day; there is also a sick club in the village. Here is an ancient cross, which is annually decorated with flowers, on the Saturday after Whit-Sunday, and the day is afterwards spent in rural festivity by the villagers. It consists of a pillar, bearing the respective dates of 1678, 1769, and 1800, resting on a base, formed by an ascent of 10 steps, and crowned by a ball. The extensive lead smelting furnaces of Mr. Alfred Alsop, in Via Gellia, give employment to a number of hands. Red and sheet lead is also made to a considerable extent. In Bonsall Dale, is the comb manufactory of Mr. Robert Hartle, of Matlock Bath.

SLALEY, a small hamlet, half a mile S. from Bonsall, is principally occupied by miners, each of whom occupy a few acres of land. The manor, Bunteshalle, at the Domesday survey, is described as a hamlet of the manor of Mesterforde, then in the crown, the site of which is not known. It was afterwards granted to the Earl of Lancaster, and remained with the duchy of Lancaster till 1630, when King Charles granted it to Charles Harbord, Esq., and others, who in 1632 sold it to Henry, Earl of Dover. It was purchased in the following year, by the copyholders, for whom it has since been held on trust. The vicinity of Bonsall is greatly diversified, and the Dale of Bonsall is most interesting. Its geological formation consists of 4 strata of limestone and 3 of toad stone. The neighbouring hills abound with lime stone, lead ore, and lapis calaminaris are obtained to a considerable extent.

CHARITIES.—The Free School, in Bonsall, was founded in 1717, out of the rents of land left by William and Elizabeth Cragge. The land is now let for the sum of £7 13s. 6d. per annum.

Elizabeth Turner, in 1737, vested certain freehold and copyhold lands, then let for £40 per annum, for the better support of the said free school; and she directed the funds to be applied for the instruction of 25 boys, 20 of whom to be children of the inhabitants of Bonsall, and 5 to be children of the inhabitants of Snitterton and Wensley; such children to be nominated by the trustees. The master receives the rents of Cragge's charity, £7 13s. 6d., including that of £3 5s. 6d., for the lands in his own possession, for which he accounts to the receiver. He also receives £40 per annum from Turner's charity, which salary was raised in 1807 to its present amount. In respect of these emoluments, he instructs 50 poor boys and girls in reading, writing, and arithmetic; 45 of the parish of Bonsall, and 5 from the townships of Wensley and Snitterton. 15 acres of land belonging to this charity are situated at Tansley; 21 acres, with a house and mill in Matlock parish, and upwards of 20 acres with a house and garden in the parish of Bonsall. Elizabeth Turner further directed a yearly sum of £10 to be paid out of the said lands in apprentice fees, for 2 boys belonging the free school to be instructed in useful trades; but there has not been, on an average, since the year 1806, more than one boy in two years thus apprenticed. The gross income of the school is £98 19s. 6d. and at the time of this investigation there was a balance in favour of the charity of £460 7s. 3d.

An unknown donor left £1 10s. per annum, which is distributed in bread on Good Friday.

A person of the name of Needham gave £2 18s. yearly, for the same purpose, and bread to that amount is given on St. Thomas's day. This parish partakes of the Rev. F. Gisborne's charity.—(See Bradley.)

BRADBOURN parish contains the townships of Bradbourn, Aldwark, Ballidon, Brassington, and the hamlet of Lea Hall in the Wirksworth Hundred with the township and chapelry of Atlow in the Hundred of Appletree, containing together 9,966A. 2R. 33P. of land, and in 1851 had 272 houses and 1230 inhabitants, of whom 629 were males and 601 females; rateable value £10,964 15s. 3d.

BRADBOURN, a township and small pleasant village, 5 miles N.E. from Ashbourn, and $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles S.W. from Wirksworth, contains 1,433A. 1R. 39P. of land, mostly pasture, and in 1851 had 35 houses and 163 inhabitants, of whom 78 were males and 85 females; rateable value £1,320. The principal owners are Rev. German Buckston, Thos. Wm. Evans, Esq., Sir Hy. Fitz-Herbert, Bart., Mr. Thos. Watson, and Mrs. Alderson. The Church, dedicated to All Saints, is an ancient structure, having an embattled Norman tower with five bells. In 1846 it was renovated and repewed at a cost of about £300, raised by subscriptions, and in 1856 a stained glass window was placed at the east end of the chancel; in the south window are the remains of stained glass, amongst which are two shields of arms, and at the west end of the church is a square font lined with lead; the sides are cut into quarter-foils. There are several monumental inscriptions to members of the ancient family of Buckston, who settled here about two centuries ago. The present vicar is the representative of that family. In the churchyard are several pieces of an early sculptured cross, being covered with figures on the front and back, and having the sides decorated with foliage and knotwork. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £8 3s. 4d., now £107. The Duke of Devonshire, patron, the Rev. German Buckston, B.A., vicar, and the Rev. R. G. Buckston, resident curate. The tithes were commuted in 1843 for £107 10s. to the vicar, and £37 10s. to the impropriator. The vicarage is a pleasant residence on the south side of the Church. This Church was given by Geoffrey de Cauceis, in 1205, to the priory of Dunstaple. In 1608, the rectory was granted to Rogers and Fetherston, who sold most of the tithes to the landowners. The rectory-house and glebe lands were purchased in 1609, by Mr. George Buckston. In 1844, a school, with a house for the master, was erected at the expense of the late Wm. Evans, Esq., the Rev. German Buckston furnishing the stone from Standhill, a celebrated quarry of limestone, of a very close texture. It will accommdoate about 50 children, and the average attendance is 38. Thos. Wm. Evans, Esq., of Allestree Hall, contributes £40 a-year towards its support. The Hall, a good residence, a little east from the church, is the property of the Rev. German Buckston, and the residence of Nathaniel E. Curzon, Esq. Heaven (or Haven) Hill, a remarkable elevation, on a farm, the property of Thos. W. Evans, Esq., is a conspicuous object for many miles round. Bradbourn Nether principally consists of scattered farms, 1 mile from the Church. The Old Hall, 1 mile E. from the Church, is a substantial stone building, erected in 1684, the property and residence of Mr. Thomas Watson. Feast first Sunday after November 12th.

Lea Hall, an extra parochial hamlet, which keeps its poor with Tissington parish, but ecclesiastically it is in Bradbourn, with which it pays all other rates and taxes. It is $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles S.W. from Bradbourn, and contains 425 acres of land, and in 1851 had 3 houses and 23 inhabitants, of whom 14 were males and 9 females; rateable value £395 10s. The principal owners are Lawrence Hall, Esq., Mr. Wm. Harding, and Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart., who is also lord of the manor and impropriator.

Charities.—George Buxton, in 1655, left a rent charge of 20s. per annum for the use of the poor, out of land called Shelbroad close, which is distributed at Christmas, amongst the most necessitous poor of the parish.

The Rev. Francis Gisborne's Charity.—(See Bradley.)—The annual sum of £5 10s. paid to the vicar, is laid out in course woollen cloth and flannel, which he distributes to the poor about Christmas.

Aldwark, township and small retired village, $5\frac{3}{4}$ miles N.W. by W. from Wirksworth, contains 930a. 0r. 34p. of freehold land, a light limestone soil, and in 1851 had 17 houses and 79 inhabitants, of whom 37 were males and 42 females; rateable value £817 2s. Duke of Rutland is sole owner, and lord of the manor. The tithe has been commuted, of which about £2 is paid to the Duke of Rutland, and the remainder of the great tithe to the Duke of Devonshire. Aldwark Grange, which belonged to the monks of Darley, was granted by Edward VI., in 1548, to Sir Thos. Heneage and Lord Willoughby, who sold it the next year to Robert Gox or Goch; by successive conveyances it passed to the families of Curzon and Manners. Feast, 1st Sunday after 12th November.

Atlow township, small village and parochial chapelry, in the Appletree Hundred, $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles N.E. by E. from Ashbourn, contains 1,219a. 0r. 9p. of land, and in 1851 had 27 houses and 137 inhabitants, of whom 78 were males and 59 females; rateable value £1,551 0s. 9d. Haughton Charles Okeover, Esq., is lord of the manor and principal owner, John Wright and A. S. Bateman, Esqrs., are also owners. The Church is a plain building which stands in the corner of a field. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £148, in the patronage of H. C. Okeover, Esq., and incumbency of the Rev. R. R. Vaughton, M.A., The tithe was commuted for £110, in 1839. 333 acres are tithe free. Richard Okeover, Esq., in 1716, augmented the living with the tithes of hay and corn, and it was the first benefice in Derbyshire that was augmented by Queen Anne's bounty. The vestiges of a moat, which formerly surrounded an ancient residence, are still visible near Mr. Saml. Hough's, hence the name of "Moat Farm," and "Moat Mill." The manor, Etelawe, at Domesday survey, belonged to Henry de Ferrars. It was held under him or his immediate descendant by the ancient family of Okeover, and it has ever since continued to form part of the possessions of that family.

Charities.—Mercy Okeover, in 1741, gave £5, and Mara Spencer, in 1742, gave £5. to the poor of Atlow. It is supposed these two sums were applied in repairing the chapel of Atlow; and 10s. is now distributed annually by the overseers of the poor as the interest thereof.

BALLIDON, a small village, township, and chapelry 6½ miles N.E. from Ashbourn, contains 1910A. 1R. 12P. of fertile limestone land, and in 1851 had 17 houses and 99 inhabitants, of whom 53 were males and 46 females; rateable value £2,154 19s. 6d. The principal owners are the Rev. Richardson Cox and Brothers, Sir Matthew Blakiston, Bart., Earl of Mansfield, Wm. Wright, Esq., Thos. Greensmith, Esq., Thos. Bateman, Esq., and John Sleigh, Esq. The Church is a small ancient building, lighted by a window at each end. It is situated in an open field, a little S. of the village, and was repewed and thoroughly renovated in 1837, at a cost of about £80. raised by subscriptions. The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Bradbourn. The tithes are paid by a modus of about £11 2s, per annum. The manor, Bolidene, at the Domesday survey, was the property of Ralph Fitzhubert; at a later period it was in the Herthill family, whose heiress brought it to the Cokaines, in the 15th century. Sir Edward Cokaine sold it to Sir Anthony Ashley, who soon after conveyed it to Baptist Trott and John Milward. In 1610, Trott's moiety was sold and eventually divided into severalities; and Milward's moiety was subdivided amongst the co-heiresses of his son. Royston Grange, 1¼ miles N.W. from the village, is the neat farm residence of Mr. Wm. Bunting, Ballidon Moor, 1½ miles N. from the village, a large farm with good residence, is in the occupation of Mr. John William Allsop. Mininglow, 2 miles N. by W., is another large farm, in the occupation of Mr. Thos. Smith, and derives its name from an ancient Barrow, near the road leading from Brassington to Pike Hall, which is thus described by Pilkington.—"The higher part of the mount seems to have been removed, several of the vaults being fully exposed to sight. The diameter is about forty yards, and the vaults appear to be carried round the whole circumference. The stones of which they are formed are very large. One of the vaults which I measured is between six and seven feet long, three wide and six deep. It consists of only five stones, one on each side and end, and the other for a corner. Some of them are a foot, and others half a yard thick.

CHARITIES.—William Harvey, in 1699, left a rent charge of 10s. yearly to the poor, of this chapelry, out of land called Harvey's Croft. The sum of £1 per annum, left by an unknown donor, was formerly distributed to the poor. It appears to have been vested in Thos. Buxton, in 1786, but as no deeds of that charity can be found, we apprehend no claims on behalf of the poor can be substantiated.

Rev. Francis Gisborne's charity.—(See Bradley.)—The annual sum of £5 10s. is distributed by the incumbent, in flannel and warm clothing, to the poor every year.

BRASSINGTON, a large well-built village, township, and chapelry, 4 miles N. by W. from Wirksworth, and 6½ miles N.E. from Ashbourn, contains 4021A. 2R. 19P. of land, and in 1851 had 173 houses, and 729 inhabitants, of whom 369 were males, and 360 females; rateable value, £4726 3s. The principal owners are, Thos. Bush, Esq., J. B. Storey, Esq., Lord Scarsdale, Rev. G. Buckston, Miss Dyoot, Executors of the late Thurstan Dale, Esq., Mr. John Watson, Mr. John Gould, Mr. John Wm. Allsop, Mr. James Swindell, Mr. Wm. Walker, and Mr. Alexander Dean James; the former is lord of the manor. The Church dedicated to St. James, erected on an eminence overlooking the village, is an ancient edifice partly in the Normal style, with a square tower and three bells. The living is a perpetual curacy, valued in the King's book at £10, now £50, has been augmented with £200 benefactions. £200 Queen Anne's bounty, and £1,200 parliamentary grant. John Bainbridge Story, Esq., is patron and impropriator, and the Rev. Edward John Tompson, incumbent. At the enclosure, in 1803, land was allotted in lieu of tithe. A new Parsonage house is about being erected, towards which, £700 has been raised, viz.:—£400 in subscriptions, £200 from the Church Building society, and £100 from Queen Anne's bounty. The Independents have a chapel here; a handsome stone building erected in 1845, at a cost of £600. The Primitive Methodist chapel, a neat brick building with stained glass windows, erected in 1852. A school was erected in 1832, by subscription, aided by a grant of £25 from the National School society. Twelve children are instructed free from Thurstan Dale's charity. Here is also a school on the British system. Harbro'

Rocks, are romantic masses and pillars of rock on a lofty mountain, one mile N.E from the Church, from which extensive prospects into Leicestershire for a distance of 40 miles are seen. All Saints' Derby, and Burton-upon-Trent, may be seen from the same eminence. Here is a cave 28 feet by 24, denominated the Giant's Hall; also a part of the rock called the Easy Chair—all worthy the notice of the tourist. The High Peak railway passes on the side of this hill, and crosses the Ashbourn and Bakewell road, by an iron arch cast by the Butterley company. Long Cliff Wharf, 1¼ miles N.W. from Brassington, forms a convenient depôt for coals or other goods brought on the line. Brassington Moor Lodge, a good farm, 2¾ miles N.W. from the village. Hoe Grange, 1½ miles N.W. of the village, and W. of the Ashbourn and Winster road; Holly Bush, an Inn, at Grange Mill, 3 miles N.E. from Brassington, on the Bakewell and Ashbourn turnpike road; with Mouldridge Grange, are in this township.

German Buxton gave 30s. per annum out of lands in the parish of Bradbourn. These sums, with 30s. annually out of land the property of Ralph Toplis, and £3 3s. per annum, from the bequest of Robert Dale, the whole amounting to £8 3s., are distributed to the poor shortly after St. Thomas's day.

CARSINGTON, a township, parish, and small village, pleasantly situated on the Wirksworth and Ashbourn road, 2½ miles W. from the former, and 6½ miles N.E. from the latter, contains 1,116 acres of strong land, principally occupied in dairy farms, and in 1851 had 50 houses, and 235 inhabitants, of whom 124 were males, and 111 females; rateable value £1,337 6s. 2d. The village is situate in a valley, one side of which is sheltered by a bold ridge of limestone rocks, whose grey crags jut over the tops of the houses. The trustees of the late Philip Gell, Esq., and Wm. Pole Thornhill, Esq., M.P., are the principal owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Margaret, is a small square castellated edifice, with a turret and one bell, but scarcely distinguishable from the cliffs that overhang it. It was rebuilt in 1648, and thoroughly repaired in 1855, at a cost of £300, at which time a new vestry was added, and two windows placed on the north side of the chancel, and apparatus for warming the church put up; it contains an ancient font, and in the church yard is a venerable Yew tree. The living is a discharged rectory rated at £5 1s. 10d., in the parliamentary returns at £120, gross income £176. The Bishop of Lichfield is patron, and Rev. Henry Barrows Chinn, incumbent, for whom the Rev. F. H. Brett, officiates. Here are 45A. 1R. 14P. of glebe, occupied by Mr. John Bowler, farmer, and the tithe was commuted in 1838, for £109. Here is a Free school, for 20 poor children, endowed by Temperance Gell, in 1772. John Oldfield, an eminent puritan divine, was ejected from this benefice, in 1662, his son Dr. Joshua Oldfield, a learned presbyterian divine, was born here in 1656; he published some valuable treatises on the improvement of human reason and on the Trinity.

CHARITIES.—Mrs. Temperance Gell, in 1772, gave £220 to be invested in land, and directed her executors to build a school room at Carsington, for the instruction of 20 of the poorer sort of children at Hopton and Carsington, and if there should be a failure of a sufficient number of children in the said towns, the number to be made up out of the town of Middleton by Wirksworth. The legacy given by Mrs. Gell, and a further sum of £50, which is stated in the Parliamentary Returns of 1786, to have been given by the will of Samuel Bendall, in 1727, for the support of this school, were laid out in the purchase of a farm in the parish of Ockbrook, which let for £80 per annum. No separate account has hitherto been kept of the receipts and disbursements of the charity. The schoolmistress's salary and allowance, the bills for the children's clothing, and the payments for repairing the school-house and the building on the farm, constitute the whole of the expenditure on account of this charity, and they are insufficient to exhaust its present increased annual income. It is highly proper, therefore, that a separate account should be kept of the receipts and disbursements; and we apprehend that the surplus income ought to be applied in extending the benefits of the charity to a larger number of children.

Two beast gates were left by an unknown doner for the benefit of the poor. Two poor widows, usually appointed from time to time, have had the benefit of them.

GRIFFE GRANGE, otherwise Bret-Griffe, an extra parochial liberty which adjoins Hopton, 3 miles N.N.W. from Wirksworth, contains 676A. 3R. 13P. of land; rateable value £359, and in 1851 had 5 houses, and 18 inhabitants, of whom 10 were males, and 8 females. Having belonged to the abbot and convent of Dale, it was granted, in 1546, to Ralph Gell, Esq., ancestor of the late Philip Gell, Esq., of Hopton, whose representatives are the owners. It is situated on a lofty mountain, on the western side of which the road from Wirksworth to Bakewell runs along a delightful romantic vale, designated the Valley of the Lillies. The eastern side is enclosed by the high lands of Ible. A small stream overhung with copse and underwood, runs through, forming a most romantic and sylvan walk. The lead mines here, were during the last century worked to great advantage, particularly the Golconda and Chariot mines. The Inn, known as the Lillies of the Valley, in Ible township, stands at the north end of this dale. Griffe-Grange contains only two farms, which have not been joined with any poor law union; it is separated from Hopton on the S.E., by an ancient ditch, called Dooglow Dyke. The farmers are Aaron Fearn and John Rains. The former gentleman is considered as having the greatest native talent of any man in the county, particularly in the construction of farming implements and machinery of every description. A natural cave 210 feet in length, was discovered in 1824, by Mr. Fearn, on the N.W. side of the Grange.

HARTINGTON, an extensive parish, which comprises the four townships of Town Quarter, Middle Quarter—with Earl Sterndale chapelry—Nether Quarter, and Upper Quarter. It extends in length about 16 miles from its south-east extremity to its north-west, being in some parts 5 miles in width at its south-east boundary, but on the north-west often not more than $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles. It is bounded on the east by the parish of Bakewell, and at its north-east extremity by the river Goyt, after which by the river Dove, which rises from Axe Edge, about $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles S.S.W. from Buxton, and separates it from Staffordshire. It is returned as containing 24,160 acres of land, but the rateable acres appear to be 21,254A. 0R. 10P., and in 1851 had 448 houses and 2,089 inhabitants, of whom 1,079 were males and 1,010 females; rateable value £11,940 8s. 9d. A large portion being barren heath, having a continuous mountain range, which, in the Middle and Upper Quarters assumes various romantic shapes. It contains little timber and no edge-rows, having stone walls for partitions, which gives it a dreary and sterile appearance. The farms are widely scattered, and often large—the land principally is grass on limestone, occupied for the dairy, and by young stock, the few oats that are grown often remaining abroad till December. By an order of Quarter Sessions of 28th June, 1831, the Middle and Upper Quarters are included in the Bakewell division, and, by the Reform Bill, in the north division of the county. Even some of the farmers in the Town and Nether Quarters have their lands so arranged as to have votes for both north and south divisions. The Cromford and High Peak railway passes through the whole length of the parish.

HARTINGTON TOWN QUARTER, a small well built market town, pleasantly situated on the banks of the Dove, 10 miles N.N.W. from Ashbourn, and $9\frac{1}{4}$ S.W. from Bakewell, contains 3,515 acres of land, and in 1851 had 103 houses and 453 inhabitants, of whom 219 were males and 234 females; rateable value £2,393 3s. 6d. The Duke of Devonshire is lord of the manor, and principal owner; but A. B. Hope, Esq., John Sleigh, Esq., and Messrs. Joseph and Thos. Fogg are also considerable owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Giles, is an ancient cruciform structure, in the early style of architecture, having large transepts, a pinnacled tower, three bells, and a clock. It is situated on a gentle eminence N.E. of the town. A new vicarage house is in course of erection, a little N.E. of the Church, at the estimated cost of £800. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's books at £10, now £149, has been augmented with £400 parliamentary grant, and is in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean of Hartington, who holds a court for proving wills for the manor and parish of Hartington. The Duke of Devonshire is patron of the living; the Rev. Augustus Wirgman, M.A., is incumbent, and surrogate of the Dean's court. The commons were enclosed in 1798. The late Earl of Beauchamp, then Wm. Lygon, Esq., had an allotment of land for the great tithes, being impropriator, which allotment he afterwards sold to Sir Hugh Bateman, Bart. In right of the rectorial estate, Sir Hugh's trustees are patrons of the deanery of Hartington. The Church had belonged to the Minoresses of London, to which it was probably given by one of the Earls of Lancaster. The Methodists have a chapel, erected of stone in 1809. The manor of Hartington belonged to the noble family of Ferrers. On the attainder of Robert Ferrers, Earl of Derby, it was granted to Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, who had a capital mansion or castle at Hartington in the reign of Edward I. The manor continued to be annexed to the Earldom and Duchy of Lancaster till the year 1603, when it was granted by King James to Sir Geo. Hume chancellor of the exchequer. Having reverted to the crown, it was granted by the same monarch, in 1617, to Sir George Villiers. In the year 1663 it was purchased of the Duke of Buckingham, by William Cavendish, Earl of Devonshire. The Duke of Devonshire is by far the greatest proprietor in this extensive parish, and, among other estates, is possessed of Biggin Grange, and Heathcote, which had been given to the monks of Gerondon by the Ferrers family. Biggin Grange was for many centuries the residence of the Dakyn or Dakeyne family, where they were seated almost as early as the time of Richard II. They also possessed property at Hatton and other places. John Dakin of Biggin married Alicia, daughter of John de la Pole, Esq., son of Sir John de la Pole. He was the ancestor of the Dakeynes of Snitterton and Stubbing Edge, also of Linton and Hackness, in the east riding of Yorkshire, of whom General Dakins of Hackness represented Scarborough in Parliament in the time of Edward VI. The first of the family who settled in this county was Humphrey Daking or De Aking, who, with his brother, Sir Thos. Daking, Knt., of Northwold, in Norfolk, held considerable possessions in the Peak and other places in this county. The Duke also owns the manor or grange of Pilsbury and Crookstone Grange, which had been given by the same family to the abbey of Mervale, in Warwickshire, and had been granted to George Earl of Shrewsbury; the manor of Foxlow, which had belonged to the Lovell family; and Cotes Grange, which had been granted by Henry VIII. to George Cotton. When William Earl of Devonshire was created a Duke, he took his second title of Marquis of Hartington from this place. A market was granted to William Ferrers, Earl of Derby, about the year 1203, and a fair for three days at the festival of St. Giles. The market is held on Wednesday, for butter and eggs. Fairs are held on the 12th of February, 2nd of April, and the Wednesday before the last Thursday in April for cattle and pedlery. If either of the two first falls on Sunday, the fair is held on the Monday. Hartington Hall an ancient edifice on a bold elevation overlooking the town, late the property of the executors of the late Sir Hugh Bateman, Bart., in whose family it had been since the early part of the sixteenth century, is now the property of the Duke of Devonshire, and the residence of Mr. John Redfern. There is a hiring statutes held the Wednesday before Christmas day. Feast, nearest Sunday to the 12th of September. At Ludwell, $1\frac{1}{4}$ miles W.N.W., is a fine spring of water, which soon falls into the Dove, but which, in summer often yields more water than comes down the river. The principal farms are Bank Top, $\frac{3}{4}$ mile N.W.; Burnt Cliff, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles N.; Coltsfield, 3 miles N.N.E.; Custard Fields, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles N.E.; Haven Lodge, 2 miles N.E.; Lean Lowe, 2 miles N.; Pilsbury Grange, $2\frac{1}{4}$ miles N.W. from Hartington.

Charities.—Poor's Land.—The rents of 11a. 3r. 8p. of land situated at Heathcote, in this parish, have for many years been distributed to the poor of the Town Quarter. It is supposed these lands were formerly left by the Bateman family, the agent of whom distributes the rents, amounting to £17 7s., annually at Christmas.

An annual sum of £2 12s., left by an unknown donor, is distributed in bread every two or three weeks by the minister. The poor of Hartington are also entitled to a portion of the gift of the Rev. Francis Gisborne's charity. £5 10s. is received by the incumbent of Hartington, and laid out in flannel and coarse cloth, and given to the poor of the Town Quarter. (See Bradley).

Hartington Middle Quarter township contains Earl Sterndale chapelry, with various hamlets and scattered farms, extending N. and N.W. from Hartington, contains 4,506a. 1r. 13p. of land, and in 1851 had 66 houses and 307 inhabitants, of whom 157 were males and 150 females; rateable value £2,960 10s. 3d. The Duke of Devonshire is lord of the manor and principal owner. The mountains Croom, Parker's Hill, Glutton, and others the most singular of the Peak are in this township, near to Earl or Church Sterndale, a small village $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles N. by W. from Hartington, and 5 miles S.S.E. from Buxton. The Church was rebuilt in 1828; it is a neat structure with an embattled tower. The living a perpetual curacy, valued at £150. The Duke of Devonshire is patron, and the Rev. Thos. Blackburn Kentish, B.A., incumbent, for whom a new parsonage house will shortly be erected. Bentley Grange, 3 miles N.E. from Earl Sterndale, and Vincent House, 2 miles N.N.E., are large farms.

Crowdycote is a hamlet and small village on the banks of the river Dove, on the Bakewell and Longnor road, 2 miles S. by E. from Earl Sterndale. Here are two kilns for burning lime, and a stone bridge of one arch crosses the Dove. Dowall, a large farm at the foot of a precipitous mountain, 1 mile N.W. from Earl Sterndale. Glutton, a farm at the foot of Glutton Hill, ½ mile W. from Earl Sterndale. High Needham, a small village on an eminence, 1 mile E. from Crowdycote. Hurdlow, a small village 2 miles E. from Earl Sterndale. Here is a steam engine for drawing carriages up an inclined plane of the Cromford and High Peak railway, with a wharf and offices at Parsley Hay. Middle Street a scattered district of houses on a road south from Earl Sterndale. This township is in the north division of the county.

CHARITIES.—James Hill, by will, in 1712, left £2 yearly to the schoolmaster, for teaching four of the poorest children in this place.

Rowland Heathcote, by will, dated 1800, left £40 for the benefit of the poor of Earl Sterndale. The poor also of this Quarter receive bread to the amount of 20s. per annum from the bequest of Mr. Fletcher.

HARTINGTON NETHER QUARTER township, surrounds the Town Quarter, except where that adjoins the river Dove; it is a scattered district of small villages and farms, principally in the south division of the county, but partly extending into the north division; and the farmers have their lands so divided as to give many of them votes for both divisions. It contains 3,732A. 3R. 7P. of land, and in 1851 had 87 houses and 436 inhabitants, of whom 222 were males and 214 females; rateable value £2,306 15s. The Duke of Devonshire is lord of the manor and principal owner. Andrew Brittlebank, Esq., Thos. Bateman, Esq., John Sleigh, Esq., Thos. Hartshorne, Esq., and Miss M. A. Cantrell are also owners. In 1847 a new Church was built at Biggin, a pleasant but scattered village, extending from 1¼ to 2 miles S.E. from Hartington. It is a small stone edifice, with nave, chancel, and handsome tower with one bell. The cost of erection was about £1,500 raised by subscriptions, exclusive of the site, given by the patron, H. G. the Duke of Devonshire. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £57, in the incumbency of the Rev. Thos. Booth, LL.D., who resides at the parsonage, a good residence near the Church, erected in 1848, at the cost of £700. A good school room was also built at the same time at a cost of £200. Biggin Grange, and The Hall are now extensive farms. Dale Head, 1¾ miles north. Friden, 3¼ miles E. From Hartington. Here is a wharf and offices on the Cromford and Peak railway. Heathcote, a pleasant small village on a bold eminence, 1 mile E. from Hartington. The Primitive Methodists have a stone chapel here, built in 1835. Newhaven, a small village 2½ miles E. from Hartington, on the old Manchester and London road. Several other roads unite here, and it is noted for its Inn, the Devonshire Arms, and posting house, 7 miles S.W. from Bakewell, 11 miles S.E. by S. from Buxton, 5 miles N.N.E. from Dovedale. Very great fairs are held here on the second Tuesday in September, and on the 30th of October, attended by very distant dealers in sheep, &c. Ivy House, formerly the Bull's Head Inn, half a mile S. from Newhaven, is now a handsome private residence. Pike Hall, 3¼ miles E.S.E from Hartington, has four farms in this township, situated on the Winster and Newhaven road. Pilsbury Grange, 2 miles N. from Hartington, near the Dove, has a large farm in this township, and one in the Town Quarter.

CHARITIES.—Matthew Bennett, by will dated 1758, left £20 in trust, the interest thereof to be given to the poor of Lower Quarter.

Margaret Sleigh gave to the poor of the Lower Quarter 10s. yearly, for ever; and Robert Bateman gave 20s. yearly, to be distributed on St. Thomas's day. These two annuities are charged on a piece of land called the Furlongs, near Leek.

Elizabeth Cottrill, in 1814, left £20 in trust, the interest thereof to be annually given to all the poor widows of this Quarter.

HARTINGTON UPPER QUARTER township forms the north-west extremity of the parish and of the Wirksworth Hundred. It is a wild romantic district, and contains 9,550 acres of land, 192 houses, and 893 inhabitants, of whom 481 were males, and 412 females; rateable value, £4280. Of this township, 4,147A. are common and heath, of which the heath is mostly on peat and gritstone. The enclosed is mostly on limestone of excellent quality, of which much is burned near the Ladmans low wharf, on the Cromford and High Peak railway, near Grin hill, in Burbage. The Duke of Devonshire is lord of the manor, owns the whole, except 1,215A., which belong to several freeholders. Axe Edge, at the north-east extremity, forms the highest of the High Peak mountain range, being 1,750 feet above the level of the sea, and nearly three miles S.W. from Buxton. The river Dove has its source from the south side; the river Goyt from the north side; and the river Dane from the south-west point, about 3½ miles S.W. from Buxton, on the Leek road. Goyt's Bridge forms the extreme N.E. point. Near this point, 4½ miles N.W. from Buxton, the counties of Derby, Cheshire, and Stafford, all meet.

BRAND, a small hamlet, containing several scattered houses, lies at the foot of Axe Edge. In 1776, a school was erected here. In 1831, it was converted into a dwelling-house for the master, and a new school erected.—(See Charities). The Church clergy and Methodist ministers occasionally perform divine service in this schoolroom.

BURBAGE, a scattered hamlet at the north-east extremity, nearly adjoining Buxton, where, at half mile south from Buxton, is Poole's Hole, a noted cavern, supposed to derive its name from an outlaw called Poole, who secreted himself in its gloomy caverns. Others suppose it was a hermit, who chose this dismal cell for his place of abode. This cavern, at the foot of Grin-low hill, has the honour of being classed amongst the wonders of Derbyshire. The entrance is so low and narrow that the visitor is obliged to proceed in a stooping posture for nearly 80 feet, when it widens considerably, and he presently enters a very large opening with something like a covered roof, which, with the floor and sides, abound with stalactical formations, so throwu together as to bear a remote resemblance to various objects. In one place the visitor is shewn a petrified turtle, a flitch of bacon, and old Poole's saddle; further in the cavern, a woolpack, a chair, a font, a lady's toilet, a lion, and the pillar of Mary, Queen of Scots, so named from a tradition of that Queen having visited the cavern and advanced to this point, which is as far as any one would wish to go, the remaining portion being contracted into a very narrow chasm. From the entrance to the farthest extremity is said to be 2,007 feet. Near the entrance are a few cottages, and guides always in attendance to shew the cavern. Grin Low is covered with Lime-kilns. The hill is composed of a bluish limestone, which is considered to make lime of the very best quality, which is transported to great distances. In several of the old kilns, houses have been formed by the peasantry, who by this means obtain a cheap and tolerable dwelling. The hill had a strange and uncouth appearance, but it has been planted which now hides its deformity. Harley is a large farm, half a mile N.W. from Earl Sterndale. Hedge Moor, 1½ miles W. from Buxton, is a pleasant cottage residence, the property of the Duke of Devonshire, and in the occupancy of the family of the Bishop of Madras, now officiating at Calcutta. There are a great number of others noticed in the Directory. About 2 miles S. from Buxton, the Cromford and High Peak railway passes through a tunnel 600 yards in length, near which is a colliery leased by John Boothman, Esq., under the Duke of Devonshire; he also is lessee of the limeworks, near Ladmanslow wharf, 1½ west from Buxton.

CHARITIES.—About the year 1776, a school was built by Thomas Taylor, and 13A. of land were appropriated, by the late Duke of Devonshire, to the use of the master of this school, but it does not appear that any instrument was executed for the purpose of annexing it permanently to the school, in respect to which the master instructs 12 poor boys and girls.

HOGNASTON, a parish and small village, pleasantly situated 5 miles S.W. by W. from Wirksworth, contains 1,350 acres of land, three-fourths of which is pasture, and the remainder arable; rateable value, £2,044 6s. In 1851 it had 70 houses, and 299 inhabitants, of whom 146 were males, and 153 females. The principal owners are Wm. P. Thornhill, Esq., M.P., Mr. Edw. Trueman, Mr. R. M. Thompson, Misses Thompson, Mr. Jno. Heathcote, Mr. Wm. Alsop, Mr. John Sims, Colonel R. B. Leacroft, Mr. Robert Bunting, Rev. William Buckwell, and the Rev. Joseph Sikes. The Executors of the late Philip Gell, Esq., are lords of the manor. It is in the manor of Wirksworth or Hulland, but only about 40 acres copyhold—fine certain. There is 13s. 4d. paid to the Duchy of Lancaster as palfrey rent, also 13s. for "lot and cope" to the receiver-general of taxes. The Church, dedicated to St. Bartholomew, is an ancient structure, with square tower, and south porch, within which is a fine Norman arch. The living is a perpetual curacy, valued in the King's book at £7 3s. 4d., now £155, has been augmented with £800 Queen Anne's bounty. The Bishop of Lichfield is patron, and the Rev. Thomas O. Grady, incumbent. The small tithe is paid by a modus of £7 15s., and the rectorial tithes were commuted in 1847, for £199 8s., are received by G. H. Errington, Esq. In 1855-56, a handsome parsonage was erected a little W. from the church, at a cost of about £1500, exclusive of the site, which was the gift of Mrs. Thornhill. Here are 26A. 2R. 17P. of glebe, let for £39 12s. 11d. per annum. There are also 23A. 2R. 36P. of land belonging to the church; 19A. 1R. 20P. of which are occupied by Mr. J. Hurd, at an annual rent of £22 4s. 1d.; and 4A. 1R. 16P. in the occupation of Mr. Thomas Bown, at an annual rent of £7 3s. 3d. The Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1827, is a neat brick building. The Independents have a chapel erected in 1855, at a cost of £60, it is a neat stone building, and will seat about 60 hearers. Riddings, ½ mile W. from Hognaston, is the residence and property of the Misses S. & P. Thompson. Mr. Edwin Truman also owns and resides on a farm ¾ miles N. from the village. Feast, first Sunday after Sept. 4th.

CHARITIES.—Thomas Allsop, in 1679, left a rent-charge of 10s. yearly to the poor, out of a piece of land called the Nether End of the New close, the property of the late P. Gell, Esq.

John Slater, in 1683, gave 10s. a year out of the Turlow Fields, to be distributed to ten of the poorest people within the parish.

George Morley, by deed, in 1720, gave 10s. per annum to the poor of this parish, out of land called the High Meadow.

These three annuities of 10s. each are distributed by the overseers of the poor on Christmas-day amongst the most necessitous of the parish.

The poor also partake of the Rev. Francis Gisborne's charity. (See Bradley.)

KIRK IRETON parish comprises the townships of Krik Ireton and Ireton Wood, 2,228 acres of land, mostly occupied as dairy farms, and in 1851 had 166 houses, and 735 inhabitants, of whom 365 were males, and 370 females; rateable value £3,371 5s. 1d.

KIRK IRETON, a township and considerable village, pleasantly situated on the side of a hill, 3 miles S.S.W. from Wirksworth, and 12 miles N.W. from Derby, contains 1415 acres of land, and in 1851 had 130 houses, and 569 inhabitants; rateable value £2,229 18s, 3d. The manor is attached to the duchy manor of Wirksworth, of which Peter Arkwright, Esq., is lessee. The manor of Hulland, in Wirksworth, extends into this parish. The principal owners are Wm. P. Thornhill, Esq., M.P., Jas. Milnes, Esq., Mr. Joseph Matkin, Mr. James Matkin, Phillip Hurt, Esq., Rev. Charles Evans, Mr. Thomas Peat, Wirksworth School, and Mr. John Dean. The Church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, is an ancient Norman structure, with nave, chancel, side aisles, and tower with 4 bells. On Sunday, May 12th, 1811, a violent storm of wind took the lead off the roof, and considerably injured the tower, so that it was found necessary to brace it with iron girders; it also did considerable damage in the village. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's books at £7 10s. 10d,, now £344 12s. The Bishop of Lincoln is the patron; the Rev. Robert Gell, M.A., rector. The rectory an old fashioned mansion, pleasantly situated on an eminence, a short distance east from the church, has 70 acres of glebe. The tithes were commuted in 1846, for £315. Here is a Free school for 16 poor children, endowed by John Slater, in 1686, but the average attendance is 32, and the schoolmaster's salary is made up by the rector. Also a National school, for girls and infants, the average attendance at each is 40. The Primitive Methodists have a small chapel erected in 1836. Callow Moor, 1 mile N. partly in Wirksworth parish, was enclosed by act of parliament, in 1803. Feast, Trinity Sunday. Biggin Head, 1 mile S., and the Haze on the west, are good farms.

IRETON WOOD, a township and small village 4½ miles S. by W. from Wirksworth, contains 813 acres of land, 36 houses, and 166 inhabitants, of whom 80 were males, and 86 females; rateable value, £1,141 5s. 10d., including the hamlet of Blackwall. Peter Arkwright, Esq., is lessee of the manor. The principal owners are the Rev. Charles Evans, James and William Pearson, Rev. William Melville, Henry James, Esq., M.D., Miss Johnson, and Miss Sybray. In the reign of James II., a grant was made for a certain sum of money, for the abolition of all arbitrary fines on change of tenant, and small certain fines are now levied on copyhold lands in this and many other manors held under the Duchy of Lancaster, with a chief or quit rent, of which £5 18s. 6d., is paid by Ireton Wood.

BLACKWALL, a hamlet, 1 mile W.S.W., from Kirk Ireton, contains 2 farms and an ancient stone mansion, overgrown with ivy, situated on the side of an abrupt acclivity, amidst fine timber and thriving plantations, the property of the Rev. Charles Evans, and residence of Miss Sarah Wilcockson. For many generations, this was the seat and property of the family of Blackwall, one of whom, Dr. Anthony Blackwall, wrote on the sacred classics.

CHARITIES.—John Storer, in the thirty-second year of the reign of Elizabeth, left £52 to the bailiffs and burgesses of Derby, the interest to be distributed as follows:—10s. to provide a godly sermon on Trinity Sunday, 1s. for the minister's dinner, and 1s. for the dinner of a burgess to hear the said sermon, and 40s. to be distributed to the poor. The interest of this charity, £2 12s., is received from the corporation of Derby by one of the parishioners of Kirk Ireton, of which 12s. is paid to the minister, and 40s. is given amongst the most necessitous poor of the parish.

Bridget Cheney deposited £29 in the Wirksworth Saving's bank, the interest to be divided between the township of Kirk Ireton and Ireton Wood.

By indentures of lease and release, dated 1755, it appears that houses and lands had been anciently given by divers persons for the use of the poor and the repairs and beautifying of the parish church of Kirk Ireton, but that the deeds or wills by which the several estates had been so given were either lost or destroyed, and the only property ascertained to be now holden under trust, consists of 2A. 3R. 4P. of land, called the Church Croft, and a garden occupied by the schoolmaster, the rents of which are appropriated to the repairing and ornamenting of the parish church.

John Slater, by deed, is 1686, left five closes called the Nether Field and Blackwall Flat, out of the rents of which £8 per annum was to be paid to a schoolmaster for the instruction of 16 poor children of Kirk Ireton, and the remainder to be given to the poor. This land is now let for £49 a year, and is distributed at Midsummer and Christmas in portions varying from 3s. to 15s. each.

Robert Cooper, by will, in 1728, gave to the poor of Kirk Ireton his lands, called Side Wood, containing 12A. 1R. 27P., and a wood containing 2A. 18P. Previously to 1810, timber was cut down on this estate, and on lands belonging to Slater's charity, and sold for £350, which is vested in the three per cent. reduced annuities, and is distributed with the rents at the same time as Slater's charity.

John Bower, by deed dated 1744, deposited £120 in the hands of Thos. Gell, to be laid out in the purchase of land, and the rents to be given for the instruction of poor children. An annual sum of £5 is now paid to a schoolmistress by the Rev. Philip Gell, who considers himself responsible for the amount named in the deed.

Gisborne's Charity.—(See Bradley.)—£7 3s. received on account of this charity, is laid out by the minister in the purchase of flannel, and distributed amongst the poor.

KNIVETON, a parish and large well-built village on the Ashbourn and Wirksworth road, 3 miles N.E. from the former, contains 1962A. 1R. 25P. of rich pasture land, and in 1851 had 74 houses, and 331 inhabitants, of whom 173 were males and 158 females; rateable value, £3160 7s. 10d. The principal owners are, the Rev. German Buckston, Wm. Hunter Baillie, Esq., John Harrison, Esq., John Broadhurst, Esq., Rev. C. Evans, Miss Adsetts, T. Smith, Esq., M. A. Brittlebank, Esq., W. Cantrell, Esq., Mr. Thomas Ginnis, Mr. Charles Clark, Mr. Thos. Barnes, Mr. Thos. Millward, Mr. R. Spendlove, Mr. Thos. Tomlinson, and Mr. W. Doxey. The Church, dedicated to St. Michael, situated on a lofty eminence at the southern extremity of the village, is an ancient structure, with nave, chancel, and low tower, surmounted with a short spire, and was repewed in 1842 with open seats. The living is a perpetual curacy, valued in the King's book at £10, now £64. It has been augmented with £600 Queen Anne's bounty, and £200 parliamentary grant; in the patronage of John Harrison, Esq., the Rev. Charles Birch, B.C.L., is the incumbent. In 1847, a National school was erected by subscription, aided by a government grant of £53; it will accommodate about 60 children, and the average attendance is about 30. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel here. Feast, first Sunday after 11th October. Four-fifths of the parish is tithe free, and the remainder is paid by agreement. The rectory of Kniveton was anciently appropriated, as parcel of Ashbourn, to the dean of Lincoln, one of whom conveyed it to the dean and chapter of Lichfield. In 1548, the dean and chapter granted the rectory house, glebe, tithes, &c., reserving only the ecclesiastical jurisdiction, to Ralph Gell, Esq., of Hopton. In 1796, this estate was sold by the devizees in trust of Philip Gell, to Mr. Edward Evans and others; and the tithes have since been sold to the landowners. This manor (Cheniueton) we find in Domesday survey, was from a very early period the property of the Kniveton family, and was sold by Sir Andrew Kniveton, Bart., in the reign of Charles II., to Lowe, after which it passed to the Pegges. It was sold by Thos. Pegge, Esq., to Mrs. Meynell, of Bradley, and passed to Godfrey Meynell, Esq. Mrs. E. Stoddart is now the lady of the manor. The first recorded parliamentary representative for the county of Derby was Henry de Kniveton, who served that office in the reign of Edward I. At Mudge Meadow, a short distance to the S. of the village is a sulphurous spring. Horsley House, an ancient residence on the western side of a steep hill, $1\frac{1}{4}$ miles N.W. from the Church, and 4 miles N. from Ashburn;—about 16 years ago, a number of ancient silver coins were found on this farm. It is in the occupation of Mr. Saml. Millward. Kniveton Wood, and Kniveton Wood Cottage, are two farms, 1 mile W. of the village; the former is occupied by Mr. Thos. Ginnis, and the latter by Mr. Wm. Stafford. Pet Hills, a good farm house, $\frac{3}{4}$ of a mile S. of the village, is occupied by Mr. John Smith. Stand Lowe, quarter-mile N. of the village, is the farm residence of Mr. John Hough. There are also several other scattered farms.

CHARITIES.—John Hurd, by will dated 31st December, 1715, left 20s. yearly to the poor of this parish, to be distributed on the 28th of January; and he directed the churchwardens and overseers to raise so much money out of the rents of his estate as would erect a school fourteen feet wide and five yards long. He also left £8 yearly, for ever, to a schoolmaster, and 15s. to be laid out in coals, and 5s. for the repairs of the school. He further directed that any boys or girls of his name might come to the said school free.

Thomas Gaunt gave 20s. yearly out of land situated in Kniveton, to be distributed on the 23rd of December, in sums of 2s. each, to ten of the poorest families in the parish.

In 1794, a house in this parish was sold for £25, supposed to have been bought with £12 originally left by Henry Fearn, in consideration of which the overseers distribute 18s. yearly, on the 28th of January.

Mappleton or Mapleton, one and a half miles N.W. from Ashbourn, a township and pleasant village, on the eastern bank of the river Dove, which is here crossed by a stone bridge having a remarkably flat arch; its span being 70 feet, and its semidiameter only 11; it contains 795A. 0R. 20P. of fertile land, principally dairy farms, and in 1851 had 46 houses, and 200 inhabitants, of whom 80 were males, and 120 females; rateable value, £1857 14s. 3d. Haughton Charles Okeover, Esq., is lord of the manor and principal owner. John G. Johnson, Esq., Rev. H. J. Goodwin, and Sir Matthew Blakiston, Bart., are also owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a small oblong building, having a dome surmounted by an urn; it was repewed and thoroughly repaired in 1842, at a cost of £250, raised by subscriptions, aided by a grant of £40 from the Incorporated society. The Communion service was given by T. Austin, Esq. The living is a rectory, consolidated with the vicarage of Ashbourn, value £72. In the church is a neat marble tablet to Francis Goodwin, Esq., formerly a captain in the Derbyshire militia, who died Augt. 26th, 1836, aged 68; also, one to his wife, the eldest daughter of Major-General Goodwin, who died Oct. 26th, 1841, aged 70 years. At the "Okeover Arms," is an excellent Bowling-green, which has been established upwards of a century, and the proprietor Mr. Richd. Utting, can furnish visitors with tickets who wish to enjoy the sport of angling in the Dove. This village claims the honour of having been the birth place of Sir Francis Chantrey, the eminent sculptor. The Manor House, a little S. of the village, pleasantly situated on the banks of the Dove, is the property of H. C. Okeover, Esq., and the residence of Mr. Geo. Gough, whose family have resided here upwards of 100 years. The Callow, a large handsome stone mansion in the Elizabethan style, situated on an eminence, on the north side of the road from the bridge to the village, is the seat and property of J. Goodwin Johnson, Esq. At the Domesday survey, Mapletun belonged to the crown. The Cokaynes, of Ashbourn, had a seat here, and Francis Cokayne died possessed of the manor, in 1558. In 1641, an estate and manor here belonged to the Bassetts of Blore, whose heiress brought it to Wm. Cavendish, Earl and afterwards Duke of Newcastle. In 1757, it was sold by his descendants to Thomas Rivett, Esq. of whom it was purchased by the Rev. John Taylor, L.L.D., of Ashbourn. The manorial rights are now vested in the Okeover family, and have been for a lengthened period, whose beautiful seat, Okeover Hall, is contiguous to Mappleton, on the opposite or Staffordshire side of the river, to the east of which stands the Church, which, as Okeover is a Liberty and Extra parochial, was built for the use of the Okeover family. It is dedicated to All Saints, has a tower and nave, and its principal features wear the aspect of Edward II. period, though there are indications of its having been preceded by a still earlier fabric. It is at this time undergoing an entire restoration, under the able hand of G. Scott, Esq., architect; and when completed will present a perfect example of an ancient Family chapel. The east window contains a very interesting specimen of stained glass of the time of Edward III., it is now being repaired by Messrs. Hardman & Co., of Birmingham. Probably it was placed here by Sir Humphrey de Okeover, then the representative of this ancient family, which is of Saxon origin, and was seated here many years prior to the Conquest, and exhibits in its pedigree a long list of Knightly descendants. The living is a donative, and is served by a chaplain, appointed by the patron, Haughton Charles Okeover, Esq. The present mansion, which stands at the eastern extremity of a finely timbered deer park, was built about the time of George II. In the drawing room, which is of fine proportions, and has a rich ceiling of compartments in the best Italian manner, are some very choice and interesting pictures by the old masters:—the chef d'œuvre is a Holy Family, by Raffaelle. In the park are several tumuli, and the traces of a Roman encampment.

Charities.—Rowland Okeover, by will dated 24th October, 1727, left certain lands and premises situated at Atlow, on trust, to apply £60 yearly of the rents and profits thereof for the support and maintenance of a fit man to be an organist, and to play on the organ placed by him in the parish church of Okeover; and also of 12 fit boys or girls, to be choristers in the said parish church, to sing Divine service and psalms, and to perform such other duties and services, as were proper to perform on Sundays and holidays. Of this sum, he directed £20 per annum to be paid to the organist, and 40s. yearly to each of the choristers, to find them clothes; the residue to be applied in putting forth the said boys and girls, choristers, to useful trades. He further directed that the residue of the said lands and premises should be applied in building a covenient house, to be divided into dwellings for three widows of clergymen of the Church of England, to each of whom the sum of £10 yearly, (now increased to £30) was to be paid, with a further sum of 40s. at Michaelmas. And it was provided that in case any vacancy should happen, so much of the rents as should become payable during such vacancy should be laid out by the trustees in buying flax, hemp, and other proper matters to set the poor people to work for their better maintenance. In addition to the estate at Atlow, there is a sum of £600 belonging to the charity, lent on mortgage on an estate at Abbott's Bromley, Staffordshire. This sum arose from an accumulation of the income of the charity previously to the yearly payments to the clergymen's widows being augmented. An annual sum of £2 2s. has of late years been allowed to the organist, for tuning and taking care of the organ, in addition to the salary of £20. About the year 1736, proceedings took place in the court of chancery, respecting this charity, when it was established, except as to the maintenance of the choristers. Twelve boys and girls are now clothed out of this charity, at an expenditure of £40 per annum, and a premium of £5 is allowed to such of the children as apply to be apprentices. £20 per annum is paid to the Rev. Roger Ryland Vaughton, of Yeldersley, for the management of the property. The gross income of the charity is £194 10s. A sum of 10s. per annum was formerly received by the poor, out of an estate at Ilam, possessed by the Port family.

The estate was afterwards sold to Jesse Watts Russell, Esq. It appears that as long as the estate remained in possession of the Port family, the amount was regularly paid, and that the estate was sold subject to certain payments for charitable uses, which continued to be paid by Mr. Russell till 1819, when they were discontinued. No deed shewing the origin of the charity can be found.

MATLOCK parish is of great extent, containing 4,513A. 2R. 35P. of land, and in 1851 had 903 houses and 4010 inhabitants, of whom 1911 were males and 2099 females; rateable value £9126 2s. William Pole Thornhill, Esq., M.P., is lord of the manor. The principal land owners are, Peter Arkwright, Esq., W. E. Nightingale, Esq., Rev. John Woolley, Charles Clark, John Garton, and Georgs Allen, Esqrs., and Sir Joseph Paxton. Its surface is about equally divided between limestone and gritstone, and is chiefly used for grazing purposes. The scenery is picturesquely broken into hill and dale, and is watered by the Derwent and several smaller streams. The parish includes Matlock Bath, Cromford Bridge, Scarthing Row, Lumsdale, Riber, Starkholmes, and Willersley, and its chief manufactures are cotton spinning, framework knitting, spar ornaments, hats, and cotton wick. The corn mills, bleach works, and paper mill, also furnish employment to a considerable number of the inhabitants.

MATLOCK anciently called Mestesford, is pleasantly situated on the banks of the Derwent, 8 miles S. from Bakewell, 9 miles S.W. by S. from Chesterfield, 17 miles N. by W. from Derby, and 144 miles N.N.W. from London. It formerly had a weekly market, but it has been obsolete about 40 years; it is, however, the intention of the inhabitants to re-establish it. Fairs are held February 25th, April 2nd, May 9th, July 6th, and October 4th, and 25th. In 1849 the Midland Railway Co. opened a branch line of railway from Ambergate to Rowsley, with stations at Matlock Bath and Matlock Bridge, which has been of considerable advantage to the neighbourhood, and if extended to Manchester, as anticipated, the influx of visitors will no doubt be greatly increased. The manor of Matlock is described in Domesday book as part of the King's demense of Mestesford, which is supposed to have been at a place called Nestes or Nestus, a little mining village at the foot of a high hill on the north side of the old Bath. This opinion is confirmed by the name of Nestes Side being formerly given to the Heights of Abraham, and the Rutland Cavern is still held under the title of Nestes Mine. Beneath these Heights is supposed to have existed a ford for the miners to pass, hence the name of Mestesford or Nestesford The manor belonged at an early period to the Ferrers family as parcel of the Wapentake of Wirksworth. It was successively parcel of the earldom and duchy of Lancaster, till the year 1628, when it was granted to Edward Lichfield and others, in trust for the Corporation of the City of London, by whom it was conveyed to three other persons, as trustees for the copyholders of the manor, and the rights have ever since been vested in a succession of such trustees. A Roman pig of lead, 17½ inches long, and 20½ at bottom, weighing 173 pounds, was found on Matlock Moor, in the year 1787. The following inscription appears in raised letters on the top :—

TI. CL. TR. LVT. BR. EX. ARG.

Another weighing 126 pounds, was found on Cromford Moor near Matlock, in the year 1777, having the following inscription, in raised letters :—

IMP. CAES. HADRIANI. AUG. MET. LVT.

A third was found near Matlock, in 1783, weighing 84 pounds, 19 inches long at the top and 4 at the bottom, inscribed thus ;—

L. ARVCONI, VERECOND, MEAL. LVTVD.

Various conjectures have been formed respecting some parts of these inscriptions, but if we conceive the LVT and the LVTVD to be contractions of LUTUDARUM, a Roman station, supposed to be Chesterfield, much of the difficulty will vanish. By this mode of interpretation, the first will be found to have belonged to the emperor Cæsar Hadrian Augustus, from the metallic district of Lutudarum. These are now placed in the British Museum, and the very inspection is sufficient to prove "they were thus prepared for articles of commerce." Mr. Pegge has conjectured "that one of these pigs bears so early a date as the time of the emperor Claudius; and if this were the fact, it would go far to prove that the mines in the Peak were worked by the natives before the Roman invasion, as it is highly improbable that in so short a time after the landing of the Romans, they should have so far subdued the Coritani in the central part of the island, as to have established their own works in this remote district;" or if, as other antiquarians have contended, this lead formed part of the tribute paid by the islanders themselves to the Roman emperor, it would carry up the British trade to a very remote period. The Church, an ancient embattled structure, dedicated to St. Giles, is situated on the verge of a precipitous rock, embosomed in thick foliage; it contains nave, chancel, side aisles, and square tower with 6 bells. The chancel is about to be thoroughly restored. It contains an ancient monument to Anthony Woolley, (who died in 1578), and Agnes his wife. The ceiling is ornamented with rude paintings, and suspended from the gallery are numerous garlands made of paper, relics of an ancient custom that formerly existed in many parts of England. They were generally hung up at the funeral of young females, and carried before the corpse to the Church by two of the most intimate companions of the deceased. A small organ was erected in 1844, at a cost of about £100. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book, at £11 2s. 6d., now at £400; in the patronage of the Bishop of Lichfield, and enjoyed by the Rev. William Rylance Melville, M.A., who resides at the rectory, a large ancient mansion a little S. of the Church. An ancient carved font was taken out of the Church some years ago, and is now in the rector's garden. The Independents have a large handsome chapel situated on the Green, it was erected in 1848, at a cost of about £700; and in 1845 a large Sunday school was added at the back of it. The Rev. Saml. Dial, is the pastor. A neat Wesleyan chapel was built at Matlock bridge, in 1840, at a cost of about £300. The Primitive Methodists have a small chapel, built in 1838, on Matlock Bank. And the Wesleyan Reformers a small chapel at Matlock Bridge. The Free School, endowed by George Spateman, in 1647, having become greatly dilapidated, a large handsome new school was built of stone in 1829, on Tagg Hill, in which 40 boys are taught free; for which the master receives £30 per annum, and a house rent free, with the privilege of taking any other pupils who may offer; Robert Bunting is the schoolmaster. The particulars of the endowment are given with the charities of this parish. The Girl's National School, Matlock Town, was built by subscription, in 1816. It is partly supported by voluntary contributions, and partly by the weekly pence of the children. Both are used as Sunday schools, and are numerously attended.

BATHS.—The Baths which have been established at Matlock Town, within the last few years, have not as yet attained that wide spread celebrity, which has been obtained by its more fortunate neighbour Matlock Bath, nevertheless, the support which they have hitherto received affords strong evidence that the Hydropathy system is not without its friends and supporters; and from their close proximity to the beautiful and picturesque scenery of the Dale, it is more than probable, that in a few years they will prove a formidable yet friendly rival, for a share of the public patronage which is enjoyed in such an eminent degree by its elder sister. There are at this time three Hydropathic establishments here, viz., Mr. John Smedley's, near Matlock Bridge Station; Mr. Ralph Davis's, Matlock Bank; and Mr. John Rogers', Matlock Green; the largest of which is under the management of Mr. Smedley. The situation of this house is highly advantageous to health, being sheltered from the north and east winds, by a lofty range of hills; the interior is comfortably furnished, and has all the necessary apparatus for carrying out the treatment, with water of the softest and purest nature. In the centre of the Town and near to the Old Market Cross, is a fine limetree, supposed to have been planted at the same time and by the same person who planted the one in the gardens of the New Bath Hotel. Here are several Lodges of Odd Fellows and Friendly Societies. Feast, first Sunday after September 8th. The Boat House Inn, Old Lane, pleasantly situated close to the river Derwent, is fitted up with every convenience conducive to the comfort of visitors, who can at a minute's notice be supplied with boats for a row on the river, if their inclination so leads them. The Horse Shoe Inn, Matlock Green, is a large good house recently erected of stone, and has excellent stabling and lock-up coach houses, with every other convenience and comfort for parties either on business or pleasure.

MATLOCK BATH, distant 1½ miles from the village of Matlock, and 6 miles from Ambergate station, has long been celebrated for its medicinal springs, salubrious air, and the surpassing beauty and grandeur of its scenery. "The cold winds of the north and east spend their violence on the huge hills around, and but rarely sweep through the valley. Hence it is, that, during the colder parts of the year, the temperature of Matlock is comparitively mild, which renders it so desirable a winter's residence for invalids. Even winter here seems shorn of its terrors. The frosts are embued with an exhilirating spirit; and the snows, undisturbed by currents of air, fall softly, like descending doves, into the bosom of the vale, and feather the trees with beauty." "The scenery of Matlock dale," observes a writer in the Beauties of England and Wales, "is seen to great advantage when approached from its northern extremity. The picturesque beauties of the dale then succeed each other in a gradation which render their grandeur and effect more impressive. The attention is first arrested by a vast rampart of limestone rock, clothed with yews, elms, and limes of singular beauty and foliage. Further on, the High Tor bursts upon the sight in extreme magnificence, rearing its awful brow nearly 400 feet high. The lower part is covered with small trees and underwood, but the upper part for fifty or sixty yards is one broad mass of bare perpendicular rock, standing, in the pride of its gigantic strength, pre-eminently the Monarch of the Dale. The fragments that have fallen from this eminence form the bed of the river which flows immediately below; the foaming waters dashing over the obstructing masses with restless rapidity and considerable noise, give an air of greater interest to the sublime scene. Immediately opposite the High Tor, is Masson hill, an abrupt acclivity, stretching 803 feet high, which overlooks the county to a great distance. A portion of this mountain, at an elevation of 516 feet, is named the Heights of Abraham, where several neat mansions have been erected which command a picturesque view of nearly the whole of the Dale. The path to the summit has been carried in a winding or zigzag course, and on various places on each side rows of firs have been planted, which, opening at different elevations, admit the eye to range over the beautiful scenery beneath. The romantic cliff, which forms the eastern boundary of the Dale, is seen with pleasing effect from the Old Bath, where the river recedes in a curve from the road, and a little strip of meadow composes the foreground. On crossing the river near this place, the Lover's Walk is seen winding its course on the margin of the water, arched by the intermingled branches of the trees which enclose it. For those who love the scenery of nature, let them go to the top of Stonnis, better known by the named of Black Tors, and look down upon Matlock from this eminence. "How glorious the prospect! how varied! how beautiful!" "I stood," says Mr. Rhodes, "on the top of Stonnis; masses of rock lay scattered at my feet,—a grove of pines waved their dark branches over my head;—far below, embosomed in an amphitheatre, one of the finest landscapes that nature anywhere presents was spread before me. The habitations of man —some near, and others far apart—were scattered over the scene; but in the contemplation of the woods and rocks of Matlock Dale, the windings of the Derwent, the pine crowned Heights of Abraham, and the proud hill of Masson, they were all forgotten. The structures man had reared seemed as nothing amidst the beauty and grandeur of the works of God." The walks and rides in the immediate vicinity of Matlock are deeply interesting and highly instructive; to those attached to botanical pursuits, the variety and beauty of nature's garden, peculiar to the locality, will be highly gratifying. The geologist may speculate on the disrupted stated of the stratifications; and the mineralogist will be delighted with the variety and gradations of colour found in its sparkling gems.

Baths.—In all the baths the water is slightly tepid—68° Farenheit; they are in consequence, extremely pleasant at all seasons of the year. For medicinal purposes they are but rarely taken inwardly, yet some physicians have greatly extolled their efficacy. Dr. F. Armstrong says, "I have taken great pains to examine particularly into the properties of Matlock springs, and may with truth assert, that they are of the same nature as the Bristol waters—preferable in some cases, and equal in all." He also adds, "I have, in the course of seven years, sent a great number of patients to Matlock, and in cases where medicine had not the least prospect of being serviceable, all of whom have had perfect and lasting cures." The Matlock waters occupied much of the attention of the late Dr. Darwin, whose principal observations were sent to the Rev. Mr. Pilkington, and afterwards published in his "View of Derbyshire." The very interesting communication, and the light it casts upon the origin of warm springs, must be our apology for its insertion.

"Several philosophers have supposed that the warm springs of this country acquire their heat from the chemical decomposition of pyrites; and it was affirmed by the late Mr. Tissington, which has been lately cited in an ingenious work of Mr. Kirwan on mineralogy, that the warm water about Matlock owed its heat to the blue marl, which is mixed with pyrites, and is found in the thin strata above and below the beds of lava or toadstone. But it has been observed that, though warm water was found sometimes in these beds of pyrites and marl, yet that no smell or taste then attended it, which must have occurred if the pyrites had been in a state of decomposition; and secondly, that cold water was found in these beds oftener than warm. The arguments in favour of another opinion appear to me to be much more conclusive, viz., that the water of these springs is raised in vapour by subterraneous fires deep in the earth, and that this vapour is condensed under the surface of the mountains in the vicinity of the springs. The heat of these springs has been invariable, perhaps for many centuries, certainly as long as we have had good thermometers, which shews that the water which they arise from is in a boiling state in some part of the earth; for as boiling water acquires a certain degree of heat, viz. 212°, the steam which arises from it (when it is not confined) must always be of that degree of heat. Now, the internal parts of the earth, a few feet below the surface, being always, both in winter and summer of 48 degrees of heat, it follows that, if the steam of water, after it is condensed, flows through a given distance of the cold earth, it will become cooled from 212° to some degree of heat above 48°, proportional to the distance between the mountain in which it is condensed and the place of its exit, and thus may, for many ages, preserve an uniformity of the degree of heat, which could not happen if it was produced by chemical combinations of materials near the surface of the earth.

"In the very dry summer of 1780, when all the cold springs in this part of the country either totally ceased or were much diminished, I was well informed on the spot, both at Matlock and Buxton, that the warm springs had suffered no observable decrease of their water, whence I conclude that the sources of these warm springs were at a much greater depth beneath the surface of the earth than the cold ones, and that, on that account, the water must first have been raised in the form of steam from those great depths.

"Another circumstance shews that the source of many of these waters is situated beneath the origin of the cold springs, even after the steam which produces them is condensed into water, which is, that their heat continues always the same both in winter and summer, in wet seasons and in dry, which evinces that no cold water from the dews or springs, in consequence of them, is mixed with these sources of warm water.

"Indeed, one of the springs at Matlock had much cold water mixed with it, till a miner proposed an ingenious device to separate them, which was by fixing pipes into the mouth of the spring to raise the hot water before its exit above the place where the cold springs enter into it, and thus preserve the warm water unmixed. The rocks of limestone in all this part of the country abound with perpendicular clefts, in which are found the ores of zinc, lead, and copper; and it is hence probable, that not only the steam of water, at present, which produces these warm springs, but that those metals themselves, and the fluor, or baroselenite, which attends them have, in former ages, been raised into those perpendicular clefts by the great subterraneous fires which raised the continents and islands from the primeval ocean.

"The existence of central fires in the earth in the early ages of the world, is demonstrated by the elevation of the solid parts of the globe above the ocean; and the shattered condition of its strata which the immense masses of lava then produced, which go under the names of toadstone basalts, moorstone, porphyry, and granite, are so well explained in Mr. Whitehurst's, and in Dr. Hutton's theories of the earth. The present existence of central fires seems probable, from the many volcanoes, which are spiracula, or chimnies belonging to those great fires; and it is probable that by the escape of elastic vapours from these, is owing the small extent of modern earthquakes compared with those of remote antiquity, of which the vestiges remain all over the globe. Another argument for the present existence of immense subterraneous fires, is, that the great earthquake at Lisbon produced undulations in the lakes of Scotland, and was felt in the mines of Derbyshire, (Philos. Transactions,) which could not easily happen but by a percussion on one side of a confined fluid lava, which would be propagated to the other, as striking the gentlest blow on one side of a bladder distended with water is felt by the hand placed on the other side; to which may he added, that, in some mines, the deeper you descend the warmer you perceive them.

"Because there are springs of hot water in all countries where open volcanoes evidently exist, whence, from analogy, we may conclude that the hot springs in countries where open volcanoes have existed, but are not now open,, are owing to the same cause acting in a less powerful manner.

"Add to this, that if those waters had been heated by the chemical decomposition of pyrites, some of them at least would probably have retained chalybeate taste, or sulphureous smell, or that they would all of them have been impregnated with some similar material, which, on the chemical analysis of these waters of Buxton and Matlock, does not appear to be the fact.

"I now come to another circumstance which very much corroborates the above theory of the production of these springs from the steam rained from deep subterraneous fires, and not from the decomposition of pyrites. The strata of the earth in this part of Derbyshire consists of beds of limestone and of lava, (or toadstone,) which lie reciprocally one upon the other. In many parts of the country there are three beds of each, which are many yards thick. Now, if we suppose the steam rising from subterraneous fires to be owing partly to water slowly subsiding upon those fires, and to limestone gradually calcined by them, it must happen that the steam rising through the perpendicular clefts in the superincumbent rocks must be replete with calcareous gas, (fixed air,) or with some phlogisticated air. If this steam, so impregnated, be condensed in limestone strata, the fixed air in this hot steam super-saturates itself again with calcareous earth. Now, this is what precisely happens to the water of Matlock, which are replete with calcareous particles as appears by the copious deposition of tufa, or calcareous incrustations, along the channels in which they flow. For, in general, it happens that springs of water wear themselves valleys from their sources, as is done by the water at Buxton; but those springs at Matlock have produced rocks and mountains of a sponge-like calcareous stone between their fountains and the Derwent, with which all the houses at Matlock are constructed, and many of the stone fences. In the beginning of October, 1780, I was present, with my friend Mr. Edgeworth, at the opening of two of the springs at Matlock, about 200 yards above their usual place of appearance. We found them both, at these new openings, about one degree of heat, or somewhat more, warmer than at the places of their usual exit. The upper one, which could be best seen, issued from some cracks or fissures in the upper surface of a bed of toadstone, and between it and blue marl which lies over it, under which marl seems to have been condensed, and thence to have super-saturated itself with calcareous particles. I examined this marl by means of acids, and found it to be calcareous, except some shining bits of whitish pyrites, which had no appearance of being in a state of decomposition.

"On the contrary, the steam which produces the water of Buxton is probably condensed in the substance of the toadstone or lava, and not in a stratum of marl or limestone like the Matlock water, and hence the great difference of their contents. As one edge of these strata of limestone and lava, wherever there are springs, is always elevated higher than the other, it would be easy, by attending to the inclination of these strata, to discover on which side of the bath is situated the mountain in which the steam is condensed, which probably may not be more than a mile or two from the eruption of the springs, because, in opening the springs at Matlock at a place about 200 yards above the wells, the water (though already collected into a kind of vein) was cooled more than a degree; and this cooling must proceed much faster where the water is diffusely and thinly spread between two contiguous strata. And further, as the progress of the water must warm, in some degree, the surface of the earth beneath which it passes after its condensation, and particularly at the place of its condensation, it is not improbable but its course might be detected by observations made in rainy mornings, or when snow has lain long on the ground, by the melting or disappearance of it at first in that part, or perhaps by the earlier vegetation of the grass on those parts of the surface.

"I cannot conclude this part of the subject without observing the analogy between the production of cold and hot springs. They are both produced from vapour. That which produces cold springs is brought to the summits of mountains by the atmosphere, and being there devaporated, slides down between the strata which composes the hill, and bursts out through some of these strata below. That which forms hot springs is condensed under the same strata of the mountains over which slides the cold water devaporated from the atmosphere. Without the existence of mountains, or elevations of ground, neither hot nor cold springs could have existed; nor indeed, without their having been shattered in their elevation, for some of the strata of the earth being deficient at the summits of mountains, gives access to the dews to slide between the first and second, or between the second and third strata, and thus form cold springs below; and the perpendicular clefts or cracks in these mountains give access to the streams raised from below for the production of warm springs.

"In the Buxton water, the fixed air is found in loose bubbles, because it does not meet with any calcareous earth, or limestone, or earth, to combine itself with. In the Matlock water the contrary occurs; it has no loose air bubbles, because the fixed air is combined with lime, and thus this water is replete with calcareous earth in subtile solution, and in this respect, I suppose, resembles the Bristol water."

The springs were first noticed about the year 1698, when the bath was paved and built by the Rev. Mr. Fern, of Matlock, and Heywood of Cromford, and put into the hands of George Wragg, who, to confirm his claim and title, took a lease of it from the several lords of the manor for 99 years, paying them a fine of £150 and the yearly rent of sixpence each. He then built a few small rooms adjoining to the bath, which furnished but poor convenience for strangers. The lease and property of Wragg were afterwards purchased by Messrs. Smith & Pennel, of Nottingham, for nearly £1,000, who erected two commodious buildings, with stables and other conveniences, and made a coach road to Matlock bridge. Shortly after this, a road was carried down the Valley to Cromford, and a passage was blasted through the rock at Scarthing nick, opening a communication with the southern parts of the county. Some years after, another spring was discovered nearly a quarter of a mile south of the other; hence the name of Old and New Bath. In this situation a bath was formed, a lodging-house built, and other conveniences provided. At a still later period a third spring was met with, about three hundred yards west of the old bath, but being of a colder temperature it was neglected till 1786, when a level was driven into the hill beyond the point where the two sorts of water mix, and a proper channel made to convey the warmer water into a bath, which is now of the same temperature as the other, and is known by the name of the Fountain Gardens Bath, which is situated on the right of the road on entering this romantic place from the north. The large swimming bath is 48 feet by 18 feet long, with a depth of 5 feet, through which there flows every five minutes, 1000 gallons of water, at a temperature of 68 Farenheit.

Petrifying Wells.—These wells are interesting objects of curiosity, and beautiful illustrations of the mode in which the vast bed of calcareous tufa has been formed in time past. At a remote period the warm springs have spread over the base of the mountain and formed the tufa, which is a limestone deposit, but extremely porous, and, like the tufa of volcanic countries, highly favourable to vegetation. In this stratum, if it may be so termed the petrifying wells are situated. Mr. Mawe says—"The water, filtering through a mass of tufa, drops from the roof and sides, and, losing a part of its carbonic gas, precipitates earthy particles upon the substances on which it falls." It is thus they become encrusted with a calcareous deposit, which in time assumes the hardness of stone. Mr. Joseph Pearson's "Royal Well," visited by the Princess Victoria, in 1832, is situated under the road leading to the old bath. A little further on is Mr. Smedley's under his spar shops; and Mrs. Boden's, near the Post Office. These three wells are all filled with a profusion of articles, put in to be petrified, among which may be seen stag's heads, cow's heads, bird's nests, wigs, baskets of flowers, &c., which have to be moved every few weeks to prevent them growing to the bottom.

Caverns.—The Cumberland Cavern will be viewed by the Geologist with great interest. It consists of immense openings, entirely the production of nature. The long gallery extends upwards of 100 yards in length and 18 feet high, which when illuminated with Bengal lights is seen to great advantage. At the end of this gallery, rocks of the most gigantic proportions are thrown in the wildest confusion; one mass, of many tons, is seen resting on a mere point.

The Rutland Cavern, (the old Nestor Mine,) on the Heights of Abraham, is so spacious that 10,000 men might find a place of refuge in it. It is supposed this ancient mine was originally worked by the Romans and the Saxons; indeed, it is quite evident these mighty excavations have all been effected by the agency of man. Zinc ores, cadmiferous calamine, and a beautiful species of green carbonate, are found in the mine.

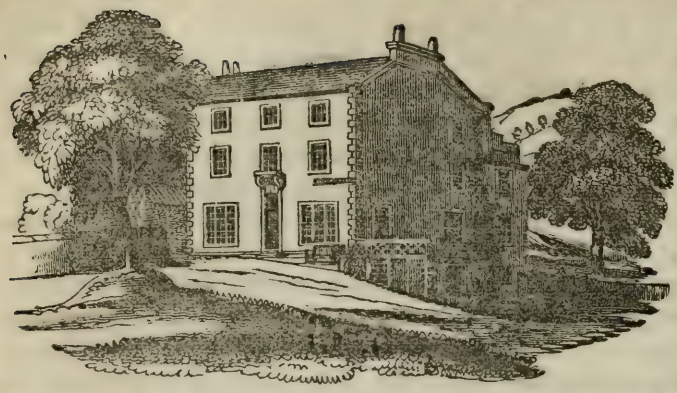
Devonshire Cavern was discovered in 1824. Though not so large as the preceding, it is adorned with a profusion of minerals, and has a spacious opening of 200 feet long and 40 feet wide, with a natural wall almost perpendicular. When illuminated with Bengal lights the effect is magnificent.

The New Speedwell Mine, Upper Wood, near the Romantic rocks, is one of the most interesting mines in the place. The crystals of dog tooth and cubic fluor spars, which line the various cavities that occur in the mine, have a most brilliant and pleasing effect; for a considerable distance one side is covered with stalactites of the most exquisite whiteness. The length of the mine shewn to visitors is 431 feet.

The Tor Cave, or the London Company's Lead Works, is about half-way between the Bath and the High Tor. The sides are beautifully veined with calcareous spar, and in other places it is covered with cubic fluor spar and lead ore. The visitors have also an opportunity of seeing the lead miners at work.

The Side Mine under the High Tor exhibits some very romantic openings and crystalizations.

The Romantic Rocks are situated under the brow of a hill on a narrow road at the back of the Old Bath Hotel, which leads through the Upper Wood to Bonsall. They consist of detached fragments of rock which have been separated from the parent mass, and in connection with the surrounding foilage, they present a picturesque combination.



After having glanced at the caverns and subterraneous passages, adorned with stalactitious petrefactions and a variety of spars, the products of nature in their rudest state; we will now visit the Museums, where we are presented with the very same productions, but under so different an aspect, that it is with difficulty we can persuade ourselves that these precious gems were once the apparently worthless stones we had seen clinging to the roofs, or protruding from the fissures of the caverns. Of these Museums there are now several at the Bath, the principal of which is Walker's, (late Vallance,) in which the goods made from the various productions of Derbyshire, are open to visitors free of charge; amongst the most beautiful must be named the black marble from the quarries of Ashford and Bakewell, which is formed into most elegant tables, vases, inkstands, &c., beautifully inlaid or engraved. The Fluor Spars, of which the "Blue John" is the most recherche, is also manufactured into an endless variety of ornaments, from the superb vase, to the elegant brooch or locket. To the admirers of these articles we would particularly recommend a visit to Mr. Walker's museum, where the largest and most choice assortment is to be found, and what renders this spar more interesting at the present time is the fact that the beautiful variety denominated locally the Bull-Beef, or Amethystine Fluor Spar is worked out, and there is no probability of any more being procured, consequently choice specimens are becoming rare and valuable. But a visit to any of the museums or repositories will amply repay the visitant.

Holy Trinity Church, occupies a commanding situation, between the Old and New Baths, and was built at a cost of £2,250. It is a handsome gothic structure, in the form of a cross, with a tower. 129 feet high, terminated by a beautiful spire, and was opened for divine service October, 1842. The interior fittings are all of the most substantial character, and have an air of neatness and simplicity in harmony with the general style of the building. The transept, and down each side of the body are neatly pewed, to seat 300 persons, while the centre is fitted up with comfortable benches, as free sittings, for 150. A capacious font, of elegant design, carved out of gritstone, stands near the western entrance. The living is a perpetual curacy, endowed with £1000 in the patronage of trustees, and enjoyed by the Rev. Edward Synge, M.A. The trustess are the Rev. Philip Gell, Rev. H. W. Plumtre, Rev. W. C. Wilson, Rev. Archdeacon Thos. Hill, and Robert Ramsden, Esq. A Parsonage House was erected in 1847, at a cost of £1,600, raised by subscriptions, aided by a grant from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, of £521., and from the Lichfield Church Extension Society of £200. It is a handsome stone residence, on a good elevation at the north end of the Bath, overlooking the river Derwent. National Schools, for boys and girls, were erected in 1855, at a cost of £1,200 raised by subscriptions, aided by a Parliamentary grant of £205, the National society, £50, and the Lichfield Educational Board, £10. It is a handsome Gothic structure, built of stone, and consists of a good school-room, 55 feet long, by 33 feet wide, a committee room, and residence for the master and mistress; it will accommodate 203 children, and the average attendance is 130. Mr. John and Mrs. Cope, master and mistress. There is a library of about 230 volumes in connection with the school, which is free to all the children, but other parties pay an annual subscription of 5s. and 2s. 6d., or 1d. per volume. Glenorchy Chapel, situated at the south entrance of the Bath, with the house adjoining, was originally a private residence, but afterwards converted into a place of worship in connection with the Episcopalians. In 1784, Lady Glenorchy, in passing through the Bath, was detained by an accident, her carriage having broken down, and finding, on enquiry, the great want of a place of worship in this neighbourhood, she became the purchaser, and had it opened in connection with the Independents, and it is said it was her intention to take up her residence here, had not her decease, which took place soon after, prevented her; the property then passed into the hands of Captain Scott, at whose death it came to Thomas Wilson, Esq., late treasurer of Highbury College, who re-pewed it at his own expense. It is now the property of his son, Mr. Joshua Wilson. It is a plain brick edifice, with a large school-room attached, for the Sunday scholars. The Chapel, which will seat about 300 hearers, has recently been thoroughly renovated and painted, and new windows put in, which has greatly improved its general appearance. The Rev. Wm. Tiler, is the pastor. The Hotels and Lodgings Houses are numerous and respectable, and many of them are fitted up in a style of elegance and splendour suitable to the rank and fashion of those who annually visit this "Switzerland in miniature." The number of visitors have greatly increased within the last few years, and it is supposed not less than 400 are frequently entertained at one time. Ivatt and Jordan's, or New Bath Hotel, is situated on a plot of level ground, considerably elevated above the carriage road, with a verdant lawn in front, forming an excellent promenade,, and commanding the finest views of the picturesque scenery for which Matlock bath stands unrivalled. It is a spacious building, replete with every comfort, has recently undergone great alterations, been re-furnished, and other improvements and additions carried out, amongst which may be named the appropriation of the spacious room in the south wing as a coffee room for ladies and gentlemen, in addition to the Family hotel. There is also a large tepid swimming bath on the premises. The Gardens, which are tastefully laid out, and adorned with shrubs and flowers, contain a magnificent Lime tree, which we cannot better describe than in the following lines, which were left on a table in one of the rooms of the hotel, by a visitor:—

Would you ask me the charms of the New Bath Hotel;
There's a Linden tree grows in the garden so well,
That its branches o'ershadow a full rood of ground,
As you may prove clearly, if you'll only go round;
And its limbs are supported by forty-nine stakes,
Like the Banyan that grows by Hindoostan's lakes.

And the fountain moreover—aye, honour the Fountain,
That clear as the crystal bursts forth from the mountain;
All sparkling, and gushing, and limpid it flows,
And the Bath receives it as onward it goes.
'Tis a chosen retreat sure, the New Bath Inn,
There's beauty without, and there's comfort within.

Walker's Boarding House, and Family Hotel, established 1798, is pleasantly situated on a gentle slope at the northern extremity of the Terrace walk, midway between the Old and the New Bath Hotels, near the Church, and from its position, commands most beautiful views in every direction, equal to any other house in the neighbourhood. It has been recently enlarged and re-furnished in a very superior manner, and affords every accommodation and comfort, with the most ready and obliging attention to visitors.

The Old Bath Royal Hotel, occupied by Mr. Greaves, is a commodious structure, fitted up in a superior style, and pleasantly situate at the west end of the immense bed of tufa. Its fine terrace commands a view of unequalled beauty and grandeur; hence it is often sketched as combining the romantic and beautiful features of the dale in one glance.

Hodgkinson's Hotel, Museum Parade, originally formed part of the Great Hotel. It has the advantage of one of the best cellars in the kingdom, being perfectly cool during the hottest season, and generally of one uniform temperature. The interior arrangements are good, and the accommodations comfortable, at a moderate charge. Mrs. Rebecca Allen, proprietoress.

Devonshire Hotel, Bath Parade, is a convenient and well arranged establishment, where visitors will find every comfort, combined with cleanliness and the most reasonable charges, and the wines and spirits will be found to be of the very best description. Mr. Geo. Ellis, proprietor.

Rutland Arms Inn and Family Hotel, in the occupation of Mr. Abraham Hendry, is situated at the south end of the Bath, with excellent tea gardens attached, and where visitors will have the advantage of some of the best fishing in the district.

Temple Hotel and Lodging House, under the management of Mrs. Evans, is beautifully situated on an elevation that, with a few exceptions, overlooks every other dwelling, consequently it commands some extensive views of the picturesque line of rocks, with the placid Derwent flowing at their base.

Matlock Literary Institute, Reading and News Room, Museum Parade, is open daily, from 9 to 6 o'clock; it is well supplied with the usual periodicals, and the London and Provincial newspapers, and has a small library of about 200 volumes. There are 40 members, who pay an annual subscription of 8s. Mr. Wm. R. Lomas, Hon. Sec.

Gas Works, at the north end of the Bath, were erected in 1854, at a cost of £2,000, by a company of £5 shareholders, since which, the capital has been increased by the addition of new shares to the amount of £1,000. The works consist of a gasometer capable of holding 10,000 cubic feet of gas. There are five retorts. The average annual consumption is about 1,000,000 cubic feet, which is distributed at 7s. 6d. per 1,000 feet.

The Matlock branch of the Midland Railway runs within a short distance of the Bath, where there is a Station, from whence there are trains between Ambergate and Rowsley five times each way daily, except Sundays, when there is but one each way. An omnibus and cabs attend the arrival and departure of every train. Mr. Robt. Skirrow, station master.

Matlock Bank contains many scattered houses, forming the north extremity of the parish. Coums and Bough Wood, the south-east extremity. The Green forms a part of the village. Here is Matlock Green Academy, which stands in a healthy situation, and is noted for its liberal treatment, the discipline being mild, but firm, and the intellectual, physical, and moral improvement of the pupils gives general satisfaction. It is conducted by Mr. Wm. C. Clark. Lumsdale, 1½ miles east from Matlock. Here are three bleach works and a cotton spinning factory, all of which are in Tansley.

Riber, a hamlet situated on elevated ground 1 mile S.E. from Matlock, consists of a few scattered houses, it was for many generations the property and residence of the Woolley family. On Riber Hill was formerly some large masses of grit stone, supposed by some to have been the remains of a Druidical altar. It consisted of four rude masses of stone, one of which, computed to weigh several tons, was placed on the others, whereon formerly stood a stone pillar. These were destroyed a few years ago, for fencing, by a reckless individual, though abundance of stone lies scattered in all directions. A stone chair was preserved from the wreck by Mr. Gerge Wall, which is now placed in his farm yard. An ancient house, the residence of Mrs. Cotterill, erected in 1663, by the Walker family, contains some antique specimens of carved work. A bedstead of exquisite workmanship is greatly admired. The Hall, an ancient mansion in a commanding situation, formerly the seat of the Woolleys, is now divided into two farm houses. Anthony Woolley, the last of the Riber branch, died a bachelor in 1668. His sisters and co-heirs sold the Riber Hall estate to Thomas Statham, from whom it passed, in like manner, to the Rev. John Chappell. In 1724, it was divided between the co-heirs of Chappell. One moiety passed by sale to Wall, to whose family it still belongs. The other moiety has passed through several hands, by sale, to its present possessor, Mr. George Allen. Another branch of the Woolley family resided at Allen Hill, ½ mile N.E. from Matlock. Mr. Adam Woolley, of this branch, who died in 1657, lived 67 years in marriage with his wife, Grace, who survived him 12 years, she died in 1669. By the tradition of the family, he died in his 100th year, and she at the age of 110. Adam Woolley, Esq., a celebrated antiquary, who wrote a MS. history of Derbyshire, about the year 1712, was of this branch. He bequeathed his manuscript to the British Museum. A large house, his residence, is now the seat of Charles Clarke, Esq. Starkholmes is a district of scattered houses, west of Riber.

Willersley Castle, 2 miles S. from Matlock, the elegant seat of Peter Arkwright, Esq., is a very handsome Gothic structure, built of white freestone. It stands on a bold eminence with verdant lawns sloping to the margin of the Derwent, which here takes a fine sweep to the east, and adds greatly to the picturesque features of the scene. Immediately opposite the castle rises an immense range of perpendicular rocks, whose grey crags jut over the sylyan walk which goes from Cromford to the chapel. The summit of these rocks are fringed with trees and underwood; and the view from the lawn is one of great diversity, and beautifully romantic. The grounds at the back of the castle rise to a considerable height, and are richly clothed with wood. The delightful walks that have been cut in the woods which overhang the Derwent command views of unparalleled beauty and picturesque grandeur. The Baths, the High Tor, and the heights of Abraham are seen, with the gentle Derwent gliding at an immeasurable depth almost immediately under the feet of the spectator, sparkling through the thickly interwoven foliage, and giving a charm of indescribable beauty to the fairy scene. The gardens and tasteful pleasure grounds are open to visitors two days every week, viz., Monday and Thursday. In the gardens is an immense gooseberry tree, trained to a wall, with branches 30 feet in length. The various branches of this remarkable tree measure 365 feet. The interior of the mansion is furnished with taste and elegance, and contains some admirable paintings by Wright of Derby, among which is a fine portrait of Sir Richard Arkwright, and a view of Ulswater lake, purchased by Mr. Arkwright for 300 guineas. This is considered equal to any effort of landscape painting that this country has ever produced. Sir Richard Arkwright purchased this estate, in 1782, of Thomas Hallet Hodges, Esq. In 1788, he erected a handsome mansion, which was reduced to a shell by an accidental fire in 1791, before it had been inhabited. On leaving the grounds the company are passed through a door, descending by Hag Tor and Wild Cat Tor, to the Lover's Walk, one of the most attractive portions of the Dale; but those would enjoy the richness of its scenery, in all its fullness must proceed to the Ferry, where the boats kept by Mr. Walker, have for a length of time been a source of great pleasure and amusement to the visitors of Matlock Bath; take one of these boats, row upwards, to beyond the Museum Gardens, then rest on your oars—abandon yourself to the current of the stream, and enjoy the scenery of the river as you glide along. From the Ferry the view is one of more than ordinary magnificence; the trees on the margin of the river are here vividly reflected—a mimic forest in the bosom of the stream; the foliage is peculiarly rich; the rocks rise boldly over the tops of the trees. Hag Tor and Wild Cat Tor, with their crested summits come broadly on the eye, and the jutting crags, every where adorned with pendant branches give variety to the scene, and blend the picturesque with the sylvan character of the banks of the Derwent. Within the last few years an excellent gravel walk has been formed on the top of the rocks, from different points of which, some of the most splendid scenery (even in this beautiful locality) is seen. The public are greatly indebted to Peter Arkwright, Esq., for the liberality and judgment evinced by him, in causing to be removed any trees or other obstructions which tended to mar the effect of the enchanting scenery of this highly favoured locality, and also to Mr. Walker, for the good condition in which the grounds are kept, and the general accommodation to visitors of the walks or river.

CHARITIES.—George Spateman, in 1647, left £80 to the use of a school in Matlock, and £20 for the benefit of the poor of the parish. These two legacies were laid out in the purchase of a house and lands in the parish of Matlock, in 1750. This property was exchanged, in 1812, for a messuage and lands at Matlock.

Anthony Woolley, in 1668, gave £5 per annum towards the maintenance of the free school at Matlock, and directed that a piece of land should be set apart by his executors for that purpose. Whereupon two pieces of copyhold land were conveyed on trust to Mr. John Woolley and Mr. John Sowter. The rents of the land derived from these two gifts amount to £36 per annum, of which £30 is paid to the schoolmaster, £2 is used as a fund for incidental expenses, and £4 is distributed to the poor. The school is open to the sons of all the inhabitants of Matlock, 40 of whom are appointed by the trustees, and taught free, except a small charge for providing books and fire.

Thomas Johns, in 1667, gave £2 per annum, and four Bibles of the value of £1, to be paid out of the rents of the lands called Janckin Flat, Causeway-lane Meadow, and Dick Lands, situate in Matlock.

Daniel Clark, in 1726, gave 10s. yearly for ever, to be paid out of his estate in this parish.

Joshua Bradley, in 1738, left a rent charge of 10s. a year out of land lying in Matlock Bank.

Thomas Garratt, Esq., of Middlesex, in 1791, left £100 to be invested in the Government funds, the dividends thereof to be given to 20 poor housekeepers not receiving parish relief. This bequest is now standing in the names of the Rev. Philip Gell, Mr. Adam Woolley, and Mr. John Nuttall—£100 3½ per cents., the dividends of which, together with the above mentioned sums, the whole amounting to £11 16s. per annum, are distributed to the poor on Candlemas-day, in sums usually varying from 1s. to 2s. 6d.

The sum of £5 10s. per annum received from the bequest of the Rev. Francis Gisborne, is expended in warm clothing, and given to the poor. (See Bradley).

PARWICH, a village and parish situated at the foot of a hill, 6½ miles N.N.E. from Ashbourn, contains 3081A. 1R. of land, principally on limestone, and in 1851 had 107 houses and 493 inhabitants, of whom 247 were males and 246 females; rateable value £3536 19s. Thos. Wm. Evans, Esq., is lord of the manor and principal owner; but J. G. Johnson, Esq., Misses Brownson, Francis Roe, Esq., Andrew Brittlebank, Esq., Mr. G. Dakeyne, and Mr. James Swindell, have estates here. This manor, Pevrewie, at Domesday survey, was parcel of the ancient demesne of the crown, and passed with Ashbourn to the Earls of Derby and to Edmund, Earl of Lancaster. The paramount manor belonging to the Duchy of Lancaster, having been granted by King Charles I. to Dichfield and others, was sold to Thomas Levinge, Esq., whose ancestor Sir Richard Levinge, Bart., sold it in 1814 to the late William Evans, Esq., but suit and service is still paid to the duchy courts of Wirksworth, at which constables, &c., are sworn into their offices. The Church, dedicated to St. Peter, is a small ancient structure, with low tower, overgrown with ivy, and in the churchyard are some venerable yew trees. The living is a perpetual curacy, certified at £14, now £140, has been augmented with £400 benefactions, £400 Queen Anne's bounty, and £600 parliamentary grant. Thos. Wm. Evans, Esq., is patron and impropriator, and the Rev. Wm. Fisher, B.A., incumbent. Tithes were commuted in 1844, the large tithe for £135, and small for £10. It was formerly a chapelry to Ashbourn. In 1827, two school rooms were erected by the late Mr. Evans; they are conducted on Dr. Bell's system, towards the support of which Thos. Wm. Evans, Esq., contributes £40 annually. There is also £8 from Beresford's charity, for which 8 children are taught free. Feast, nearest Sunday to St. Peter. There is an Odd Fellows' Lodge and a Friendly Society in the village. At Lombard's Green, about half a mile N. of the village are the supposed remains of a Roman encampment. About 80 years ago, a labourer who was searching for lead ore, found at the depth of two feet and a half, a military weapon, a considerable number of Roman coins, (denarii) and an urn of great thickness.

PARWICH LEES, a large farm with commodious residence, 1 mile west from the village, is the property of G. G. Brittlebank, Esq., of Ashbourn, and the residence of Mr. Thomas Millward. Sitterlow, 1 mile S.E., with several other scattered farms named in the directory. Huge masses of rock are scattered on the various farms, and particularly on the lofty hills above the village. The village is sheltered by these lofty ridges from the piercing winds which often sweep over these mountainous districts.

CHARITIES.—By indentures, dated 1695, William Beresford settled on trust for good and charitable purposes, the lands called the Copleys, Pingle, Nether Bletch, Long Rakes, and 12 beast gates in a pasture called the Hakeslow; and directed the rents to be disposed of for the performing of Divine service in the Church of Parwich, the education of 8 children taken out of the poorest families, and the residue to be distributed amongst the poor of the town at Christmas. There is also belonging to this charity a sum of £405 7s. 7d. consolidated 3 per cents., which appears to have arisen from arrears of rent to the charity lands. The last appointment of trustees was as follows:—Anthony Beresford, Nathaniel B. Twigge, John Goodwin Johnson, James Swindell, George Dakeyne, and John Swindell. The rents of this charity amount to upwards of £55 per annum, besides a dividend of £12 3s. 2d. from the consolidated fund. The sum of £27 6s. is paid to the perpetual curate of Parwich; £8 is paid to a schoolmaster; and the residue is distributed to the poor, in sums varying from 3s. to 8s. each.

Thurstan Dale, in 1653 left 10s. a-year to be annually given to the most deserving poor of the parish.

Robert Dale, in 1744, gave 1 beast gate on Hakeslow to the poor, in consideration of which the trustees of Beresford's charity distribute 11s. per annum.

George Dakeyne, in 1757 gave 20s. yearly out of land called Dakeyne's Betch, the possessor of which distributes 20s. per annum amongst the most necessitous of the parish.

Thomas Allsop, in 1728 left £40 to be invested in land, for the benefit of the minister of Parwich. This sum was not invested till 1778, when John Allsop, in lieu of the £40, and in consideration of £100, paid to him by John Jackson, granted 3 acres of land called the Sitterlow, and a close called the Wings, now let for £9 10s. per annum, of which £4 10s. is paid to the perpetual curate of Parwich, and the remainder is given to the poor.

Margaret Bincliff, in 1788 left £100, and directed the interest to be given to the poor.

Thomas Roe, in 1794 left £100 to be laid out in the purchase of land for the use of the poor. The two last legacies, by being made payable out of the real estate, are void; however, two annual sums of £5 each, as interest of the two last legacies, are paid by Mr. Robert Johnson, of Bakewell, as owner of one moiety of the estate, by right of his wife.

Francis Johnson, in 1800, left £150 for the benefit of the poor, the interest of which is distributed by the trustees of Beresford's charity.

THORPE, a township, parish, and picturesque village, pleasantly situated on the banks of the river Dove, 3¼ miles N.N. by W. from Ashbourn, and 10 miles S.W. from Wirksworth, contains 1710A. 1R. 20P. of mostly a rich pasture land, and in 1851 had 40 houses, and 188 inhabitants, of whom 93 were males, and 95 females; rateable value, £2362 19s. 3d. The principal owner and lord of the manor is T. R. Adderley, Esq., but Henry Thornton, Esq., Thos. Gould, Esq., Mrs. J. S. Robinson, Lord Denman, John C. B. Borough, Esq., and Mr. Richard Finney, are also owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Leonard, situated on the brow of a hill, surrounded with trees, is an ancient Norman structure, with a square tower containing three bells. It is supposed to have been built in the 9th or 10th century. In 1841, it was repaired, repewed, and a gallery erected for the children. The living is a rectory, valued in the King's book at £6 1s. 6d., now £144, in the patronage of the Bishop of Lichfield, and incumbency of of the Rev. Chas. Miller, M.A., who resides at the Rectory, a neat mansion, on a bold elevation near the church, it was rebuilt in 1842. The tithes were commuted in 1845, for £95. There are 16 acres of glebe, and 6 cowgates or pastures, and 6 sheepgates on Thorpe Cloud. Here is a mixed school, which is attended by about 30 children. This manor, Torp, at the Norman survey, was a royal possession, and it appears afterwards to have belonged to the Ferrers family, for they granted five parts of the tithe to the priory of Tutbury. Ralph de Hormanwell was seized of it in 1245; afterwards, the Wythin and the Cokayne families had it; the latter sold it in the reign of Elizabeth, to John Milward, Esq., from whom it descended to Ralph Adderley, Esq.

Hanson Grange, a substantial farm house, pleasantly situated 3 miles N. from the village, and 5 miles N. from Ashbourn, is the property and residence of Mr. Thos. Gould. Broadlow Ash, an estate and manor a little W. of the Church, was, at Domesday survey, a royal demense. It was afterwards held by the Cokaynes and Beresfords. In 1608, it was granted to the Earl of Salisbury, who, in 1613, sold it to Dame Judith Corbet, by whose bequest it passed to her grandson, Sir William Boothby, who was created a Baronet in 1660, and who had here a large park and good mansion, which was for several generations their chief residence. The ancient mansion was taken down in 1795. Mr. Richard Finney is now the owner and occupier of an ancient farm house bearing that name.

The river Dove from this parish is crossed by three stone bridges, which here forms one of the most romantic dales in the kingdom. The Manyfold, from Staffordshire has its confluence with the Dove at this point, a deep and narrow part, which extends between the lofty hills of Bunster and Thorpe Cloud. For the convenience of tourists who come to view the wonders of nature, Mr. Wm. Waterfall, about twenty five years ago established the Izack Walton Hotel, at the junction of the vales of Manyfold and Dove, and near the hills of Bunster and Thorpe Cloud. It is a commodious inn, on elevated ground, and has its name from the celebrated angler, Izack Walton, who frequently visited his friend Cotton, the poet, at Beresford Hall, where the ruins of their fishing residence may still be seen. The tourist, approaching Thorpe from the south, will mark an extraordinary and almost instantaneous change in the aspect of the country; leaving behind him the "brown heath and the richly cultivated meadows," he enters upon new and very different scenes. From the rising grounds, which have grown, as it were, insensibly beneath him, starts in bold abruptness, Thorpe Cloud, a detached coney shaped hill of steep ascent, its altitude being 300 feet above the bed of the river Dove, which flows at its base, round which winds the most frequented road to that secluded and wildly beautiful glen DOVEDALE, undoubtedly one of the finest in the peak. Romantic beauty amidst unbroken wildness, is the great charm of this far famed dale. Its detached perpendicular rocks stamp it with an image entirely its own, and possesses an union of grandeur and beauty not to be equalled, and which can scarcely be overdrawn. The gifted and imaginative Wm. Howitt, in describing it says, "Its rocks do not, perhaps, equal in altitude and individual magnitude some of those at Matlock, but the scenes of Matlock wear a monotony or at least a strong resemblance to each other, which soon deprives them of much of their effect by familiarizing the eye, after seeing a part, to the character of the whole. But here, besides the singular character of the scenery, its novelty is perpetuated to the very last. You are at once transported into a land of enchantment; every object that surrounds you, though you have but just left the other most striking parts of the peak, is strange and wild, and wonderously unlike all other features of creation. * * * If the man who enters it possesses the least latent admiration of nature,—if he have a soul capable of being moved in any degree by an assemblage of the most wild, awful, and sublime images, he will not see it without emotion. But to warm the heart and the vivid imagination—it is a world in itself." The first part of Dovedale is an open dell, nearly half a mile in length; the hills on both sides are steep, but not precipitous; on the left is Bunster Hill, a fine eminence, and on the right, which is more diversified, dwarf ash, and aged thorn trees cover the slopes down to the very margin of the stream. Proceeding onwards, the forms become more romantic, the foliage thickens, and the fanciful and grotesque appearance of the rocks assume a greater degree of grandeur, till they seem nearly to meet overhead and shut up the glen. In some places they shoot up in detached masses like spires or conical pyramids, and are ornamented with festoons or net work of ivy; in others, their scattered and fantastic forms hang over the river in terriffic masses, upheld by fragments apparently unequal to the tremendous weight they sustain. "A little farther on," says Rhodes, "a mighty pillar of insulated rock, which has its base in the stream, rises from the left bank of the river; a bold mass of rock, whose conical summit penetrates the clouds, occupies the right; between those huge portals flows the river Dove. Through this contracted space some flat meadows, clothed with verdure, appear, and still farther in the distance, bold swelling hills close in the prospect. The effect of this scene is truly magical; it is an interesting transition from one description of landscape to another that excites surprise by its suddenness and charms with its beauty. Through this magnificent portal we pass into the lovely meadows beyond, where we stood awhile to gaze upon the gloomy ravine we had just left. We then sat down amongst a grove of hazels in a sweet little vale, as dissimilar in character to the scenery of Dovedale, as if they had been hundreds of miles apart. The river flowed gently and beautifully before us; the cattle were grazing in the meadows, apparently unconscious of the presence of any human being; the red-breast poured his requiem from amongst the bushes that were scattered over the rising ground where we sat; and the rush of the waters through the narrow part of the dale came softly upon the ear, which was soothed with its murmurs. The scene was delightfully tranquil; and the mind, that only a few minutes before had been excited to emotions of sublimity and terror, sunk into a state of pleasing repose and luxurious langour. Dovedale was one of the favourite resorts of the enthusiastic and sensitive Rousseau during his residence in its immediate vicinity, and he is said to have planted many rare and curious seeds in this sequestered spot." The length of the dale is rather more than two miles, but the views are limited, from the irregularity of its course and its projecting precipices, which, in some places, seem to preclude all further access. While passing along the first and least picturesque division of the dale, the river, which is said to be "one of the most beautiful streams that ever gave charm to a landscape," soothes the ear with its murmurings, and delights the eye with the brilliancy of its waters. In some places, "it flows smoothly and solemnly along but never slowly; in others, its motion is rapid, impetous, and even turbulent. The ash the hazel, the slender osier, and the graceful birch, hung with honey-suckles and wild roses, dip their pensile branches in the stream, and break its surface into beauteous ripples. Huge fragments of stone toppled from the rocks above, and partly covered with moss and plants that haunt and love the water, divide the stream into many currents; round these it bubbles in limpid rills that circle into innumerable eddies, which, by their activity, give life and motion to a numerous variety of acquatic plants and flowers that grow in the bed of the river; these wave their slender stems under the surface of the water, which, flowing over them, like the transparent varnish of a picture, brings forth the most vivid colouring. Occasionally large stones are thrown accross the stream and interrupt its progress; over and amongst these it rushes rapidly into the pool below, forming in its frequent falls a series of fairy cascades, about which it foams and sparkles with a beauty and brilliancy peculiar to this lively and romantic river. On a slope, near the summit of one of the largest and most elevated rocks, is a large detached piece of stone, of oblong-square form, apparently suspended by so frail a thread, that a blast of wind might precipitate it into the bed of the river, or over the head of the spectator below. This rock has been frequently described, and its parasite portion has received the fanciful designation of the "watch box." A little further on, are two stupendous cliffs, that rise abruptly on each side the river. The chasm here is so very narrow that it is not inappropriately styled, "Dovedale Straits," and the river, when swollen by heavy rains, renders the passage through it almost impracticable, when, as if impatient at being restrained within the limits of this contracted chasm, rushes with great impetuosity to a more open part of the dale, when its turbulence subsides, and it becomes again a placid but a rapid stream. A grand solitary pointed rock on the Staffordshire side, by way of eminence, is known by the name of "Dovedale Church." Its appearance is peculiarly pleasing and sublime, and cannot fail to strike the eye of every one who passes by it. A little further are several curious caverns, and a magnificent Gothic arch of the most gigantic proportions. On passing through this arch by a very steep ascent, over loose sand and shale, it brings you to "Reynard's Hall," a large cavern about thirty feet in height, and fifteen in breadth. For the space of about 40 feet this cave may be explored, but beyond it contracts to a narrow opening, supposed by some persons to communicate with other caverns, and to terminate near Parwich. It is supposed that it was, in attempting to scale an acclivity near "Reynard's Hall," that Dean Langton met with the accident that occasioned his death. In July, 1761, some friends were proceeding along the bottom of the dale on horseback, when the Rev. Mr. Langton, (then Dean of Clogher), proposed to ascend a very steep precipice, which is apparently between three and four hundred feet high; a Miss la Roache, a young lady of the party, with great spirit, begged that she might get up behind him, and accompany him in his bold adventure. Her request was immediately complied with, and the head of the horse directed up the precipice. When they had climbed the steep ascent to a considerable height, the feet of the horse slipped, and they all tumbled down—the clergyman and horse to the bottom of the dale, but the lady, not quite so far, being stopped in her descent by a thorn bush which caught hold of her hair. When the Dean was taken up he was found to be bruised in a most terrible manner; however, he was conveyed to Ashbourn, where he languished a few days and then expired. The young lady was found in an insensible state, and after disentangling her from the perilous situation, she was taken to Ashbourn by her friends, and soon afterwards recovered. The horse was more fortunate than either of its riders; though it rolled to the bottom of the precipice it only received a few bruises on its sides, occasioned by the stirrups of the saddle. It is supposed that not less than 60,000 people visit this lovely dale every year. In August, 1856, the Wesleyans of Ashbourn, held a Bazaar in Dovedale, for the purpose of raising funds to liquidate the debt upon their chapel at Ashbourn, which proved eminently successful, having been visited by a larger number of persons than had ever entered the dale on one day for some time past.

Charities.—The Rev. James Winder, in 1766, gave to the poor £25, and an unknown donor left £7. These two sums were lent on private security till 1819, when they were deposited in the Ashbourn Savings' bank, in the names of the churchwardens and overseers. The interest is received in January, and distributed by the minister amongst the most necessitous of the parish

TISSINGTON, a township, parish, and picturesque village, 4 miles N. from Ashbourn, contains 2,258A. 0R. 38P. of fertile land, and in 1851 had 76 houses, and 344 inhabitants, of whom 169 were males, and 175 females; rateable value £3,820. Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart., is lord of the manor and principal owner; J. G. Johnson, Esq., Thomas Phillips, Esq., Mr. Wm. Fletcher, and Mr. John Swindell, are also owners. The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient Norman structure, pleasantly situated on the brow of a gentle eminence, nearly opposite the hall. It consists of a nave and small chancel, without supporting pillars or side aisles, and a square tower at the west end with three bells. In 1853, the church was re-pewed with open oak seats, and a north aisle added, at the sole expense of Miss Fitz-Herbert. It contains several highly wrought monuments to the Fitz-Herbert Family, conspicuous among which is an extremely lofty one reaching to the roof, it is divided into two compartments, in the lower of which are three figures kneeling, in the attitude of prayer, over a tablet bearing the following inscription, "Francis Fitz-Herbert, Esq., departed this life the 4th of January, Ætatis Suae 80, Anno Domini 1619." In the upper compartment are two figures, kneeling over a similar tablet to Sir John Fitz-Herbert, Bart., who died August 2nd, aged 43. The living is a perpetual curacy, which was appropriated to Dunstaple priory, of the certified value of £97; has been augmented with £200 Queen Anne's bounty. Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert, Bart., is patron and impropriator. Rev. Alleyne Fitz-Herbert, M.A., incumbent. The tithes were commuted in 1846, for £229, viz., the hay tithe £134, and the corn tithe £95. Here is an endowed school, it was rebuilt in 1837, by Miss Fitz-Herbert, sister to the present baronet. At Domesday survey, the manor, Tizinctum, belonged to Henry de Ferrers. In the reign of Henry I, it was given by one of the Ferrers to the Savage family. The co-heiresses of Savage married Meynell and Edensor, whose heiress married Audley. The manor was in moieties. Meynell's moiety passed by marriage to the Fitz-Herberts. The other moiety came to the Herthulls, and passed by marriage to the Cokaines. It was sold by the latter to Francis Fitz-Herbert, Esq., about the end of Queen Elizabeth's reign. William Fitz-Herbert, Esq., of Tissington, barrister-at-law, author of a tract called Maxims," and a dialogue on the Revenue Laws, was created a baronet in 1783. Tissington Hall, is a large handsome Elizabethan mansion in the centre of the village, the entrance gate to which opens to a very fine avenue, more than half-a-mile in length. It was garrisoned for the king, by its owner Col. Fitz-Herbert, in the month of December, 1643. On the event of the unsuccessful action near Ashbourn, in the month of February following, it was evacuated. The Rev. Richard Greaves, author of the "Spiritual Quixote," and other works, resided three years in the Fitz-Herbert family, and laid some of the scenes of that amusing romance in this neighbourhood.

This village is noted for its five springs of the purest water, each of them paved round and walled in various forms, each having its particular name, from the most contiguous residence. The ancient custom termed "Floralia," or the "Well Dressing," takes place on Holy Thursday, when these fountains are decorated with the choicest flowers, so arranged amongst the foilage as to form various sentences, mostly from the scriptures; each Well being under the care of its respective guardian, assisted by those who most generally partake of its pelucid and necessary fluid; the whole so admirably executed, that it is difficult to give to any that praise of superiority which all are desirous to receive. There is a service at the church, where a sermon is preached, after which the springs are visited by the minister, choristers, and people, in procession, where the psalms, the epistle and gospel are read, and a hymn is sung. The remainder of the day is spent in rural festivity. At Wood Eaves, near the Bentley Brook, is a cotton mill, worked by a steam engine of 16 horses power.

CHARITIES.—Catherine Port, of Ilam, by will, in 1722, left a rent charge of £5 per annum, for the instruction of 8 poor children, within the parish of Tissington.

Frances Fitz-Herbert, by indenture, in 1738, gave a rent charge of £25 per annum, out of lands called the Shaws, and the Town Meadow, £6 to be appropriated to putting out an apprentice, £8 a year for teaching poor children, £5 a year to a surgeon, and the surplus is laid out in warm clothing, and given to the poor. This charity is very usefully administered for the benefit of the poor, although not in a very accurate conformity with the directions of the deed of 1735. A yearly sum of £2 was paid to the poor for a considerable time, out of a field called the Piper's Pingle, now in the possession of Sir Henry Fitz-Herbert. This payment has been discontinued for upwards of 30 years, on the ground that there was no document to show that the field was subject to the charge. We have not been able to meet with any evidence in support of the claim of the poor, except the long continued payment and distribution thereof.

William Ensor, in 1777, left £300 on trust, to be applied in apprenticing poor children of Tissington, and Alstonfield in Staffordshire, in equal moieties. It appears these payments ceased in 1803, when the devisee is stated to have died without leaving sufficient personal property to discharge his debts, and that the gift had for some time been paid out of the rents of the real estate, but that the sons of the devisee has been advised that the real property could not be charged with the payment of this legacy, and therefore discontinued it. We apprehend it was not a valid charge on the real property of the testator.

WIRKSWORTH, an extensive parish, which contains 11 townships, viz., the Market town and township of Wirksworth, the townships of Callow, Cromford, (also a market town) Hopton, Ible, and Middleton by Wirksworth, in the Hundred of Wirksworth, the township of Alderwasley, Ashley Hay, Biggin, Idridge Hay, and Alton in the Appletree hundred, with the township of Ironbrook grange, in the hundred of High Peak. The entire parish contains 13,571A. 0R. 27½P. of land, of which 7,097A. 1R. 1½P. are in Wirksworth hundred, 6,057A. 0R. 34P. in Appletree hundred, and 416A. 2R. 32P. in the High Peak hundred, and in 1851, had 1,773 houses, and 7,480 inhabitants, of whom 3,677 were males and 3,803 females; rateable value £22,051. 14s. 7d. The Cromford canal, and the Cromford and High Peak railway commence in this parish; the former about 1½ mile N. of the town, near where, it crosses the river Derwent, by means of an aqueduct, the span of whose arch is eighty feet, and the latter is about half-a-mile N., through which it communicates with the Midland railway.

WIRKSWORTH, a township and ancient market town, situated in a pleasant valley, much frequented by antiquarians and visitors during the summer months, for its beautiful scenery: it contains many good modern mansions, and is distant 13 miles N.N.W. from Derby, 10 miles W. by S. from Alfreton, 6 miles N.W. by N. from Belper, 2¼ miles S. by W. from Cromford station, and 140 miles N.W. from London, by road; contains 2959A. 3R. 32P. of land, of which 50A. are roads and waste, and 49A. 2R. 27P. houses and gardens, and in 1851 had 1,019 houses, and 3,923 inhabitants, of whom 1;911 were males and 2,012 females; rateable value £8,977. 18s. 5d. Peter Arkwright, Esq., is lord of the manor, and the principal land owners are F. G. Goodwin, Esq., George Greaves, Esq., Peter Arkwright, Esq., James Toplis, Esq., Rev. John Toplis, Phillip A. Hurt, Esq., Wm. Leacroft, Esq. Mr. Jno. Smith, Mr. Wm. Hunt, Mr. W. Williamson, Mr. Fras. Page, and Mr. Joseph Wheatcroft, with several smaller freeholders. The principal employment of the inhabitants arises from the lead mines, but a considerable number are employed at the three factories for the manufacture of small-wares, &c. Malting is also carried on to a small extent, about 2,500 quarters being made annually. A market on Wednesday, and an annual fair for three days, were granted by Edward I., in 1305, to Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, The Market is now held on Tuesday, and Fairs for horned cattle on Shrove Tuesday, Easter Tuesday May 12th, September 8th, and third Tuesday in November. The Feast is on the first Sunday after September 8th. There were formerly some mineral springs within the parish, but they have been destroyed by the draining of the mines. Many Roman antiquities have been found at various times in the immediate neighbourhood; and in 1822, Jacob Buckley found the bones of a Rhinoceros in the Dream lead mine, about ten fathoms below the surface; they are now in the Museum at Oxford.

The Petty Sessions for the Wapentake are held every fortnight, at the Red Lion Inn, by the county magistrates

Special Sessions are also held here on the first Wednesday in every month, for hearing appeals, transferring and granting licenses, for the return of jury lists, and for the general transaction of highway business. Messrs. G. Hodgkinson, and J. C. Newbold, are clerks to the Justices.

The Lock Up, North End, was erected in 1842; it is a substantial building, with a residence for the superintendent constable, and contains four cells. Henry Tomlinson is the superintendent.

The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a spacious and venerable structure, exhibiting various styles of architecture, the oldest portions being in the Early English, or style of the 13th century. It is built in the Cathedral manner, comprising nave with side aisles, choir with side aisles, chancel, transepts, and tower with six bells, (re-cast in 1702) and is capable of seating 2000 persons, of which number, 250 are free and unappropriated. In 1820-21, the church was repaired and re-pewed at a cost of upwards of £2,000; it was also enlarged by additions to the east of the transepts. In 1826, an organ was procured at a cost of above £400, raised by subscriptions, and placed in the tower of the church, but the situation being found objectionable, it was removed in 1853, to a more convenient one in the nave; at the same time, new stalls were erected for the choir, and also seats on each side for the Sunday school children, the total cost of which was about £150. The organ is endowed with £1000., three per cent consols, for defraying the salary of the organist, Mr. Thos. Reeves. In 1854-5, further improvements were made, A memorial to the late Francis Hurt, Esq., of Alderwasley, having been determined upon by the county at large, the restoration of the chancel, with the addition of the memorial windows, was the result; the old chancel roof was replaced by one of stained oak, the floor laid with encaustic tiles, and a handsome chancel arch erected. A beautiful stained glass window, in the perpendicular style, was placed in the east end, and four other windows; two on each side of the chancel were filled with stained glass, the gift of Francis Hurt, Esq., and his sisters. The east (or memorial) window, contains the armorial bearings of the family, interspersed with which are angels bearing obituary insciptions; the five chief lights below contain as many subjects, and over each of these subjects are lofty canopies, with angels holding sacred symbols; beneath them are pedestals bearing scrolls, inscribed with scripture texts, referring to the several subjects. Along the bottom runs the following dedication:—"Memorial to Francis Edward Hurt, Esq., of Alderwasley, died March 22nd, 1854, aged 73, by public subscription, 1855." About the same time, a new reading desk and pulpit, also stalls for the chancel were put up by private subscription, including the cost of the chancel arch above referred to. The interior is heated by stoves, and lighted with gas, the latter being introduced in 1851, and the tower has a good clock, put up in 1848, at a cost of about £180. It contains some ancient monuments: one to Ralph Gell, Esq., with effigies of the deceased and his two wives, dated 1564; another to Anthony Gell, Esq., founder of the grammar school and almshouses, with his effigy in a gown and ruff, dated 1583. In the chancel is a beautiful altar tomb to Anthony Lowe, Esq., servant to Henry VII., Henry VIII., Edward VI., and Mary I., was buried December, 1555, has representatives of the deceased in armour. Other monuments to the Lowe, Gell, Blackwall, and Wigley families, are worthy of inspection. In the churchyard is a headstone to the memory of Matthew Peat, of Alderwasley, who died December 11th, 1751, aged 109 years and 10 months. In the north aisle of the nave, and fixed in the wall, is a specimen of rude and ancient sculpture in bas-relief. representing various events in the life of our Saviour, as related in the gospels, the material is sandstone, and the dimensions are 5 feet in length, by 2ft. 10in. in width. This relic of primeval piety was found during the repairs in 1820, on removing the pavement in front of the altar railing, it was laid with the sculpture downwards, about two feet from the surface, over a stone built vault or grave, which contained a perfect human skeleton of large size; it must not be understood to have formed the cover of this vault, as it had another suitable covering quite unconnected with the sculpture; there is every probability that it has formed an altar piece in a church erected soon after the conversion of the Saxons to christianity. A description of this sculpture is given in the "Gentleman's Magazine," of November, 1821. The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £42. 7s. 8¼d., now £340. The vicarial tithes (mineral tithe excepted) have been commuted at £91. The vicar is also by custom and endowment entitled to the tithe of lead ore. The Bishop of Lichfield is patron; the Rev. Thos. Tunstall Smith, M.A. vicar, and the Revs. D. R. Norman, B.A., and Chas. Henry Owen, M.A., curates. The Vicarage is a neat residence on the north side of the church-yard, rebuilt near the site of a dilapidated structure, in the year 1831, at a cost of £1,200, and since enlarged by the present vicar. The rectorial property is vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and Geo. Henry Errington, Esq., is the lessee. The Independent Chapel, Coldwell street, built in 1700, was formerly in possession of the Presbyterians, but was re-opened in 1703, by the Independents. The Wesleyans have a chapel in Bailey croft, built in 1810, it is a plain stone building, and will seat about 250 persons. The Baptist Chapel, Coldwell street, was opened in 1816. It is a neat brick building, and will seat about 300 persons. The Rev. Thos. Yates, is the pastor. Wesleyan Reformers Chapel, Warmbrook, was originally in possession of the old body, but was claimed by the Reformers, when they seceded from them; it is a small stone building. The Free Gospellers Chapel, in the Dale, originally an old building, was converted into a chapel about two years ago, at a cost of £100. The Primitive Methodists have a neat stone chapel, in the Dale, erected in 1828, will seat about 300 hearers, besides a smaller one at Gorsey Bank, erected in 1846, at a cost of about £90. A General Cemetery, under the management of a Burial Board, situated at the North End, was formed in 1854, and consecrated in 1856. It occupies about three acres of ground, and has two neat chapels, one for the Church and the other for the Dissenters, with a residence for the sexton. The want of such a place of interment has long been felt, owing to the overcrowded state of the church-yard. The cost was upwards of £1,500., borrowed from Government, to be repaid by 20 instalments in 20 years. The Free Frammar School, on the N.E. side of the church-yard, is a handsome Gothic building, rebuilt in 1828, at a cost of £1664. The present rental of the charity estates is £295, (see Charities) out of which £170 is paid in salaries to the masters. It is managed by six governors or trustees, who meet in the school half-yearly, to elect as many boys as there may be vacancies for and to transact other business The average number of boys attending the school is 50, of these 20 are admitted on the foundation, and the rest are subject to moderate quarterly charges for education. The course of instruction embraces Greek, Latin, English Grammar, Mathematics, Arithmetic, History, Geography, &c. The Rev. Fras. Hy. Brett, M.A., head master. Mr. Marcellus Peal, second master. The National Schools, North End. erected in 1851, at a cost of £1,457. 3s. 4d. which was defrayed by private subscriptions, with grants from the National society, of £80., the Committee of Council on Education, £234., and the Duchy of Lancaster, £30., besides other sources. It is a handsome stone building in the Elizabethan style, with residence for the master and mistress attached; the present number of scholars is 210, viz., 70 boys, 50 girls. and 90 infants. A Parochial Library was established in 1846, and contains about 800 volumes; it is kept at the Grammar school, and books are exchanged every Tuesday. There are four Lodges of Odd-Fellows, and three sick societies in the town, besides a Clothing Club, a Dispensary, and other charitable and religious associations. The Mechanics' Institute, Market place, was established in 1852, for the purpose of supplying its members with the means of acquiring useful knowledge. Members are not admitted under 16 years of age, and every candidate for admission must be recommended by two members. The Reading Room is liberally supplied with periodicals and newspapers, and the Library contains about 500 volumes; the number of members at the present time is 100, besides 15 honorary members. Wm. Cantrell, Esq., is the president, and Mr. J. W. Hall, librarian. A most gratifying festival, in connection with this Institution was held on the 26th June, 1856, in the beautiful grounds of Wm. Cantrell, Esq., at which upwards of 2000 persons were present, who having partaken of tea, liberally provided by the ladies of the town and neighbourhood, were addressed by several influential gentlemen, under the presidency of T. W. Evans, Esq., of Allestree Hall; after which a grand display of fireworks brought the day's proceedings to a close. The Cricket Ground, a short distance S. of the town, is near Miller's Green. The cost of preparing the ground and erecting a wooden house for the convenience of players, was about £200. It is now one of the best grounds in the county. The Cricket Club was established in 1849, and has now nearly 100 members.

The Savings' Bank, in St. John street, is a handsome stone structure, erected in 1842, at a cost of £1200, paid out of the surplus fund. The bank was opened 17 March, 1818, and has been established 38 years, and in November, 1855, the number of depositors were 1507, besides 8 Charitable and 31 Friendly Societies, having deposits amounting to £59,730 17s. 2½d. The bank is open on Tuesday, from 11 to 1 o'clock. Mr. Samuel Frost, actuary.

The Gas Works were erected in 1838, at Warmbrook, by a proprietary of shareholders, who circulate this luminous vapour at 8s. 6d. per 1000 cubic feet; Edward Robinson, manager.

The Inland Revenue Office is at the Red Lion, Market place; Mr. Richard Holmes, Supervisor; also the Ecclesiastical Court, for the conveyance of property, at the same house; Mr. John Marshall, bailiff.

The Copyhold and Freehold Courts, for the inspection of nuisances is held at the Moot Hall, under Peter Arkwright, Esq.; Mr. John Marshall, bailiff.

The New Small Debts Act, or County Court.—This important act, which superseded the Court of Requests, came into operation on the 15th March, 1847.

Wirksworth County County Court is held at the Moot Hall, Beeley Croft, monthly, and the district comprises the following places:—Alderwasley, Alderwasley Forge, Alton, Aldwark, Ashleyhay, Bonsall, Bradbourne, Brassington, Carsington, Callow, Cromford, Darley, Dethick, Elton, Hackney, Hognaston, Holloway, Hopton, Ironbrook Grange, Idle, Idridgehay, Ireton Wood, Kirk Ireten, Lea, Matlock, Matlock Bank, Middleton-by-Wirksworth, Northwood, Snitterton, Sidnope, Stancliff, Tansley, Toadhole, Wensley, Winster, Wirksworth. Judge, Joseph Thomas Cantrell, Esq. Registrar, Philip Hubbersty, Esq.; Office St. John's street. High Bailiff, Williiam Marsh.

The Moot Hall, in Beeley croft, erected in 1814, is a neat stone building, ornamented with the Miners' arms in front, and contains an ancient miners' dish made of brass, given by Henry VIII., A.D., 1513. It contains a little more than 14 pints Winchester dry measure, and has the following inscription upon it: "This dish was made the iiij day of Octobr, the iiij yere of the reigne of Kyng Henry the viij., before George Erle of Shrowesbury, Steward of the Kyng most Honourable household; and allso Steward of all the honour of Tutbery, by the assent and consent as wele of all the Mynours as of all the Brenners within and adioynyng the Lordshyp of Wyrkysworth Percell of the said honour. This Dishe to remain in the Moote Hall at Wyrkysworth, hanging by a Cheyne so as the Mchanntes or Mynours may have resorte to the same att all tymes to make the trw Mesure at the same." The original Moot Hall, built in 1773, by the direction of Thomas Lord Hyde, chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, stood in the Market place. Peter Arkwright, Esq., is lessee, under the crown, for the soke and wapentake of Wirksworth. James C. Newbold, Esq., of Matlock Bath, is the acting steward of the barmote court, under the lessee, and Mr. John Alsop, of Wensley, the head barmaster. A Barmote court and court leet is held here on Lady-day and Michaelmas.day; presided over by the steward, by whom all mineral disputes within the Wapentake are tried. The township of Wirksworth contains two manors besides that of the rectory. The chief paramount manor belonged, in the year 835, to the abbey of Repton, and at Domesday survey it belonged to the crown. King John, in the fifth year of his reign, granted it to William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, having been forfeited by the attainder of Robert Earl of Derby, in 1265. It was granted, together with the Wapentake, by Edward I., to his brother, Edmund Earl of Lancaster. The manor of Holland, otherwise Richmond, was given by Thomas Earl of Lancaster to Sir Robert Holland; it was forfeited by the attainder of Henry Holland, Duke of Exeter, in 1461, King Henry IV. granted it to his sister Ann, Duchess of Exeter; afterwards it belonged to Margaret Countess of Richmond, mother of King Henry VII., on whose death it devolved again to the crown, and was granted, in 1553, to Ralph Gell, Esq., in whose descendents it still remains. This manor extends into the townships of Ashley Hay, Middleton, Carsington, Hognaston, and Kirk-Ireton. A court baron is held at Wirksworth. About half a mile north from Wirksworth are several extensive quarries of very superior limestone and marble, of which large quantities are conveyed by the High Peak railway to the Cromford canal, and thence to various parts of the kingdom. Considerable quantities of lime are burned about a quarter of a mile north of the town; and together with the lead mines, form the chief occupation of the inhabitants, which latter have been worked from the earliest period of history, or even tradition. There can be no doubt that they were worked by the Romans, as pigs of lead have been found in the neighbourhood inscribed with the names of Roman Emperors, and are now in the British Museum. That they were worked by the Saxons, is also evident by the names which several of them bear at the present time. In Domesday book there is mention of mines in Wirksworth, and from that time down to the present, mining has been the staple trade of the town and district. Mining operations have been governed from remote antiquity by peculiar laws and customs, which until the passing of the "Wirksworth Mining Custom and Mineral Courts Act," in the year 1853, were dependent upon oral tradition, and some collections o the laws and customs which have been printed at various times; now, however, these customs have become statute laws, one peculiarity of which is, that any person can search for it, and if he find lead ore, can work the mine in any other person's land without leave or without paying any compensation to the owner of the soil. In the course of time, the mines were worked to such a depth as to be impeded by water. To relieve them several adits, or (as they are called) soughs have been driven at various intervals. The oldest is the Hannage Sough, which relieved the mines to a certain depth; then the Cromford Sough was driven from the market place, in Cromford, but that became in the course of time useless; and about the year 1777, the Meerbrook Sough was commenced from the level of the Derwent, near Hotstandwell Bridge. For many years this important adit was in abeyance, but in the year 1841 an Act of Parliament was obtained, incorporating a company to prosecute the works. It has been driven into the Valley of Wirksworth, a distance of three miles, at an expense of £27,500, and has had the effect of relieving the mines from water, some of which have been and are now very productive. The Ratchwood Mine has within the last three years realized upward of £30,000, and other mines it is expected will be equally as productive

Bole Hill, a small village on a bold acclivity, half a mile N.E. from Wirksworth, is principally inhabited by miners. The Bage mine adjoining the village, was formerly the most productive mine in the district. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1852, on the site of the old one, at a cost of about £200; it is a good stone building and will seat about 200 hearers.

Wigwell Grange, a manor within the manor of Wirksworth, from which it is distant 1½ miles east, and consists of the Grange and other lands—about 500 acres, with a stone mansion and pleasure grounds commanding picturesque views of the surrounding country. The Grange was given by Wm. le Fawne and others, in the reign of Henry the III., and confirmed by William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, to the Abbot and Convent of Darley, near Derby, and was the favourite summer residence of the Abbots of that house. At the dissolution of the Monastery of Darley, by Henry VIII. it was granted to Thos. Babington, Esq., and forfeited by the conspirator Babington, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth to the crown, and regranted to Anthony Babington, who sold it in 1585, to Wigley, of Middleton, near Wirksworth. It was bought in 1774 by Francis Green, Esq., and is now the property and residence of his grandson, Captain Francis Green Goodwin.

Longway Bank, 2½ miles E. by N. from Wirksworth, is a hamlet of scattered houses, principally occupied by miners. The Wesleyans have a chapel here erected about 20 years ago.

Charities.—Agnes Fearne, by will dated 1574, devised a house and garden in Wirksworth, on trust, to the intent, that if after her decease there should happen to be a free school in the town of Wirksworth, the trustees should cause five marks out of the profits of her lands to be conveyed to the said school for ever. She also directed 40s. yearly to be paid to the poor folk in a bede house in Wirksworth; and devised £1 6s. 8d. out of lands in Kirk Ireton and Idridge Hay, to be expended in clothing and given to the most necessitous poor of the parish, but we have not been able to find any trace of the payment of this latter sum. By indenture of feoffment, dated 1585, the lands and cottages of the said Agnes Fearne were conveyed by the surviving trustee to the governors of the free school and almshouse and their successors, for the support and maintenance thereof.

Gell's Almshouses were founded in the 26th of Elizabeth, by Anthony Gell, Esq.. who left £60, and directed his executor, within one year after his death, to build an an almshouse in Wirksworth, on the side of the Hannage, for six aged, poor, and impotent men. He also left £20 per annum to be divided amongst the inmates, out of the rents of the lands and tenements devised for that purpose. The same donor also devised certain lands for the maintenance and support of a free grammar school, which was founded by letters patent in the 26th of Elizabeth, as "The Free Grammar School of Anthony Gell, Esq., for the education and instruction of boys in grammar and other literature;" and her Majesty ordained that there should be six descent and honest men, inhabiting within the Wapentake of Wirksworth, to be governors of the said school and almshouse, and that they and their successors should be a body corporate. When any of the said governors should die or be removed from his place or office of governor, or inhabit out of the Wapentake, the other governors, or the major part of them, might nominate any other fit person within the said Wapentake, to be governor. The endowment consists of 154A. 0R. 22P. of land, producing a rental of upwards of £280 per annum. A portion of this land, in small detached parcels amounting to 45A., was exchanged at the Wirksworth enclosure, in 1806. In most of the instances in which the lands of this charity lie open to those of other persons, the boundaries are marked by mere stones. It is proper that these stones should be inspected by the trustees, and new ones placed where necessary. The old school room, built in 1576, was taken down in 1828, and a commodious structure erected on its site. An annual sum of £170 is paid to two masters.

Henry Gee, in 1618, left a rent charge of £10, out of lands at Bolehill, £5 of which is given to the head master of the grammar school, and £5 distributed to the almsmen.

Anthony Bunting, in 1685, left £5 per annum to be given to the almsmen, out of land called the Dale Field.

In 1744, John Taylor left £100 for the benefit of the poor, which was invested in land, called Middlehills and Botham's close, in Ible, the rent is received by the churchwardens at Christmas, and has hitherto been distributed amongst the poor of the township, but it appears from the testator's will, that this donation was given for the benefit of the poor of the whole parish, and not intended to be confined to the township alone.

German Buckston, in 1765, left £100, which was invested in land, called Youlcliff Head. The rent, £5 per annum, is received by the churchwardens, and distributed in sums of 5s. each, amongst the most necessitous widows and housekeepers of the parish.

Elizabeth Bagshaw, in 1797, left £2,000 three per cent. consolidated annuities on trust, the dividends thereof to be given to the poor decayed housekeepers resident in the parish of Wirksworth, at the rate of 20s. each. The dividends amount to £56 8s., one-fourth of which has been confined to poor persons of Middleton, and the remaining three-fourths have been given to the poor of the township of Wirksworth only. It appears, however, to have been Mrs. Bagshaw's intention, that her charity should extend to poor decayed housekeepers resident in any part of the parish. The poor of this parish partake of the Rev. Francis Gisborne's charity.—(See Bradley.)

William Greatorex, in 1734, left a rent charge of £3 per annum, out of land in Wirksworth, called the Green Yard, to be applied in apprenticing poor boys.

WIRKSWORTH township.—Daniel Dean, in 1637, left 20s. yearly, out of a house in Derby, which is laid out in bread, and distributed at Easter amongst the poor.

Dorothy Lees, in 1646, left lands for the benefit of the poor, now let for £13 13s. per annum, one-fourth of which is given to the poor of Middleton, and the remainder to the poor of Wirksworth.

George Summers, in 1683, left a rent charge of £3 yearly, out of land, called the Fishpool Flats, which, in 1801, was exchanged for the Dale Closes. We apprehend the parties had no power to change the security of this donor's charity, and that the land called the Fishpool Flats is still liable to the annual payment of £3, if it should become necessary to resort to it. The annuity is received by the churchwardens, and distributed to the poor at Christmas.

Francis Bunting, in 1693, left a rent charge of £5 per annum, to be issuing out of his houses and lands in Wirksworth, to be distributed in sums of 5s. each to 20 poor housekeepers, on St. Stephen's day.

Mary Hoades, in 1702, left 40s. yearly, charged on a piece of land in Hognaston, called the High Greave, which is given to the poor on St. Thomas's day.

In 1707, Sarah Woodis left 40s. per annum for the benefit of the poor; she also directed 40s. per annum to be paid to the minister at the meeting-house in Wirksworth, so long as there continued to be a meeting-house there, and when it should be discontinued and there should be no minister, then the whole sum of £4 to be paid to the poor.

Elizabeth Blackburn devised certain lands for the benefit of the poor, which were afterwards exchanged for Wheatcroft Close and Nash's Close, now let for £14 per annum.

Poor's Allotments.—1A. 1R. 36P., by the High Style road, were allotted to the overseers and churchwardens, as trustees for the poor, at the enclosure in 1802, and the rent thereof is given to the poor.

In 1802, Mrs. Bridget Cheney gave £100 to be invested in the Wirksworth Savings' bank, the interest thereof to be distributed at Christmas. In 1823, a sum of £12 13s. 8d. was added to it; and in 1825, a further deposit of £13 10s., arising from a legacy given by John Harrison, of the Isle of Man. These three sums amounting to £126 3s. 8d., are now in the Savings' bank, and the interest forms part of the distribution to the poor at Christmas.

In 1831, Mary Harrison left £45 to be invested in the Savings' bank at Wirksworth, and the interest to be given to the poor.

Gisborne's Charity.—(See Bradley).—£7 5s. 0d., received on account of this charity, is laid out by the vicar, in the purchase of cloth and flannel, and distributed amongst the poor.

ALDERWASLEY, or ARROWSLEY, a township, chapelry, and scattered village, in the Appletree Hundred, 2¼ miles E. by S. from Wirksworth, contains 3045A. 2R. 35P. of land, and in 1851 had 82 houses, and 400 inhabitants, of whom 201 were males, and 199 females; rateable value, £3075 15s. 0d. Francis Hurt, Esq.. is lord of the manor and sole owner. The Chapel, a small structure, near the Hall, erected in the reign of Henry VIII., is now disused; a new one having been erected in 1849, at the cost of £2000, defrayed by the late Fras. E. Hurt, Esq. It is a handsome stone building in the Elizabethan style, situated a little S.W. from the Hall, and has a nave, chancel, and low spire with one bell, and four of the windows are filled with stained glass. It will seat about 400 persons. The living is a donative, not subject to ecclesiastical jurisdiction, Francis Hurt, Esq., appoints the chaplain, which is enjoyed by the Rev. Alexander Orme, B.A., who resides at the Parsonage, a good house about half a mile W. from the Chapel, built by the late F. E. Hurt, Esq., at the cost of £1,200. The Hall, a handsome mansion, in a picturesque situation, surrounded with shrubberies and tasteful pleasure grounds, is the seat and property of F. Hurt, Esq. Here art and nature have combined to render this a most pleasing and delightful situation. The Dean of Lincoln is impropriator, under whom G. H. Errington, Esq., is lessee. The vicar of Wirksworth has the small tithe. In 1841, a mixed school was erected by the late F. E. Hurt, Esq., which is chiefly supported by F. Hurt, Esq.

It is a handsome stone building, and is attended by about 60 children. Messrs. John and Charles Mold have extensive works on the bank of the Derwent, near the Ambergate station, for the manufacture of bar, rod, and sheet iron; and Messrs. William and Charles Milnes have extensive smelting and lead works near Whatstandwell Bridge, 2½ miles E. by N. from Wirksworth. The manor anciently belonged to the Ferrers family, and was afterwards annexed to the Duchy of Lancaster. Thomas Lowe married the heiress of the Le Foune or Fawne family, who had an estate here as early as the reign of Henry III. John Lowe, his son, procured from Henry VIII., in 1528, a grant of this manor. Elizabeth, the sister and heir of his descendant and namesake brought this estate and manor in 1690, to Nicholas Hurt, Esq., of Castern, in Staffordshire. In the civil war in 1643, this manor was sequestered as the property of Edward Lowe, a royalist.

CHARITY.—Grace Hurt, in 1727, directed 8s. weekly to be divided amongst four poor women of this township. The amount is now paid by Francis Hurt, Esq., the owner of Alderwasley estate.

ASHLEY HAY township, and pleasant district of scattered houses, 1¾ miles S. by E. from Wirksworth, contains 1437A. 1R. 39P. of land, including roads and waste, and in 1851 had 54 houses, and 271 inhabitants, of whom 140 were males, and 131 females; rateable value, £1686. Francis Hurt, Esq., is lord of the manor, and principal owner. but Mr. W. Dean, Mrs. Elizabeth Spencer, Mr. R. Spencer, Mr. W. Pidcock, James Milnes, Esq., Miss M. Adsetts, Mr. Joseph Taylor, and Mr. Joseph Malin, have also estates here. There are also 50 small copy and freeholders. The tithe was commuted in 1842. Alport Hill is a commanding eminence, said to be the highest point in South Derbyshire. Extensive prospects are seen into Leicestershire, Nottinghamshire, and Staffordshire. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each places of worship here; the latter is situated at Bacon Hill, and will seat about 100 hearers; the site and the stone for the building was given by Mr. W. Pidcock.

BIGGIN, a township and small village, in Appletree Hundred, 5 miles S.W. by S, from Wirksworth, contains 577 acres of land, and in 1851 had 30 houses, and 133 inhabitants, of whom 73 were males, and 60 females; rateable value, £813 4s. 8d. The principal owners are, Mr. Wm. Webster, Mr. Jonathan Roose, Mr. Samuel Bainbrigge, Rev. W. R. Melville, Rev. C. Evans, Mr. John Booth, Mr. Jas. and Mr. Wm. Pearson. The tithes were commuted in 1844—the rectorial for £101, and the vicarial for £2 6s. 0d. per annum. George Henry Errington, Esq. is the lessee. Here is a Chalybeate spring, which is very efficacious in scorbutic and cutaneous diseases. It is in the occupation of Mr. John Booth, Lane head, and situated near his residence. Biggin House, situated on an eminence 5 miles S.W. from Wirksworth, is a neat brick building, the property of Mr. William Webster, and the residence of Mr. John Webster.

CALLOW, a township and small village, 2 miles S.W. from Wirksworth, contains 1,000 acres of land, 16 houses, and 94 inhabitants, of whom 46 were males, and 48 females; rateable value £1,128 12s. The executors of the late Philip Gell, Esq., and J. D. M. Chadwick, Esq., are the owners. The former are lords of the manor. The rectorial tithe has been commuted for £148, of which G. H. Errington Esq., is lessee, and the vicarial for £12, which is paid to the vicar of Wirksworth. Callow Hall was an ancient moated mansion of considerable extent; a small portion of it only remains, which is occupied by Mr. Saml. Dean, as a farm house. The moat, and part of the bridge, are still visible. It is the property of Mr. Chadwick.

CROMFORD, a township, chapelry, and market town, 16 miles N. from Derby, 2 miles N. from Wirksworth, 8 miles S.E. from Belper, 1 mile S. from Matlock Bath, and 147 miles

N.N.W. from London, contains 815A. 2R. 3½P. of land, (exclusive of Scarthing Nick, which is in Matlock parish,) and in 1851, had 255 houses, and 1,190 inhabitants, of whom 569 were males, and 621 females; rateable value £2,100. Peter Arkwright, Esq., is sole owner, except about six acres. The Church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a plain stone structure, with a small tower and one bell, situate near the bridge. The living is a perpetual curacy, in the patronage of Peter Arkwright, Esq., and incumbency of the Rev. Robert Morgan Jones. The building was commenced by Sir Richard Arkwright, and was completed and endowed by Richard Arkwright, Esq., his son, with £50 per annum, since which it has been augmented with £200 from Mr. Arkwright, £200 Queen Anne's bounty, and £1,000 parliamentary grant. It is neatly seated with oak pews, and galleries on each side, it contains an organ, which was put up several years ago, to which many additions and improvements have since been made. The tithe has been commuted for £63. There was anciently a chapel here, of which no traces now remain. Commodious schools have been erected in North street, and form, with the master and mistress' house, three sides of a quadrangle. The boys' school room, and the residences were erected in 1832, by the late Richard Arkwright Esq., and the girls' and infants' some years later. They are substantial stone buildings, the boys' room is 55 feet by 24 feet, and the girls' and infants' are 20 feet square. The average attendance of boys for the last 24 years has been 115, and of girls and infants 180, who each pay a small weekly charge, the deficiency being made up by Peter Arkwright, Esq. The Wesleyans have a chapel, erected in 1810, and enlarged in 1840; it is now undergoing considerable alterations, and is calculated to seat 1,000 persons. The Wesleyan Reformers hold their services in a large room at Scarthing Row. The Primitive Methodist chapel, at Scarthing Row, is a good brick building, erected in 1853, at the cost of £300; it will seat about 300 persons.

CROMFORD, (anciently Crombeford) is situated in a deep valley on the south bank of the Derwent, enclosed by lofty limestone rocks on the north, south, and west; to the east a picturesque valley. finely wooded and clothed with rich herbage, stretches to a considerable distance. The houses are chiefly built of gritstone, which abounds in the vicinity. The cotton mills, the colour works, the lead mines, the wharfs, the canal, and the railroads, together with extensive smelting mills, hat manufactory, and worsted mills, at Lea, not only give employment to the numerous and increasing population, but renders the town of Cromford of commercial importance. In 1790, Sir Richard Arkwright procured the grant of a market to be held on Saturday. Fairs were formerly held here, but are now discontinued. The feast is on the first Sunday after September 8th. Here are two Sick Societies, an Odd Fellows' lodge, and a lodge of Ancient Foresters. Some years ago 200 Roman coins were found in a hole of a rock near Cromford. This was an inconsiderable village prior to the establishment of the cotton mills, by Sir Richard Arkwright, here and at Matlock Bath. He erected the first cotton mill in the world, at Nottingham, in 1769. The first mill erected at Cromford was in 1771; the lower mill was built a few years afterwards. The penetration of Sir Richard Arkwright may be discovered in the very choice of a situation so suitable to carry on his extensive operations, and which laid the foundation for that immense wealth now enjoyed by his family. The mills are supplied with a never-failing stream of warm water, drained from the mines on Cromford moor, which not only never freezes itself but prevents the adjoining canal from being frozen throughout the winter. The large mill at Masson, between Cromford and Matlock Bath, was built in 1783. The number of hands employed at the mills is not so large as previously in consequence of a considerable portion of the supply of water being diverted into another channel. The works are still carried on under the firm of Arkwright and Co. Darwin thus elegantly describes the complex operations carried on by the improved machinery in these mills,—clothing dry details of manufacture and machinery in language which at least displays the consummation of poetic art:—

"Where Derwent guides his dusky floods,
Through vaulted mountains, and a night of woods,
————————————The watery god
His ponderous oars to slender spindles turn,
And pours o'er massey wheels his foaming urns;
————————————Emerging Naiads cull,
From leathery pods, the vegetable wool;
With wiry teeth revolving cards release
The tangled knots, and smooth the ravell'd fleece.
Next moves the iron hand with fingers fine,
Combs the wide card, and forms th' eternal line;
Slow with soft lips the whirling can acquires
The tender skeins, and wraps in rising spires,
With quickened pace successive rollers move
And these retain, and those extend the rove,
Then fly the spokes, the rapid axles glow;
While slowly circumvolves the lab'ring wheel below."

The Cromford Canal, which joins the Erewash canal near Langley bridge, opens a water communication to the east; the High Peak railway which joins the canal about 1 mile S.E. from Cromford, here communicates with the Midland Railway, affording every facility for the conveyance of coal, minerals, and limestone, to every part of the kingdom. A branch of the Midland railway from Ambergate to Rowsley runs through the town, and has a neat station, from whence there are five trains each way daily. It is carried through the north west part of the Wirksworth hundred, running past the western side of the High Peak hundred over a mountainous country to Whaley Bridge, where it joins the Peak Forest canal. The length of this railway is 34 miles, its greatest elevation is 290 feet above the level of the Cromford canal. This ascent is accomplished by means of inclined planes, up which the waggons are drawn by stationary steam engines. The High Peak Railway Company hold their quarterly meetings at the Greyhound Inn, Mr. Francis Barton, is the general manager.

The Rock House is a good mansion, situate on a limestone rock, overlooking the Derwent vale, the seat of the Misses Hunt. Near the road from Cromford to Wirksworth is a mine called God-be-here Founder, rendered memorable from an occurrence which took place in the year 1797: two miners, named Job Boden and Anthony Pearson, while employed in the mine, the earth above them, together with a quantity of water, suddenly rushed in and filled the mine to a depth of 54 yards. The other miners immediately began to draw out the rubbish, in search of their lost companions; and on the third day Pearson was discovered dead in an upright posture. The miners continued their exertions, and on the eighth day of their labours they distinctly heard Boden's signal, and ascertained that he was living. They now worked with great energy, but more caution, for a few hours longer, when they found the object of their search, weak and almost exhausted, yet fully sensible of the miraculous nature of his escape. His recovery from the effects of this premature entombment was slow but effectual, and he returned to his employment in about fourteen weeks, and lived many years afterwards.

Stonnis, or the Black Rocks, a lofty range of hills on the Wirksworth and Cromford road, about one mile from the former, are noted for the magnificent views obtained from them of Matlock, Cromford, and the district around, which is admitted by all to be equal if not superior to any in the neighbourhood, and will amply repay the tourist for his toil. By descending a short distance from the summit, you reach a natural cavern, well known as "Gratton's Parlour." The following inscription cut in the rocks, will give the reader some faint idea of the magnificent scenery which is here obtained, "Heavens! what goodly prospects spread around us."

CHARITIES.—Lady Armyne, by a codocil to her will, bearing date 14th August, 1662, left a yearly rent charge of £16 10s., to be issuing of her manor, land and tenements, in Cromford, for the maintenance of six poor widows or widowers. This manor passed into the hands of Sir Richard Arkwright, in 1789, subject to the payment of the above sum, and also subject to the repairs of the hospital in Cromford. Each widow receives 40s. per annum, and a further sum of 6s. 8d. at Christmas, towards the purchase of a gown. The amount of these payments is £14 per annum, being less by £2 10s. than the annual sum mentioned in Lady Armyne's will. The cause of this diminution does not appear, but it seems not improbable that it arose from a deduction on account of land tax. We have not found any trace of the full amount of the rent charge being ever paid, and in a valuation of the Cromford estate, in 1720, the annual payment to the almshouses is stated to be £14. It does not appear by whom or at what period the almshouses were built, or in what manner the repairs of them became a charge on the estate.

HOPTON, a township, and small pleasant village, 2 miles W. by S. from Wirksworth, and 4½ miles S.W. from Cromford station, contains 643A. 3R. 6P. of land, and in 1851, had 15 houses, and 100 inhabitants, of whom 55 were males, and 45 females; rateable value £975 12s. The executors of the late Philip Gell, Esq., are lords of the manor and principal owners. The Hall, an ancient mansion, 2 miles W. from Wirksworth, now the seat of Edmund Wilmot, Esq., was many years the seat of the Gells. The rent charge in lieu of the rectorial tithe is £67 10s., and the vicarial £11 3s. 6d. George Henry Errington, Esq., is the impropriator. A family of the name of De Hopton had the chief landed property in Hopton, as early as the reign of King John. William de Hopton, in the reign of Edward II., left a daughter and heir married to Nicholas de Rollesley. The heiress of Rollesley brought this estate, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, to Sir William Kniveton, from whom it passed successively to the families of Greatrakes, Fern, and Stuffin. Johanna, daughter and heir of another branch of the family, is said to have brought all her estates in Hopton and Carsington to Ralph Gell, whose ancestors had then resided for some generations at Hopton. Sir John Gell, who had been created a baronet in 1642, was from the commencement of the civil wars, a most zealous officer on the side of the parliament. He took Lichfield, and rendered very important services to his party in his native county and elsewhere, for which he several times received the thanks of the House. Sir John's colours, and a leathern doublet, weighing 11 pounds, worn by him, are still preserved. In the neck of this doublet is a flaw, made, it is supposed by a ball with which he was wounded, but when, is not known, but supposed to have been near the termination of the war, and after Newark, the last fortress in this part of the country, had capitulated. After the termination of the war, he was much dissatisfied with the treatment he received from the parliament; and in a memorial to refute certain calumnies raised against him, he states that he had received from them only £64, and that he had expended above £5,000 of his own property, besides the loss he sustained when his house was plundered by the enemy. In 1650, Sir John Gell incurred the displeasure of the ruling powers, and was sentenced, by the High Court of Justice, to be imprisoned for life, and his estates to be confiscated; but two years afterwards he procured his pardon. Sir Philip Gell, the third baronet, purchased of the Stuffins the estate at Hopton, which had belonged to the other branch of the Hoptons. Upon his death, in 1719, the title became extinct, and Hopton, with other estates, passed under his will to John Eyre, a younger son of his sister Catherine, who, in pursuance of his uncle's directions, took the name of Gell. The late Philip Gell, Esq., who died a few years ago, has left his property in the hands of trustees.

CHARITIES.—Sir Philip Gell, Bart., in 1719, erected an hospital for four poor men or women of this township, and directed a rent-charge of £22 6s. per annum to be paid out of his manor, called the Griffe Grange, to the inmates of the hospital. Of this amount, a sum of 30s. yearly is given to a person for receiving and paying the said annuity

IBLE, a township and small village, pleasantly situated on a bold elevation, 4 miles N.W. from Wirksworth, contains 411A. 3R. 12P. of rich grazing land, and in 1851, had 23 houses, and 91 inhabitants, of whom 48 were males, and 43 females; rateable value, £352 14s. 6d. Peter Arkwright, Esq., is lord of the manor. The principal owners are the trustees of the late Philip Gell, Esq., Mrs. Hannah Travis, Mr. Benjamin Spencer, Mr. John Watson, and Mr. Thomas Webster. The tithes were commuted in 1844, of which £47 17s. is paid to the impropriator, and 17s to the vicar. The Primitive Methodists have a small chapel, built in 1825.

IDRIDGE HAY AND ALTON, (with Cliff Ash,) a township in the Appletree hundred, contains 987 acres of land, and in 1851 had 46 houses, and 222 inhabitants, of whom 108 were males, and 114 females; rateable value £1,502.

IDRIDGE HAY, a scattered district of houses, 3½ miles S. from Wirksworth, contains 517 acres of fertile land, partly freehold, and partly copyhold in the manor of Duffield; rateable value, £819. Richard Paul Joddrell, Esq., of London, is lord of the manor. The principal owners are Robert Cresswell, Esq., Rev. Henry Cox, Mr. William Allsop, Miss M. Adsetts, the trustees of Risley School, and Rev. Thomas Mawkes; the former has a neat residence in the Swiss cottage style, with tasteful pleasure grounds, adorned with fancifully cut yew trees, situated on the Derby and Wirksworth road, 3 miles S. from Wirksworth. In a retired situation half a mile south of the church, is Ecclesburn House, situated on an acclivity commanding some beautiful views along the vale from which it is named, a neat mansion, the seat of Miss M. Adsetts. The family of Dean have held land here for upwards of five centuries. Alton Manor, 2 miles S.S.W. from Wirksworth, contains 480 acres of strong fertile freehold land, and a corn mill; rateable value, £683. The Ecclesburn, a small stream, divides this from Ashley Hay. James Milnes, Esq., is the sole owner. Alton Manor, 2 miles S.S.W. from Wirksworth, is a large handsome Elizabethan mansion, built in 1846-7 with stone procured on the estate. It is the seat and property of James Milnes, Esq. The tithes of this township were commuted in 1844, the rectorial for £154 and the vicarial for £7. A new District Church, dedicated to St James, was erected here in 1844-5, at the cost of £2,400, raised by voluntary contributions, and grants, from the Diocesan Church Extension Society, £135; the Cordon Fund, £100; the Incorporated Society for building churches, £75; and the Church Commissioners, £50. It is a handsome Gothic stone edifice, with nave, chancel, side aisle, and spire, with sittings for 210 persons, 170 of which are free and unappropriated. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £58, in the joint patronage of Robert Cresswell and James Milnes, Esqrs., and incumbency of the Rev. Thomas Vernon, Mellor, M.A., for whom a neat parsonage is now in course of erection, about a ¼ mile S. of the church. Robert Cresswell, Esq., and James Milnes, Esq., were the principal contributors, and the former gentleman has given £1,500 towards the endowment.

CHARITIES.—In 1640, Robert Baker left £22, which was invested in land at Kirk-Ireton, called Little Day Meadow. The owner thereof pays an annual sum of 22s., which is given to the poor of this township.

IRONBROOK GRANGE, OR GRANGE MILL, a township and small village, in the High Peak Hundred, 4 miles W.N.W. from Wirksworth, contains 416A. 2R. 32P. of land, mostly in pasture, and in 1851 had 5 houses, and 44 inhabitants, of whom 25 were males, and 19 females; rateable value, £460, and it is not in the King's Field. This place was given by Henry Studley, who died about the year 1167, to the abbey of Bildewas, in Shropshire. It was granted by King Henry VIII. to Edward Grey, Lord Powis, from whom it passed by inheritance, through the Ludlows and Vernons of Stokesley, to the Right Hon. Lord Scarsdale, who is the present owner. The tithes were commuted in 1844, the rectorial for 20s., and the vicarial for 25s.

MIDDLETON, a township and considerable village, and with Ible, and Ironbrook Grange, forms a chapelry in the parish of Wirksworth, from which place it is distant one mile N. by W., and from Ashbourn 9 miles N.E., contains 1005 acres of land, and in 1851, had 228 houses, and 1,012 inhabitants, of whom 501 were males, and 511 females; rateable value, £980. The principal owners are the trustees of the late Philip Gell, Esq., Mr. Robert Adams, Mr. Obadiah Adams, Mr. Benjamin Clayton, Mr. Benjamin Buckley, Mr. William Buckley, Mr. Caleb Moore, Mr. Francis Roper, Mr. John Brookes, Mr. James Spencer, and Mr. Lois Spencer. The tithes were commuted in 1844, the rectorial for £56, and the vicarial for £6 10s. A District Church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity was erected here in 1839, at a cost of £1,200, raised by subscriptions, aided by a grant from the Incorporated Church Building Society. It is a good stone structure with a turret, one bell and a clock, and will seat about 400 persons, 362 of which are free. The living is a perpetual curacy, value £75, in the patronage of the Vicar of Wirksworth, and the incumbency of the Rev. Francis Town Attree, B.A., who resides at the Parsonage, a handsome Elizabethan building, erected in 1852, a little north of the church, at a cost of about £1,000. In 1846 a National school for boys, girls, and infants, was built at a cost of £200, raised by subscriptions, and a grant from government. It is a good stone building, and will accommodate about 130 children; the average attendance is 40 boys, and 50 girls. The Wesleyan's have a neat chapel, erected about 40 years ago, which seats 500 persons, and the Independents one, erected by Captain Scott, during the time he resided at Matlock Bath. The Primitive Methodists have a small chapel, erected in 1846, which will seat about 150 persons. There are several quarries of excellent marble in this township, of which great quantities are sent by the High Peak railway to Cromford, and thence by canal to the celebrated marble works at Buckland Hollow. Mining was formerly carried on here to a great extent, and very profitably. The principal mines now being worked, are the Good-luck, Slackrake, Jackson's, Welchman's Venture, Croft, Snake, Sticking Brook's, Sparkrake, and Bradwell, which are very productive, yielding more ore than any others in the neighbourhood.

CHARITY.—Dorothy Lees, in 1646, bequeathed about six acres of land, three-fourths of the yearly rents thereof to be given to the poor of Wirksworth, and one-fourth to the poor of this township. The land is now let for about £13 13s. per annum.

HIGH PEAK HUNDRED.

This Hundred is of greater extent than any other in the county, and altogether a most romantic district of mountains, rocks, dales, and caverns, abounding in mineral treasures, spars, marbles, lime and grit or sand stone, and noted for its tepid and petrifying springs at Buxton, Bakewell, &c. It contains an area of 182,939 statute acres. It forms the north extremity of the county, where it is bounded by Cheshire, from which it is separated by the river Etherow, which rises near the north-east extremity, and is considered the source of the river Mersey. On the north-east it is bounded by Yorkshire, from which it is divided by the river Wrongsley, to the west of which the Westend brook rises, which uniting with the Wrongsley at Derwent, forms the river Derwent. On the south-east it is bounded by the Scarsdale Hundred. On the north-west, the river Goyt, which rises from the north side of Axe Edge, separates it from Cheshire, till it unites with the Etherow near Marple bridge, and then flows to Stockport. On the south-west, for about ten miles, it is bounded by a slip of the Wirksworth Hundred, which in some places does not exceed one and a half miles in breadth, and which is separated from Cheshire by the river Dove, which rises from the south side of Axe Edge, separates Derbyshire and Staffordshire, until it has its confluence with the river Trent, near Newton Solney. On the south it has the Wirksworth Hundred. It is principally a grazing district, occupied for the dairy, but contains a good portion of table land, as well as valleys, particularly noted for its rich herbage and the feeding of small cattle quicker than almost any land in the kingdom. A large portion of the inclosures are fenced by stone walls, and the want of hedge rows gives it a dreary and sterile appearance. The houses are mostly built of stone and covered with slate. In addition to its warm baths, its lead mines, the great demand for its marble and spar manufactures, its lime and other stone; it has always had a share of the cotton manufacture, which is principally seated at the north-west extremity of this Hundred, as are also the printing, bleaching and dyeing establishments. Handloom weaving, 40 years ago, was carried on to a considerable extent in this part of the county, but the powerloom has almost completely superseded this branch of handicraft. The High Peak railway and the Cromford canal cross the Hundred on the western side the Sheffield and Manchester railway passes on its extreme northern verge; and the extension of the Matlock Branch to Manchester is fully expected will be carried into effect almost immediately, this last being the only connecting link required to unite this district with all the principal railways in the kingdom. This Hundred contains one of the most magnificent of modern mansions, justly termed the Palace of the Peak, and a Baronial residence, decidedly the finest specimen of olden times in existence. The scenery is exceedingly varied and picturesque; bleak moors and verdant valleys; immense rocks and fearful chasms; precipitous cliffs and rapid streams; form a series of changes in this alpine district of the most romantic and pleasing character.

* The letters after the names signify P for Parish, C for Chapelry, and T for Township.

* The acreage, rateable value, and population of Alport is included with the returns of Great Rowsley and Youlgreave.

(a) The population for the townships in Glossop parish were not returned separately until 1821.

(b) New Mills includes the hamlets of Beard, Ollerset, Thornsett, and Whittle.

BAKEWELL.—One of the most extensive parishes in the county of Derby, contains 22 townships, besides a part of the township of Wardlow. Of this number 9 are parochial chapelries, viz.—Ashford, Baslow, Beeley, Buxton, Chelmorton, Great Longstone, Monyash, Sheldon, and Taddington, with Priestcliff; and the townships are Bakewell, Blackwell, Brushfield, Calver, Curbar, Flagg, Froggatt, Hartle, Hassop, Little Longstone, Over and Nether Haddon, Rowland, and Great Rowsley; which together in 1851 had 2,089 houses and 9,897 inhabitants, of whom 4,838 were males, and 5,059 females; 40,406 acres of land; rateable value, £44,971. The parish is about 18 miles in length from its eastern extremity near Baslow, to its extreme western point at Buxton, and comprises a great diversity of hill and dale. Some of the most fertile valleys are embosomed in bleak mountains, which give an additional charm to the picturesque beauties of the scenery. It is chiefly on the limestone, and the southern side principally occupied for the dairy. A few oats are grown, but generally for the purpose of destroying the moss on the grass land, which, after a few crops of oats, is again laid down in grass, or rather suffered to become grass again, which it soon does without any extra manure, and often without seed, producing a rich herbage. The northern parts, being very bleak and open, are principally used for grazing young cattle. The eastern extremity has been designated the Garden of the Peak, and the valleys about Baslow and Ashford are much earlier than the adjoining hills. The river Wye, which rises near Buxton, divides this parish from Chapel-en-le-Frith, Hope, and Tideswell, till it enters Monsall dale, through which it flows, and then has its confluence with the Derwent at Rowsley. The Lathkill river rises near One Ash, flows through a beautiful romantic glen, has its confluence with the Bradford at Alport, and then flows to the Wye, below Haddon Hall. The Bradford rises near Smerrill Grange, by Middleton. The Derwent passes the east side of the parish, to which the principal part of the waters of the High Peak flow.

BAKEWELL, a township and well built market town, beautifully situated in a picturesque vale of the river Wye, over which there is a stone bridge of six arches, 10 miles N.N.W. from Matlock, 16 miles S.W. from Sheffield, 12 miles W. by S. from Chesterfield, 12 miles E. by S. from Buxton, 26 miles N.N.W. from Derby, and 152 miles N.W. by N. from London, contains 2,945A. 1R. 37P. of land, and in 1851, had 462 houses, and 2,217 inhabitants, of whom 1,052 were males, and 1,165 females; rateable value £7,394 4s. This place was anciently called Baderanwyllam or Baddequella, of which its present name is a contraction; it is derived from a chalybeate spring which was in great repute as early as 924, when Edward the Elder, fixed on this place as a military post, and is said to have built a castle here, the site of which is still known as Castle Hill. The river Wye which flows through the town abounds with trout and grayling, and is a source of great attraction during the season to anglers. The Church, dedicated to All Saints, stands on a fine eminence, and is a large cruciform structure, with nave, spacious chancel, side aisles, and a handsome octagonal tower and spire containing 8 bells. The architecture is of various eras. The west door is Norman, and there are some intersecting Norman arches, or remains of them in the wall above and other marks of Norman walls; but great additions of a later style have been made in this part, and the perpendicular character predominates. The other parts of the exterior have a general character of the perpendicular style impressed on them, but there are some early English, and decorated windows, buttresses, mouldings, &c. Within the last fifteen years the whole of the church has been greatly altered, with the exception of the chancel, which is an interesting specimen of (chiefly) early English. The whole of the transept, called the Newark, with the north transept, tower, &c., have been erected since 1842. There are some good restorations in the Newark of early pointed arches, and decorated windows, and also some interesting monuments of the Vernon and Manners families, the ancient lords of Haddon, the ancestors of the Duke of Rutland, the present owner of the estates, &c. The church is also interesting from containing some curious tombstones, and relics of crosses, which were found during the late repairs. The cost of the restoration which has been going on for many years, has exceeded £8,600, which has been raised entirely by subscriptions, aided by grants from the Church Building Societies. The tombs and monuments in Vernon chapel, in the south transept, have been replaced in their original situations, at the expense of the Duke of Rutland, amongst which are several alabaster monuments, enriched with figures in bass relief, with recumbent figures as large as life. One to Sir Thomas Wendesley, mortally wounded whilst fighting on the side of the house of Lancaster, at the battle of Shrewsbury, in the 4th year of Henry IV., (1403.) Also Sir John Vernon, Knt., 1477. An altar-tomb to Sir George Vernon, of Haddon, and his two wives, is dated 1561; on it lies the effigy of a Knight in armour, with an inscription indicating that the body of Sir George, formerly called the King of the Peak, lyeth here. Sir John Manners, second son of Thomas, Earl of Rutland, who died 1611, and his wife Dorothy, daughter and co-heir of Sir George Vernon, who died in 1584; John Manners, third son of Sir John, who died in 1590, and Sir George Manners, who died in 1623. A memorial for Bassett Copwood, of Bubnell Hall, who died in 1628; also one on the east side, near the chancel, for Rev. Richard Chapman, who died 16th April, 1816, (erected by the inhabitants,) and was 46 years vicar of the parish. In the south aisle is an ancient monument for Sir Godfrey Foljambe, who died in 1376, and Avena his wife, who died in 1383, with various other memorials. The font in the church is of great antiquity, its form is octagon, and on each face is the representation of one of the apostles rudely sculptured. In the church yard is a very ancient stone cross, supposed to be above 800 years old; it is eight feet high exclusive of the pedestal, and two feet wide. The ornaments and sculptured devices on the four sides of the shaft are much corroded by atmospheric action; on the front of the cross, the figures appear to represent the birth, crucifixion, entombment, resurrection, and ascension of our Saviour; on the reverse is Christ entering Jerusalem upon an ass. At the west end of the churchyard is an old stone, to the memory of John Dale, with this inscription—"Know, posterity, that on the 8th of April, in the year of grace 1737, the rambling remains of the above said John Dale, were, in the 86th year of his pilgrimage, laid upon his two wives:—

"This thing in life might cause some jealousy,
Here all three lie together lovingly;
But from embraces here no pleasure flows,
Alike are here all human joys and woes;
Here Sarah's chidings John no longer hears,
And old John's ramblings Sarah no more fears;
A period's come to all their toilsome lives—
The good man's quiet, still are both his wives."

The living is a vicarage, valued in the King's book at £40, now £420. The Dean and Chapter of Lichfield are patrons, and the Rev. Hubert Kestell Cornish, M.A., incumbent and rural dean, who has upwards of 300 acres of glebe land. The great tithes belong to the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield; and the vicarial are commuted for a rent charge on land, and payable from several of the townships in the parish. The greater part of the income is derived from land. The vicarage is a large and convenient residence, picturesquely situated a little south-west of the church, one half of the house is very old, the other part has recently been rebuilt. The peal of bells in the tower were cast by Mears of London, and brought here in 1798, at a cost of £598 6s. 3d. The first peal rung upon them was to celebrate the victory of Lord Nelson, at Aboukir, on the Nile. They were lowered from the old tower on the 27th, 29th, and 30th of March, 1830, by Robert Crichlow, his brother John, and three of the sons of William Frost, all of Bakewell. When replaced in the new tower, the first peal rung was to celebrate the visit of Queen Victoria to Bakewell, and which could not have been rung half an hour earlier. They are of the following weights, and have mottoes written by the late Michael Wilkinson, Esq., of Bakewell:—

First bell, 5 cwt. 3 qrs. 3 lbs.

"When I begin our merry din,
This band I lead from discord free;
And for the fame of human name
May every leader copy me."

Second bell, 5 cwt. 3 qrs. 16 lbs.

"Mankind, like us, too oft are found Possess'd of nought but empty sound."

Third bell, 6 cwt. 2 qrs. 6 lbs.

"When of departed hours we toll the knell, Instruction take, and spend the future well."

Fourth bell, 7 cwt. 1 qr. 27 lbs.

"When men in Hymen's bands unite,
Our merry peals produce delight;
But when Death goes his dreary rounds,
We send forth sad and solemn sounds."

Fifth bell, 8 cwt. 2 qrs. 22 lbs.

"Thro' grandsires and triples with pleasure men range, Till death calls the bob and brings the last change."

Sixth bell, 10 cwt. 3 qrs. 3 lbs.

"When victory crowns the public weal,
With glee we give the merry peal."

Seventh bell, 12 cwt. 3 qrs. 11 lbs.

"Would men like me, join and agree,
They'd live in tuneful harmony."

Eighth bell, 18 cwt. 3 qrs. 1 lb.

"Possess'd of deep sonorous tone,
This Belfry King sits on his throne,
And when the merry bells go round,
Adds to and mellows every sound;
So in a just and well poised state,
Where all degress possess due weight,
One greater power, of greater tone,
Is ceded to improve their own."

Bakewell was enclosed in 1806, when 239A. 29P. of land were awarded in lieu of tithes, and the small tithes are generally paid by agreement. The soil is principally on limestone with some clay, and on the moors peat; on the east of the Wye it is gritstone, and chiefly in grass, though a rich red soil prevails in many parts, occupied for the dairy and feeding. The Duke of Rutland is lord of the manor, which is freehold, and principal owner. Robert Arkwright, Esq., Wm. Allcard, Esq., and the executors of the late John Radford, Esq., are also considerable owners. The market is held on Friday, and a cattle market every alternate Monday, principally supplied with fat stock from the neighbourhood. Fairs for horses, cattle, and cheese, are held on Easter Monday, Whit Monday, August 26th, Monday after October 10th, and Monday after November 11th. Feast on the 6th November. The town is well built and contains some good shops, with many handsome residences in the vicinity, the streets are paved, and lighted with gas, and the inhabitants have an excellent supply of good water. The Baths which are one of the principal attractions here, were erected by the Duke of Rutland, and contain warm and shower baths, besides the "Old Roman," or plunge bath, which is 33 feet by 16, and enclosed with stone, and of the temperature of 60 Farenheit. It is said to be about the same strength as the sulphurous springs at Kedleston; attached to which is a Subscription News Room, supported by 30 members, who each pay

21s. annually. It is well supplied with the London and Provincial newspapers. The Bath Gardens, in the centre of the town, with its walks and grottoes, form a pleasant promenade, and are at all times open to the public. Adjoining the gardens is the Bank of the Sheffield and Rotherham Banking Company, a handsome building in the square, near to which is the Rutland Arms Hotel, a most excellent house, fitted up in a very superior manner for the comfort of visitors, and where the most fastidious may rely upon being supplied with the best of viands and the choicest wines. It is, with the Old Bath Hotel, at Matlock Bath, under the management of Mr. Wm. Greaves. The Old Market House, Bridge street, is used as the Court House, where the County Court and all other town's business is likewise transacted. Petty Sessions are held on the first and third Fridays in the month. The New Market House is in King street, and the rooms above the basement are occupied by the Free Grammar school. An excellent National school with residence for the master adjoining, was built in Mill street, in 1854, by subscription, aided by grants from the Parent and Diocesan Education Boards; it is capable of accommodating 200 children. The Wesleyan Methodists chapel in Matlock street is a good stone building, and the Independents have a neat Gothic stone structure, with school rooms beneath, in Mill street. The Friends' Meeting House is a neat brick building in Matlock street, erected in 1853, by the Society of Friends of the Chesterfield Monthly meetings, at a cost of £600, inclusive of the burial ground attached. It will seat about 400 persons.

Bakewell and High Peak Institute, Water street, was established in 1848, it consists of an excellent library of about 1400 volumes, and reading room which is well supplied with the London and provincial newspapers, periodicals, &c. Mr. Isaac Bradbury, librarian, and Mr. Frederick Parker, secretary.

The Dispensary and Lying-in Institution, in Rutland terrace, established 1829, is attended gratuitously on Tuesdays and Fridays, from 9 to 10 o'clock in the morning by Mr. Edward Farnsworth, and Mr. Charles Evans, surgeons; and the lying-in hospital is under the management of a committee of ladies, by whom the most needy are supplied with linen. The number of patients admitted in both departments during the year ending December 31st, 1855, was 450. Mr. G. R. Barker, honorary secretary.

The Savings' Bank, Bath street, a neat stone building, erected in 1848, at a cost of £300, is open every Monday morning from ten to one o'clock; had deposits November 20th, 1855, amounting to £63,501 9s., belonging to 1258 depositors, of whom 538 did not exceed £20; 163, £30; 117, £40; 69, £50; 225, £100; 69, £150; and 77 not exceeding £200; with 19 charitable, and 22 Friendly societies. Mr. Thomas Masters, actuary.

The Gas Works, Ashford road, were erected in 1850, at a cost of about £1700, and consist of a gasometer capable of holding about 6,000 cubic feet of gas, and three retorts. Mr. John F. Taylor, secretary.

The Lock-Up, Granby road, erected in 1844, by the Duke of Rutland, is a neat stone building, containing four cells; also a good house for the keeper, Mr. James Dove. It is let to the county at an annual rent of £25.

Union Workhouse, a handsome stone building, on the Baslow road, about a quarter mile N.E. from the town, was erected in 1841, at a cost of upwards of £8,000, and, in 1846 a Hospital was added, at a further cost of £1,400. Bakewell Grammar School, King street, established in 1637, (see Charities) is conducted by Mr. Wm. Kay, L.C.P., assisted by the undernamed resident masters. The school is now in a very flourishing state, numbering 67 pupils, of whom 30 are boarders, 25 daily, and 12 foundation pupils. Mr. Wm. Kay, L.C.P., Head master. Mr. Ascough, Second master. Mr. W. Mann, Third master. Herr J. B. Burke, German master. Mons. C. De St. Hubert, French and Drawing master.

Bakewell Farmers' Club, was established in 1843, principally through the joint exertions of Mr. Lawrence Furniss, Birchill farm, and Mr. Peter Furniss, of Pilsley, and may now rank amongst the most influential in the kingdom, being liberally supported by the nobility and gentry of the district, who contribute also largely to the prize fund. The object it has in view is the promotion of agricultural improvement, for which purpose the members meet monthly, for discussing every subject connected with practical agriculture, and annual premiums are given for every description of farming stock, poultry, cheese, root crops, best cultivated farms, &c., &c. There is also an excellent Library attached to the Club, supplied with all the best works and periodicals, on Agriculture, as they issue from the press, thus offering every facility to members for obtaining the best instructions for practically carrying out the various agricultural improvements of the day. The annual exhibition of stock, &c., is held at Bakewell in the month of October, and all other meetings of the club are held at the Rutland Arms hotel, Bakewell; at the annual exhibition in 1856, the Silver cup, presented by Sir Joseph Paxton, M.P., for the best cultivated farm, was awarded to Messrs. Furniss, Birchill Farm. Mr. L. Furniss, of Birchill farm, is the secretary.

Tomlinson's Museum, King street, corner of Matlock street, contains a large collection of rare and beautiful specimens of vases, figures, and ornaments, formed of the various spars, stalactites, and marbles, with which this county abounds, also a large collection of geological specimens,—a visit to which will be the source of much interest. The late Mr. Tomlinson obtained a prize medal at the New York Exhibition, in 1853, "for rich inlaid tables."

Trade.—The trade of the town is not very extensive, but we may mention—the Marble works, which are occupied by Messrs. Lomas & Sons, are worked by a water power of 14 horses, employed in sawing, turning, and polishing chimney pieces and other articles, from the superior black and other marbles quarried in the neighbourhood. These beautiful manufactures are made to a considerable extent for wholesale trade. Here we also find the manufactory of Mr. Syson Nibbs, a person of great inventive genius, the inventor and manufacturer of what are called, "The People's Lamps," also of the "Crystal Moderator Lamps," the "Crimean Army Lantern," the "Improved Smoke Preventer," &c. Some of these lamps involve great scientific skill, and while worthy a place in the mansion of the most opulent, their simplicity in construction, cleanliness, economy, and adaption to all climates, render them applicable to all illuminating purposes, and within the means of the humbler classes. The merits of these inventions have from time to time been highly spoken of, not only by the press, but also those who have publicly and privately tested them. A personal visit would prove most interesting to those who feel a pleasure in such things. Mr. Nibbs has been honoured by several orders from the Government, in addition to which his patrons are to be found in all parts of the globe. The value of such a manufactory, especially in a country town, cannot be over-estimated, for here every description of ornamental work in brass, bronze, &c., may readily be obtained. A little N. of the town, on the road to Ashford, are Lumford mills, locally situated in the hamlet of Holme. These mills formerly belonged to the Arkwright family, and after having been several years unoccupied, are now employed by Messrs. Lomas & Tunstill, cotton spinners and manufacturers, who are making considerable improvements to the premises. The mills are worked by two water wheels of about 60 horse power, and in seasons of great drought are assisted by a steam engine of about 15 horses power; they contain about 6000 mule spindles, 5750 throstle spindles, also 100 looms with sizing, and are lighted with gas from their own works. The number of hands employed is about 150. A stone foot bridge of six arches crosses the Wye near these mills. A fine view of Bakewell is obtained from the heights above Holme Hall.

The extension of the Manchester, Buxton, and North Midland Junction Railway it is anticipated will soon be in operation, and as it will run close to this town, there will no doubt be a first class station here.

The Peat Well, a noted mineral spring, on the Matlock road, about a quarter mile S. from the town, is greatly resorted to by the inhabitants and visitors generally, to partake of its waters, which are considered very efficacious in many complaints. It is surrounded by a small planting, and the water flows into a stone trough, and is remarkable for being of a higher temperature in winter than in summer.

Burton Closes, a large handsome stone mansion, half a mile S.E. from Bakewell, is pleasantly situated in park-like grounds, on a lofty eminence, overlooking the river Wye; the entrance to which is from the Matlock road. It was built in 1847, by the late John Allcard, Esq., who died April, 1856, and was succeeded by his son Wm. Allcard, Esq., the present owner and occupier.

A handsome modern residence now occupies Castle Hill, which is about half a mile from the town. The national flag was hoisted here on the Queen's visit in 1843. Mrs. Sarah Barker, and John Henry Barker, Esq., have also handsome residences a little N.E. from the town.

The manor, Badequelle, at Domesday, afterwards corrupted to Bauquelle, was parcel of the ancient demesne of the crown. William the Conqueror, gave it to his natural son, Wm. Peverel, whose son having forfeited all his possessions in the reign of Henry II., this manor was given by King John to Ralph Gernon. In 1286, Wm. Gernon, Lord of Bakewell, granted certain privileges to the burgesses of that town. The coheiresses of Sir John Gernon, who died 1383, married Botetourt and Peyton. Sir Richard Swinburne, who married the heiress of Botetourt, died in 1391. Alice, one of the sisters and coheiress of his son, Sir Thomas, brought the manor of Bakewell to John Helion. Isabel, one of the coheiresses of his son, brought it to Humphrey Tyrell, whose daughter and heiress having married Sir Roger Wentworth, joined in the sale of this manor to Sir Henry Vernon, in the year 1502. It has since passed with the Haddon estate, to the present possessor.

Moor Hall, about one mile W. is said to have been an ancient seat of the Gernons. King John, in the first year of his reign, granted the church at Bakewell, then collegiate, with its prebends and other appurtenances to the canons of Lichfield, to whom it was afterwards appropriated. At the time this grant was made there were three officiating priests in this church, for whom a competent maintenance was stipulated, and and one of the prebendaries of Lichfield was to say mass for the souls of the King and his ancestors, in Lichfield cathedral. There were three prebends at Bakewell,—Matthew, a canon of Lichfield, being incumbent of one of them. The Dean and Chapter allowed him to retain it during his life. In consequence of a complaint which came before John Peckham, Archbishop of Canterbury, at his visitation at the diocese of Lichfield, that the deacon and sub-deacon of the rich church of Bakewell were so ill provided for, that they were obliged to beg their bread,—it was ordered by the Archbishop, in 1280, that they should eat at the vicar's table, and that for the extraordinary expense, ten marks per annum should be allowed him out of the rectory, in addition to twenty marks which he before received; and it is observed he had already two priests and the clerk to maintain. A mark was allowed the deacon, and ten shillings to the sub-deacon, for clothes. Before the Reformation, there were two chantries in Bakewell church, one at the altar of the Holy Cross, founded in 1365, by Sir Godfrey Foljambe, and Avena his wife, valued at £6 6s. 2d., first Edward VI.; and the other at the altar of the Virgin Mary, valued at £4.

Moorside, a district extending two miles N.E. The commons about Bakewell and Over Haddon were formerly one continued dreary waste, but now present a scene of rich enclosures, interspersed with wide-spreading plantations belonging to the Duke of Rutland. Haddon (Over and Nether,) Hartle, and Hassop, inhabitants attend Bakewell church.

CHARITIES.—Lady Manners, in 1637, left a rent charge of £15 per annum, out of lands at Elton, to a schoolmaster, for the instruction of male children of the township of Bakewell and Great Rowsley. The master also receives a voluntary addition of £40 from the Duke of Rutland, making in the whole, £55 per annum; and according to the revised regulations and rules, 20 youths are admitted on the foundation, on the payment of 1s. for registration, and instructed in English generally, Latin, and Greek. at 5s. 3d. per quarter. Mr. Wm. Kay, L.C.P., the master, has good accommodation for boarders, at his own residence, Bridge street.

Mary Hague, in 1715, gave for ever the rents of a house and garden, situated in South Church street, Bakewell, to a schoolmaster or mistress, for instructing 7 poor children.
